Three weeks ago thieves entered the barn of Charles Needham, a merchant of Ottawa, Le Seuer county, and stole a buffalo and lap robes worth over $50. Monday night Sheriff Moll arrested at St. Peter Daniel and Charles Long of Ottawa on charge of stealing the robes. Both parties confessed, and told where the robes could be found. They had sold them to parties in Farmington. The prisoners were taken to Ottawa for a hearing, and as they made a full confession they will plead guilty and go to jail. They are sons of respectable parents, but for the past six months have been loafing in Ottawa, St. Peter and Mankato, and spending money freely without doing any work to earn any.

At the meeting of the board of trade, Secretary Phelps submitted the annual report of the business of Winona for the past year. The first report, presented early in the year 1881, showed the business of the year previous to have amounted to $8,088,620. Two years later, in January, 1883, the amount was $12,865,053. The present statement mounts up to $15,034,629, divided as follows: General trade $12,046,935; banking, $2,193,438; building improvements, $794,256. Grand total, $15,034,629.

Articles of incorporation of the Co-operative Printing company of Minneapolis have been filed with the secretary of state, with a capital stock of $5,000 and the limit of liability $1,200. The incorporators are John R. Berger, Francis G. Drew, C. A. French, George A. Leighton and Dorr Thomas, all of Minneapolis.

Senator S. D. Peterson of New Ulm, said in St. Paul recently that the statement of his intention to antogonize the renomination of Congressman Wakefield in the Second district, by becoming a candidate himself was wholly untrue. He disclaimed any such intention.

The republicans of Minneapolis have nominated George A. Pillsbury for mayor. The prohibitionists nominated J. T. Weyman. Dr. Ames will probably be the democratic nominee.

At Moorhead, the firm of M. Leo & Co. was closed Thursday afternoon by the sheriff. The firm was one of the oldest in the city, and was thought to be on a sound financial basis. The siezure is believed to be by Eastern wholesalers, of whom goods were purchased. The officials are uncommunicative as to the amount of the debts.

At Red Lake Falls, Mrs. Marie Kretzschmar, wife of Carl Kretzschmar, died of dropsy. Mr. and Mrs. Kretzschmar came from Berlin to this country in 1869, and were the first settlers in Fergus Falls. From there they moved to Crookston, and each was identified with the building up and developing of that city.

At Vermillion, on the Iron Range road, "Black Jack," and his pal, Brown, went into a camp where there were seven or eight men, and robbed the whole outfit of $187, and one of them dare not say a word for fear his life would pay the penalty.

Dr. Van Pahl of Chaska has been arrested and held in $1,000 bonds, on a charge of ravishing a simple-minded thirteen-year-old girl who boarded in his family.

At Moorhead, William Owen's house was burned.

At Moorhead a rumor is afloat that W. H. Lewis, county physician, has left the city for good. He was well liked apparently by all, and had a fair practice here. He married about fourteen months ago a young lady who had been a waitress in one of the hotels, and it is said that the wedded life of the pair has not been the most felicitous. His wife and child are still in the city.

George S. Dale of Minneapolis lost his wallet with $67,000 in notes in New York.

Swan and Corlson are in jail in Duluth, charged with the murder of Sam Wilson at Vermillion, and a number of others have been arrested as accessories.

Conrad Boettcher, a pioneer of Le Sueur, died at the residence of his son, Rev. Henry Boettcher, in that town, aged eighty-four years.

The Lake house in Alexandria was burned with its contents. Loss, $4,000; insurance, $800.

The house committee on public buildings and grounds agreed to recommend the erection of a public building at Duluth, Minn., to cost $100,000.

A meeting of the Minnesota Republican state central committee is called at St. Paul March 28th.

At Langhai, Pope county, several days ago, while digging a well on land of Gunder Tharaldson, silver, looking as if the outcropping of a vein, was found.

William Lyons, an old and respected citizen of Alexandria, died on Sunday, aged seventy-two years, from the result of wounds received during the late war.

The large price that has been paid in Rochester for a few years past for ginseng has resulted in extirpating the plant from Olmsted county, and as the root is of very slow growth, there can be no more to dig for a number of years to come.

Mr. C. H. Voorhis died very sudder ly at Faribault of heart disease. H was formerly a resident of Philadelphi and came to Faribault about a year ag and entered Seabury Divinity schoo with the intention of taking orders i the ministry.

The woman who died under my terious circumstances in Motley, th dead body of an infant being found i her trunk, proves to have been the wi of Myron Fuller of Reynolds. Th had not lived together for four years.

The roof of a stable containing fort head of valuable cattle upon the Moo land farm, near Moorhead, fell in fro the weight of snow upon. Fourteen the cattle were killed.

Nels Ash, a Swede, was fatally jured by falling from a pile driver tween Anoka and Champlin, and d soon after.

Scanlan & Wall are to start a b in Lanesboro called the "Home change."

Harper & Gillispie and the St. C Lumber company of Stillwater h filed claims to the amount of $17. and the laborers to the amount of $ against A. S. Bliss, a lumberman Barnum. The sheriff is now in po sion.

The coroner's jury in the cas Helge Helgeson, killed by a snow near Norcross, when two other s men were wounded, returned a ve that deceased came to his death being run down by Engine No. with snowplow attachment, drive James P. Haines, of the St. Paul, neapolis & Manitoba railroad; an further find that the said engine run at an unjustifiable rate of sp and without the caution necessar the safety of the section men at on the track."

In a drunken row at Beaver B Indian named Yellow Bird was kil attempting to prevent trouble. I ick and Smith fled, but were arreste examined on the following Monda discharged by justice of the Saulsbury, although they did not that they committed the murder, swearing that they were too dru remember who did it. The con so it is reported by those there, ished the liquor, which he sold to any Indian who would pay for money, flour, calico or anything

The house of Stephen Hews old settler of Oxford, burned M his sick daughter and two c being removed in safety. The office, kept in the same buildin also destroyed; some deeds, mo and notes were saved, but his valued at $500, was a total loss.

The directors of the Minneso company held their annual me their office in St. Paul, for the of officers. The resignation of T. Blood, as secretary of the comp dated Dec. 21, 1883, was read. following officers were elected for ensuing year; C. Tower, Philadel Pa., president; George C. Stone, Paul, Minn., vice president and ge manager; C. Tower, Jr., Duluth, M treasurer; I. P. Beck, Duluth, M secretary.

Wadena expended $68,550 in b ing improvements last year.

LONG AGO.

I sit beside the sinking fire,
Watch the weird faces in its glow;
All through the night I should not tire—
But they have faded, long ago.

All—dust to dust!—the last repose—
Ashes to ashes!—well I know
How surely this hath been with those,
Those whom I loved, so long ago.

How surely this with me will be!
From every petty joy and woe,
From fancied slight from jealousy
Made free and safe—ah! long ago.

And yet may some things with us stay;—
As, on the waters, lilies blow,
In white and green,—just as they lay
In white and green, so long ago.

'Tis pleasant now to think,—"Perhaps In Memory's light one's face may glow;"
"Out upon Time!"—for all things lapse
In that sad, dreary long ago.

But when I'm dead, don't thou forget—
Thou whom I used to treasure so;
Yet may one tear thine eyelid wet,
Because I loved thee,—long ago!
—Temple Bar.

THE LITTLE ONES.

Funny Sayings of Small Children.

Chambers' Journal.

At a public meeting in Edinburg some time ago, Professor Blackie told his audience the following story: "A little boy at a presbytery examination was asked, "What is the meaning of regeneration?" "O, to be born again," he replied. "Quite right, Tommy. You're a very good boy. Would you not like to be born again?" Tommy hesitated, but on being pressed for an answer, said: "No." "Why, Tommy?" "For fear I might be born a lassie!" he replied.

This appears to be an excellent illustration of the folly of asking children difficult theological questions before they are old enough to grasp the difference between worldly fact and divine allegory.

Much more to the point, and a splendid specimen of childlike reproach, was the reply of a little urchin, who, with his brothers and sisters, were always scolded by their grandfather whenever they dared to invade the precincts of his library. "Would you like to go to heaven, Bertie?" his mother asked of him one evening when she had been reading to him Mrs. Hemans' beautiful verses on the "Better Land." "No, mamma," was the quick response. "You wouldn't like to go to heaven, my son! Why?" "Why, grandpa will be there, won't he?" "Yes; I hope he will." "Well, when he sees us children, he'll come scolding along and say, 'Whew! whew! what are you all here for?' No, mamma; I don't want to go to heaven if grandpapa is going to be there."

We cull the following from one of the French papers: A little boy was sitting by the bed of his grandmother, who was very ill. "Ah, my poor child," she said, "I am very bad; I am going to die." He looked very much mystified for a few minutes, and then suddenly exclaimed: "Why will you die? Does God want an old angel?"

"Grandpa," said another intelligent little fellow, "who made those ditches in your forehead?" "God, my dear." "What did he make them for?" "I don't know, Willie. Don't ask silly questions." Willie was thoughtful for a few moments, and then said: "I know now. Father can tell how old his cows are by the wrinkles on their horns. Is that what God put wrinkles on your brow for, grandpa?"

Some remarkable answers are sometimes given by children in response to questions put to them in school. At a school at Wallsend, near Newcastle, the master asked a class of boys the meaning of the word "appetite," and after a brief pause one little boy said: "I know, sir: 'when I'm eatin' I'm 'appy, and when I'm done I'm tight."

Another teacher asked a bright little girl what country was opposite to us on the globe. "I don't know sir," was the reply. "Well, now," pursued the teacher, "if I were to bore a hole through the earth, and you were to go in at this end, where would you come out?" "Out of the hole, sir," replied the pupil with an air of triumph.

Children frequently put puzzling questions at home to their parents on various subjects, as is evinced by the one which a smart boy, who had been reading the newspaper, put to his father: "Pa, has the world got a tail?" "No, my boy; it is quite round," replied his parent. "Well," persisted young hopeful, "why do papers say 'so wags the world,' if it ain't got a tail?"

As an instance of juvenile precocity, we may mention the strategem employed by a little six-year old fellow whose mother had told him that it was impolite to ask for cakes or other things which they might see being prepared while visiting at other people's houses. Calling at a house in the neighborhood where a cake was being made, he eyed the precious composition very wistfully for some time without speaking, but at last he ventured to say, in an undertone, "Mother says it is not polite to ask for cake." "No," was the reply; "it does not look well for little boys to do so." "But she didn't say I must not eat a piece in case you gave it to me," was the unanswerable rejoinder.

Of a similar kind was the suggestion of a little girl who, while at a party, had left upon the table half an orange. On passing the house the next morning she thought of the orange, and, feeling like finishing it, she entered and said to the lady. "Mrs. M——, I left part of an orange here last night, and I have called to see about it. If you don't find it you needn't trouble yourself about it, as a whole small orange will do just as well."

Children if permitted, will sometimes try to argue a question, but it is seldom that they venture on closing an argument, when it is particularly addressed to them. A certain Aunt Betsy was, however, trying to persuade her little nephew to go to bed, and, by way of argument, said that all the little chickens went to bed at sunset. "Yes," replied the boy; "but the old hen always goes with them."

A little girl who heard that every one was made of dust, was one day standing at the window, and appeared to be very intently watching the eddies of that staple of creation as they were whirled up by the wind. Her mother, observing her, asked what she was thinking about; and she responded in a very serious tone, "I thought, mamma, that there was going to be another little girl." This, however, was not so precocious an answer as that wrung from another little girl who was reproved for playing with the boys, and was told that, being seven years old, she was too big for that now. "Why, grandma," she replied, "the bigger we grow the better we like 'em."

Some children are often amusing by reason of their conceit, as in the case of the young French gentleman of the mature age of five, who, on being told that the baby wanted to kiss him, said: "Yes—he takes me for his papa."

Amusing answers also occur when attempts are made to tax a child's memory about things with which it may be imperfectly acquainted. In this category may be reckoned the two following incidents:

"Well, my child," said a father to his little daughter after she had been to church, "what do you remember of all the preacher said?" "Nothing," was the timid reply. "Nothing!" he exclaimed, in a severe tone. "Now, remember, the next time you must tell me something of what he says or you will have to be punished." Next Sunday the child came home with her eyes all wild with excitement. "I remember something to-day, papa," she cried, eagerly. "I am very glad of it," said her father. "What did he say?" "He said, 'A collection will now be made!'"

We will close our paper by an amusing example of childish skepticism. A little boy about four years of age was saying his prayers at his mother's knee, and when he had finished the Lord's Prayer, she said: "Now, Willie, ask God to make you a good boy." The child raised his eyes to his mother's face for a few moments, as if in deep thought, and then startled her with the reply: "It's no use, mamma. He won't do it. I've asked him a heap o' times."

Miscellany.

Col. Gabe Wharton, of Kentucky, who has made a thorough inspection of Mexico recently, is not favorably impressed with the land of the Aztecs. In the hotels of the City of Mexico he found it impossible to obtain anything to eat before the middle of the day except bread and coffee. Everybody gambles and nobody cares to work. Mr. Wharton says he saw no Israelites in Mexico, and he felt that it was a poor country for business or trade. He pointedly puts the question: "What are you to sell to a nation with five millions of people within its borders who never wore a suit of clothes?" Naturally we ought to expect to sell them some clothing.

An important precedent relating to street fights has been established in London. Two boys were detected in such an encounter by a policeman, and one of them, who summarily judged to be the more guilty, was taken before a magistrate. The culprit explained that he was not the aggressor. The other boy, he said, had been "converted," and struck him because he would not "turn religious" too. His mother, moreover, confirmed her son's good opinion of himself, but the judge decided that the "converted" boy was probably the better behaved of the two, and fined the unconverted half a crown.

A gum importer of Gotham tells a reporter: "El Mahdi might sink all the gum arabic in Africa into the Nile and he wouldn't affect the trade in American gumdrops. As a matter of fact, the dandy trade would not suffer appreciably. There is not an ounce of gum arabic in a million pounds of the ordinary gumdrops like those which you see sold from stands in the streets. They are made from the glucose of the starch factories, which is generally used, except in the manufacture of some of the finer grades of confectionery, in place of gum arabic. Of course, the candy suffers; but there is no limit to adulteration in the confectionery business."

A new and dangerous development of mesmerism was displayed the other day at Paris to an admiring and sympathizing public by a well-known mesmerist, who at the same time is a lion-tamer in a certain menagerie. A beautiful young girl, on whom the spiritualist generally practices, was brought into a cage of lions, and after being thrown into a cataleptic sleep, was submitted to the most frightful ordeals. In one of these the head and arms of the girl were put into the mouth of the lion, which had previously been infuriated by lashes from it's master's whip. But the apparently dead body did not excite the animal's appetite. At the end of the scene the girl was released and went smiling away, while the mesmerist earned rich laurels. But suppose the lion had eaten the maiden—what then?

The suit of Prof. Fiske against Cornell University is again before the courts. A correspondent of the New York Post says evidence taken some time since at Eau Claire, Wis., in regard to the value of the western lands owned by the university, tends strongly to show that the university, at the time of Mrs. Fiske's death, possessed the $3,000,000 allowed it by its charter. It looks at present very much as though the university will be unable to retain the fortune of nearly $2,000,000 which was bequeathed it by Mrs. McGraw Fiske, the daughter of one of its earliest benefactors. The Fiske-McGraw mansion still stands empty, and nearly all the rich tapestry and works of art were some time ago taken to Italy by Professor Fiske. Owing to the present litigation nothing has been done toward erecting the hospital or the large library building which were contemplated.

The Rev. Dr. J. Parker, of London, declares himself out of sympathy with some of the common talk about the so-called out-cast poor of London. He says that many of the families which are pitied for having to live in one filthy, unventilated room, neither ask or deserve pity. In fact they prefer to live in that way, and would do so if they had all heaven at their disposal. "Dirt," he says, "has its warm friends, even amongst people not numbered amongst the outcast poor. I say this to guard benevolent persons against the notion that dirt and poverty are synonymous terms. I am given to understand that even some Christians have a wonderful likeness for anything slovenly and slipshod; at least I have heard women screaming to other people to hold the fort and ring the bells of Heaven, whose stockings would have been the better for a day's darning."

Chicago Times: The February earnings of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago & Northwestern were greater than last year, the former gaining 2¾ per cent, and the latter 15¼ per cent. But compared with 1882 the Northwestern's increase was only 3 per cent, while the St. Paul shows a decrease of 4 per cent. These and most other western roads had exceptionally large earnings in March last year. Thus the St. Paul earned 80 per cent, the Northwestern 50 per cent, the Omaha 58 per cent, the Burlington 46 per cent, the Illinois Central 30 per cent, the Missouri Pacific 30 per cent, and the Wabash 33 per cent, and more [illegible] from March to April on all these roads.

The Czar's Estate.

One may form some idea of the extent of the possessions belonging to the Russian emperor, as property immediately attached to the crown, when we hear that the Altai estates alone cover an area of 40,000,000 desjatins, or over 170,000 square miles, being about three times the size of England and Wales. The Netchinsk estates, in eastern Siberia are estimated at about 18,000,000 desjatins. In the Altai estates are situated the gold and silver mines of Barnaul, Paulov, Smijoy, Loktjepp, the copper foundry at the Sasoum, and the great iron works at Gavrilov, in the Salagirov district. The receipts from these enormous estates are in a ridiculously pitiful ratio to their eztent. In the year 1882 they amounted to 950,000 roubles, or a little more than £95,000 while for 1883 the revenue was estimated at less than half this sum, or about 400,000 roubles. The rents, etc., gave a surplus over expense of administration of about a million and a half of roubles. On the other hand, its working of the mines showed a deficit of over a million; hence the result just indicated. A partial explanation of this very unsatisfactory state of things is to be found in the situation of the mines, which are generally in places quite destitute of wood, while the smelting works were naturally situated in districts where wood abounds, sometimes as much as 600 or 700 kilometres distant from the mines. The cost of transport of raw materials became considerable in this way. By degrees all the wood available in the neighborhood of the smelting works became used up, and it was necessary to bring wood from distances of even over a hundred kilometres. Formerly worked by convicts, who were partly helped by immigrants whose sons were exempted from military service on the condition of working the mines. But since the abolition of serfdom this system has been quite altered, and there is now a great deal of free labor on the ordinary conditions.—[London Times.

J. W. Smith of Clam Falls went into his saw mill to start the machinery, and was hit on the head by a revolving wheel, killing him almost instantly.

Why Endure It.

Distress and anguish why endure
When there is found a pefect cure,
That stops Rheumatic aches and pain
And gives the sufferer ease again!

Rheumatism and Neuralgia are truly most painful and often dangerous troubles, and very common to this climate, yet none need suffer who have access to Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It is specific for all inflammatory action and pain cannot withstand its external and internal use. It combines the vital principles of electricity with the most soothing and healing vegetable oils, selected for their marvelous power over pain. It is equally good for internal use in Colds, Coughs Sore Throat, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Colic, Cramp, Dysentery and all painful affections. As a household ready relief for accidents and injuries, for lameness, stiff cords, pain in the back, sprains, bruises, burns and frost-bites it has no equal. Keep it ready for handy use, and get none but the genuine as there are cheap and worthless counterfeits. Buy only the 50 cent or $1.00 bottles.

From B. F. Liepsner, A. M., Red Bank, N. J. I have been troubled with Catarrh so badly for several years that it seriously affected my voice. I tried Dr.——s' remedy without the slightest relief. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored and my head feels better than for years.

In regard to Ely's Cream Balm for Catarrh, my answer is, I can recommend it as the best remedy I ever used.—Dr. J. S. Vaughan, Dentist Muskegon, Mich. (See adv't.)

The Frazer Axle Grease is the very best. A trial will prove we are right.

I used Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) for a bad case of blood poison from Malaria, and am satisfied that it saved my life as I was given up to die. O. G. Spencer, Sup't Gas Works, Rome, Ga.

He Speaks With a Clear Voice.

I have tried your White Wine of Tar Syrup, and am satisfied it will relieve a cold or sore throat quicker than any other medicine. At times it has troubled me a great deal to speak, but your medicine has enabled me to speak with a clear and distinct voice. I remain truly yours, Rev. J. D. Craig, Miami Station, Carroll Co., Mo.

The Copiah county committee deny that they saw Jeff Davis honored at a Mardi Gras ball.

Well's May Apple (Liver) Pills, 10c.
"Rough on Toothache," instant relief. 15c.
The "Rough on Tooth" Powder, elegant. 15c.

Piso's cure for consumption is not only pleasant to take, but it is sure to cure.

Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) has cured me of hereditary scrofula of the worst type. The medicine is more than you claim for it and I hope any who doubt will write to me. E. O. Hawes, Jr., Clarksville, Ga.

Piles! Piles! Piles!

Sure cure for Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. Single box has cured worst chronic case of twenty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying. William's Indian Pile ointment. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching (praticularly after getting warm in bed). Prepared only for piles and itching for the private parts. Noyes Bros. & Cutler, St Paul. Wholesale Agents.

There was a young lady quite fair,
Who had much trouble with her hair,
So she bought Carboline
And a sight to be seen,
Is the head of this maiden, I declare.

Is your liver sound? 100 page book free. Address Dr. Sanford, 24 Duane St. New York.

"Brown's Bronchial Troaches" are widely known as an admirable remedy for Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Coughs, and Throat troubles. Sold only in boxes.

The Strowbridge Sower, manufactured by the Racine Seeder Co., is one of the new machines that should be on every farm. It is one of the most practical labor-saving implements that has ever been brought to the notice of the farming world, and it is only a wonder that such a sower has not been made more of a success long ago. C. W. Dorr, the Seedsman, of Des Moines, Iowa, is now putting this Seeder into the hands of thousands of the best farmers in America, and he reports that they are meeting with general approval by those using them. It will pay any farmer to send to him for the Illustrated Catalogue of this implement, which is mailed free to any address.

A Clergyman's Tongue.

Rev. R. Priest says: Tongue cannot express the good that Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup has done for me. I have never found anything that will relieve Hoarseness and Irritation of the Throat and Lungs like White Wine of Tar Syrup.

The Patti ticket swindle at San Francisco engrosses attention. The newspapers unanimously denounce the practices in the strongest terms. It is openly stated that Mapleson's business manager, Nathal, prearranged the scheme with speculators brought from the East. The indignation is increased at Mapleson's refusal to see reporters or give an explanation of the extraordinary conduct of his manager. Scalpers are offering tickets for $15. They have been sold for $31.

Mrs. Langtry attended the Purim ball in New York [illegible]

HEREDITARY TAINTS.

Some Revelations on A Subject Which Concerns the Welfare of the Race and the Happiness of All.

(Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.)

To any one who has studied the laws of life, and especially those which relate to reproduction, an experience such as we are about to relate, will come with special force and interest. The transmission of certain mental traits of prominence, and of certain physical traits of equal prominence, are facts which all acknowledge, but which none can understand. The father may be distinguished,—the son, an imbecile; or, the parent may be decrepit and unknown, and the child achieve the highest place possible to humanity. But through it all, there will be certain characteristics, which mark the individual as descending from ancestors. Too often, indeed, these characteristics are infirmities, and often of a physical nature.

These facts were strikingly brought out during a conversation, which a representative of this paper recently had with Mrs. Carrie D. T. Swift, who is the wife of one of our most prominent citizens. This lady related that she inherited from her parents certain tendencies, over which she had no control, and which were in the nature of blood difficulties, assuming the form of rheumatism. Her experience can best be described in her own words. To the writer she said:

"I felt the beginning of this hereditary taint many years ago, in vague pains, which seemed to come unaccountably and at uncalled for times. They were annoying, exhausting, and interfered not only with my duties, but also totally destroyed my happiness. At first, they would be only transient, appearing for a day or two, and then disappearing; then again they would come in such violent forms, that it was impossible for me to lift a cup to my mouth. Afterwards, my feet and hands swelled so that it was impossible for me to draw on my shoes or gloves without the greatest effort. I realized what the difficulty was, but seemed powerless to avert it. I finally became so bad that I was confined to the house and to my bed most of the time. My joints pained me continuously and my feet swelled to enormous proportions. Knowing that I inherited this tendency, I had about abandoned hope, when I began the use of a remedy, which was recommended to me as a friend as being specially efficient in cases of a similar kind. To my great gratitude, I found that it relieved me, restored my appetite, and I am able to say that now I have gained forty pounds in weight, feel perfectly well and am in the best possible condition, owing, wholly, to Warner's Safe Rheumatic cure, which was the remedy I used."

"No one would ever suspect you had suffered so, Mrs. Swift, to see you now," remarked the reporter.

"That is what all my friends say. Only yesterday, an acquaintance of mine, whom I had not seen for some time hesitated, before speaking, and apologized by saying, 'Why I really did not know you, you have changed so for the better since I last met you, how well you do look."

"Have you any objection to giving the name of the party who first mentioned this remedy to you?"

"Not the slightest. It was Mr. R. H. Furman, the photographer."

The newspaper man, after bidding Mrs. Swift good-bye, repaired to the photographic rooms of Mr. Furman, when the following conversation ensued:

"Have you been a sufferer from rheumatism, Mr. Furman?"

"Well, I should think I had.

"For how many years?"

"Twelve or fifteen."

"Did you ever try to cure it?"

"Yes, I tried everything, and, at last, went to the Hot Springs of Arkansas, and nothing seemed to do me any good until I tried Warner's Safe Rheumatic Cure."

"And it cured you, did it?"

"Yes, completely."

"And you can cordially recommend it?"

"Yes, indeed, more cordially than anything I have ever known of. It is simply a wonderful medicine. I believe that two-thirds of all cases, both acute and chronic, could be cured as I was cured by the use of this remedy. In fact I know a number of persons who have been in the worst possible condition, and are now completely well wholly through its use."

The statements above made are from sources, the authority of which cannot be questioned. They conclusively prove the value of the preparation named and show that even hereditary traits can be removed by the use of the proper means.

Forty years ago Monday Cardinal McCloskey was elevated from priesthood to the episcopacy.

"Our Experience

with Allen's Lung Balsam for colds and coughs has been of the most satisfactory character," writes the editor of a leading paper. He is only one in thousands who has tried this "Balsam" and has been convinced of its virtue and merits.

Snow is 20 feet deep between Montreal and Ottowa.

"Buchu-paiba," Great Kidney and Urinary Cure. $1
"Rough on Corns," for Corns, Warts, Bunions. 15c
Wells' Health Renewer cures Dyspepsia, Impotence

Mensman's Peptonized Beef Tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its entire nutritious properties. It contains, blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and all forms of general debility; also, in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork, or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. Caswell, Hazard & Co., Proprietors, New York. Sold by Druggists.

Occasional doses Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator will keep the liver in good order. Sure Cincinnati has a new negro paper, the Ohio Republican.

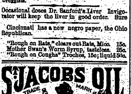
"Rough on Rats," clears out Rats, Mice. 15c.
Mother Swan's Worm Syrup, tasteless. 25c.
"Rough on Coughs" Troches, 15c; liquid 50c.

ST. JACOBS OIL



THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.

Allen's Iron Tonic bitters cure Dyspepsia All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

"See What Cuticura Does for Me!"

INFANTILE and Birth Humors, Milk Crust, Scalled Head, Eczemas, and every form of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous and inherited Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, cured by the Cuticura Remedies. Absolutely pure and safe. Cuticura the great Skin Cure, 50 cts.; Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and only Medicinal Baby Soap, 25 cts. and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, $1, are sold by druggists. Potter Drug and Chemical Co., Boston. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS,
DISORDERED LIVER,
and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

Gray Hair or Whiskers changed instantly to a Glossy Black by a single application of this Dye. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

The Most Popular Medicine Extant

Allen's Lung Balsam!

A REMEDY THAT WILL CURE

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,
ASTHMA, CROUP,

All Diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Pulmonary Organs.

THE LUNG BALSAM Has cured Consumption when other remedies and physicians have failed to effect a cure.

THE LUNG BALSAM Contains no Opium in any form.

THE LUNG BALSAM Is strictly pure and harmless to the most delicate person.

THE LUNG BALSAM Is recommended by Physicians, Ministers and Nurses.

THE LUNG BALSAM For Croup is a safe and sure Remedy. Mothers, try it.

THE LUNG BALSAM Should be used at the first manifestations of a Cold or Cough.

THE LUNG BALSAM As an Expectorant has no equal.

CAUTION:—Be not deceived. Call for ALLEN'S Lung Balsam, and take no other.
Directions accompany each bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO. Limited, Cincinnati, O.
PROPRIETORS.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE DEALERS.

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

The want of a reliable diuretic which, while acting as a stimulant of the kidneys, neither excites nor irritates them, was long since supplied by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This fine medicine exerts the requisite degree of stimulation upon these organs, without producing irritation, and is, therefore, far better adapted for the purpose than unmedicated excitants often restored to. Dyspepsia, fever and ague, and kindred diseases, are all cured by it. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

FREE INFORMATION

ABOUT THE SOUTHWEST.

Kansas, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, California and Old Mexico OFFER THE BEST FIELD for Farmers, Fruit-Growers, Stock-Raisers, Capitalists, Merchants, Miners and Mechanics of all grades. Maps, papers and pamphlets, giving detailed information, MAILED FREE on application to C. B. SCHMIDT, Com'r of Immigration, A. T. & S. F. R. R., Topeka, Kansas.

LIFE LOANS AT 4 PER CENT.

Principal need never be paid so long as interest is kept up.

No security required except for interest, and then only personal. These loans are for poor or men of moderate means, in amounts of $100. $400 FOR LIFE. Send four cents for particulars. W. Roberts, Manager, 193 W. 5th St. Cincinnati, O.

THE SASKATCHEWAN
FIFE WHEAT

WILL YIELD FROM FIVE TO FIFTEEN BUSHELS!

More to the acre than any other Hard Wheat grown here. This is the judgment of Prof. E. D. Porter, the Professor of Agriculture at the Minnesota State University. Is the PUREST SCOTCH FIFE to-day in the country. This is the opinion of Hon. E. D. Bowen, the special agent sent out by the Chamber of Commerce of Minneapolis to examine it in the field.

FARMERS: Do you want to increase your yields FIFTY PER CENT? Then try this new Wheat. Send to W. J. ABERNETHY & CO. of Minneapolis, the Originators and Proprietors, for their 16-page pamphlet, giving its history and prices.

DEERE & CO. MINNEAPOLIS
JOHN DEERE MOLINE, ILL.
BREAKING STUBBLE Gilpin Sulky PLOW
Cultivators, Harrows
BUGGIES, WAGONS, SEEDERS, MOWERS,
FARM MACHINERY.

100 POPULAR SONGS sent for only 10c. Cut this out. J. H. PARKER & CO., Clinton Connecticut.

Young Men learn Telegraphy here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

LANG'S LIVE SEEDS. NORTHERN GROWN, THOROUGHLY TESTED. Flower Vegetable and Field. 20,000 Catalogues free. Send names of your friends. FRED. N. LANG, Baraboo, Wis.

Any man or woman making less than $40 per week, should try our money-making business. Requires no talking and pays best of any. It will pay you to read our papers. $1 sample free to those whom mean business. Exclusive territory given. Address, with 2c. stamp, B. H. Merrill & Co., Chicago.

AGENTS Wanted

Our elegant new Sewing Machine, latest and best. High Arm Tucker, Ruffler and full outfit free. All the latest improvements. Warranted five years. Machines on trial. A new Singer Machine with all attachments warranted, $14.25. No better ones can be bought at any price. Circulars and testimonials free. The Champion Sewing Machine Co., Chicago, Ill.

U. S. STANDARD. JONES OF BINGHAMTON

5 TON WAGON SCALES,
Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box,
$60 and
JONES he pays the freight—for free Price List mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, Binghamton N. Y.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again, I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you.
Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM.

HEALS DISEASED LUNGS
AND CURES COUGHS AND COLDS.
Made only by Dr. FRANK POWELL, Medicine Chief of the Winnebago Indians. LA CROSSE, WIS. Sold by all Druggists

THE HOUSEWIFE!

The Ladies favorite $1.00 Domestic Monthly sent free one year for names and address of ten married Ladies, and 36 cents for postage. Every housewife wants it and cannot afford to be without it. Will send an elegant book. "How to make candy." (Price 50 cents) and The Housewife for one year, for names and address of twenty married ladies and 50 cents (Postal Note or 50 1 cent stamps). We want names at once. Must send now. Address,
THE HOUSEWIFE CO., Rochester, N. Y.

Owing to the Failure of a great German Music House, we purchased their entire stock.

PAGANINI VIOLIN,

Celebrated for fine tone, finish. Italian strings, fine pegs, inlaid pearl tail-piece, fine long bow, with ivory and silvered frog, in violin box. Instruction Book. 558 pieces music for $3.50. Satisfaction or money refunded. A better outfit cannot be purchased elsewhere for $10. C. H. W. BATES & CO., Importers, 106 Sudbury St., Boston, Mass.

CATARRH

ELY'S
CREAM BALM
CURES
COLD IN HEAD
CATARRH
ROSE-COLD
HAY-FEVER
DEAFNESS
HEADACHE
PRICE 50 CENTS
ELY BRO'S,
OWEGO N.Y.
U.S.A.

HAY-FEVER

Ely's Cream Balm when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. Price, 50 cents, by mail, or at druggists.

ELY BROTHERS, Owego, N. Y.

DR. SPINNEY'S
TRADE
MARK
NERVE TONIC

Nerve Tonic.

A Positive Remedy for all forms of Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Spinal Affections Chorea, Sympathetic Nervous Derangement of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, and all other Nervous Diseases.

Price: $1.00 per bottle or 6 for $5.00. Sent by express on receipt of money.

Send stamp for circular.

Address, DR. SPINNEY & CO., 10½ South Third St., Minneapolis, Minn. Also for sale by Druggists.

SKIN HUMOR.

My baby six months old broke out with some kind of skin humor, and after being treated five months by my family physician, was given up to die. The druggist recommended Swift's Specific, and the effect was as gratifying as it was miraculous. My child soon got well, all traces of the disease is gone, and he is as fat as a pig.
J. J. Kirkland,
Minden, Rusk County, Texas.

I have suffered for many years from ulcers on my legs. Often very large and painful, during which time I used almost everything to effect a cure, but in vain. I took Swift's Specific by advice of a friend, and in a short time was cured sound and well.
Edwin J. Miller, Beaumont, Texas.

I have been afflicted with Scrofula for twelve years and have had sores on me as large as a man's hand for that length of time. Last summer I was so bad off that I could not wear clothing. I had spent hundreds of dollars in the effort to be cured, but all to no purpose, and had injured myself with Mercury and Potash. Your Swift's Specific cured me promptly and permanently, and I hope every like sufferer will take it.
R. L. High,
Lakonl, Ark.

Our Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants.
THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.
New York Office, 159 W. 23d St., between Sixth and Seventh Avenues.

BUGGIES Best work in the U. S. for the money. ENTERPRISE CARRIAGE Co., Cincinnati. Write for Catalogue No. 10. Free.

WATCH Free! 50 Satin Gloss Chromo Cards 10c. Latest designs, 10 pks. $1, and a Musical Watch free. Sample album 25c. W. F. AUSTIN, New Haven, Ct.

AGENTS WANTED for the best and fastest selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publishing Co., Chicago, Ill.

PATENTS NO PATENT, NO PAY. R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Full instructions and hand-book on PATENTS SENT FREE.

CONSUMPTION.

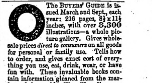
I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.
DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

SICK FOLKS Folks should send a three cent stamp for a free book of nearly 100 large octavo pages, full of valuable notes by Dr. E. B. Foote, the author of

MEDICAL COMMON SENSE AND PLAIN HOME TALK,

FREE BOOK on Scrofula, Diseases of Men and Women, and all chronic ailments, with the evidences of their curability. Address Murray-Hill Pub. Co., Box 788, New York City.

O The Buyers' Guide is issued March and Sept., each year: 216 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives whole-sale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—7 cents. Let us hear from you.
Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.



"BOX SUITS."

The above represents one of TUCKER, CALDER & CO'S fine suits put up in separate boxes. For style of fabric and shape they excel anything offered in the line of ready-made clothing. For business men they fully equal the nicest custom work. Ask your dealer to see some of their clothing. All of their goods are perfect in fit, shape and style.

MARLIN MAGAZINE RIFLE.

45 Govt. and 40-60 Grain Cartridges.
Very Strong. Perfectly Safe.

THE BEST RIFLE in the world for Large Game. Much more effective than 44-cal., which uses small amount of powder and lead. Superior in accuracy, rapidity, model and finish, to any other.

BALLARD Gallery, Sporting and Target Rifles. Send for Catalogue.

Marlin Fire Arms Co. New Haven Ct.

The only known specific for Epileptic Fits. Also for Spasms and Falling Sickness. Nervous Weakness it instantly relieves and cures. Cleanses blood and quickens sluggish circulation. Neutralizes germs of disease and saves sickness. Cures ugly blotches and stubborn blood sores. Eliminates Boils, Carbuncles and Scalds. Permanently and promptly cures paralysis. Yes, it is a charming and healthful Aperient. Kills Scrofula and Kings Evil, twin brothers. Changes bad breath to good, removing the cause. Routs billious tendencies and makes clear complexion. Equalled by none in the delirium of fever. A charming resolvent and a matchless laxative. It drives Sick Headache like the wind. Contains no drastic cathartic or opiates. Relieves the brain of morbid fancies. Promptly cures Rheumatism by routing it. Restores life-giving properties to the blood. Is guaranteed to cure all nervous disorders. Reliable when all opiates fail. Refreshes the mind and invigorates the body. Cures dyspepsia or money refunded.

A SKEPTIC SAID

SAMARITAN NERVINE

THE GREAT NERVE CONQUEROR

NEVER FAILS

Diseases of the blood own it a conqueror. Endorsed in writing by over fifty thousand leading citizens, clergymen and physicians in U. S. and Europe.
For sale by all leading druggists. $1.50. (18)
For Testimonials and circulars send stamp.
The Dr. S. A. Richmond Med Co. St. Joseph, Mo.
Lord, Stoutenburgh & Co., Agents, Chicago, Ill.

BUY NORTHERN GROWN SEEDS. Produce beautiful flowers, fine Vegetables, large crops, Saskatchewan Fife French Imperial and other wheat sorts. New Oats, Corn & Potatoes. Wis., Ill., and other States will return to their old time grain yield if our pure Northern Seed is used. Catalog free.

Our Vegetable and Flower Seeds are fresh and pure. Don't buy old Seeds when for less money ours are deliver'd free by mail. Plants by the 10,000. Everything cheap. J. A. SALZER, La Crosse, Wis.

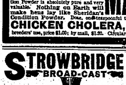
AGENTS Are making $100 PER MONTH SELLING MANNING'S ILLUSTRATED STOCK-BOOK

Because every farmer needs it. It is the latest and most complete work ever issued in America treating of Horses, Cattle, Sheep, etc., their breeds, breeding, training, causes of disease, symptoms, and remedies. Over 1,000 pages. 400 Illustrations. Highly endorsed by such eminent authorities as the President, Vice-Pres. and Sec. of Phila. College of Vet. Surgeons, Hon. J. W. Gadsden and others. OVER 80,000 ALREADY SOLD! Demand increasing. Farmers, their sons, and agents desiring profitable work should send at once for full particulars and terms. Address HUBBARD BROS., Publishers, CHICAGO, ILL.

MAKE HENS LAY

It is a well-known fact that most of the Horse and Cattle Powder sold in this country is worthless; that Sheridan's Condition Powder is absolutely pure and very valuable. Nothing on Earth will make hens lay like Sheridan's Condition Powder. Dose, one teaspoonful to each pint of food. It will also prevent and cure CHICKEN CHOLERA, Hog Cholera, &c. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Also furnished in large cans, for breeders' use, price $1.00; by mail, $1.20. Circulars sent FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

STROWBRIDGE BROAD-CAST



SEED SOWER

THE BEST, CHEAPEST and SIMPLEST. Sows all grains, grass seeds, lime, salt, ashes, fertilizers—and everything requiring broadcasting—any quantity per acre, better and faster than by any other method. Saves seed by sowing it perfectly even. Sows single or double cast, all on either or both sides of wagon. Not affected by wind, as the seed is not thrown up into the air. Perfectly simple. Readily attached to any wagon. Lasts a life-time. Can be used wherever a wagon can be driven. Team walking one mile sows four acres of wheat. Crop one-fourth larger than when drilled. Send stamp for circulars giving terms and testimonials. Mention this paper.
C. W. DORR, Treasurer,
RACINE SEEDER CO., Des Moines, Iowa.

PISOS REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Easy to use. A certain cure. Not expensive. Three months' treatment in one package. Good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Dizziness, Hay Fever, &c. Fifty cents. By all Druggists, or by mail.
E. T. HAZELTINE, Warren, Pa.

MUSTANG

Survival of the Fittest.

A FAMILY MEDICINE THAT HAS HEALED MILLIONS DURING 35 YEARS!

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT.

A BALM FOR EVERY WOUND OF MAN AND BEAST!

THE OLDEST & BEST LINIMENT EVER MADE IN AMERICA.

SALES LARGER THAN EVER.

The Mexican Mustang Liniment has been known for more than thirty-five years as the best of all Liniments, for Man and Beast. Its sales to-day are larger than ever. It cures when all others fail, and penetrates skin, tendon and muscle, to the very bone. Sold everywhere.

THE OLD CHURCHYARD.

Nae dreams disturb their sleep,
 In the auld kirkyard;
They hear nae kindred weep,
 In the auld kirkyard.
The sire with silver hair,
The mother's heart of care
The young, the gay, the fair
 Crowd the old kirkyard,

The heart's sad beatings cease
 In the auld kirkyard;
And aliens rest in peace
 In the auld kirkyard.
Where ebbed dark floods of strife,
Dove-like hope, wi' promise rife,
Plants the broken branch o' life
 In the auld kirkyard.
 —Boston Advertiser.

"TEXAS DAN."

Arrest of a Notorious Southwestern Desperado—He is Wanted for the Attempted Murder of Leander B. Bowen.

From the Chicago Times.

A few days ago M. C. Walker, sheriff of Kendall county, Tex., arrived in town in quest of a fugitive from justice named Daniel Wallace alias "Texas Dan," otherwise known as the desperado of the Rio Grande." The charge against this man was the robbery and attempted murder of one Leander B. Bowen on or about the 24th of November 1883, and a reward of $1,000 was offered for the arrest and delivery of the fugitive to the sheriff. On his arrival Sheriff Walker placed the matter in the hands of George A. Hartman, a private detective, who immediately commenced work on the case. He soon learned to a certainty that the desperado was in that vicinity, and by means of a decoy letter he succeeded yesterday in locating and arresting his man at the Union stock yards. Wallace was taken completely by surprise, and only realized his position after the handcuffs were locked securely on his wrists. "Texas Dan" is about forty-two years of age, five feet ten inches in height, muscular and wiry, and weighs one hundred and fifty pounds. He has a spare face, high cheek bones, a large nose, dark, piercing eyes shaded by horizontal brows, and a heavy brown mustache. He is described as one of the most notorious outlaws on the Southwest border; a man who is utterly fearless and reckless, very fleet of foot, a dead shot with the revolver, and a splendid horseman. He has been conspicously connected with numerous criminal offenses perpetrated in Texas and Mexico, and was at one time associated with two noted Mexican guerillas, Don Jose Ureas and Miguel Cannallos. The crime for which he was pursued to Chicago and arrested was but one of his many bloody deeds. On November 24, Leander B. Bowen, otherwise known as "Doc" Bowen, a well-known ranchman of Kendall county, was returning from San Antonia, where he had been selling stock. He had in his possession $3,500, the proceeds of the sales he had made. When about seventy-five miles from San Antonia, and while riding across a lonely stretch of prairie, he was met by a horseman, whom he instantly recognized as the famous outlaw, "Texas Dan." Fearing the latter meant mischief, Bowen attempted to draw his revolver, but, before he could do so, the desperado leveled his own weapon and fired twice. One of the shots took effect in Bowen's breast; the other struck him on the head, and plowed beneath the scalp without penetrating the skull. Bowen fell to the ground apparently dead; and it is supposed that "Texas Dan" rifled his pockets, and immediately turned his attention to putting as much distance as possible between himself and the scene of his crime. Some cowboys, who happened to pass the spot several hours later, discovered Bowen lying on the prairie. Finding, upon examination, that there was still life in the body, and recognizing the features of the man, who was well and favorably known in that part of the States, they conveyed the insensible victim to the nearest ranch, and sent a messenger to apprise his family of what had occurred. It was nearly a week before Bowen recovered his senses sufficiently to tell who had assaulted him. When it was learned that Dan Wallace was the would-be murderer, no time was lost in instituting a search for the outlaw. Rangers, cowboys, and vigilants scoured the country for miles around, but failed to strike the trail of this wily rustler. Sheriff Walker, of Kendall county, where Bowen's ranch is located, circulated a printed handbill containing a discription of "Texas Dan," and offering a reward for his apprehension. Some time afterward he accidently learned the course Wallace had taken, and set out in pursuit.

"Texas Dan," after leaving his victim, as he supposed, dead, on the prairie, traveled north through Indian Territory on horseback. He had two horses, and changed the saddle from one to another to facilitate his flight. Arriving at Caldwell, Kan., he sold both of his horses and remained there from Christmas eve to New Year's day. From there he went to Kansas City, and while having a good time at that place on the proceeds of his ill-gotten gains, he chanced to meet a woman whom he had formerly known at Laredo, on Rio Grande. This woman he found in a disreputable dance house on "the flats," and he induced her to live with him as his wife. Her name was Nell Raymond. She had a lover named Mike Horran, better known as "Spectacle Mike," in St. Louis, but she was not unwilling to take up with Dan Wallace in Mike's absence. However, Dan heard enough about "Spectacle Mike" to arouse his jealousy; so he got drunk one night and treated Nell to a beating, which caused her to leave him. She came to Chicago. Dan came to Chicago also, but without knowing that she had preceded him here. Sheriff Walker picked up all these facts as he followed the trail of the desperado, but on his arrival in Chicago he and the detective tried in vain for several days to find either "Texas Dan" or Nell Raymond. A man was sent to St. Louis to find "Spectacle Mike," who is a bar-keeper by profession, and to get from him, if possible, the address of the Raymond woman in Chicago. This was successfully accomplished without arousing any suspicion in the mind of "Spectacle Mike," and the address was telegraphed to the detectives here. Nell Raymond was living at a house on Halsted street, near Fortieth. It was believed that she knew Dan Wallace was in Chicago, and could tell precisely where he was. Accordingly a note was addressed to her yesterday, purporting to be from Dan himself, and worded as follows: [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] come to within a block of where I am, and then send a boy to tell me, and I will meet you.

The house was shadowed, and shortly after the receipt of the note the woman was seen to emerge from the house. She was followed. Arriving within a block of Peter Caldwell's saloon, in the town of Lake, she looked around for a boy. She had no difficulty in finding him, for he was furnished by the detectives; and she sent him with a message to the saloon. He soon came out, followed by "Texas Dan," and before the latter had begun to suspect anything wrong he found himself staring into the muzzles of two revolvers, and knew that it was all up with him. He was clad in the rough garments of a Western stockman, with a belt encircling his body beneath his coat, in which were two revolvers. He wore the broad-brimmed sombrero peculiar to the Southwest, and looked like the desperate character he is said to be. When seen by a reporter for the Times, shortly after his arrest, he seemed cool and unconcerned.

"How long have you been in Chicago?" he was asked.

"About twelve days," he replied.

"What have you to say to the charge on which you were arrested?"

"Well, I shot Doc. Bowen, but I didn't rob him. Doc. and I had some trouble once about a horse trade, in which he said I got the best of him, and he made his threats that he'd get even. When I met him that day I rather expected that he'd pull on me and I was ready for him. The first word he said was 'Look out, "Texas," I've got the drop on you.' He was mistaken, though. I had the drop on him all the time. I gave him a couple of pills, and he keeled over. I didn't get off my horse, and some of the other boys must have got his money. I didn't lose any time in making myself scarce in them parts."

Sheriff Walker left for Texas last night with his prisoner, and Hartman is happy in the possession of the reward.

THREE FAMOUS GENERALS

Placing Under One Table Six Legs That Never Ran From a Foe.

Washington Letter in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

At a leading hotel the other evening three of the most distinguished cavalry officers of the late war met and took a social drink. They were Generals Alfred B. Pleasonton, William H. Averill and Thomas L. Rosser. The latter is an ex-Confederate and is worth probably half a million dollars. The other two were on the other side and are both poor. They are now here asking to be put on the retired list. None of them have seen service since the war. Averill and Pleasonton resigned soon after peace was declared and Rosser's term of service expired when he was captured near Richmond shortly after the surrender of Lee and Johnston.

This meeting between the three was rather an interesting one. It is not often that three such dashing cavalry commanders of a war that closed nearly twenty years ago come together now in social intercourse. All held the rank of major general and all fought many important engagements, and all were brave and skillful soldiers, and all, I believe, were seriously wounded. Rosser carries about with him nine scars—one sabre-cut over the right eye, one bayonet-gash on the forehead, a shot in the foot, one in the knee, one in the left arm, one in the left hip and others of less importance. Averill was shot through the thigh, which has made him a confirmed sufferer from rheumatism, and he got a scalp-wound that every now and then becomes headquarters for a painful attack of neuralgia. All of them graduated at West Point.

Pleasonton is the oldest of the three. There is no mistaking the education and training he has had. They are shown in every look and motion. Though not large nor tall, he is so erect and precise that he would be taken any where for a soldier and a commander. The general tells me he has lost some of his faith in his blue glass theory, but believes it will yet be adopted by the scientific world. He is seventy-seven years old and has always been a sort of a book worm, though he held some sort of a command in the Pennsylvania militia at one time during the war. Averill looks almost as old as Pleasonton, having suffered a good deal from his wounds. He is a heavy, chunky-looking man with a soldierly mustache, and eyes about very unpretentiously. His military record is very familiar to everybody. Averill and Rosser are now very fond of each other, and it is a feast to hear them tell stories of the war from their respective points of view.

Rosser has a really romantic history. He is a romantic-looking man, to begin with it. Over six feet tall, and of giant-like frame, he towers over all the ordinary run of men. He probably weighs two hundred and seventy-five pounds, and there is not a bit of waste flesh about him—all solid bone and muscle. His money has been made in railroading in the northwest.

Fortune takes strange turns, and here is one of them. What a welcome thing a week's salary or Averill or Pleasanton would have been to Rosser in 1865. To-day they are knocking at the door of congress, asking to be given the retired list pay of about $3,000 a year, while Rosser is a prospective millionaire.

A Pretty Girl's Grim Humor.

From the Detroit Free Press.

Talk about pretty girls—but she was a wild flower and no mistake! She got on the train to go over to Meridian from Vicksburg and she was all alone. There was a sort of a sidelong movement among five or six men, but a drummer for a Philadelphia saddlery house got there first. He grabbed up his grip and walked square up to her seat and took possession of half of it without asking a question and in ten minutes he seemed to be perfectly at home. She answered his questions briefly and he had the hardest kind of work to keep up conversation, and as the train approached Jackson she suddenly said:

"I want to telegraph papa from here. Will you help me?"

"Oh, certainly. I have a blank in my pocket. Write your telegram and I will run into the office with it."

We missed him when the train started, but by-by he was found in the smoking car, his hat crushed down, and his nerves all on edge. When asked what had happened he drew forth the telegram which the girl had requested him to hand in. It read:

"Bring your shotgun with you to pop over a drummer who has fearfully annoyed me. Shoot to kill!"

"He thinks," he gasped, "that one so [illegible] could be so murderous [illegible]

SPINNING.

Like a blind spinner in the sun,
 I tread my days;
I know that all the threads will run
 Appointed ways;
I know each day will bring its task,
And, being blind, no more I ask.

I do not know the use or name
 Of what I spin;
I only know that some one came,
 And laid within
My hand the thread, and said: "Since you
Are blind but one thing you can do."

Sometimes the threads so rough and fast
 And tangled fly,
I know wild storms are sweeping past,
 And fear that I
Shall fall; but dare not try to find
A safe place, since I am blind.

I know not why, but I am sure
 That tint and place,
In some great fabric to endure
 Past time and race
My threads will have; so from the first,
Though blind, I never felt accurst.

I think, perhaps, this trust has sprung
 From one short word
Said over me when I was young—
 So young, I heard
It, knowing not that God's name signed
My brow, and sealed me His, though blind.

But whether this be seal or sign
 Within, without,
It matters not. The bond divine
 I never doubt,
I know He set me here, and still,
And glad, and blind, I wait His will;

But listen, listen day by day,
 To hear them tread
Who bear the finished web away,
 And cut the thread,
And bring God's message in the sun
"Thou poor blind spinner, work is done."

CIRCUS RIDERS.

Accidents to Acrobats and Vaulters—Concerning Old-Time Salaries.

Philadelphia Press.

"Formerly, children were regularly apprenticed to learn riding just as they were to learn shoemaking or any other trade," said Richard Hemming, the old circus manager, "but now in many of our States there are laws prohibiting the employment of minors under fifteen years of age in hazardous performances, and these have had the effect of doing away to a very great extent with the thorough and systematic course of training which children designed for riders were formerly obliged to commence when about five years old, and which must be commenced at that early age and steadily pursued in order to attain the highest degree of artistic perfection. Nearly all the great riders we now have began their career before the enactment of these laws, and, consequently, served a thorough apprenticeship to their profession, but when they shall have passed away who will fill their places? There will certainly be no American riders who can do so satisfactorily, and our public will have to look for its equestrian talent across the water, where so-called societies for the prevention of cruelty to children are not so efficient in securing the passage and enforcement of unjust and injudicious laws.

"Have there been many fatal accidents among circus performers?"

"Very few considering the many hazardous feats performed. Within later years I can recall only three or four. William Kincade, an acrobat, broke his neck in the summer of 1881 while doing a double somersault over a number of elephants with the Forepaugh show. Johnny Aymar, one of the best of all tumblers' broke his neck in the Island of Jersey some years ago, while trying to throw a triple somersault, which is meant revolving in the air three times before alighting. Every performer who has attempted this feat has been killed by it sooner or later, and it is a mooted question whether it ever has been or ever can be successfully accomplished.

"Little Miss Davene was killed by alighting on her neck and spine after being thrown from a catupult with the Barnum-London show in 1861. What are called the 'leaps'—that is, throwing somersaults over elephants and horses—have been productive of a greater number of serious accidents than any other feat attempted in the ring. The most frequent and annoying accidents which occur to riders are injurious to the knee joint. There is no part of the body more easily displaced or harder to put in order again, and alighting on the horse after going through a hoop or over a banner, or jumping to the ground to avoid a fall, is very apt to throw the joint out of place. Katie Stokes, a very talented young bareback rider, who gave promise of attaining the very highest eminence in her profession, sustained an injury of this kind in the summer of 1882, and it is doubtful if she will ever ride again. My wife, Mrs. Richard Hemming, who before our marriage was Miss Whitby, well-known as an accomplished pad and manege rider, has been obliged to retire from the profession permanently, in consequence of a similar accident.

"I must not forget to tell you of a great remedy we circus people have for sprains. It is a mixture of wormwood, vinegar and salt. Take ten cents' worth of wormwood, cover it well with vinegar, put in a handful of salt and let the mixture come to the boil; bathe the affected part with it as hot as you can bear it and it will effect a cure more quickly than anything else I have ever seen tried."

"Do circus performers often live to a good old age?"

"Very often, and I think that in point of longevity they far excel the members of any profession. In England and on the contenent of Europe, especially, they usually live to be very old. In European countries, too, it is remarkable how many families there are whose very member, both male and female, for many generations, has been in the profession. Among these families may be mentioned the Rentzs, Samwells, Cookes and Bridges. The health of circus people is almost invariably excellent."

"How do you think the performers of America compare with those of Europe?"

"The Americans have a great deal more reckless dash and daring and are willing to incur more risk. When they want to do a feat they go right ahead and try it, whereas a European artist would first undergo a long and careful training for it. The American performer's idea seems to be that it is no matter whether the feat is done gracefully or the reverse so long as it is boldly accomplished, and this seems to be the idea of American audiences also; but with the European, artistic grace and finish count for more than all else, and if a feat—no matter how difficult or daring—be performed without these, the achievement, to him, is wholly devoid of merit."

"How do salaries at the present day compare with those of the olden time?"

"Well, though somewhat lower last season than for several years past, they are still at figures which once would have been thought fabulous. Before the late war $75 to $100 per week was a good salary for a first-class rider, but now such a one would command from $150 to $200 per week. Of course, the salaries of people of great reputation, Mad. Elise Dockrill, Charles W. Fish, Frank Melville and James Robinson, the great bareback riders, far exceed the above figures, reaching in some instances as high as $400 or even $500 per week, and the same applies to performers in every branch of the business. Such clowns as years ago received $50 per week would now receive $100, but the salary of Dan Rice, who clowned with Nathans' Circus a portion of the past season, was probably away up in the hundreds. The salaries of the working hands, such as canvasmen, drivers, hostlers, the men who care for the animals, etc., have decreased instead of increasing, and these people are now more poorly paid than ever."

A PORTRAIT OF GRANT.

The Pen Picture Which a Noted Pulpit Lecturer Has Drawn.

Rev. Joseph Cook in the Advance.

"What a military contour of shoulders, neck, and head! What an eye!" These were my first secret words to myself in coming into General Grant's presence, and feeling pierced by his searching, undeceivable, stern, yet thoroughly balanced, high-minded glance. He had no cigar, and his appearance was much improved by its absence. No potrait of him that I ever saw gives the transfixing, military, commanding, determined flash of his eye. Utmost coolness and yet terrible force of pent-up-fire—these are combined in his look in a way very uncommon. In any position, his head and face are strong in form and impression. His brain is not as large as Webster's but it is of excellent size, nevertheless, and apparently as compact as a cannon ball. A high head, a strong, lower face, a forehead full in all its parts, a square, fighting chin, and yet not an unbalanced one, good judgment as conspicuous as bravery, unflinching and deadly courage, incisiveness, tenacity, effeciency, straightforwardness, and a noble, moral tone—these are what struck me most in this great veteran.

His closely cut hair is not white, and not even gray yet. The very clipped but abundant beard is white in a few places, but gray for the most part. The square, firmly-set mouth, and the prominent lines of the features match well with the military qualities of the whole figure. He is not tall, but his form is almost massive, so forceful are the head and shoulders. When he stands erect the top of his hat is not far from being on a level with the eyes of a man six feet in height, nevertheless he makes the impression that if he were hurled against the world he would injure whatever he shoutd strike far more than would some dozens of men six feet high whom I could name. When I had my second interview with General Grant he impressed me, at first, as the most efficient man of his physical size I ever met.

Badeau's book General Grant spoke well of when I asked him if it was the best history of his campaigns; but he said it must be remembered that the author is responsible for his own opinions, and is partial toward Shermam and himself.

His mind does not dwell on little things. His conversation flowed on without ostentation, but with very few broken sentences, and made always the impression of considerateness, penetration, sagacity, coolness, and yet of suppressed moral passion.

General Grant is certainly a man of strong temper, but it is equally certain that he controls it, and that it adds force to all his faculties. I did not find in his face the look of a high liver, nor of a man that is given to the use of wine. General Grant's brother, whose portrait is in the current illustrated papers, has just died; and his mood, when I saw him, seemed touched by a sense of his great bereavement. I was again and again impressed with the military force, courage, incisiveness, and yet with the perfect simplicity and sobriety of General Grant's manners and bearing. His frame is slightly bowed, but seems to be made of iron. You feel in his presence that he can do what he wills; forego sleep, and not feel fatigued so long as he chooses not to be wearied. None of the descriptions of General Grant's appearance do justice to the contour of his head and shoulders, his gait, and his eyes in action.

Orange Culture in Florida.

The country readily takes all the oranges Florida sends northward, and consequently their culture steadily increases. It is stated that orange groves, five years after they are started, will sell for $1,000 per acre; and to prepare such a grove, covering five acres, costs, according to a careful estimate, from $800 to $1,000. After the first five years, the growth of trees and increase of fruit is constant during at least ten years longer, and afterwards, with care, the grove will retain its vigor for a century. Florida, according to the census of 1880, produced 96,000,000 oranges, valued at $700,000, and the product is largely increased now. Yet the demand for them is largely in excess of the home supply, as the country consumes 600,000,000 annually, the remainder coming from abroad. Like the wheat of the Northwest, the oranges of Florida are a cash article, finding ready buyers, and being generally sold on the trees, one or two cents each, who take risk and gather the crops.—Florida Correspondence Philadelphia Ledger.

Manufacturing Rivals of the South.

Atlanta Constitution.

The two leading cotton manufacturing States in the South are Georgia and North Carolina. In 1880 Georgia had forty mills, containing 200,974 spindles; North Carolina had forty-nine mills, containing 102,767 spindles. Three years and a half elapse and the account stands as follows: Georgia has sixty-two mills, containing 340,180 spindles; North Carolina has ninety-two mills, containing 218,382 spindles. The activity and ambition of the two States in the direction of cotton manufacturing do not greatly vary. Georgia has more capital, but North Carolina has more water power. It is a snug race, and Georgia should look to her laurels, for the excess of mills in North Carolina is a menace to Georgia's position at the head of the list. No other Southern State is struggling for first place, although South Carolina and Maryland are no laggards.

NOTES FOR THE FARM AND HOUSE.

Farming Scraps.

Charred grain, either of corn, wheat, oats, or buckwheat, should be fed to fowls occasionally.

Axle-grease for use in winter: Tallow, thirty-five parts; oil of resin, ten parts; olive or rape oil, sixty-five parts.

At a blooded cattle sale in Marshall, Mo., forty-four Shorthorns belonging to R. W. Owen of North Niddletown, Ky., brought $8,050, and sixteen Jerseys owned by Alexander McClintock & Son, Millsbury, Ky., brought nearly $4,000.

America's consumption of wheat is reported as 800,000 bushels per day; the seed required for annual sowing in this country, 55,000,000 bushels; the average crop of Europe, 1,143,826,044 bushels; of the world, about 2,028,000,000; the usual yearly excess above consumption, 60,000,000 to 80,000,000 bushels.

Secretary G. C. Hill, of the Rosendale, Wis., Club, says, with good show of reasons, that the garden as it ought to be is the most profitable part of the farm. It should have fifteen to twenty varieties of vegetables, from the early and appetizing green of asparagus, to potatoes which last all the year.

Michigan has a law providing that any resident using on the highways of the State only broad-tired wagons—3½ inches—for hauling loads weighing over 800 pounds, shall have an abatement of one-fourth from his road-tax.

The Mark Lane Express remarks that "it will take a generation to undo the mischief the Shorthorn 'fanciers' have done," and predicts that the day is probably not far off when a Duchess will be worth far less than a good dairy cow of no particular breeding.

Cruelty to cows often makes their milk as also the butter and cheese, unwholesome and poisonous. A cow that does not have air, exercise and sunshine, is likely to be unhealthy, and hence give poor and dangerous milk. To secure good milk, cows must be treated kindly and according to sanitary laws.

Freaks of Fashion.

Medicis collars are the fashion on evening dresses.

Girls now wear bunches of ribbon on their corsage when they cannot get flowers.

The newest handkerchiefs have just the faintest suggestion of a hem, and are made of plain white linen.

The high Greek coiffure, with several fillets encircling the head, takes the place with Parisians of the small coil in the nape of the neck.

The few trained dresses lately brought from the other side have the princess back, under which disappear the high-puffed panier draperies.

Black ottoman and black velveteen in the new London dye are to be much in use as stylish walking costumes for elderly ladies this spring.

The new mutton-leg sleeves are full at the top and very close below the elbow; their beauty is increased by making them long and pushing the upper part far above the armholes of the dress.

The old-fashioned paste buttons converted into brooches, fasten bonnet strings close under one ear; diamond arrows are placed lower down, and large and handsomer ornaments quite under the chin.

For evening toilettes paste and diamond buckles fasten velvet round the throat, loop up a sleeve on one arm, hold the ribbon of a fan, secure a spray of flowers on a bodice, and appear on one side or in front of the head, with a strand of hair passing through and arranged high, according to present fashion.

Muslin delaine, a fabric resembling nun's veiling, will be very popular material the coming season, and beautiful patterns are already shown, the delicate grounds strewn with gay flowers and foliage in exquisite tintings. These figured materials are made up with plain Ottomans or merveilleux, and form exceedingly stylish and becoming toilets. A beautiful evening dress, as a model, has an underskirt of cream-white Ottoman silk, with alternate wide ruffles of Oriental lace and shellpleated ones of the silk.

Broad-striped materials worn under tunics of plain material will be in high fashion again this spring. A pretty model just received is as follows: The skirt is of cloth, with alternate stripes of deep yellow and coffee-brown pleated to show the golden stripes partially. The tunic is of brown Ottoman cloth bordered with seal-brown plush. The very short jacket of the plain cloth opens over a gilet of the plush fastened with gold and brown enamel buttons. Very startling are some of the mixtures of colors in the new spring costumes; for instance, a dress and redingote of ruby Indian cashmere with gloves, feathers upon the cap bonnet, and muff decoration all of the brightest orange.

Neatness Around Stables and Barns.

Neatness in the precincts, as well as the surrounding, of the barns and stables is commendable at all seasons of the year, particularly in the winter time. The stock of all kinds will be a good deal better when the practice is observed, and those who are caring for or have charge of the stables and barns will be able to do up their work with more system and to better advantage than they would with the accumulation of filth at every turn they are obliged to make. It is just as necessary that barn floors should be kept neat and clean, as it is for a house floor, and the stable floors where the cattle are confined should be cleaned out daily with all the regularity possible. Naturally, most of the different varieties of stock are neat in their habits, and anyone can see how much better they seem to enjoy clean and comfortable quarters, than they do dirty and filthy ones. One thing is certain, if a farmer keeps his barns and stables and his barn yard clean and nice, it may be set down that he is a good farmer. Another thing is equally as true: His milk and butter always find a ready market at top prices, because those who wish to buy will know that the commodities are free from dirt.—Cleveland Leader.

How to Treat a Good Horse.

Budd Dobble of Chicago, who used to be the driver of Dexter and Goldsmith Maid, visited the Maid recently at her home, Mr. H. N. Smith's place in Trenton. When asked if the Maid knew him he replied: "Bless your soul, the minute I entered her stall she came up to me and rubbed her head against my arm and face. She neighed, and frisked around her stall like a colt, and did everything but speak. I used sometimes to give her an apple, and I had one this time. I cut it in quarters, and put the pieces in different pockets, and she managed to get them all out. It did my heart good to see her. You remember she had an unusually long tail. I used to teach her to lie down so that her tail would be clear of everything! I asked her to lie down this time, and you would have laughed to see her turn round and round and switch her tail about until it was just so, and then lie down with it extended on the clean straw."

Hen Manure.

Hen manure I use in the hill only, says a gardener, for tomatoes, melons, cucumbers, corn, potatoes; mixed with an equal bulk of earth and half its bulk of plaster it is equal to most commercial fertilizers; about a pint to the hill will do wonders, if you have some manure in the soil, as I said, to begin with. To raise nice vegetables the soil needs to be "full of manure." Cabbage will do well on new land if two or three applications of manure have been worked into the soil. Spinach needs the best land you have. This is equally true of onions, carrots, celery, cauliflower and cucumbers. Tomatoes will give a crop on any soil; the poorer the soil the earlier the crop, but the richer the land the bigger the yield; this is a good general rule for the tomato. Melons and squash need manure at the hill; a compost of night-soil seems to meet the wants of these crops as well as anything, and a bushel of a thorough mixture of twice its bulk with some absorbent is very good.

Polled Cattle.

Mr. James Hoyt, a recent convert to hornless heads, tells The N. E. Farmer that, after a few months' experience in the care and handling of a herd of some twenty polled cattle he is ready to indorse all that the admirers of this kind of stock are likely to claim for it. He thinks that, other things being equal, the cows will do about one-fifth better than those with the worse than useless excrescence, "being so much more quiet and kindly in their dispositions," and he adds this information about taurus in a treadmill: "A fine, large polled bull is used when needed, in a two-horse power stalk cutter and thresher, in company with one horse. The bull works by the side of the horse, and keeps his own side well up. The horse seems to have formed quite an attachment for the bull and when the machine is stopped will rest his head against the head of the bull, who shows no indications whatever of resenting the familiarity. Had the bull a pair of sharp horns it would hardly be safe to hitch up such a Southern style of team."

Feed the Stock Some Grain.

The failure of the corn crop has left many farmers short of grain, and many will not buy. The hay, in many places is not as good quality as usual, and stock do not do as well as they ought to on it. In such cases it is economy to buy some mill feed or grain to put with it, or at any rate it never will pay to let cattle run down in flesh this cold weather. The cows need the most attention just now, and because they are perhaps giving no milk they must not be neglected. As the period of calving approaches, the cows system becomes much disturbed, and the circulation is considerably increased. The animal is taxed to the utmost to supply the blood needed for the development of the calf. At this time overfeeding or underfeeding are equally harmful, but what is called good feeding is sirable—good hay, a little grain, a few root, make a good diet for a cow at this season. Do not be afraid of having her in good flesh. This is not what brings on milk fever as many seem to think. On the other hand, as calving time approaches, she should not be stuffed with food that will produce a large flow of milk, for it is this very thing, making too strong drafts on the system at a critical time together with mismanagement and exposure that develops this fatal disease.

The best cows are the most liable. It is best not to withhold a moderate quantity of food before, nor to allow too much stuffing immediately after calving. Keep her well sheltered and quiet; give warm drink for a day or two. Remember that prevention is better than cure, but if cure is needed obtain it without delay. In all such attacks the danger increases in geometrical ratio as the hours pass.

Good care of the cows this winter means good yields from them next summer and is better given to them now than then if they are ever to be neglected.

How to Make Nice Soup.

In order to make relishing soups a condenser or soup steamer should be purchased, and all the bones and scraps taken from the table should be thrown into it—bits of chicken, beef, mutton, and lamb. The greater variety of meat the nicer will be your soup, and bits of ham and bacon will add to its flavor; also potatoes and onions and turnips and bits of bread. Pour in cold water, so as to extract all the juices of the meat from the bones. Place the kettle on the back of the stove and do not let it boil, but keep it on the simmer, adding a little cold water if it boils up rapidly. Let it cook on the back of the range all day. At night remove the bones and meat and strain the soup through a sieve and set away. Next morning take off all the grease, and an hour before dinner you can make the stock into a carrot soup, with six small freshly grated carrots and one small chopped onion; or into a vermicelli soup, by adding three tablespoonful of it and two tablespoonfuls of catsup; or into tomato soup, by chopping finely eight skinned tomatoes and boiling them one hour in the soup. Strain it before serving, to take out the seeds. If desired thickened wet up in cold water a dessertspoonful of cornstarch, and stir in ten minutes before serving.

The Carpet Moth.

G. S. B. writes: "About five years ago we found soon after our fall cleaning was done some of these pests, and though the cleaning had been well and thoroughly done within six weeks our house was full of them. The house is old with old-fashioned brick hearths, shrunken base boards and wood work and cracked plaster, so we had everything to contend against. I went to the druggist's and bought corrosive sublimate in whiskey and insect powder. The powder we sprinkled in bureau drawers, piece bags, boxes and on closet shelves, after everything had been looked over and all moths destroyed. The poison I put with a stiff quill feather into every crack of floor, hearth, wood-work and plaster, and round the edge of every carpet. It took two years to get rid of them entirely, but for the last three years we have occasionally found one. The poison should be carefully used and taken care of; but it is not so dangerous as naptha and benzine. If the tacks are destroyed or washed and scalded before being used a second time, there can be very little danger. We continue to use these remedies spring and fall round the carpets and in closets where bedding is stored and feel a safety from moths we have never had before. "This letter answers the question of H. M. S., How to keep moths out of carpets."—N. Y. Tribune.

Cooking Cheese.

A scientific writer in a foreign magazine gives two receipts for cooking cheese, which he considers valuable, as he believes from experiments and observations, the cheese which is cooked is more easily digested than that which is raw. The first dish is much like omelet. Fresh eggs are well beaten and then are mixed with grated cheese; this is moistened with sweet milk; it is then cooked in a little pan like a flower pot saucer; it is cooked gently. The other method of preparing the dish is to take some slices of buttered bread, soak them in a batter made of milk and eggs, without flour. Put the bread in a pudding dish, covering each layer with a layer of grated cheese. The butter that is left may be poured over the top. This, when gently baked, the writer says, is a nutritious dish. It is, he says, both easily digested and has great sustaining power.

Satisfying the Kickers.

Last fall the stockholders of a certain Western railroad were making such a vigorous kick about the non-payment of dividends, that the President felt his position an embarrassing one. He finally plucked up courage and decided on a line of conduct. The principal kickers were informed that the outlook was more cheerful than for years before, and were invited to take a trip over the line on a certain date.

At the time appointed a large gang were packed into the parlor cars and a run of a hundred miles was made. Dinners, suppers and hotel bills were all paid by the railroad company, and everybody came back perfectly satisfied.

"Why," said one, "I counted over twenty freight trains inside of sixty miles."

"And every siding was full of them," added a second.

"I tell you we are having all the freight we can handle!" proudly exclaimed a third, and that ended all further kicking.

It was only the other day that any of them learned that the President borrowed 312 freight cars and had them placed where they would do the most good that day.

Candle Superstitions.

So far as number is concerned, the most numerous class of superstitions is composed of those which cluster round the family candles. The origin of these probably dates far back in antiquity, when the world was full of superstitious fancies about light in general and candle light in particular. When we come down to the early days of the Christian Church, however, we find that not a few of the ordinances of religion were accompanied by ceremonies borrowed from paganism, in which lighted candles played an important part. Candles were lighted at birth to keep off evil spirits, at marriage to prevent the evil eye from affecting the happy pair, and at death to drive away the demons who were thought to be always on the look-out for the soul of the dying man. Naturally then, as candles played so important a part in the ceremonies of religion, men became accustomed to regard them with something of a superstitious eye and to look to signs and wonders which were not to be elsewhere found. So a peculiar appearance in the candle, for which no reason could be given, was always regarded as something indicative of some remarkable thing about to happen. A collection of tallow round the wick is still known as a windingsheet, and is believed to foretell the death of one of the family, while a bright spark is a sign of the future reception of a letter by the person opposite whom the spark as situated, and the waving of the flame without any apparent cause is supposed to demonstrate the presence of a spirit in the room. In addition to these fanciful notions there are some others which are founded on natural facts too well known to admit of dispute, such as the refusal of the candle t light readily, which indicates a stat of atmosphere favorable to a comin storm.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Colorado Snow Storm.

As a matter of fact, snow does n fall here as it does in well-ordered co munities, writes a correspondent fro Silverton, Col., to the New Haven P ladium. I have been in the midst o vigorous Rocky Mountain snow sto from early morning till late at nig with not a single cloud in the sky, with nothing but the myriad flashe snow in the atmosphere to cast a h over the face of the sun. A mild s storm that may seem to one who re of it, but not to one who has it to fa There are days here of continu storm when the snow does not seem fall at all; when it seems as frequen to be going up as coming down; when for the most part it goes plun ing horizontally through the air, seem ingly with no purpose of stopping any where. In fact, such a thing as a de corous, well-ordered New Englan snow storm in which the snow com legitimately from a cloud and falls of own gravity to the earth is here an in possibility. We have no clouds wort mentioning. We are at the very ape of nature's storm making paraphernal and the clouds are all below.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Proceedings of the County Board.

CROOKSTON, March 18, 1884.

The board of county commissioners assembled in their office at 9 a. m. this date. All members present, M. R. Brown in the chair. Minutes of last session were read and approved.

The petition of E. O. Eunsberg and others paying that school district No. 91 be sub-divided into two equal parts and the east one-half of said district organized into a new school district, was presented for hearing and no objection appearing, on motion the prayers of the petitioners were granted and the following territory to-wit: Sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, town 147, range 45, was organized into a new school district to be known as school district No. 109.

The petition of Levi S. Meyers and others asking aid to build two bridges on the west line of the county was received and on motion referred to a committee.

A petition was presented asking that the boundaries of school district No. 75 be changed, was received and a hearing set at July session of the board.

Petition from Kertsonville township for school organization, was granted and school district No. 116 was organized, consisting of sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 12, 13, 14, 15, of said town (sections 2 and 3 being detached from school district No. 26.)

School petition of Eustache Payment et al was presented and a hearing set at the next regular session of the board.

School petition of Jons Walbebeck, rejected.

Petition for changing the boundaries of school district No. 56 and 77, was rejected.

A hearing having been given the petition of Alvin Brainard and others, asking that sections 31, 32, 33, township 151, range 48, and sections 4, 5, 6 and all of sections 7, 8 and 9 lying north of Red Lake River in township 150, range 48, be detached from school district No 18 and organized into a new school district, and no objection having been made by any person interested in said matter, on motion the prayers of the petitions were granted, and school district No. 117 was organized as prayed for in said petition and comprising the territory above described.

The petition of Halver Grunderson, and others, which was presented at a former session of the board, and a hearing having been given the parties in interest and no opposition having been made to the granting the prayers of said petitioners, on motion sections 24, 25 and 36, town 150, range 49, were detached from district No. 92 and attached to school district No. 18

Petition of J. O. Sargeant received and and a hearing set at next regular meeting.

The individual petition for changing the boundaries of school districts Nos. 32 and 45 were rejected

Petition of L. Browner, rejected.

Petition of Peter O. Hoagland, and others, rejected.

On motion sections 13, 14 and 15, town 152, range 44, were attached to school district No. 108 and sections 3 and 10 in said town were attached to school district No. 94.

The application made in behalf of poor aid for M. Bretton of Red Lake Falls township, was referred to commissioner Kretzschmar.

On application of several citizens an appropriation was made of $30, out of the poor fund for the purpose of building a small house for the temporary use of Mrs. Plant of Louisville township.

On petition of Frank Conesek, and others, school district No. 118 was organized, comprising sections 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, town 153, range 48.

On petition of Rev. S. H Barteau, and others, school district No. 119 was organized, comprising the north one-half of Tabor township.

School district No. 120 was organized comprising sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 16, 17 and 18 township 148, range 41, in compliance with the prayers of the petition of K. N. Newton, and others.

School district No. 121 was organized, comprising sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 17 and 18 and all of sections 4, 9 and 16 lying west of Thief River in township 154, range 43 in compliance with a petition filed with the board.

School district No. 122 was organized consisting of sections 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, township 148, range 41 in compliance with the petition of Tucker Johnson, and others.

A petition from Woodside township relative to school matters in said town was rejected.

A petition signed by a majority of the residents of joint school district No. 1 was read and a hearing set at the next session of the Board.

Petition for building a bridge across Red Lake River at St. Hilaire was presented and on motion of Com. Nelson, laid on the table.

The bonds of C. P. Jones, Minneapolis bridge contractor, were approved.

Congressional Tp. No. 148, R. 42, was organized and named "Klute." First town meeting to be held at the house of Isaac E. Mexhr on the 5th day of April next R. Iederman, Ole J. Rolberg and H. O. Nelson were appointed judges, and O. H. Dale and C. O. Jacobson clerks of said election.

Congressional township No. 148, R 40, was organized and named "Brandvold." First town meeting to be held the house of N. Lewis on the 5th day of April next, Ole E. Sather, Hugh Lane and John V. Nelson were appointed judges, and R. N. Brandswold and John Emerson were appointed clerks of said election.

Township 154, R. 43, was organized and named "Norden." First town meeting to be held at the house of Andrew Johnson on the 5th day of April next. Andrew S. Moosehy, E. Gravley, and O. Hegland were appointed judges, and Andrew Johnson and Rasmus nson clerks of said election

Congressional Township 152 Range was organized and named Wyandle. First town meeting to be held the house of C. H. Brossard on the day of April next. C. H. Brossard, ter Gardner, and A. P. Cafeore appointed Judges, and O. Chrisnson and I. Mathiassen Clerks of election Petition from Garden Township for to build a bridge in said town was rejected.

On motion the sums of $200 was appropriated to town of Roome for bridge purposes.

Petition of C. M. Ramsay and others building a bridge in Augus Township was rejected.

The School petition of Eric Kling was rejected.

The Bond of Merchants Bank in the penal sum of $50,000 as County depository, was duly approved.

The sums of $400 was appropriated Grand Forks Township for building new bridge on the North line of said town, said appropriation to be held until the bridge is completed [illegible] and duly approved by committee of the Board.

The applications from Physician for appointment as County Physician for the second District were repected and the Auditor was instructed to advertise for bids from physicians for attending the poor of Second District.

Board adjourned till Wednesday March 19th 1884. G. A. M.

March, 19th 1884.

Board met Pursuant to adjournment.

The County Auditor presented the financial Statement of Polk County, which was examined and approved and orderal to be published as approved by Statute.

The application of W. S. Morse for abatement of taxes was favourably recommended to the State Auditor.

The application of Mrs. Davis was referred to the tax committee, and all other tax applications filed at last session of the Board was rejected.

The County Surveyor was directed to cause land marks to be placed at the corners of each Township as required by Sec. 126 chapter 8 Revised Statutes, and the Board entered into a Contract with said Surveyor to preform said work and furnish posts for same at $600. Said work to be completed on or before November 1st 1884. A bond in the Penal Sume of $1,200 was required of said Surveyor for the faithful preformance of the work.

On motion, the sum of $300 was appropriated to Hammond township, to aid said town in building two bridges therein.

Petition of L. S. Meyers was referred to Messrs. Bradish and Brainard.

Petition of E. S. Masterson and others was received and a hearing set at next Session of the Boar

On motion the sum of $300 was appropriated Hubbard towship as aid to build a bridge in said town.

The sum of $1,600 was allowed Jones & Hewett, of Minneapolis, on contract of Mallory bridge.

The sum of $540 was appropriated for clerk hire in the auditor's office during the year.

The claim of Mrs. Brewster was disallowed.

The application of S O Cundy for abatement of personal tax in Black River Tp. was favorably recommended to the State Auditor.

The application of John Darkow was rejected.

The bill of Chas E. Taslo was referred Messrs. Nelson and Kretzschmar.

Several bills were audited and allowed, and the Board adjourned.

Farm Notes.

Improving Farm Homes and Grounds.

American Agriculturist: The immediate surroundings of farmers' homes generally are far from being as attractive in appearance as they can easily be made. Indeed the rural front yards are, as a rule, much less beautiful and interesting than those of people in the same general circumstances in towns and cities. In the latter, lawns are well cared for, and choice ornamental trees, shrubs, and flowers, are much oftener met with than about country homes. There is no valid reason for this. Such embellishments are not more easily acquired in the city, but just the reverse. The farmer has teams, implements and manures for putting the house grounds in the best condition for ornamental treatment: labor is quite as cheap as in town, while sodding a lawn costs far less in the country. Trees and plants are as cheap to the farmer as to any one, while in many places some of the best kinds for ornament can be had from the woods for the digging.

There may be points in which life on the farm lacks the attractions common to town life, but in charming home grounds the farmer is certainly to blame if the city dweller excels him. It is often wondered why country life has not charms sufficient to hold the boys to the farm, and that they grow up longing for the city. If more attention were given to makin their home surroundings more cheerful and attractive for the sons and others of the family, there would be less heard of this trouble. And in all such work every proper effort is sure to be seconded by the wife; while nothing is more natural than for the children to be enthusiastic helpers in this work. Such improvements of course require some outlay, but this can hardly prove otherwise than a good investment. Every dollar judiciously spent in this way will soon be returned many fold in the increased valuation of any place, should it be desirable to sell, to say nothing of the greater happiness and love of home that will thus be inspired.

Housekeepers' Measures.

A great deal of poor food, especially cakes and other "recipe" preparations, is due to inaccuracy in measuring. "A pinch" of salt or pepper, or other condiment, may mean four times as much in one hand, as in another,—quite enough to entirely change the quality and flavor. Teaspoons teacups and coffeecups now vary greatly. The old standard teacup held just half a pint, or four to the quart, and the coffeecup three quarters of a pint, or, two and two-third cups to a quart; but on testing several cups now in use we find that of one pattern of teacups three fill a quart; of another it takes five, and of another six; while of coffeecups, two of one set fill a quart and of another it takes nearly four.

It would be a simple matter and a great convenience for any housekeeper to keep always at hand accurate measuring cups of earthenware or tin. Let a teacupful or a tumbler full, always mean exactly half a pint, and keep a cup of that size. Or use a small tin cup—one with a side handle being preferable.

Spoon measuring is more important, especially in giving medicines. The top is so broad and it is so difficult to know when a spoon is evenly full, that a "teaspoonful dose" of any medicine, or of a flavoring extract in cooking, may be double what is prescribed. The standard teaspoon, evenly full, holds one-eighth of a fluid ounce, or 128 to a pint; and a standard tablespoon just three times as much, or 42 to the pint. Sixty drops of water equal one teaspoonful, but drops of different liquids vary in size. Every family should have a "Minim glass" (minim means a drop). This is a little glass tube or cup having a broad base and a lip for pouring out the liquids. There are marks on the side and figures 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, for so many drops,—the figure 60 making just a standard teaspoonful. With this at hand one is always [illegible] teaspoonfuls of anything. In giving medicine, such regularity of doses may mean recovery of health. These glasses can be bought at most druggists for fifteen to thirty cents each.—American Agriculturist.

Tame Grasses in the West.

In the prairie regions of the great West, for some time after the country is settled, only native grasses are needed. The conditions of a settled country are not congenial to the wild grasses, and while they do remain they are not quite equal in value to the tame grasses. As a rule, tame grasses furnish feed about a month earlier in the spring, and the same length of time later in autumn, than the wild grasses. When the wild grasses begin to dry up in the fall they are tougher than tame grasses, with the exception of the Buffalo and Bunch grasses of the arid region along the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains. There is no kind of forage which will fatten cattle faster than our native prairie grasses during the growing season, from the middle of May to the middle of August.

Tame hay is more nutritious, but stock usually like good prairie hay better. Tame hay must be made at a season when rains are frequent: while the best time to make prairie hay is in the month of August and the early part of September, when, as a rule, but little if any rain may be expected.

Eastern farmers, when they first come West, think that they should cut their prairie hay early in July, as they have been accustomed to cut tame grass. Wild hay, made early in July, is of poor color and flavor, as well as lacking in nutritive qualities. All the valuable wild grasses here are late in blooming. At the time of writing (September 17.) Blue Joint and Indian Grass, or wood Grass, which are considered by farmers two of our most valuable native grasses, are still in full bloom. However valuable the wild grasses may be, the tame grasses are also needed. In the latter part of the growing season, tame grasses furnish a better quality of feed than the wild sorts.

The first and simplest mode is to sow tame grass seed, especially Timothy and blue grass, on the native prairie, when it first begins to fail from tramping or too close feeding. This seeding should, if possible, be done early in the spring, on one of the late snows. If the soil, when soft, be well scarified with a sharp harrow, it will increase the chances of a catch. With good seed seed sown in this way, success is almost certain.

The only kinds of tame grasses that have been extensively tested West of the Missouri, are: Timothy (Pheum pratense,) Kentuky blue grass (Poa pratensis,) and orchard grass (Dactylis glomerata). Only red clover (Trifolium pratense) and white clover (Trifolium repens) have been grown on a scale sufficiently extensive to justify absolute confidence. Red top (Agrostis vulgaris) has been tried in a few instances with success, but only, so far as the writer is informed, on low and moist land. Of the five first-named grasses, by far the best to stand dry weather is orchard grass. Of twenty kinds of tame grasses sown on the Nebraska Agricultural College Farm one very dry spring, orchard grass was the only one that grew. This grass starts early, keeps green through the hottest weather, and is good until hard freezing comes. It is not specially valuable for hay, as it is rather coarse, yet stock seems to like it. Professor Thompson, of Nebraska, in American Agriculturist.

What Plowed Ground Pays Farmers.

Take one illustration of the magnitude of our agriculture. Omitting the pastoral interest, which exceeds any other one; also leave out garden and fruit products, root crops, rye, barley, peas, beans, in short everything except four leading crops grown on tilled ground, viz., corn, wheat, oats, and cotton. The total yield of these for the present and past four years aggregate, in round numbers, about eight hundred and twenty-five million bushels of corn; twenty-three hundred million bushels each of wheat and oats, and thirty million bales of cotton. If we estimate the average money value to the actual producers on the farm, and for the crops sold and used by themselves, at seventy cents per bushel for wheat, thirty cents per bushel for corn and oats, and thirty-five dollars per bale for cotton, we have the soil yielding in these four plowed crops alone, over five thousand seven hundred and thirty-two million dollars; or over eleven hundred and forty-six million dollars every year!—a sum so vast as to be beyond actual comprehension. All other pursuits sink into insignificance in comparison with that of the farmer.—American Agriculturist.

The Manitobans are Mad.

A well-informed gentleman of St. Paul, who returned yesterday from Winnipeg, said: "The agitation in Manitoba which originated with the farmers, appears to be having a contagious effec on the commercial representatives throughout the province. The general public are not aware of the strong undercurrent which is carrying on the agitation and the serious earnestness and quiet determination waiting for an opportune time for development. That the business and agriculture interests are undergoing a severe depression is no longer a matter of argument and, unless relief is provided by the Ottawa government, a crisis may be expected. Parties in a position to know and who can sustain their assertions positively know of the organization of secret societies in the city of Winnipeg, whose purpose it is to have the Ottawa government accede to their demands, or, failing in this, to assume control of the province and insist on on annexation. These re-

List of patents received at the U. S. Land Office, Crookston, Minn.

Andersen, Casten
Armstrong, Wm L
Asmundson, Lewis A
Aas, Ingebright
Anderson, John R
Bilodeau, Joseph
Barnes, Sarah
Bensow, John
Brutts, Osmil
Baragar, Zacheus
Blake, R Henry
Bennett, Lydia
Bidolu, Wm M
Barrett, Joseph
Brown, Chas W
Berry, Armena
Beaudry, Melide
Bronken, Peter P
Berg, Jacob
Beauchemior J F
Bursueger, Fredolin
Bramsness, Louis R
Brophy, Geo A
Brown, James Baby, Thomas
Bray, Damase J
Barry, John S
Busk, Nelson
Bradshaw, Henry
Cookman, Samuel
Case, Wm A
Cox, Edward
Carlton, Mary
Coe, Mable
Chayer, Philip
Crossman Chas E
Charlesbois Israel
Cole, Ed A
Caillerier, Louis
Denison, George
Deloge, Joseph
Dyas, John W
Dahl, Wilhelm J
Dyke, Alice Van
Davidson, John
Dreelan, Ann
Ernst, Carl Sr
Erickson, Oley
Engman, Andrew M
Emard, Pierre
Field, Clarence O
Faste, Wm H
Funney, Joseph
Franson, Johan W
Fenesy, Robert O
Farrel, Rachel Fortier, Joseph
Fortier, Norbert
Fadues, Anne K
Graham, Porter
Guse, Herman
Gunnis, Thomas
Gertum, Charles
Henle, Octavienne
Hellekson, M W
Hanssen, Anders
Himmelsback Wm
Hoff, Telleff A
Helten, John Jr
Harrington, John H
Hoyt, Nathaniel A
Hanson, Ole
Hutchins, Levi
Hagglund, Peter O
Hanson, Andrew
Hanson, O deceased heirs of Hoff, Chris O
Hamery, Oscar L
Hegg, John A
Iten, Albert
Iland, George
Johnson, Christina
Jacklin, Rudolph
Johnson, Daniel
Johnsen, Daniel B
Jenson, Seven
Johnson, Beugt
Johnson, Silvester
Johnsen, Hans
Knudson, John L heirs of deceased
Kihlgren Alfred
Kuiger, James A
Kortke, Henrich F
Kundert, Melcoir
Kjos, Ole A
Kennedy, Silas H
Lemieux, Israel
Lehman Ignatz
Lewis, Peter O
Labouty, Andrew
Labounta, Moses
Lovelan, George L
Langevin, Omer
Larson, Alfred
Larson, Ole
Lindgren, John S
Langevin, Magleire
Lull, Leonard
Lizee, Rock
Lawrenson, David
Martineau, N
McKenzie, James
McKisley, Hattie L
McCabe, Patrick
Montagun, Frank
McKinzie, Wm E
Mansfield, Geo H
Meunier, Olivier
Morgan, E T
Messinger, John A
Malberg, Peter B
Marion, Peter E
Magee, Marshall
Mentzee, H U
McLean, John
McConnell, Wm
Nichols, Isaac E
Nilson, Nils O
Nelson, Frans A
Olstad, Peter N
Olson, Martin
O'Neill, Lawrence
Piche, Lewis
Paussant, S
Pickering, R
Pillard, John P
Payment, Joseph
Petersen, James I
Pile, John F
Pahls, Mary
Quesnelle, John B
Quesnelle, E
Riebap, Wilhelm
Remillard, Joseph
Rapp, Charles G
Restad, Peder P
Rise, Simon O
Rechen, Pierre
Schenwelle, J G
Sanwick, Thos T
Sandberg, Knut F
Sundberg, Nils P
Swan, August
Swice, Erastus
Soderfelt, Per Erik
[illegible], Daniel
Lilyestheus, J W
Shumaker, Wm
Sundberg, Gustaf
Strande, Ole K
[illegible], Mary E
Sommabaugh, Geo F
Simonsen, Martin G
Sed, Andrew N
Sollibakke, R
Thompson, Peter
Toupin, Pascal
Trudelle, Henry
Thorpe, Evan
Tuyl, John K Van

Aandersen, Lars
Anderson, Karen
Anderson, Rhoda
Armstrong, Joseph
Bautain, Peter
Burns, Mary A
Burne, Sakarias O
Berry, Peter
Boutain, Hilaire
Bertsch, John Bell, Newton
Breidlet, Gedeon
Bottineau, Delvina
Berkholtz, Wm
Brown, Wm S
Bauman, John A
Bombardier, Antoine
Blanchard, Isa D.
Bray, Andre
Beaudette Edmond
Bavres, Bernhard
Bensenson Aloine
Bullis Frederick
Blair, Nelson
Baby, Frank
Barry, Wm P
Brosseit, Arthur
Brophy, Reuben O
Begeman Henry S
Cundy, Solomon O
Carlton Lorry
Carlson, Anders
Craig, Uriah L
Champeaux, Clevis
Charboo, George
Campbell Augus
Carvin, Edward O
Clark John B
Dreelan, Andrew
Dufresne Arthur
Dunbar, Thomas
Dynes, John W
Dandeneau, Louis
Dale, Testen H
Dwyer, Michael
Dickerman, Clarence O
Erickson, E
Ericksen, Daniel
Engler, Frederick
Frynor, Exavier
Fromold, David
Ferguson, J J
Frazee, R L
Fugle, John M
Forbes, Richard
Fontaine, N
Florance, Ed O
Fosses, Geo O
Fwrrer, Leo
Gustafsen, John A
Goyette, Joseph
Gradey, Frank
Glenn, Thomas
Hatlestad, D E
Huson, Maria H
Hewit, Cecil A
Hurd, John Wm
Haseltine, Elmer F
Holten, George
Halverson, H B
Hoff, Sven
Hets, Louis
Hansen, Christian
Holm, Isak A
Holcomb, F M
Hennessey, T H
Halfer, Hans A
Holmes, Joseph H
Iten, Joseph
Johnson, Louis
Jansson, Chas J
Johnsen, Chas A
Joly, T
Jacobson P A
Johnsen, Louis
Johnson, John
Just, Theodore
Kaarvan, Enier P
Kjalberg, Lewis
Kruger, Henry F
Krohn, Iver
Krieger, Chas S
Knudsen, B
Leiser, August
Labree, Adolph
Locken, John
Labounta, J Sr
Lajambe, Phillip
Loe, Bergsvend O
Lusis, Frank
Leblanc, Joseph
Long, Walter N
Larson, Kristime
Lampson, Thomas
Lemieux, Israel
Lagues, Michael
Milne, John O
Mansfield, Geo H
Moor, Alanson
Morris, Robert Jr
McKibbin, Henry
Moser, Casper
Meunier Samuel
Meillem, Thede
Mikulecky, John
Motscheubacher, G
Marchildon, J
McDonald, Lucy
McLean, Neil
McCollum, Hugh
McCann, M J
McLean, Alexander
Mitchell, H G
Ness, Sander O
Nicholson, Wm
Overholt, D D
Oehler, Katherine
Olson, Helge
Peterson, Andrew
Piquette, Joseph
Perry, Michael Pearssan, Olof
Perry A T
Paul, Simon
Perras, R
Petiew, Mary S
Patterson, Daniel
Quesnelle, Michel
Roberts, Frank K
Riel, Francis
Richards, Teddy
Rivard, Alexander
Rux, Frederick
Rivard, Louis
Rutherford, Geo
Swansen, M
Sevake, Wm
Sevcke, Elizabeth
[illegible] V A
Sundblomkarl, V
Schmuck, Joseph
Schiltz, Michael Sigurson, I
Schantzen, N
Sauve, Julien
Sauve, Joseph
Swift, Geo M
Safford, [illegible]
Smith, E W
Stewart, Jas L
[illegible], John Stevens, Nils O
Taylor, Oliver
Turgeon, J
Tribbill, J S
Towler, R

Turnion, Andrew heirs of deceased
Tripp, Margaret
Tysse, Ole J
Thomas, Andrew
Vian, Osias
Vallo, Joseph
Wilkey, John
Wendt, Wm
Wiker, Charley O
Wadekamper, Lewis
Walker, Robert H
Wilcox, Chas P
Westover, James
Wagner, Jacob
Woolner, Daniel
Zauge, Louis
Zutz, Charles

Thomas, Jas H
Tenny, Thos L D
Thill, Jacob
Vincent, Louis
Valner, Tobias
Wilcox, A H
Wendt, F
Wentzel, Chas
Wall, Knud O
Wheeler, O H
Welch, Eugene
Wood, Wm O
William, J R
Yawkey, Wm C
Zauge, Henry
Zeh, Philip

Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of five hundred and seventy-six and 23-100 dollars ($576 23) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John Ralston and Hannah Ralston, his wife, to Eugene Besse, bearing date the 5th day of March, A. D. 1883, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1883, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 551, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All of the northeast quarter (¼) of section twenty-four (24) Township one hundred and forty-nine (149) Range forty-seven (47) containing one hundred and sixty acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston in said County and State, on the 9th day of May, A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and forty dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 18th, A. D. 1884.

EUGENE BESSE, Mortgagee.

JOHN McLEAN, Attorney for Mortgagee. [47-1]

LIVERY FEED'

—AND—

SALE STABLES

Two doors north of U. S. Land Office

Main St., Crookston, Minn.

T. H. BJOIN, Proprietor

Work horses, buggy horses, saddle horses, mules and oxen bought and sold, and traded

For a stylish rig, by day or night, call at Bjoin's Livery Stable.

First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL, $160,000
SURPLUS, 1,400

MONEY TO LOAN on Long or Short Time on Approved Security.

INTEREST ON TIME DEPOSITS. Faithful Attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier

Intelligence Office
AND LAUNDRY

New open and ready for business. All Laundry work at reduced rates. Lace curtains and kid gloves cleaned equal to new. Girls desiring good places, or parties desiring good, competent help should leave their name and address a this office. M. McGILLIGUDDY, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED.

Latest Edition has 118,000 Words, (3000 more than any other American Dict'y.)
3000 Engravings, (nearly 3 times the number in any other Dict'y,) also contains a Biographical Dictionary giving brief important facts concerning 9700 Noted Persons.
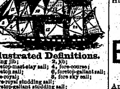
The following, from page 1164, shows the value of



Illustrated Definitions.

1, flying jib; 2, jib;
3, foretop-mast-stay sail; 4, fore-course;
5, foretop sail; 6, foretop-gallant sail;
7, fore-royal; 8, fore sky sail;
9, fore-royal studding sail;
10, foretop-gallant studding sail;
11, foretop-mast studding-sail;
12, main-course; 13, maintop sail;
14, maintop-gallant sail; 15, main-royal;
16, main sky sail; 17, main royal studding sail;
18, main top-gallant studding sail;
19, maintop-mast studding sail;
20, mizzen-course; 21, mizzen-top sail;
22, mizzen-top-gallant sail 23, mizzen-royal;
24, mizzen sky sail; 25, mizzen-spanker.

Among the many that could be cited are the following: Beef, Boiler, Castle, Column, Eye, Horse, Moldings, Phrenology, Ravelin, Ships, (pp. 1164 and 1219) Steam Engine and Timbers. These 19 pictures define 343 words and terms.

THE STANDARD.

Webster is the Standard of the U. S. Supreme Court and in the U. S. Gov't Printing Office, Recommended by State Sup'ts of Schools in 36 States. Sale 20 times that of any other series.

G. & C. MERRIAM & CO., Pub'rs, Springfield, Mass.

P. A. DUFOUR,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELOR AT LAW

MAIN STREET.

CROOKSTON MINN

COMMERCIAL HOUSE.

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN

Having leased this new and commodious hotel we are now prepared to supply the needs of the traveling public in first-class style. Our house is entirely new and newly furnished; we have had long experience in the hotel business and hope to be able to meet the wants of our patrons. [illegible]

MERCHANTS' BILLIARD HALL!

Fred Anderson Proprietor.

Main Street, Crookston, Minn

The Choicest Wines Liquors and Cigars on Hand.

This space is reserved for I. M. Underhill, General Insurance and Real Estate Agent.

THE

St. Paul, Minneapolis

—AND—

Manitoba

RAILWAY,

WITH ITS

1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the

Park Region of Minnesota,

To all Principal Points in

RED RIVER VALLEY,
NORTHERN MINNESOTA,
NORTHERN DAKOTA

—AND TO—

DEVIL'S LAKE AND TURTLE MOUNTAIN DISTRICTS,

—CONTAINING OVER—

9,000,000 Acres

GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land Department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that Department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country, giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE to any address, by

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner.

C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y, St. Paul, Minn.

REMOVAL!

Having purchased the store formerly owned and occupied by W. T. Dickey,

HAVE MOVED MY

Entire Stock

INTO IT.

And am now prepared to welcome my friends at the new stand. I have a full and complete stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

To which I invite the attention of all CALL AND SEE ME

At my New Store on Main Street,
A. YVERNAULT,
Crookston, Minn

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP.

M. BAUERNBUEHLER, Proprietor,

CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN

Is ready for the Spring Trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Duble, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc., etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

CROOKSTON TONSORIAL PARLORS

PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.

ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

Shaving, Hair Dressing, and all work in my line promptly attended to in the latest styles of the art. Give me a trial. PROF. THOMPSON.

AIME GADOURY,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg. Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.

Office north "Arcade" Clothing Store Crookston, Minn.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Office on Main Street, one door north of Store. Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

DENTISTRY.

J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,

ROBERT STREET CROOKSTON, MINN

Artificial teeth from one to an entire set. Gold, alloy or amalgam fillings [illegible] children's teeth [illegible] All work warranted.

MERCHANTS'

Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY, President. St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN, Vice President Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO, Second Vice President Bellevue, Iowa.
W. M. ROSS, Cashier Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000,

SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

W. M. ROSS, Cashier

Bigham & Olafson

Successors to Juve & Bergland.

THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON

Main Street, Crookston,

Have on hand; and are constantly receiving, full lines of

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS,
GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS

In fact everything usually found in a First-Class General Store,

Our goods are bought with great care and will be soldat

LOW PRICES

A GIVE US CALL

—THE—

RED LAKE FALLS FLOURING MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do Custom Work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & OLBENTSON,

PROPRIETORS,

RED LAKE FALLS, POLK CO., MINN.

—JOHN N. IVES.— —W. E. HAREVSTAD.—

NEW

DRUG STORE

IN GARFIELD

DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my New Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of fresh

DRUGS, MEDICINES,
PAINTS, OILS,
and YANKEE NOTIONS

'Tis no longer necessary to go 40 or 50 miles for anything in this line as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see!

R. R. TIME TABLE.

CROOKSTON.

—GOING NORTH.—

	ARRIVE.	DEPART.
No. 1 Passenger,	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
" 19 freight,	1:30 a. m.	2:30 a. m.
" 15 "	4:00 p. m.

—GOING SOUTH.—

	ARRIVE.	DEPART.
No. 2 Passenger,	4:00 a. m.	4:10 a. m.
" 16 Freight,		5:35 a. m.
" 18 "	1:15 p. m.
" 20 "	6:30 a. m.
" 24 "	6:15 p. m.
" "		4:30 p. m.

Grand Forks and Devils Lake.

No. 46 Mixed	4:45 p. m.	9:15 a. m.

St. Hilaire Branch.

Mixed trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10 a. m.; returning at 3 p. m.

'ROUND HOME.

Wheat still going at 70 cents.

Tom has got a new sign, still we did not know that Aleck was an artist.

Mr. A. D. Stephens, S. S. Cooke, F. S. DeMers were Fisherites in the city this week

Mr. M. W. Jensen came up from Aldal on Monday to see his friends and to attend to other business.

Mr. M. N. Malmberg gladdened our heart on Monday by bringing in a good square cord of dry oak wood and bid-

Very few of our citizens went to Grand Forks last Monday, preferring to celebrate at home. Right, they were.

Carl Kretzschmer arrived in the city last Monday to remain a few days with us. Come often, Carl, you are always welcome.

The dance held at Ericsson's Hall last Monday evening proved a success, as everybody who attended seemed to have had a pleasant time.

As yet we have heard of no sunstrokes; still, old Sol is commencing to labor very effectually with the snow. Let it go, we can spare some of it.

Mr. E. K. Overland, of Garfield, was in the city for several days with a view to purchasing a team with which to aid him in his efforts to become a bonanza farmer. We are not sure whether he accomplished his object or not.

The great change in the weather for the better, this week, has made a noticeable change in business in our city, and merchants are beginning to smile, and are making every arrangement for a big spring trade, which we are sure to have, and our streets are lined with teams loaded with wood and all kinds of farm produce.

Fred Anderson has arrived in this city to remain, having rented the Merchants' Saloon, formerly occupied by M. L. Fritz, where he will carry on the business. He asks a share of the patronage of the people, and at his place will be kept constantly on hand a fine assorted stock of wines, liquors and cigars, both domestic and imported. Give him a call.

We were very much surprised the other morning in going into the roller rink to find that it had been changed into an ice rink. Will and George were both there looking the thing over and we (being passable well acquainted with both partners) ventured to ask the reason for the change. The look that was given us as we gently made for the door, convinced us immediately that we had made a mistake. The roof leaks.

Sam Lung got through with a few very interesting gymnastics last Monday morning. While coming round the corner of Second street, a little too previous like, he stopped short (that is, pretty short) made a few frantic efforts to regain his equilibrium, but that was an utter failure, for down he went; he then got up on his knees and, after winding up his que, putting on his hat and picking up sundry small coins which had rolled out of his pockets in the struggle, regained his feet and started again on his weary way mumbling to himself, but loud enough for us to hear. We are somewhat acquainted with the Chinese language, but will refrain from giving any of the particulars at present; suffice it to say that it was about the same that we would use under the same circumstances.

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $3,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN MCLEAN, Att'y at Law.
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

St. Patrick's Day.

The day opened up gloriously, being about the brightest of the season, and everybody seemed to appreciate the fact, for our streets presented quite a busy scene during the entire day, and we were quite often reminded, while passing through the busy throng, of the thousands upon thousands who were celebrating this great day, by the little shamrock shown boldly upon the lapel of each true Irishman's coat. The day passed off very pleasantly, with the exception of one or two little altercations which seemed a little strange to us, taking into consideration the usual quietness of our city. In the afternoon everybody seemed to be taking advantage of the departing snow, which seems to bring forth the idea that spring will soon be here. Taking everything into consideration, we think the day passed off quietly and pleasantly with the majority of our citizens.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax, is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing,

JOHN MCLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

City Convention.

The City Convention will be held at City Hall on Wednesday, March 26th 1884, at 7 o'clock in the evening for the purpose of nominating city officers. Each ward will be entitled to two delegates in the convention. The following city officers are to be nominated viz:

Mayor.
Alderman at Large.
Recorder.
Treasurer.
Two Constables.
Assessor.

The different wards will hold their respective caucuses on Monday, March 24th, 1884, at 7 o'clock in the evening, for the purpose of nominating two delegates to the city convention and one Alderman from each ward, at the following places, viz:

1st ward—Engine House.
2d ward—In Underhill's Office.
3d ward—In McLean's Office.
4th ward—D. Jacobus' store room.

J. MCLEAN, }
A. BRALEY, } City Com.
D. JACOCUS, }
R. HOUSTON }

WHITE EARTH, Agency.
March 11th, 1884.

The advertisement appearing in this paper under date of February 14th, 1884, for the sale of dead and fallen timber cut by the Indians on White Earth and Red Lake Reservations by submitting sealed bids to the agent is so far modified by the direction of the Hon. Secretary of the Interior as to be sold to the highest bidder at public auction on Thursday, the 10th day of April 1884 at the front door of the Court House at Crookston, Minn. The sale of said logs not to be considered final until approved by the Hon. Secretary of the Interior.

One dollar per thousand feet will be required to be paid by the successful bidder at the time of sale, the same to be applied on account in case the bid is accepted and to be returned to the bidder if not accepted.

C. P. LUSE.
U. S. Indian Agent.

WHITE EARTH AGENCY, Minn.
February 14th, 1884.

Sealed proposals for the sale of dead and fallen logs cut by the Indians on Red Lake and White Earth Indian Reservations will be received at this agency until Monday the 24th day of March 1884 at 12 o'clock noon at which time the bids will be opened. The logs located at the following points on

Red Lake Reservation.

About 400,000 feet in 2 camps located on Clearwater Lake. About 600,000 feet in 3 camps located on Clearwater River below Clearwater Lake. About 150,000 feet in 1 camp located on "Four Legged Lake" River about 5 miles from junction of the Clearwater River. About 600,000 feet logs in three camps located on Sandy River about 8 miles from the outlet of Red Lake. About 250,000 feet logs in 1 camp located on Red Lake about 10 miles from outlet.

White Earth Reservation.

About one million feet logs located on Clearwater River about 8 miles from its source. About one million feet logs located on "Walker's Brook" a tributary of Clearwater River.

The terms of this sale is, that all bids must be accompanied with a certified check upon some reliable bank for at least one dollar ($1.00) per thousand feet as an assurance of good faith, the same to be returned to the unsuccessful bidder or bidders depositing the same when the bids are opened.

These logs to be scaled by the State Surveyor whose measurement shall be considered final. Twenty-five (25) per cent. of the worth of the logs purchased will be required to be paid in to me within ten (10) days from the acceptance of the bid or bids and the remainder within thirty (30 days.

The Agent claims the right to reject any or all bids as may seem best for the parties for whom the logs are sold, Mark on outside envelope "bid for logs."

C. P. LUSE,
U. S. Indian Agent.

Dead and Fallen Logs.

INSTRUCTIONS DISREGARDED.

Washington, Special Telegram, to the Pioneer Press, March 13.—A letter dated Feb. 27, 1884, written by P. C. Sletten, Receiver at Crookston, Minn., was received some time ago by Mr. Nelson inclosing an advertisement for sealed proposals for the dead and fallen logs cut by the Indians on the Red Lake and White Earth Reservations, the bids to be sold aggregate over 4,000,000 feet. The advertisement is signed by C. P. Luse, Indian agent. Mr. Sletten says in his letter that at this rate it will not take long to cut down every tree on the reservation.

"It is absurd," he says, "to suppose that there is any such quantity of dead or fallen logs. The plain truth is that they are cutting down sound timber, and we are told that they even start fires to scorch trees so as to have an excuse for cutting them down. We have an idea that white men and half breeds are running these camps where this pine is cut. We think the Interior Department erred when it issued authority for Indians to cut down dead and burned timber, and it ought to be revoked without delay if the government expects to save any part of these reservations from spoliation."

Mr. Sletten asks that the attention of the Secretary of the Interior be called to the matter at once, as it was reported there that certain lumbermen were interested in all the pine cut at these so-called camps. Mr. Nelson at once referred Mr. Sletten's letter to the Department, and to-day received an answer from the Commissioner of Indian affairs, saying it was the first intimation the Department had received that the timber now being marketed by the Indians on the Red Lake and White Earth Reservations was liable to be sold otherwise than at public sale, the agent in charge having been so instructed, and that the Commissioner had telegraphed the agent on the 8th inst. as follows:

You must sell these logs at public sale to the highest bidder, and not on sealed proposals, as the newspaper notice says; and you must give the newspapers notice to so change the advertisement as to make the sale in this way. No sale will be complete until approved by the Secretary of the Interior.

Seed Wheat.

I have 1500 bushels of pure Scotch Fife wheat for sale. Call on or address,

FRANK BIVINS,
[45-tf] Crookston, Minn.

To Rent.

[illegible] for grain in the spring 100 acres on Section 19 Township 149 Range 45 and 230 acres on Section 11 Township 148 Range 45. Both tracts have a good house and barn. Apply to [illegible], Crookston, Minn.

MONEY! LAND!

$100,000 To Loan. 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY
AND IT WILL BE SOLD

Law and Insurance, Collections Made.

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,

PALMER & BOND.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY
IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City
FREE OF CHARGE.

FARMERS!

When you want the best Machine Oil go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Salt by the barrel, go to D. BUCHANAN'S

If you want Flour and Bran, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Pork, Lard or Salt Fish go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Teas, Coffees, Syrups, or anything in the Grocery line, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

Or if you want to Sell your Butter and Eggs, go to

D. BUCHANAN'S

on Broadway, between 2d and Robert Streets.

STEWART & LAWRENCE,

Dealers in

Pine Lumber.--Pine Lumber.

Windows, Doors, Mouldings, Building Paper, &c.

YARD ON OAK STREET. NORTH OF BOOTH'S LIVERY STABLE.

A. Allen,

AGENT

FOR THE

HOWE

SCALE

COMPANY.

Deep Wells!

R. W. RANNEY

IS NOW PREPARED

TO GO TO CHINA

OR THEREABOUTS

AFTER A

FLOWING

WELL

IF NECESSARY.

☞ He will contract by the day or job at living rates. If you want a good flowing well, address

R. W. RANNEY,
[6-81] Glyndon, Clay Co., Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, - Minn.

McKINNON BROS.

MANUFACTURERS OF

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES, WAGONS,

CUTTERS, SLEDS, &C., &C., &C.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN

FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Johnson Bros. Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and the Plano Harvester and Binder, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, in fact, we have everything in Machinery, from a wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine. Extras for all machines, always on hand.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY

The Dennet or Beloit

HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY,

And the Van Brunt & Davis

SEEDER COMPANY,

Are Represented

BY

STEENERSON BROS.,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

IVES & HATLESTAD,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

Collection and Land Office Business made Specialty.

Money secured for final proofs on short notice

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.

GRADUATE McGILL UNIVERSITY, MONTREAL.

Licensed College Physician and Surgeon, Quebec.

Office Over Medical Hall.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Rooms corner Main Street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

FURNITURE STORE.

OAK STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

BATAGLIA & KNACK, PROPRIETORS

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, [illegible] Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings and [illegible]. Repairing done to order. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

TOM MORRIS,

THE

CITY

JEWELER

REPRESENTS THE

CELEBRATED

Rockford Quick Train

WATCH

THE ONLY

Railroad

Watch

IN EXISTENCE.

NEW BROADWAY

Meat Market.

JEROME BROS., Proprietors.

Fresh and Salt Meats

OF ALL KINDS.

VEGETABLES

in their season. All goods delivered if requested.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, we shall at once put up from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice and be prepared to supply the trade for 1884. Wishing you all

—A HAPPY NEW YEAR!—

we are, yours respectfully,

E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

THE NEW

Livery, Feed

AND SALE

STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth streets,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

Good turnouts at all times at reasonable prices.

Good Hearse and a Careful Driver when needed.

E. D. SCHRADER

LIVERY,

Feed and Sale Stable

Best Turnouts in the city. Single & Double Rigs, with or without driver or Saddle horses always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a

NOBBY TURNOUT

—CALL AT THE—

RED BARN

E. D. SCHRADER,

Cor. Main and Third Streets, Crookston

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Str

EVERYTHING NEW

NEAT AND NOBBY,

Billiard, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Li and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whis Wholesale Prices.

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DRAU

M. M. VanDyk

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON,

COR. MAIN AND SECOND STREE

Will attend to all professional promptly.

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT LA

AND DEALER IN

REAL ESTATE,

Office Over Merchants' Bank.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERS

LEO & STEENERSON.

ATTORNEYS AT LA

Room 8, U.S. Land Office Buildin

CROOKSTON MI

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS----$1.50 per Annum.

VOL. VII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA. THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1884. NO. 48

Polk County Journal

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar Fifty Cents, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum sent to any address.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 year
¼ Inch	50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	6 00
1 Inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	8 00	10 00
2 Inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 20	9 50	15 00
3 Inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 20	9 50	13 [illegible]	20 00
4 Inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 [illegible]	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 Inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ Column	3 50	4 50	15 50	15 00	25 00	35 00	35 00
½ Column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 Column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class Matter.

Growing Small Fruits.

THE EXPERIENCE OF THE VETERAN NURSERYMAN, F. T. HASELTINE, SHOWING THAT SMALL FRUITS CAN BE Successfully Grown in Minnesota.

Some Solid Facts Worthy of Consideration.

I will give in brief my experience of five years growing fruit in this northern climate. I commenced planting in the spring of 1879, in May, on a piece of prairie land of ten acres located within the city limits of Crookston, said land I had leased for a term of years for Nursery purposes. There had been two crops of small grain harvested from same, which left the soil in a mellow condition. First had two acres thoroughly plowed and harrowed, then worked it off in rows four feet apart with a plow going twice in each row as deep as the plow would work. Had a line drawn along center of row on stakes about a foot above surface of ground as a guide to set plants to make straight rows. Commenced planting currant bushes, one and two years old in these trenches two feet apart, (for permanent setting they should be four feet each way to have plenty of room when bushes are older.) The roots were spread out carefully in bottom of trench and top soil packed around them with the hands. Then finish filling dirt around the bushes with a hoe tramping earth carefully with the feet. The bush when set should be a little lower than it stood in Nursery. I had nearly three thousand currant bushes planted, mostly White Grape, Red Dutch, Cherry and Long Bunch, red varieties; also set two hundred Houghton and Downing gooseberries and one hundred Philadelphia and Mammoth Cluster raspberries and red and black varieties, and a small bed of strawberry plants in rows four feet apart and twenty inches apart in the row. All the bushes and plants were thoroughly cultivated and hoed during the summer season, one of the principal secrets of successfully growing fruit in this climate. Good cultivation promotes strong, healthy growth of stalks and roots of plants and trees. All cultivation should stop towards last of July, so that wood of plants and trees will more thoroughly ripen before winter. The strawberry bed was covered from two to three inches in thickness with straw second week in November just after ground was frozen. The bed being near the fence around Nursery ground, it was covered with drifts of snow. The currant bushes, gooseberries and raspberries, had no protection of straw, only the snow that drifted around them from the fence, about middle of May, spring of 1880, part of straw was removed from strawberry bed, balance was left between rows and around plants to keep the earth moist in dry weather and fruit clean in wet weather. All plants came through the winter in nice condition. Currants, gooseberries and raspberries were all in bloom in June. In May I enlarged strawberry bed to one-half acre, also set out some two year old apple trees, Wealthy and Duchess and Tetofski, a Russian variety and two hundred two year old Transcendent and Hislop crab apple trees, also ten thousand apple and crab apple grafts. In July I marketed nearly six hundred quarts currants from the young plants that were set the spring before. Raspberry bushes and gooseberries also strawberry plants had some nice fruit on them. The strawberry bed was covered in November same as year before. In the spring of 1881 all the small fruit plants came through the winter all right, but the apple trees, such as Wealthy, Duchess and Telopski, also apple grafts were nearly all winter killed, crab apple trees and grafts were all right, the Transcendent and Hyslop varieties. The late spring frosts killed nearly all blossoms on currants, gooseberries and rasp- [illegible] berries, but strawberry plants being covered with straw until quite late in May, did not come out in blossom until late in June, I sold some nice fruit from the plants in July. The strawberry beds in May, were enlarged to one acre. Also five hundred Philadelphia and Turner Raspberries, red variety, were set out, four feet each way. All plants were thoroughly cultivated through summer season, weeds were not allowed to go to seed, runners were cut from strawberry plants between rows with a hoe, so that a space of two feet was left between rows to run a cultivator, the rows of plants were then two feet in width, all weeds were pulled among plants, they must be kept clean to raise good size fruit. In July 1882 I sold in the Crookston market nearly twelve hundred quarts as nice fruit of strawberries as was ever grown in the Northwest, most of the crop at twenty-five cents a quart and it was grown nearly all on one-half acre of ground, balance of bed was injured by winter frosts, quite a large quantity of currants, gooseberries and raspberries were sold in market. Transcendent and Hyslop crab apple trees had some fruit on them, also Desota Plum trees. The strawberry beds were increased in size to two acres in May, spring of 1882. The plants wintered nicely where snow drifted on the straw; the real secret of successfully saving plants from our severe winter frosts which can be easily accomplished by temporary fences or hedges. In June and July 1883 it was so dry nearly one-half of blossoms on strawberry plants dried on their fruit stems, still I sold in Crookston market nearly two thousand quarts of strawberries of very nice fruit, most of crop at twenty-five cents a quart, also sold nearly two hundred quarts of raspberries and some gooseberries. I am preparing the land and have already commenced planting small fruit and general Nursery stock for a permanent location, on forty acres of ground I purchased of the railroad company in spring of 1881. It is located on the prairie, within city limits of Crookston. I have demonstrated in five years experience, without a doubt, we can grow, and raise fruit from all the hardier varities of currants, gooseberries, raspberries and strawberries in this climate on our prairies, and a very fair success with Transcendent and Hyslop crab apple trees. First, soil must be in good condition before planting. Second, careful planting and cultivation. Third, have protection of snow if possible by temporary fence or hedge. All inquiries of correspondents about growing fruit cheerfully answered.

F. T. HASELTINE, Crookston.

A TRIP TO RED LAKE.

A Host of Interesting Facts Furnished by one of the St. Hilaire Gentleme who visited this Land of Unlimited Pine.

Cor. St. Hilaire Spectator.

We left St. Hilaire on Wednesday morning and after traveling in an easterly direction for a distance of 35 miles we came to what is known as the "last house," so named because it is the residence of the last white man on the road to Red Lake. The house is located upon a high, sandy ridge and in a very lonely, desolate looking spot. A few miles further on we began to enter the woods which are composed mostly of poplar and birch, with a few scattering spruce and oak. The road which we traveled follows the Lost River for some 20 miles, occasionally passing through openings, but gradually getting into the heavier timber, and showing more spruce, firs, balsam and pine. The Lost River takes its name from being suddenly lost in a large swamp but which makes its appearance again below and empties into the Clearwater River. Last winter the Indians cut some pine upon this stream before they discovered that it could not be driven out.

We made our first camp on the banks of this stream and although the weather was quite cold, we passed a very comfortable night with nothing but a light canvas over our sleigh, one side opening to a rousing camp fire. Four full grown persons packed into an ordinary wagon box like sardines, does not leave much chance for the cold to get in.

The next day we began to get deeper into the pine, and by 2 o'clock we were driving through some of the heaviest white pine timber which we had ever seen.

Occasionally we would come to an open spot through which the fire had run years ago, and left the magnificent trees standing, but dead and bare of bark or limbs. The trees are what the Indians now have the privilege of cutting and selling, and if they but had the push and energy of the white man, could soon make themselves independent of Government support. But with their characteristic indolence, they select those already down, or the smaller ones, and then cut them into as short lengths as possible, evidently with the idea that the more logs they get, the more money they will receive.

Towards night we began to approach Red Lake, and the heavy timber was succeeded by smaller trees and the last 5 miles of our drive was by a winding road through an immense park of evergreens ranging in height from 3 to 15 ft.

Arriving at the agency, at 6 p. m., we were kindly offered the use of the Police Headquarters by the Overseer, Major H. W. Allen, where after thawing our frozen bread and making some coffee, we made ourselves comfortable for the night behind the "bars."

The agency consists of some 12 or 15 buildings of a plain but substantial character. These buildings are used as a residence for the overseer, storehouses, blacksmith shop, offices, and two churches—Episcopalean and Catholic. The only white persons living there are the overseer and wife, the physician and wife, and a school teacher—the latter a young college graduate from Boston. Part of the overseer's residence is devoted to a boarding school for boys, where we saw a dozen or more well dressed, bright looking little fellows, but who did not seem to understand a word we said. The government also owns a saw mill and grist mill which at the present time are not in working order.

The next morning we started across the lake to a lumber camp near the "narrows," some 16 miles in a northerly direction. The size of the lake can be imagined when I state that when in the center of the lower lake we were unable to see either the east or west shore. The lake is very shallow, as we were told a person could wade out half a mile from the shore. The narrows which connects the two lakes, although 2½ miles wide, is frequently crossed by the Indian ponies and oxen during the summer. The lower lake is surrounded by heavy pine, but the upper lake is surrounded by marshes and tamarack swamps, which abound in large game like moose, elk and reindeer. Nearly all the game has been killed off around the agency, and we do not see anything but patridges and a few rabbits. We crossed the track of a bear but did not have the time to follow it up. The Lake abounds in white fish which are said to be very nice. We were not fortunate enough to secure any, but one of our party was invited by an Indian to taste some but a glimpse into the interior of the hut took away his appetite.

The Indians across the lake who are termed "Cross Lakers," are suffering some for food, as they lost their fishnets by a heavy storm late in the fall. They are living upon fish and corn, the latter apparently eaten without grinding. Their corn is a very hardy variety called Red Lake corn and has been raised by them for many years.

Night again found us at the agency where we occupied our old quarters, in the Police Office. We saw no use for such officials unless it was to encourage good behavior by gratifying their pride by wearing a tin star and a few gilt letters upon their hats. The force is composed of 7 or 8 men, mostly the old men of the tribe.

The following morning we started for the mouth of Sandy River about 8 miles from the outlet of the Lake. During the day we visited three lumber camps passing through all kinds of timber including a large white cedar swamp.

At one of these camps an Indian came out upon the snow barefooted and stood and talked with us several minutes apparently unmindful of the cold. We stopped at the house of an Indian chief called Leading Feather to inquire the way but found only a few children at home. Among them was a fine looking girl of 15 years of age with rosy cheeks and a skin almost as white as ours. As the rest of the family were of the usual dark color she was strongly suggestive of a kidnapped child.

One of the peculiar features of the country is the large number of depressions—or sink holes—in the ground, ranging in size from a few rods to a diameter of half a mile. There is no visible inlet or outlet and they are covered with coarse grass with perhaps open water in the center of the larger ones.

The journey home occupied three days the two last being in one of the worst storms of the season. But notwithstanding this all our party felt well repaid for the trip and predict that when the Reservation is open the immense quantities of pine will make lumber cheap in this glorious Northwest for many years to come. The beauty of Red Lake will tend to make it one of the finest watering places in the country. When the new steamboat now being built at St. Hilaire is completed, our party will be among the first to take passage upon it for another trip to this wonderful country—where the pine is unlimited, and the beauty of scenery unexcelled.

Farm Notes.

American Agriculturist for April.

MORE LOCAL FAIRS NEEDED.

We have, perhaps, enough of great expositions, national fairs, State fairs, etc., to give vent to the enterprise of the leaders in industry, and as nuclei for the numerous demoralizing side shows that cluster around these large gatherings. But do we have enough of small local fairs and industrial shows which come within the reach both as to distance and productions of the ordinary farmer and his wife, his sons and daughters? In Great Britain, and especially in Scotland, each neighborhood has a "Poultry Show," or its "Flower Show," to which the neighbors contribute the best samples of their own products, and they stand a chance of being awarded honors which would be entirely out of their reach at the greater fairs. Every farmer can go and see what his neighbors are doing, and thus an emulation is aroused which [illegible] the more extensive fair can never awaken. The hard-worked, plodding farmer says he has no time to bother with fairs and prize stock, and choice fruits and fancy flowers, and it is true if he has to compete with persons of wealth and leisure who make these a part of their avocation. But most of ordinary contributors have time and pride enough to keep abreast with those whom they recognize as their peers. While it is neither profitable nor honorable to do anything poorly, every person ought to have something in which he takes especial pride; if a farmer, it may be his horses or his hens, his potatoes, or even his roses; the wife or daughter may excel with her bread, her house plants, or her decorative work. If one has a "hobby" it need not encroach upon the more regular duties and he will be sure to find time for it; he will take as much pleasure in it as in all his other work. He will be furnished with the literature of that subject, and be recognized by his neighbors as an authority and a success in that department, and by this effort will receive a valuable discipline and uplifting of character. He will be able to make that department of the local fair interesting, while he will be the better fitted to contribute to the other departments also. In the British fairs, already referred to, the young men have athletic sports and contests which add interest to the occasion and also stimulate a pride in the many physique which is much needed by our American youth. Our county fairs do not fill the bill; while important and useful their territory is too extensive, their plan too elaborate, their machinery too complicated and expensive, and their occurrence too rare. The township would be a better division of territory for the gathering we have in mind, or better still, a neighborhood defined by common consent.

HEAVY MANURING IN THE GARDEN.

The garden, though a small patch upon the farm, generally an acre or less, if properly cared for will bring more profitable returns than any cultivated fields. All the vegetables and small fruits that can be consumed in a larger family, with a surplus for market, can be raised with very little difficulty. It will add much to the health and happiness of the household to have every appetite satisfied with a daily supply of seasonable fruit and vegetables. To do this the garden must have abundant manure. Though other fields lack, give the garden all it can appropriate, for the same reason that the Jersey cow or the best milker has all the food she can digest. The profit is in the surplus feed above what will sustain her normal weight. The garden is to supply the finest products to the table; let the soil have all the fertilizers the plants can make use of. The profit is in their full feeding. Their quality will be better, and the cost at its minimum. The garden is ordinarily near the barn-yard, the pig sty, the kennery, the privy, and the sink drain, and should have the first claim upon every fertilizer made upon the farm; and if that is not enough add concentrated fertilizers from abroad. It is none too much to fertilize the garden at the rate of twenty cords of well-rotted manure to the acre. Let every plant, tree and shrub in it have enough to eat. Give the garden the first claim upon your compost heaps, and when you have spread broadcast and plowed in all the manure you can afford, do not fail to have a few bags of special manures for top-dressing during the growing season. Full fed plants are far less likely to be hurt by insects than half-starved ones.

The American Agriculturist for April, 1884, is the fullest number issued during its forty-three years' existence, containing no less than 150 original articles and 104 original illustrations and engravings, by leading writers and artists, on timely topics pertaining to the Farm, Garden, and Household. All the subjects are treated in a plain, simple manner, so as to present a vast amount of useful, practical information in a readable, entertaining style. The great array of contributors embraces such well-known writers as Prof. D. D. Slade, of Harvard University, Prof. S. R. Thompson, Nebraska University, Orange Judd, Dr. George Thurber, Dr. Byron D. Halsted, J. Bartlett, W. D. Boynton, W. W. Meech. The leading feature of the number is a very complete profusely illustrated paper by G. R. Newton, of Dakota, giving very full and valuable directions for new Western comers for building their first houses, fighting troublesome insects and pests, getting comfortably settled, &c., &c. Every farmer who contemplates moving westward, should carefully read and study this article. "April Days," and "Trucking along the St. Johns River" are instructive full-page engravings. Among the hundred other illustrations are: Group of Lincoln Sheep; Above Ground Cellar; Improved Dwelling; Clod Crushers; Poultry House; String Pens; Lifting Heavy Stones; Rose Cuttings; Seed Tubes; Fresket Fences; Hillside Cattle Barn; Well Windlass; Bitting Colts; Corn Marker; New Raspberry; New Kale; Cardoon; Everlasting Flowers; New Parsnips; Window Boxes; Table Decoration, etc. etc. Price, $1.50 a year; single numbers, 15 cents. Orange Judd Co., Publishers, 751 Broadway, New York.

WHAT CASH WILL DO.

Buy lumber at a reduction of $2 per thousand from old prices, at—

STEWART & LAWRENCE'S.

Proud & Macdonald,

(Successors to Fixen, Hansing & Co.)

Dealers in DRY GOODS

AND NOTIONS,

BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS

&c., &c., &c.

A CALL SOLICITED.

New York Store.

We make the Lowest Prices.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

TO THE

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

—CHOICE LOST—

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Pure Drugs,

Reliable Medicines,

LOWEST LIVING PRICES,

AT

Medical Hall,

CROOKSTON,

Beecher & George, Prop's.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of five hundred and twenty-eight and forty-nine one hundredths dollars, ($528 49-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Carrie Dewey and Alvah Dewey her husband to E. D. Childs bearing date the 14th day of June A. D. 1883, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 19th day of June A. D. 1883, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book "N" of mortgages, on page 60, to secure the payment of a certain promissory note for the sum of five hundred dollars payable September 14th, 1883, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, and duly executed and delivered by said Carrie Dewey and Alvah Dewey her husband, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, or the interest thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots eight and nine (8 and 9) in block five (5) and the east half of lot twenty-two (22) in block two (2) (all situate in the village of Fisher) according to the original plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for said Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County, and State, on the 29th day of March A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated February 7th, A. D 1884.

E. D. CHILDS,
Mortgagee.

DAVIS BROWER,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [43-48]

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., March 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Register and Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 6th, 1884, viz: STANISLAS VANDRON, Hd. 2,045, for the sw¼ Sec. 19, T. 150, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Oscar Charpentier, of Lake Pleasant, Polk County, Minn., Pierre Lecuyer, Pierre Barrette, of Gentilly, Polk County, Minn., George Beauvais of Carman, Polk County, Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., March 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN PETTERSON, Pre. D. S. No. 8,131, for the lots 4, 5 and 6, and se¼ sw¼ Sec. 19, and lot 1, Sec. 30, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Berg, John A Taftlund, W. Torgerson, Ole Fiscepe, all of King P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., March 6th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on April 24th 1884, viz: ELISHA B. SCRIBNER, H'd No. 3475, for the sw¼ S. 24, T. 149, 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Herbert Mason, V. D. Gerrish, George Molk and John E. Chilbeck, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[46-51] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., March 6th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on April 19th, 1884, viz: FRANCOIS TRUDEAW, Pre D. S., 6013, for the ne¼ S. 22, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Timothe Diegroselller, Francois Labante, Hilvier Demers and Cheri Montcalcw, all of Gentilly, Polk Co., Minn.

[46-51] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., March 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 6th, 1884, viz: PIERRE LECUYER, Hd. No. 2,044, for the n½ ne¼ sw¼ ne¼ and ne¼ nw¼ S. 20, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Stanislas Vandrin, Oscar Charpentier, of Lake Pleasant, Polk County, Minn., Timothe Desgroselller, of Gentilly, Polk County, Minn., George Beauvais, of Carman, Polk Co., Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., March 3d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on April 11th, 1884, viz: OLE P. ONSTAD, Pre. D. S., No. 5,016, for the ne¼ S. 10, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Knut H. Berg, Colben Thoreson, Fertile, Lars P. Olstad, Crookston, Ole P. Hunsid, Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.

[45-50] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Feb. 21st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Register and Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on April 5th, 1884, viz: ERIC OLS WIKSTROM, Pre. D. S., No. 6,630, for the ne¼ sw¼, se¼ nw¼ and lots 5, 6 S. 6, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: George Courtright, Albert Gilmour, Charles Davis and Nils O. Skor, all of Fertile, Polk Co., Minn.

[44-49] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston Minn., Feb. 23d 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on April 10th 1884, viz: ALBERT BODDY, H'd No. 1,948, for the ne¼ S. 30, T. 147, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: A. S. Middleton, Patrick Connery, R. S. Mayo, Edna, and H. S. Loeb, Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[44-49] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Feb. 26th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on April 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN E. HANSON, H'd Nos. 1,761 and 4,318, for the e½ se¼ and e½ ne¼ S. 14, T. 148, R. 49. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Ole O. Estenson, Hans H. Berg, Hans H. Bongen and John Thompson, all of Nebr, Polk Co., Minn.

[44-49] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Feb. 25th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Friday, April 4th, 1884, viz: MARTIN THOMPSON, H'd No. 5,290, for the sw¼ S. 24, T. 148, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Richard Olson, Frank Grody, Gilbert Brosjen and Ole Sorenson, all of Maple Bay, Polk Co., Minn.

[44-49] JOHN CROMB, Register.

DR. P. THORN.

Physician and Surgeon.

—OFFICE—

[illegible]

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, THURSDAY, MARCH 27

Crookston Markets.

Wheat, No. 1 per bushel			76.
No 2	"	"	72.
Oats,	"	"	50.
Barley,	"	"	75.
Potatoes,	"	"	35.
Hay, per ton			5 00.
Beef Sides	per	lb.	10.
Corn Beef		"	12½
Roast Beef		"	18.
Roast Veal		"	18.
Roast Pork		"	13.
Beef Steak		"	20.
Pork Steak		"	20.
Mutton Chops		"	21.
Veal Chops		"	20.
Boiling Meat		"	12½.
Salt Pork		"	14.
Pork Sausage		"	20.
Bologna Sausage		"	20.
Sugar Cured Hams		"	13.
Lard		"	16.

Dont miss the Hidden Hand.

Averrill, Russell & Carpenter's Brown traveling man was in the city this week.

We are glad to hear it. The farmers (some of them) say that if we have no rain that they will begin seeding next week. That is good, let us have no rain.

Mr. I. U. Jennings on Wednesday received a telegram from W. H. Foote, of Euclid stating that Mrs. Foote received a paralytic stroke and was not expected to recover. Mrs. I. U. Jennings started at once for Euclid.

The many friends of B. F. Zarracher will be glad to know that he is able to be out again and rapidly improving. Frank has been suffering with a very severe throat trouble and has been confined to his bed for over a week.

S. P. Norton who has lately rented re-furnished and fitted up the Lake View Hotel wishes to say to the public generally that this Hotel will be run under an entirely different plan from this out. There has (he understands) been considerable fault found with the way it has been run heretofore but all he asks is that people will give this house a trial and be convinced for themselves.

The new version of the Hidden Hand will be given at Ericsson's Hall on Tuesday Evening, April 1st by Whiteley's Original "Hidden Hand" Company. Elsewhere will be found a notice of their celebrated company, clipped from the Iowa State Leader which gives our readers a pretty good idea of what to expect. Reserved seats at popular prices now on sale at Morris' Bros. Jewelry store, Second Street.

Mr. Ole Bang has just fixed up his sample room in fine style, having calcimined, painted and grained inside and out and re-fitted his pool and billiard tables. He has also called in the aid of the powerful electric light to lend beauty and enchantment, and with his bar fully supplied with the choicest goods the market affords he is now prepared to extend a hearty welcome to all his friends and patrons and invites a call.

We learn that the Knights and Ladies of Honor will have a social hop in the near future. From the names that will appear as committee on the cards of invitation we have no doubt but that it will be the grand success of the season. This organization, we learn, is very popular wherever established throughout the country and tends to a great deal of good, benevolently, socially and as a mutual aid society, and the prospects are that it will be the most popular organization in the city. Ladies, as well as gentlemen, take part in this secret society which tends to make it more social and benevolent than other similar organization where the fair sex are excluded.

Our little city has again been visited by highwaymen. This time the victim was ex-probate judge Fjoser. He was returning to his home, about nine o'clock last Monday evening, and after crossing the elevated bridge over the railroad track on Seventh street he was stopped by two men who took his handkerchief and gagged him and then relieved him of his pocket book and watch. The pocket book contained only a small sum, thirty or forty cents, which was a fortunate circumstance, but the watch was valued at twenty-five dollars; as yet there is no trace of the perpetrators of the dastardly outrage, but we hope that they may be captured and be dealt with to the full extent of the law.

Mr. E. C. Davis arrived from his overland trip to Brainerd on Friday evening last. He went Southeast via Maple Lake through the 13 towns to the Northeast corner of White Earth Reservation thence South across the Mississippi River on the East side of Itasca Lake to Park Rapids, the County seat of Hubbard Co., thence Southwesterly along the divide betwen Crow Wing River and Gull and Pine Rivers to Brainerd. The entire route he finds very feasible having no serious engineering obstacles to overcome, the country abounding with material for ties, piles and wood needed in construction. For the most part the face of the country in gently undulating and requires but few bridges. He found a great deal of fine pine along the route which can never be utilized until reached by a railroad. Settlers were flocking into Hubbard County which will soon be well settled up at the present rate. The County seat is already a flourishing little village and contains among other institutions a large flouring mill. The soil enroute is for the most part a sandy loam, and wherever it has been cultivated it has raised good crops of wheat and other cereals and vegetables. Mr. Davis says that as soon as the deep snows are gone a surveying party will take the field and stake out the road and that we shall have the road as soon as it can be built thereafter.

Clean off those sidewalks.

Mr. Geo. Copeland is in the city for a few days visiting with his brother J. B.

Mr. D. Huggard, of Angus, reported matters all O. K. at that point on Tuesday.

Mr. Frank Bivins and family have moved out on their farm for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Herriott, of Edna, returned on Saturday from a winter's visit east.

Commissioner Kretzschmar, after the duties of the session went below to St. Paul last week

Mrs. J. M. Palmer was in the city last week visiting with her many friends here.

The snow is going rapidly and soon the mud—the beautiful mud will last a few days.

Bro. Holmes, of the Red Lake Falls Gazette, was in to call on Tuesday. He is very sanguine of a boom this spring.

G. T. Miles has returned from a trip to Lake Park and gone to his home at Red Lake Falls to be ready for the boom.

Capt. Whitcomb and Tom Sprague, two jolly knights of the road are enjoying the hospitalities of our city this week.

M. LeFevre desires to tell the boys that he has the very best goods in his line that the market affords and extend an invitation to them to call.

Ed Walsh has just returned from Grand Forks and says that the G. F., C. & L. S. R. R. will commence work on the survey early in the spring.

Mr. Ole Bjoin has come down from the famous 13 to offer proof in support of his claim and obtain a fine quarter section of Uncle Sam's land for a farm.

Louis Fried arrived on Tuesday with a carload of horses and mules which he intends to sell to all in need of good farming animals. He may be found at Steege's stables.

H. G. Palmer is away on committee work; the duty of which committee is to establish an independent line of elevators on this line of road. He is very sanguine of success.

Mr. Chas. Churchill is in the city from the farm for a time. He will fix up his neat residence on the addition and be ready for his family when they return a few weeks later. He intends to prove up on his claim and have a farm of his own.

Our city has been visited by a great many strangers this week who are looking 'round the city and no doubt some of them will remain to engage in some business project. They are all welcome and we are sure that they cannot find a better location.

Wm. Withorow who has of late been indulging a little to freely in wife beating, was brought before the justice Wednesday morning. His sentence was five hundred dollars or six months in the county jail. Not being able to give bail he was sent to jail.

Mayor McCormick, of Grand Forks has just returned from Washington and says that our Congressman, Hon. Knute Nelson is the hardest worker in the Minnesota delegation. He says that he is working like a beaver for the success of the Red Lake timber bill.

The delegates to the farmer's State Convention all returned by Saturday last all well pleased at the result of their mission. Unlike the celebrated ten pilgrims they were not taken in and beguiled by syren songs until they forgot the object of their trip, but attended strictly to biz and returned after that was done and well done.

The McCormick Harvester Co., have issued a very handsome illustrated magazine descriptive of their machinery in which is every style of harvesting machine from the sickle and old ox go-cart header to the complete self-binding harvester. It is indeed a handsome book and must be seen to be appreciated. Call on Stone & Pinkerton for a copy.

Our Dramatic Troupe will present "Led Astray" at Grand Forks on Saturday evening next. A special train will leave Crookston at 4:30, returning after the performance closes. Round trip ticket, including a reserved seat ticket for the entertainment only $1.50. All should avail themselves of this opportunity to visit Grand Forks and have a good time.

In his rambles about town to note the signs of reviving activity, our reporter called at the lumber yard of Stewart & Lawrence, the leading lumber dealers, and meeting Mr. Stewart, began to bore that gentleman with all kinds of questions which, however, were very kindly received and promptly answered. Mr. S. said that since the warm weather set in their sales had largely increased, showing an encouraging awakening in building operations and that the prospects are good for a large increase over last year. The firm are assured of reduced rates on the railroad, which reduction their patrons will receive the benefit of. They will put down prices $2 per M. all 'round to induce cash trade. They adopted the cash system on January 1st and find that it works to a charm, as their sales have been immense and are still increasing and the prospects are that they will double any former year's transactions. They have their immense yard filled to repletion and are ready to fill all orders, both large and small, at short notice and at reasonable prices. If you intend to build go and get prices at Stewart & Lawrence before you purchase.

The merry rattle of the wagon wheel has a familiar sound once more.

Tom Morris will shy his castor into the ring as alderman in the Second.

Pete Misgen informs us that Ira DeCamp is practicing ventriloquism.

We are told that McLean comes out independent for alderman in the Third.

The Pennock Ditcher and Grader is the best in the market. Sold by Moser & Moeckel.

We are very glad to hear that the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Box are improving rapidly.

Andrew Steenerson has gone down to his farm to sell some oxen and get things in shape for the seeding business.

The First and Fourth remain serene. No contesting for Alderman. The straights have no opposition—unless it develops later.

O. C. Bergland is getting his seed wheat out to the farm so as to be ready to commence seeding at the earliest moment.

Whoever wins the heat will not have a walk-away by any means. The kettle begins to "bile" and the winner has got to work for his honors.

Stone & Pinkerton seems to be doing a good business in machinery judging by the loads of machinery we daily see going away from their warehouse.

A large crew of men have been at work this week removing the bridge at the foot of Robert street. It will be replaced as soon as the ice goes out of the river.

Just as we go to press we hear the sad news that Ici Box's life is despaired of; the sympathy of the whole community are with the family in their great affliction.

As an evidence that the sewing machine business is picking up we saw Andrew Eiken tackle up the old grey and go forth to deliver a load of sewing machines this morning.

The Oddfellows are making arrangments to secure a course of Chinese lectures on China. If successful in securing their man we shall have something further to say futurely.

Two grangers were speculating about the probable cost of the pile of iron lying forninst McKinnon Bros. shop and one of them remarked that he "should not wonder if that iron cost as much as $200" They referred the matter to Sandy who informed them that the freight bill on that iron alone was $260.

The removal of the Robert Street bridge leaves the genial cashier of the Merchants National bank out in the cold somewhat. We heard that he intends to overcome the obstacle by having a balloon during the expected dampness but he assures us that he intends to pin his faith to the honest "wannigan" which the same is simply a row boat.

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $3,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN McLEAN, Atty at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

City Caucuses.

The city caucuses were well attended, and peace and harmony prevailed. In the 1st ward Louis Fontaine was nominated for alderman by acclamation and H. Steege and J. H. Locken delegates to the city convention. In the 2d ward P. Bataglia received the nomination for alderman and Messrs. Behlmer and McGuire, delegates. In the 3d ward W. Walker was nominated for alderman and G. W. McManus and E. Munn delegates. In the 4th ward Felix Fournet and T. Bjoin were elected for the convention and C. Chiniquy nominated for alderman.

City Convention.

The City Convention was called to order at 7:15. Geo. J. McManus was elected chairman and Mr. Behlmer, secretary. The call was read by the chairman, after which J. H. Locken, T. Bjoin and A. Wentzel were appointed a committee on credentials who reported the following gentlemen entitled to seats in the convention:

First ward—H. Steege.
J. H. Locken.
Second ward—P. J. McGuire.
A. Wentzel, proxy.
Mr. Behlmer.
Third ward—Geo. J. McManus.
E. Munn.
Fourth ward—Felix Fournet.
T. Bjoin.

Upon organization the convention proceeded to the nomination for Mayor On the informal ballot E. M. Walsh received 6 votes and Wm. Stuart 2. On the first formal ballot Mr. Walsh received 8 votes and was declared unanimously nominated. For Alderman at large, on the 1st informal ballot, R Houston received 6 votes and R. P. Herrick 2; on the 1st formal ballot R. Houston received 8 votes and was declared the nominee of the convention For Treasurer Adolph Gallasch was nominated by acclamation. For Recorder, on the 1st informal ballot O. L. Hamery received 5 votes and W. D. Hurlbut 3. Mr. Hamery was declared the nominee of the convention. For assessor on 1st informal ballot A. P. Bond received 6 votes and S. W. Ritchie 2. Mr. Bond was declared the the nominee. For constable Mr. Henry Sheperd received the unanimous vote and was declared the nominee. The convention was very harmonious working together just like clock-work—like a good clock that had been well wound up and had nothing else to do but to run. On motion the chair appointed the following gentlemen city committee for the ensuing year; W. H. Topping, O. A. Chiniquy, John McKinnon, [illegible] Adjourned.

People's Convention.

After the regular convention in the hall last night a people's convention was organized and the following ticket nominated.

For Mayor—W. H. Stuar .
Ald. At Large—R. P. Herrick.
Treasurer—Adolph Gallasch.
Recorder—W. D. Hurlbut.
Assessor—S. W. Ritchie.
Constable—Henry Shepard.

This convention was as unanimous and harmonious as the preceding and judging by the excellence of its nominations evidently goes in to win. As the other ticket is equally strong we may expect a lively canvass and some good work. There is nothing to urge against either as they are all good men and true and we trust the choice will be of the very best.

An Elegant Performance.

"Although the typical American is rather a sober fellow, and educates his face into an expression of habitual gravity, there is no one who sees more quickly than he the point of a joke, or who carries in his soul a keener appreciation of fun. It is this popular fondness for joke and absurdity that has made the lighter orders of comedy so attractive to the people, and has given to the stage a galaxy of "comic professionals," whose superiors cannot be produced in the world. The drama of the "Hidden Hand," as presented at the Academy of music last evening, by Whiteley's Original "Hidden Hand" Company, was a fair sample of this bright and attractive school of entertainment, while the immense audience that crowded the house to witness the exhibition would seem to fully sustain our declaration. The play, upon its mere literary merits, is a good one; but, assisted by the combined talent of the splendid company as is brought to its support last evening, it seemed to fairly burn with interest, or bristle with witticism from the beginning to the close. The beautiful songs of Capitola were of themselves worth the price of admisson, while in the absurdities of Wool, or the droll petulence of the irritable Hurricane, the spectator found no point at which either his interest or his amusement seemed to languish until the curtain fell upon the closing scene. The company is a good one—thoroughly equipped in all its appointments, and has achieved a popularity as wide as it deserved." Iowa State, Leader (Des Moines,) September 30. 1883.

Don't fail to witness this elegant company, and this greatest of all Southern comedy-dramas, at Ericsson's Hall next Tuesday evening April 1st Reserved seats now on sale, and can be secured in advance, at Morris Bros. Jewelry Store Second Street.

Wanted to Exchange:

Fifteen acres in city lots, near Chicago, worth $1,000 per acre, for good farming lands in the Red River Valley, or property in Crookston or Grand Forks. The most beautiful place in the west, located on the lake shore; splendid improvements; the best society, schools and churches; has a Ladies Seminary and a University; twenty trains to Chicago every day; low fares This property is bound to increase in price as Chicago grows. Will sell in parcels of one acre each or more. Inquire of the Editor of this paper. [48 1]

DITCHING

AND ROAD GRADING

MADE EASY.

The Pennock Ditcher and Grader can be bought for one-fifth the cost of the New Era Grader, and it will do the work better than any machine heretofore brought into the market. Will sell the machine on its merits. No work, no pay. Apply to

MOSER & MOECKEL,
[48-3m] Gen'l Northwestern Agents.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO FARMERS.

We are prepared to announce to the farmers, and all who contemplate building, that we have reduced the price of lumber $2 per M., commencing March 19th. We have on hand two hundred thousand feet of good dry spip lap at $18 per M.; also a large stock of all kinds of dry lumber, lath, shingles, sash, doors, mouldings, pickets, building paper, &c., all at reduced figures Call and be convinced for yourselves.

STEWART & LAWRENCE.

For Sale:

Horses, oats, cordwood, fence posts and potatoes for sale at the farm of Jacob Stambaugh on the Sand Hill River 7 miles east of Beltrami station. Parties wishing to purchase any of the aforementioned property will do well to call, [46-tf] at lowest rates of interest. Special attention given to land contests, both at the local office and the general land office at Washington, D. C.

MONEY LOANED

JENNINGS & McGREW,
Attorneys at Law and Real Estate Dealers, Crookston, Minn. [46-6]

For Sale.

A fine farm of 480 acres, 270 acres under cultivation. Good house, barn and well, teams and machinery to run it. On account of ill-health will be sold at a big sacrifice for cash. For further particulars address JOURNAL office.

Teachers Examinations.

Spring examinations for teachers of Polk County will be held as follows:

Crookston, at the Court House, March 27th and 28th.

East Grand Forks, at School House, April 1st and 2d.

Red Lake Falls, at School House, April 4th and 5th.

V. D. CARRUTH,
County Supt. of Schools.
March 13 1884. [46-48]

We are receiving our spring stock of lumber, and can fill any sized order, with good dry lumber. Large stock of sash and doors, building paper, &c.

Lumber reduced $2 per M. from March 19th, 1884.

STEWART & LAWRENCE.

CLEAN BODY WOOD,

Stove lengths, full measure, delivered in any part of the city on short notice, $2 a cord.

[29-tf] LEECH & McMANUS.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Main street, opposite U. S. Land Office.

[11-tf] H. STEENERSON.

To Rent.

For three years; a fine farm with plenty of wood and water handy; good house and stables. No money required as rent can be paid in improvements on the farm. A rare opportunity for some industrious men Address JOURNAL office.

Timothy Seed.

The undersigned has a quantity of Timothy seed for sale. Call on or address J. M. Bair, Fisher Minn.

[46-49]

Wanted.

A position as foreman on a farm or as a blacksmith on a large farm.

Address, W. B. Ross, Crookston.

[46-49]

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries and purpose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining Trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence one block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 734.

Most respectfully,
[33-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

Sweep, Ho!

If you want your chimney cleaned in a scientific manner call on August Koeppe. He knows how it is done.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax, is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing,

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Seed Wheat.

I have 1500 bushels of pure Scotch Fife wheat for sale. Call on or address,

FRANK BIVINS,
[45-tf] Crookston, Minn.

So far, Crookston has fortunately escaped the ravages of that dreaded monster the Fire Fiend, but we know not at what hour he may appear in our midst. The only way to meet this terrible foe is by good, reliable Insurance. Look over our Million List of staunch, fire-tested companies and make your selection before you have cause to regret a loss.

Hartford	$3,761,379
German American, N. Y	2,034,032
German, Freeport, Ill.	1,625,107
Niagara,	1,557,497
Liverpool London, Globe	4,777,550
Fireman's Fund, California,	1,169,017
National, of Hartford,	1,744,808
N. Y. Alliance,	1,027,849
Phoenix, of Hartford	2,034,933
Union, California,	1,29,438
British America,	1,349,[illegible]
North British	1,[illegible]

We also represent the Travelers Life and Accident Insurance Co., of Hartford.

I. M. [illegible]
Insurance Agency

MARRIED.

WATTS—WEBB.—In this city, on Thursday evening, March 20th 1884, by the Rev. F. K Roberts, MR. WM. WATTS to MISS EDITH WEBB all of Polk Co., Minn.

Thus the web matrimonial bath at last ensnared our worthy county attorney and we believe and trust it will be to him indeed a silken one. That peace and prosperty may ever attend the happy pair is our sincere wish.

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office for the week ending March 22d, 1884. Persons calling for any of these letters will please say "advertised."

Arneson, Miss Karen
Anderson, John P
Anderson, Miss W.
Asmussen, Tobias
Benton, Ausley
Carlson, Mrs N G
Chappins, Miss O
Candelle, Mrs Major
Caron, Eladie
Donohue, P.
Dernstia, Joseph
Davis, Wm
Grasson, John
Farstad, Peder —2
Gerrom, Miss Kelley
Garran, Bap
Hendrigson, Mrs H O
Hansen, Hendrey
Hamer, Miss Anna B
Johanneson, Salfrat
Johansson, G
Kier, Mrs Wm
Larsen, Lars
Maclure, Ozoy
Marvin, S D
Moreau, Jean Pierre
Neplen, John
Nelson, John P
Neilson, Hans
Proulx, John
Ryggen, Ingeborg A
Rinehart, Martin
Strane, Maud
Smith & Co, W A
Schultz, Michale F
Voldnes, Peder A
Wilson, Julius
Weber, H L
Wine, Henry

Registered Letters.

Anderson, J S
Gamache, D L
Hall, John
Langoe, John A
Ryggen, Ingeborg A
Wadt, Charles

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

Second Street

MEAT MARKET

STANTON & CO., Proprietors

Choice Meats of every description. Fish and game in their seasons. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us. Stanton & Co., Dobson's Block, Second Street

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP.

M. BAUMBUEHLER, Proprietor,

Corner Oak and Third Sts., Crookston Minn

Is ready for the Spring Trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc., etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

EIKEN BROS.,

DEALERS IN

Hardware, Tinware, Stoves and Shelfware.

We keep Full and Complete Stock of Goods in our Line, and invite the patronage of all.

COR MAIN ST. AND FLETCHER AVE., CROOKSTON.

UNIVERSAL

No. 40.

JEROME'S

ADDITION!

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,

DEALERS IN GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

CARMAN

Carry a full line of everything usually found in a General Store, and sell at reasonable prices.

GIVE US TRIAL.

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

HEAVY AND SHELF Hardware, Tinware Of all kinds. JOB WORK a specialty.

BAR IRO STEEL, AND Blacksmith SUPPLI Building Pa Sash, Etc.

ALSO AGENT

For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

CROOKSTON CITY BAKERY!

EARNEST MILLER, Proprietor.

(SUCCESSORS TO THE PLUMB BROTHERS.)

Takes advantage of the occasion to say that he will keep a full line o goods that are usually found in a

FIRST-CLASS BAKERY,

And that the citizens of Polk County will find none but the best at his of business. A fine line of

CIGARS AND TOBACCO, NUTS, FRUITS, CANDIES, PIES, CAKES, BREA AND EVERY THING TO FILL OUT A HUNGRY MA

DEFECTIVE PAGE

IN SPITE OF HERSELF.

Two of Mrs. Mortimer's excellent guests, gentlemen, were lolling in the smoking-room this lovely summer's morning, puffing lazily at their cigars as they endeavored to while away the time between breakfast and dinner in conversation and smoke.

One of them, who had just languidly informed his companion that his very marked attention to Isabel Whyte, his hostess's pretty but impecunious niece, was naught but "a little flirtation," was a tall, handsome man of about thirty years of age, with that unmistakable air of distinction which travel and good breeding stamp indelibly upon the face of those whom fickle fortune favors with her smiles. Leonard Ashley was a thorough man of the world.

The room in which the two men sat smoking opened through wide, French windows on to the lawn, but on account of the heat of the morning sun the venetian blinds were drawn and the view of the garden shut off.

"Well, well, old boy, amuse yourself, if you are not in any deeper than a bit of a flirtation," said Tom Mayne, after his friend's drawling reply to a little attempted advice. "But I tell you, old fellow, it looks extremely like an old fashioned courtship to outsiders, and the aunt has got her eye on it, and appears well satisfied with the turn affairs are apparently taking. There will be quite a 'cut up' in that quarter when you throw her over, and you had better take my advice and do it easy; commence now and cool off by stages, for you can't carry it much further without coming to some understanding. Oh, by the way, is the girl flirting too? Quite a bright little thing, she. Pity there's not a penny in the family; that's the only drawback to her making a man a very clever little wife; but of course as it is, it's quite out of the question."

"Quite," drawled Ashley, lighting a fresh cigar. "Let's go down to the river and have a paddle before dinner," and the subject of Isabel Whyte was blown away in smoke, as he lazily rose from his chair and walked to the window leading to the lawn.

As Ashley drew up the blinds and stepped out on to the terrace, a white muslin bustled round the corner of the building out of sight.

"Will Mr. Ashley join us at tennis this afternoon?"

It was Isabel who spoke, looking up brightly into the face of Leonard Ashley, who sat next her at luncheon.

Pretty little Isabel, whose penniless virtues as a rich man's wife had been weighed in the balance and found wanting, was gazing into the eyes of the man who was playing with her heart, with her innocent, trusting, captivated soul looking out through hers.

"With all my heart, Miss Whyte, if I may play as your partner."

She blushed her assent, with her blue eyes fixed on her plate.

The game that afternoon must have proved remarkably pleasant to Isabel, whose flushed and eager face beamed with enjoyment and satisfaction as she accompanied Leonard across the lawn after having been ignominiously defeated in five games.

Victory did not seem to be necessary to complete their happiness, however, for even Ashley showed an unusual earnestness as he walked by the side of Isabel with the racquets slung over his shoulder, and his tall form bent slightly as he talked in low tones to the girl.

His languid expression had given way to one of pleasure, and his handsome eyes snapped in a way that was in sharp contrast with his usual languor.

"Remember, Isabel," he whispered, as he parted with her at the house, "I am to have all the dances this evening!"

"Yes; all."

With a tell-tale blush she sped up the stairs.

Leonard walked thoughtfully off to his apartment, a mixture of strange feelings creating a turmoil in his heart.

When he reached his room, before changing his toilet for the evening, he threw off his coat and hastily seating himself at writing table began hurriedly a letter. He never ceased until the task which was a long one, was completed, except now and then to pause for a moment to find some suitable expression, for the wording of the epistle appeared to need considerable care.

He finished it at last, and carefully folding it placed it in an envelope, which he superscribed in his best hand:

"Wilfred Ashton, Esq., the Pines, Devon."

"There, uncle mine, this will be a little surprise for you at dinner to-morrow."

With these words he laid the letter upon the table and began with unusual care to arrange his evening dress.

"Come, Isabel, out here the moonlight is beautiful, and the air sweet with the June flowers. We have ample time to enjoy a walk among the shrubbery before the next dance. The breeze will cool you; your face is flushed and heated. Besides," he whispered, bending tenderly over her, "I have something to tell you which can be said better under the stars and in the silvery moonlight. Come."

A strange gleam came into Isabel's eyes which Leonard did not see, and her thin lips were set in a straight line; but without a word she slipped her arm through his, and they moved out together into the glorious night.

For some moments they walked on among the trees and plants of the excellently kept park, without either speaking. He seemed nervous and ill at ease, apparently seeking for words to express his thoughts. She was waiting.

"Isabel," he said, finally, suddenly dropping his voice as they reached a rustic bench at a remote part of the garden, "Isabel sit here a moment, the moon is bright here, and I want you to read a letter I have written this afternoon. Will you?"

"Certainly, Mr. Ashley if you desire it."

She spoke as though she felt no interest in this letter or its contents, and the tone was so different from her usual bright, affectionate style, that Leonard looked quickly at her. She was not looking at him but straight ahead into the shades at the other side of the path. An expression of mingled pain and [illegible], alike unusual to her, filled her [illegible] did not see this, and taking the envelope from his pocket, which he had directed to his uncle that afternoon and left unsealed, he took the letter from it and handed it to her.

"Read it."

As he spoke all traces of his customary languid, careless manner left him, and his eyes sparkled with inward excitement as he eagerly watched her unfold and read the letter.

In an undertone, half aloud and half to herself, she read without changing her set expression:

"Dear Uncle,—I have changed my plans somewhat since I last talked with you, when you desired and I acquiesced, that I should pay my court to the daughter of your old friend. As I say, since then my plans are altered, and feeling that you are now my nearest living relative, it is right you should know of my intentions. The amount of it all is I have given my heart into the keeping of Miss Isabel Whyte, who has yielded to my love, and consented to become the wife of your affectionate nephew, Leonard."

"P. S.—Let us hear from you."

As Isabel finished Leonard dropped on his knee, and taking her hands, cried, quickly,—

"Isabel, darling! may I send it? Will you give me the right? Say you will, dear. See I am waiting. You love me, you do love me; I have seen it in your eyes and in your words. Speak, Isabel; do not look so cold and calm!"

She turned her eyes upon him, still with that strange expression, and, with a half smile, said,—

"Would not that be carrying the joke a trifle too far, Mr. Ashley?"

"Joke?" gasped Ashley. "What do you mean, Isabel? You cannot think I am speaking in jest!"

"I mean, Mr. Ashley, that the old gentleman, your uncle, would probably echo the sentiments of your friend, Mr. Mayne, and yourself, that I might make a man a very clever little wife, only there is not a penny in the family; and, of course, as it is, it is quite out of the question, quite! And not having any personal ill-feeling against your uncle, I must decline to make him the subject of so practical a joke, and possibly put him thoroughly out of humor with his excellent nephew, all on account of 'a little flirtation'!"

As she finished speaking she rose to her feet, her lips set, and her eyes flashing with indignation.

Ashley said not a word. He felt the sting of his own words and was silent. The conversation which had occurred in the morning when he was yet struggling with the love which this girl had planted in his heart even during what with him was but a flirtation, but with her a cruel reality until his cruel words had undeceived her, came quickly before him, and he knew that he had lost her; and oh! how doubly precious she seemed now that all hope of winning her had fled! He could not unsay those careless words which had so hopelessly wounded her sensitive soul, though he scarcely believed in the truth of them at the time. He knew that even if she had loved him that love was dead, or her womanly pride would henceforth smother it within her. He had no word to say, and bowed his head as she swept by him with a quiet nod.

She did not re-enter the drawing-room, but went at once to her apartment, where as soon as she had closed and locked the door, she threw herself upon the bed, in the agony of her heart found a vent in tears.

"Oh, how I loved him!" she sobbed aloud. "How I loved him!" and then with a new burst of tears she wailed: "And now, even now, I love him, but I cannot forgive those cruel words." * *

"Really, Mr. Ashley, this is very sudden. Cannot your business be put off for a week or more? or better still, cannot Mr. Mortimer, who goes up to town to-day, attend to it for you?" inquired the fair hostess, at the breakfast-table, when Leonard had made known his intention of leaving that morning.

"Thanks, Mrs. Mortimer, but unhappily the nature of my business requires my personal attendance. I am extremely sorry to have to shorten my stay, which you have rendered so enjoyable that it is a pain to have to leave."

"Well, at least you will lunch with us on the cliffs as proposed, and I will have you driven direct from there to the station in time for the afternoon train."

"I shall be only too happy to enjoy the few extra hours in your society," answered Leonard, politely bowing to Mrs. Lorrimer, and casting a covert glance at Isabel, who still retained her place beside him, having no reasonable excuse for changing it.

As he left the table he paused behind her chair a moment, and then with a sudden movement as though having nerved himself to speak, he bent over her.

"Miss Whyte," he said, "will you go?"

"Not this morning," she answered coldly. "I have a headache! I may join them after lunch, when the sun is not so hot."

She was avoiding him. He felt a sharp pain in his heart, but still persisting, he continued:

"In a week I shall be on the ocean, Miss Whyte; will you not grant me one favor before I go. For the sake of my—friendship if nothing else?"

She did not answer, but bowed her head assentingly.

"Go this morning to the cliffs."

Once more she nodded without a word, and he was forced to leave her thus. She felt that, for all, he loved her now. and he was going away for that love. She knew she loved him—loved him with all her strong, womanly heart but her pride had been wounded, and through that very love, and now she could not own it, though she felt he was suffering deeply for the wound he had inflicted. What could he want? Was he going to renew his attentions at the cliff? She almost wished he would, for she felt her love could not hold out against his pleading. No, he felt his position too keenly for his pride to allow him to recur to the subject again. Pride was widening the breach between two hearts which a flirtation had commenced.

The cliff was a picturesque spot, and no more charming place could be selected for a picnic or outdoor lunch. It overlooked the river about fifty feet above the level of the water, and shady trees grew almost on the verge.

Isabel was looking thoughtfully over into the river, seated on a low flat stone, when Leonard joined her.

"Miss Whyte!"

She looked up quickly; her face was pale and intensely sad, but she never started or changed color as her eyes met his. She had been thinking of him; he had been filling her thoughts. Why should his appearance startle her?

"Miss Whyte," he continued, "I asked you to come here to-day that I might say a few words to you before I went away that I could not in justice to myself leave unsaid. I will not detain you long, nor will I repeat anything which may pain you. First, for the words which you must have heard between myself and Mayne, I sincerely ask your pardon. I will not attempt to excuse them except to tell you that even love of you was unknowingly filling my heart. I know that since then you intentionally led me on that you might all the more surely strike your blow. I have no word or fault to find, I bow to your indignation, but for all that is past, I love you now, deeply, devotedly, with all my heart. My own words are my own shame. I could not go away without telling you this. Now, farewell."

He held out his hand as he spoke; his face was pale and set.

She took his hand mechanically, without meeting his eyes or speaking a word. He stood a moment, then, with a sigh, turned away and was gone.

For some time Isabel did not move, but remained sitting where she was, with her eyes looking unseemingly out over the river; then, with a little moan, she sank on the grass and buried her face in her hanbs.

"Oh, Leonard! Leonard!" she sobbed, "come back to me!"

But Leonard Ashley was long since out of hearing, and once more her pride had ruled her heart.

But he was not destined to leave her so.

When Isabel had dried her eyes, and quieted her beating heart sufficiently to meet the rest of her party again, Ashley had driven away to the station behind Mrs. Mortimer's lovely pair of greys.

The remainder of the afternoon passed like a dream to Isabel; her heart and brain were both numbed with a dull, aching pain, until as the merry party were driving homeward, when the sun was slowly disappearing amid crimson clouds in the west, a man on horseback, driving like a madman met them. Even the sight of this rider tearing along towards them, which immediately interested the balance of the party did not arouse the girl from her lethargy until he wheeled up alongside the carriage, and gasping for breath which he had ridden out, cried to Mrs. Mortimer: "An accident marm! The greys bolted—Mr. Ashley at the house dead!"

At the mention of Leonard's name Isabel came out of her stupor, sat upright in the carriage, her pale face now actually livid; then came a heartrending shriek, and she fainted.

But bad news is always easily exaggerated, and when the pleasure party arrived home, they did not find Leonard Ashley dead, although he had a narrow escape, and lay bleeding and insensible in the drawing-room. The horses had become frightened and unmanageable at the sight of the railway, and running had thrown Markham out against a post on the side of the road, and cutting an ugly gash in the back of his head, and rendering him with his black blood-matted hair and ghastly face, decidedly corpse-like in appearance; but on the arrival of the doctor they removed him to the apartment he had occupied, and made him as comfortable as human skill could, though he breathed heavily, and consciousness did not return.

The doctor would say nothing decisive when he had done everything in his power for the time, and was about to go, except shake his head gravely; but poor, pale Isabel, who had recovered her consciousness before they had reached the house, and had been foremost among them all with a helping hand, was not satisfied, and followed him down stairs to the door, and lifting her pleading, tearful eyes to his, faintly asked for the verdict.

"Well, little one," he said, looking at her pityngly, "I won't say there is no hope, but only constant watching and the best of care will bring him through."

Nothing more, but she thanked him for that.

For three days and nights she never left his bed for a moment while he lay unconscious. She had forgotten her pride now. His life depended upon her watchfulness and care, for who else could give him that unceasing devotion? The bitter words he had spoken were forgotten. When he returned to life, if he ever did, she would creep away unobserved, and he would never know that her unceasing care had ever brought him back.

On the fourth day he began to show signs of returning consciousness, and calling softly to the nurse who was sleeping in the next apartment, she looked at him for a moment, her eyes filled with soft love-light—for now in his helplessness could she not love him as she would if he were dead?—and moved lightly from the room.

From that moment he grew steadily better; the crisis is passed. Isabel had saved his life. She did not again enter the room, but each day met the doctor outside the door, and heard his reassuring report.

At last, one morning, as she was waiting outside his door, the doctor come out smiling, but did not close the door behind him as usual. Espying Isabel, he cried, heartily:

"Ha, there's the little nurse that brought my patient back to life. I've been telling Mr. Ashley about you for the first time this morning, and he is anxious to thank you; and seeing you saved his life, I think it is quite proper in him. Come, he is much better this morning, and it will do him good to see someone."

"Oh, no, no!" cried Isabel, turning pale, and pushing the kind-hearted doctor away, who was trying to draw her into the room.

"Come along, come along," he persisted, misunderstanding her objection. "I tell you it will do him no harm, on my word," and h. laughed one of his hearty, ringing laughs, and, despite her struggling resistance, dragged her into the room.

The chamber was darkened, and at first she could distinguish nothing, as the doctor pushed her, with good-natured force, into the middle of the room, and went out and shut the door; but for Leonard who was leaning on his arm eagerly watching, the light was sufficient.

"Isabel!" he cried to the girl, who stood still in the middle of the room, with her head bowed, where the doctor had left her, "Isabel, have you brought me back to life or death?"

There was a piteous, pleading tone in his weak voice, and he tried to hold his hands out to her. She slowly raised her eyes to his; hers were full of tears—all the pride was gone.

"Isabel, come!"

With a little gasping cry she moved toward the bed and sank on her knees.

"Forgive me!" she sobbed, "I tried to call you back, but it was too late—too late!"

He gently drew her towards him and tenderly kissed her forehead.

"Let us both forgive," he said, presently, and then he put both his arms around her neck and rested her head on his breast.

For a long time they remained so, and then he said, softly putting his hand under his pillow:

"Here, Isabel, is a letter I have kept because it tells of my love for you. You have read it before. Will you post it for me?"

It was only a little half-frightened whisper that answered:

"Yes, dear!"

But it was enough to cheer the heart of Leonard Ashley.—Home Circle.

Puss in the Elevator.

Dogs not only learn what the cars are for, but which train will take them where they want to go, The instance here given from the New York Tribune proves that cats may have equally intelligent ideas of passive travelling, and equal appreciation of their own comfort in adopting the improved methods. A recent number of the paper tells what a visitor found out about the Tribune cat:

The Tribune elevator car had started on its upward trip last avening, and the elevator boy was gazing upward into his furthest corner, evidently lost in reverie. Presently there was a distinct call in the shape of a plaintive "misouw!"

The elevator boy checked his car forthwith on a level with the floor whence the sound came. There was no one to be seen, and the smallest boy would have been visible.

"Going up?" asked the elevator boy.

"Miaouw miaouw!" was repeated.

The elevator boy slid open the door and a gray cat walked demurely in, sprang upon the seat and began licking her paws until two floors had been passed when she uttered another cry and sprang down before the doorway.

The car stopped, the door opened, and tabby passed out.

"Is she a regular passenger?" was asked.

"Is she?" said the elevator boy. "Of course she is. She lives in the building, she does. She never walks up or down stairs 'cept on Sunday, when the elevator aint a-running in front. If it's evening, she uses the back elevator.

"Where is she going now?"

"She's jest dropping in to see a friend of hers. He's a lawyer, and he often stays late to write, and she goes in and sits on the table and watches him, and he gives her a bit of someting to eat. In 'bout an hour, before my time's up, she'll come back to go to the top floor. Mebbe she'll stop a little in the editorial rooms; then she goes up to the restaurant. She always gets there about twelve o'clock, when the printers get their lunch. They all know her.

"Sometimes," he added, "she sits down in the car and keeps me company for while. She aint any bother. She knows how to behave herself a great deal better then some of them lawyers and sharp chaps who are always asking a feller whether he's going to get married. She goes all around town by herself, she does. The other morning, one of the fellows saw her down in Fulton Market. She knew him, and came up and rubbed against his legs. Top floor here, sir, if you want to get out."

A Child Charmed by a Rattlesnake.

From the San Francisco Evening Post.

A lady writing from Graniteville, Nevada county, relates an incident of a little child having been charmed by a rattlesnake, as follows: "I was working in my kitchen when I was startled by a loud scream from my little boy, four years old. On asking the cause he said: 'Oh, mamma, a big snake!' I rushed to the door and, imagine my feelings when, almost paralyzed with horror, I could only gaze on the awful sight that met my eyes, Ten feet from me, and on the doorstep of the woodshed, stood my baby boy, twenty-two months old, gazing, as if fascinated, upon a large rattlesnake, which was coiled in front of him about two feet away, and was gently moving its head back and forth, looking at the child with eyes like flame. My screams frightened it, and my daughter, twelve years of age, ran past me and caught her little brother out of the way, when the reptile glided swiftly away. The child appeared for a long time dazed and unnatural."

Improved Railway Service.

To James McCrea, general manager of the Pan Handle railroad, is due the system of railroad work by which railroads are kept constantly in service by relays of engineers and firemen. McCrea began his railroading as a rodman. At twenty-six, he was superintendent of the middle division of the Pennsylvania railroad. This was ten years ago. Freight trains were then run through to their destination by the same "crew" with which they started. At night they were side-tracked, while the crew slept. At the end of the line, the locomotive was idle until the crew could sleep and return to clean it up. Young McCrea proposed that the moment an engine came in wipers should be set at work to clean it up, and that a new engineer and crew should take it out as soon as ready; and that relays of engineers should be placed along the line to keep the trains continually moving. The management was slow to try the plan; but McCrea persisted in asking a trial. In a year's time 43 locomotives were doing the work formerly done by 93, and the road was saving $250,000 per year. The plan is now general.

Dried Peach Pie.—An excellent pie can be made of dried peaches. Let the peaches soak in cold water all night, stew them in the same water until so soft that you can mash them fine; add for one pie two tablespoonfuls of sweet cream and a little more than half a cup of sugar—two much sugar destroys the flavor of the fruit. Butter may be used in the place of cream, but if possible use cream, it gives such smoothness to the filling.

The manner of saying or doing anything goes a great way in the value of the thing itself. It was well said of him that called a good office that was done harshly, and with an ill will, a stony piece of bread. "It is necessary for him that is hungry to receive it, but it almost chokes a man in going down."—[Seneca.

FARM AND HOUSE.

Agricultural Items.

Many advise not to plant sweet corn until the soil is warm, etc. The advice may be good, because it is safe; but one year with another we find that those of our neighbors who plant the earliest get the earliest ears to market.

While it is true that young hens lay more eggs per year than old ones, they do not make so good sitters nor so careful mothers. There is a great difference in the character of fowls in this respect, and a little watchfulness will soon teach the careful attendent which ones will be best to set.

Colts, pigs and calves, not being required for use, either for work or the butcher, should be fed but little corn, as fat in excess is not necessary with them.

The treatment prescribed by French doctors for horses and donkeys afflicted with typhoid fever is brandy in small doses, tonics, quinine, and gentian and hay tea baths.

A writer in the Prairie Farmer relates that a drain put down in 1858, of common fence-boards, is still in good condition, and that if he had to make short, deep drains, with plenty of fall and thorough compact or yellow clay, he should certainly use a six-inch fence board, believing it would answer every purpose of a three or four-inch drain tile.

The foul odor of a filthy stable must necessarily permeate not only the animal's hide, but it has been proven that the meat of stall-fed steers fattened under those circumstances is unwholesome; morever, the milk, even during the period of milking, is liable to absorb the filthy emanations from such stables, and to become absolutely poisonous. It would seem, therefore, reasonable that owners and dealers in cattle and milk should appreciate the importance of cleanliness and its relation to health, even as a source of profit.

How to get Early Celery.

From the catalogue of Jos. Harris we take the following. He is telling "Secrets for the boys and girls:" "Last Spring, about the middle of March, I put some sifted moss and sand in a box and watered it with warm water. Then we put some celery seed on top, thick enough to cover the surface, and dusted on a little dry moss and sand about as thick as the cover of this catalogue. We kept the box in a warm room, and occasionally watered it. In about three weeks the seed was nicely started, and then, as soon as the frost was out of the ground, we made a row in the garden and sowed the seed—moss and all, and covered it about a quarter of an inch deep. From this sprouted seed, we got our earliest and best plants. You can do the same thing, but you need not tell everyone. I told one man about it, and he said, 'Oh, yes, it is a good plan I have done the same thing.' I supposed it was something new. At any rate it was new to me. No one ever told me, and I do not think it is generally known. I propose to try how the plan will work this Spring on onion, asparagus, parsley, and beet seed. I know it will work in the case of asparagus and beets, for I have tried it."

Fattening Young Cattle.

The editor of the London Agricultural Gazette takes the ground that to prolong the fattening process in the case of beef cattle is not only a waste to the stock-feeder, but impose needless pain upon the animals themselves. In reference to the first point he says:

"Figures perfectly trustworthy, have been accumulated within the last five or six years at Islington Hall, and in America, too, which demonstrate that cheap beef is young beef—i. e., the flesh of young animals which have never known disturbance or suffering. A young animal home reared, will before it reaches two years of age put on cheaper beef than any older one will gather, though it be well-bred and reared under the very best conditions for growth. The rapidity of growth during the fattening process diminishes with age. During six successive years it was 2.58,3, 2.05, 196, 1.57, 1.37, and .88 lbs., successively per diem—a fact entirely correberative of our argument."

Setting Out Strawberry Plants.

Frank Murphy of Donnellson, O., in a letter to the New York World says: I will set out 13,000 strawberry plants in the spring, and I will give my plan for setting them out. In the first place I will have the ground nice and clean and well ploughed and harrowed. Now, I will plough out straight furrows, three feet apart. After I get the land laid off in this way I will take a straddle—buck, such as farmers use to cover corn, and go in these same furrows and make a small ridge. Then, when I set the plants I will divide the roots, having half on each side of the ridge, and then cover them with fine earth with my hands, pressing it down firmly. The reason why I think this will be a good plan if there is no danger of getting the roots tangled up, and as new roots form about the old crown earth must be be thrown up to them, and as these plants, by setting them out as above described, will be below the level of the ground, and by throwing earth up to them it will not be long until the ground will be level instead of ridges. I am certain that the plants will stand more freezing and thawing weather in this way than any other. However, I may be mistaken; if so, I want some one to say so. I will have furrows three feet wide, and set the plants one foot apart in a row.

Strawberries.

Some people recommend planting strawberries in May and June, and others in September and October; each practice has its adherents, and while they are settling which is best we will prepare our ground by deep trenching and a liberal dressing from the compost heap, and then we will tell them that the best time for planting the strawberry is as soon as you can get the frost out of the ground in spring. If planted in September and October, more than one-half of the young plants are thrown out and destroyed by frost, and if planted in May and June, the hot, dry weather coming on before they have got a permanent hold of the soil shrivels more than half of them up, but when planted before the sun has much power, and while there is plenty of moisture in the ground, and generally a liberal allowance of showers, they commence with the season and never go back.—Vick's Illustrated Magazine.

Shelter for Stock.

Professor E. M. Sheldon, of the Kansas Agricultural College, reports some experiments of the winter, affording added proof of the truism that you cannot burn food as fuel for the body of an animal and at the same time "have your cake" in the form of muscle, fat or milk: "The ten experimental steers made an average gain for the ten days ending December 29 of 31 1-10 pounds per head. This period was of prevailing warm, sunny weather. During the following ten days of unremitting cold these same steers gained only 6 1-10 per head, although they ate food almost identical in amount with that consumed during the preceding warm weather. They were fed in an unbattened board shed which did little more than protect them from the violence of the wind. A cow that we have milked during the winter, which is kept in a bleak 'Kansas barn' invariably, after twenty-four hours of severe weather, diminishes her yield of milk one-fourth to one-half."

For the Cook.

A steamer for cooking food will pay for its cost in two seasons. If it does not add to the bulk of food it renders it more easily digested and more nourishing.

Cheese Biscuits.—Have a little puff or shortened crust paste made, and sprinkle over it a little cayenne and as much grated cheese as the dough will take; double up the paste, roll it out rather thin, and cut it with a round paste cutter, glaze with egg, arrange on a buttered tin, and bake in a sharp oven till of a light color.

Grandmother's Minute Pudding.—Let some sweet milk come to a boil, then stir in flour which you have salted; this must be done very briskly or it will be lumpy. Stir every moment until the pudding is about like mush. Serve while hot, with sugar and cream; flavor the cream with nutmeg or vanilla.

Doughnuts.—Three eggs, one cup of sugar, one pint of new milk, salt, nutmeg and flour enough to permit the spoon to stand upright in the mixture: add two teaspoonfuls baking powder and beat until very light. Drop by the dessertspoonful into boiling lard. These will not absorb a bit of fat and are the least pernicious of the doughnut family.

Recipe for Sausage.—Take all the spare meat and tenderloins from your pork, and grind it in a sausage grinder or chop it. Season it highly with salt, pepper and powdered sage. Boil one or two pounds of red pepper and pour the tea over it; and if not seasoned enough add what it wants. Pack away in stone jars, or stiff skins that have narrow muslin sacks, and hang up in the air in a cool place.

Choice Cookery.

Two coffee cups of graham flour, one coffee cup of sour or buttermilk, a little salt and molasses, and one and one-half even teaspoonfuls of soda. This makes one loaf. If more is needed, it is better to stir twice, as the dough is so stiff it cannot be so well mixed in large quantities.

Charlotte Russe.—A simple but delicious charlotte russe is made as follows: One pint of sweet cream, sweeten and flavor to taste; one and one-half ounces of Cox's gelatine, whites of three eggs; dissolve the gelatine in a little milk and add it to the cream, let it stand until quite cold, then add the whites of the eggs beaten very stiff. Line your moulds with long strips of sponge cake or lady fingers and fill with the above mixture.

To make succotash that will taste nearly, if not quite, as fresh as that made in summer, soak one pint of dried corn in sweet milk all night. Soak an equal quantity, or less if you prefer it, of dried Lima beans for three hours in luke-warm water. Then let them simmer for nearly an hour, add salt, butter, pepper and a very little sugar.

Breakfast Veal.—Butter a small oval dish very thoroughly, and fill with bits of cold stewed veal seasoned with pepper, salt and a little nutmeg; put in alternately with layers of cracker crumbs, moisten with gravy, put bits of butter over the top, and bake. When it is brown turn out of the dish on a hot platter, and garnish with parsley. If it is not too moist it will keep its form when it is turned out.

Home Made Baking Powder.

Permit me to state that my wife has used all the baking powders advertised (I believe); also the supertartrate of potash (cream-of-tartar) and bicarbonate (not "carbonate," or sol-soda, washing-soda,) of soda, and she has found that a 16 ounce package of corn-starch, eight ounces of bicarbonate of soda (not carbonate) and five ounces of tartaric acid intimately mixed, and well incorporated, and passed through a sifter, form not only the most efficient, but the cheapest baking powder she has ever used. She uses from one-quarter to one-third less than she used to of the Horsford or Royal. You say, usually cream-of-tartar is used to supply the acid, this salt being a bitartrate of potash and soda, a healthful, cooling, slightly laxative salt, known as Rochelle Salts. Rochelle Salts is a tartrate of potash and soda; upon tasting each you will find that the supertartrate is acid while the tartrate of potash and soda has a cooling taste, more of a neutral salt.—Rural New Yorker.

A Novel in Two Chapters.

Chap I.—Farmer Brown is worth $20,000, and he has money in the bank always to draw upon as he likes. His dress is plain but neat, whether he is at work or rest. His wife wears a calico frock generally, and his little children copper-toed shoes. Young Mistletoe is a dressy, complacent young man—a clerk in the village apothecary store, and his salary is six dollars a week. The elder Miss Brown likes him. "He is so finished, you know," she remarked to her sister Dora. She enjoyed his company ever so much more than that of young Demarest, a plain steady going youth—the son of Squire Demarest, a well to-do farmer, much like farmer Brown. "But," remarked Dora, "Demarest is thoughtful and manly, if not so finished as Mistletoe." "Very well," replied the elder Miss Brown, "if you want to be a farm drudge all your days marry him, I'll take Mistletoe."

Chap. II. Ten years after we find Mrs. Mistletoe and three children living with her father, Mr. Brown, who treats them compassionately. Mistletoe visits them every month. He is still a clerk in the apothecary store, with a salary of six dollars a week. Demarest and his wife and children live in a substantial dwelling of their own. They have money in the bank, but Mrs. Demarest still wears calico frocks from choice. "Thank goodness," she has been known to exclaim to her husband, "that you are not an apothecary's clerk. You may not be so finished as Mistletoe, but we are not objects of charity."

How to Cleanse Waste Pipes.

One of the most frequent and trying annoyances of house-keeping is the obstruction to the free, quick outlet of the waste-water of the wash-stand, the bath and the kitchen-sink. This is caused by a gradual accumulation of small bits of refuse material, paper, rags, meat, bones or other offal, which check and finally entirely stop the out-flow of the waste-water, and then the plumber is not always near at hand or free to come at one's call, and the matter demands immediate attention. A simple inexpensive method of clearing the pipe is as follows: Just before retiring at night pour into the pipe enough liquid soda lye to fill the "trap," as it is called, or bent portion of the pipe just below the outlet—about a pint will suffice for a wash-stand or a quart for a bath or a kitchen-sink. Be sure that no water runs into it till next morning. During the night the lye will convert all of the offal in the pipe into soft soap, and the first current of water in the morning will remove it entirely, and leave the pipe as clean as new.—Germantown Telegraph.

Married His Own Daughter.

New York Special: G. W. Lake, of Staten Island, who was sentenced to State's Prison for 10 years for marrying his own child has been released by the court sentencing him, for the reason that there is a doubt as to whether the judgment should stand, and he is now out on bail until the case can be reviewed. It appears from the statements which have been made that Lake, when quite young, became intimate with a young girl in the New England town in which he resided, and in order to escape the responsibility which seemed inevitable, he disappeared. After several years he returned, but what became of the young lady in the meantime is not known. He found, however, a little girl running about the streets neglected. He cared for her for some time. Another desire to roam took possession of Lake, and he traveled abroad. After many years he returned to his native place again, and was introduced to a young woman in whom he became interested. He thought she was necessary to his happiness, and after awhile he proposed that she should become his wife. They were married, and were living together, when it was intimated, and then asserted, by some of the older inhabitants that the girl whom Lake had taken for his wife was the same girl for whom he provided for a time, and was his daughter.

Dr. Holmes and the Harvard Boys

The most popular man in the medical school is Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, though he is no longer an active member of the faculty. The genial "autocrat" cannot stand entirely aloof from his first love, and almost every month he pays a visit to the doctor mill on the Back Bay. Some of the younger professors think that Dr. Holmes is pretty far behind the times—"an old fogy, you know—"but the boys have no thought for them when the old Doctor comes in sight, trying to steal unseen through some open space. Applause and shouting bring the doctor to a stop. The bright, strong face lights up with a happy smile, the white head bows to the youthful top-nots, and the slight, straight figure, bearing very easily the weight of 75 long years, tries to steal away again. But it won't do. The boys must have a speech, and the Doctor submits. How he brightens and sparkles! No dry remarks on anatomical subjects, no learned dissertation on medical principles. Only a talk with the boys, reminescences of the college earlier days, happy hits and flings, and then good-by until another month has passed. —Boston Letter to Chicago Tribune.

Not the Road.

Some people seem to go about the world in that dazed condition described by the prophet when he told the Jews that though they had eyes and ears, they neither heard nor saw. The New York Tribune tells the following story of one of this class:

The elevator in a tall down-town building had reached the ninth floor, and the boy held the door open to the venerable passenger to get out,

"Top floor sir," he said.

"Eh?" ejaculated the old man, as if not comprehending clearly.

"This is the top floor, sir; as high as we go. Where did you wish to stop?"

"Why I get out at One hundred and Twenty-fifth Street. You ain't there already, are you?"

Waiting passengers wondered why the elevator did not stop for them on its way down, but that boy hardly got his breath till the old man said to the janitor, who showed him the door,—

"I thought it was the elevated road."

The Turn of Fortune's Wheel.

New York Letter in the Chicago Tribune.

There has been a great deal of gossip about the failure of A. B. Stockwell, who formerly spent over $100,000 annually and was obliged to go to the wall on his inability to pay a $500 note due yesterday. Only a few years since he was worth over $5,000,000 and was one of the most successful stock operators. He married a daughter of Alias Howe, the sewing machine inventor. In speaking of his career, which has had many ups and downs, Mr. Stockwell said to a friend: "When I came from Cleveland I was called Mr. Stockwell; when I began operate largely I was called captain; when I became a big man in the market the operators called me commodore, and after I lost my fortune they spoke of me as 'that red-headed dog from Cleveland.'"

Ginger Cookies.—One cup molasses, one egg, one-half cup of brown sugar, one-half cup butter, one teaspoonful soda, tablespoonful ginger; flour to roll,

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Three territories—Dakota, Montana, and Washington—are now demanding admission to the Union of States. Bills, all of the same general tenor, are now before congress, but representatives rom these territories and the general public, agree that, there will be no admission of territories until after the presidential election. Hence some of the bills [illegible] the time for admission on or after the 4th of March 1885.

The supreme court of the United States has decided that a photograph may be copyrighted as an original work of art, but expresses no opinion as to whether this protection would extend to the mere mechanical reproduction by photographic process of the physical features or outlines of an animate or inanimate object, where there was no originality of thought or novelty in intellectual operations connected with its visible reproduction in the shape of the picture.

The secretary of the treasury has prepared a statement showing that there are 66,730 holders of the United States registered bonds, and that this number includes 3,292 national banks. The three per cent bonds of 1882 are in the hands of 1,570 national banks and 4,622 other holders; the four per cents of 1907 are in the hands of 1,163 national banks and 46,132 other holders; the four and one-half per cents of 1891 are held by 515 national banks and 11,394 other holders, and the currency sixes are held by forty-four national banks and 1,390 others.

It is estimated that sixty thousand northerners wintered in Florida the past season, and most of them are now coming northward by "easy stages," according to the condition of the weather. New Orleans received visits from many of the Floridian guests, and an unusually large number of others, while the Hot Springs, various points on the gulf, the Southern Atlantic cities, and the interior of the Carolinas, received their usual quotas. California, Colorado and other places farther north had a fair show of winter tourists and persons in search of health. The winter hegira from the north has become more marked than ever before, and will continue to increase, as transportation becomes more favorable and southern living and accommodations become cheaper and better. Nothing but hard times will check these birds of passage.

The introduction of two-cent letter postage has had the effect of reducing the demand for postal cards in a marked degree. For five years past the sales of postal cards have steadily increased at an average annual rate of fourteen per cent.; whereas, since two-cent postage was adopted, there has been a decided falling off in the consumption as compared with previous years and the department has notified Congress that the original estimates for the cost of manufacturing postal cards during the next fiscal year may safely be reduced by one-eight. The falling off in the demand for postal cards is more than compensated for by the increased sales of postage stamps and stamped envelopes, which have grown in amount eighteen and twenty-five per cent., respectively, since last July. Experience has thus vindicated the claim that a reduction of letter postage would lead to great increase in the number of letters sent through the mails, both by encouraging more frequent correspondence, and by leading to the substitution of stamped envelopes for postal cards and it is already evident that the department will speedily reach a self-supporting basis again.

It is now the foot-and-mouth diesase that annoys farmers and stockmen. It has effected a lodgment in Kansas, and one or two other states, and it is said that the germs of the disease were introduced into this country from England. The following description of the foot-and-mouth disease is taken from a recent publication: The mouth of the sick animal becomes hot and its skin cracks; the eyes are watery and unnaturally bright; the skin about one or more of the feet cracks, and presently the crack extends clear around the ankle joint, and the foot rots and drops off. The swelling of the feet and mouth is very painful. The cracks generally show first on the feet. An account written by a visitor to the infected herds in Kansas says of the disease: "The right hind foot to the ankle joint was gone, the bare bone protruding. The leg was still swollen, with a prospect of further loss. The lips were hot, dry, and cracked, the eyes clear and bright, with a yellow liquid running from their corners. A heifer's feet to the second joint were swollen, with a tender crack around the ankle. Her muzzle was hot and cracked, eyes bright and full. Seven calves on another farm showed swollen feet and legs. They move reluctantly, preferring to lie still. A milch cow had scabs on her teats, which were inflamed and tender, with her right hind foot gone, and her left hind foot swollen and cracked. She refused to lift it from the ground." On another farm a yearling bull had one foot gone and another only held on by a bandage. One premonitory symptom is a slobbering at the mouth. From this discription some idea can be formed of the terrible nature of the disease. It is no wonder that the alarm over its appearance is wide spread, especially as it is fearfully contagious.

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington Gossip.

The president is said to favor the Fitz John Porter bill.

Postoffices established: Dakota—Corinne, Stutsman county.

Secretary Chandler defends De Long, of the Jeannette, against Dr. Collins.

Congressman Barksdale vouches for the peace and order of Copiah county.

The house committee on patents decided unanimously to report adversely Representative Anderson's bill to limit the lifetime of a patent to five years.

President Arthur has asked congress to appropriate $30,000 to erect a pedestal for the monument to Gen. Garfield, which will be presented to the city of Washington by the Army of the Cumberland.

The house committee on military affairs has adopted a resolution asking the secretary of war for all the information he has regarding the investigation into the removal of Payne from Oklahama lands.

It is conceded by members of the Minnesota delegation that Gen. Sanborn is practically out of the race for the Eighth circuit judgeship, but they do not say that they are absolved from further supporting him.

Postoffices Commissioned—William J. Sullivan, Leon, Iowa; Irving C. McMaster, Soldier, Iowa; M. A. Creglow, Updegraff, Iowa; Olaf F. Olson, Brandon, Minn.; James Allen, Maywood, Minn.; James Perry, Pine Hill, Wis.

The race for the Eighth circuit judgeship is said to be undoubtedly between Mr. Hallett of Colorado and Mr. McCold of Iowa. Mr. Hallett is supported chiefly by Secretary Teller and the Colorado delegation. Mr. McCoid is supported by the Iowa delegation, and, Mr. Sanborn, being practically out of the race, by the Minnesota delegation.

Notwithstanding the letter of the secretary of the navy to the house committee on naval affairs protesting against the inquiry into the Jeannette disaster, the subcommittee charged with that matter will proceed as soon as Dr. Collins arrives. Mrs. De Long, the widow of Capt. De Long, went before the committee and protested with tears in her eyes against reopening the inquiry.

The report that Gen. Stanley is to succeed Gen. Mackenzie can be traced to very high authority. It is understood that both Secretary Lincoln and Gen. Sheridan favor Stanley's appointment, and it is not believed that President Arthur is averse to it. Gen. Stanley is selected, not only on account of his eminent success in the army, but because he stands high in the line of promotion.

The house judiciary committee agreed to report favorably the bill providing that any process, civil or criminal, issued by any territorial court, may be executed and served within any Indian or military reservation, or within the Yellowstone National park, provided such reservation is within the limits of country or district over which such court has jurisdiction. This, however, shall not impair the existing rights of Indians.

Rail and River Notes.

New Jersey railroads own one-fourth the taxable property in the state, and pay one-twelfth the taxes.

Fargo, Dak., Special Telegram: The directors of the Duluth, Fargo & Black Hills met at the office of Jacob Lowell Jr., in Fargo, and elected the following officers: J. Gill, president; W. A. Kindred, vice president; Jacob Lowell, Jr., secretary; Samuel Mains, treasurer, and Gen. George P. Wilson, attorney. President Gill was instructed to employ a corps of engineers and proceed to make a survey of the line as soon as possible.

Record of Casualties.

Billy Wiggings, a young St. Louis millionaire, dropped dead in his room at the Laclede hotel recently.

At Manheim, Pa., Long's tobacco warehouse burned with 300 cases of tobacco and a large quantity of cigars. Loss, $35,000; insurance, $22,000.

A fire at Milwaukee, burned Romadka Bros'. trunk and satchel factory, between Third and Fourth, and Wells and Cedar streets. The Romadka Bros'. estimate their loss at something over $50,000. On the building and stock there was $35,000 insurance.

A still at Merriam & Morgan's oil works Cleveland, exploded. The escaping oil instantly submerged August Fisher and August Guenther, employes, and they were quickly burned to death, in sight of the horrified crowd, who were unable to relieve them.

At Valley City, Dak., fire was discovered in a small storehouse adjoining the postoffice building, and spread with great rapidty. The United States probably loses all its postal effects. C. S. Doshen & Co., grocery and confectionery, bear a complete loss of stock, partially covered by insurance. The building is owned by Postmaster Anderson, valued at $3,000 and $4,000, insurance $1,000. The Masonic hall was located in the upper portion of the building.

The Criminal Calendar.

A druggist named Dillon, at Dunkirk, Ind., was shot and killed by P. H. Hartford, also a druggist.

J. B. Rockafeller, long connected with mining, and known all over the Pacific coast, committed suicide at Salt Lake City with morphine.

Herbert L. Jackson, aged fifteen, was fined $10 at Plymouth, Mass., for mutilating the marble tablet on Daniel Webster's tomb at Marshfield.

J. B. Johnson an ex-minister has been stealing quinine, morphine, and other valuable drugs, from the wholesale drug house of S. J. Smith & Co. of St. Joseph, Mo.

William Parker of Graham Park, Col., went home and found his wife sitting on a strange man's lap. Parker drew a knife and stabbed the intruder to the heart, killing him instantly. Parker gave himself up.

Prentice Tiller and George McFadden, the Pacific Express robbers, were arraigned in the St. Louis court of criminal correction, and their cases were continued till April 4th. The reported suicide of McFadden was a hoax.

While the jailer at Erin, Tenn., was giving supper to the prisoners one of them held him while two fellow prisoners escaped. He then threw the jailer on the floor and escaped himself. One of the prisoners has since been captured.

William G. Creaver, a former bookkeeper of the New York club, committed suicide this morning by shooting himself through the heart at his home in that city. Creaver left the New York club about Jan. 1. It was stated then that there was a deficiency in his accounts to the amount of several thousand dollars.

A valise containing $5,000, obtained from the treasury department of Paul Schmellick of Philadelphia, was thrown by a thief from the window of a car on the Congressional express, near Wilmington, Del., and was seized by a confederate. Schmellick pursued, firing a pistol and regaining the valise.

Milliken, the alleged accomplice of Clark, the man arrested a few days ago charged with murdering the old farmer Rogers and wife in Ouachita parish, La., was captured on a train at Marshall, Tex., by W. J. Rogers, son of the aged victims. Young Rogers attempted to kill Milliken, but was prevented by the arrival of officers.

Policeman Kendall of Boston captured James Donovan, a burglar, but while taking him to the station was tripped up by Donovan and brutally beaten with his own club. Kendall, however, succeeded in drawing his revolver and shot Donovan in the mouth, inflicting a wound from which the burglar died fifteen minutes later.

Three years ago William Been married Widow Dodds, living on a farm near Springfield Ill. In July, 1883, he threatened to kill her and her family, and her son John defending his mother, shot and killed Been and, with the assistance of a servant girl, Liddie Large, hid the body in a drain. The girl has confessed the facts, and the body was unearthed today. Liddie Large was arrested. John Dodds is thought to be in Kansas.

James J. Rooney, John Rooney, his son, and Andrew McNamara were arrested in New York on a charge of systematically robbing the [illegible]

Mrs John Schaefer of Oakland, Cal., who became insane over the loss of one of her children, during the absence of her husband a few minutes cut her baby's throat and then her own. Her husband, at the terrible spectacle presented seized a revolver and attempted suicide, but was prevented by a policeman. Some friends visited the scene in the evening, among them Mrs. Letrolli, a French lady, who was so shocked at the sight that she became a raving maniac.

It has now developed that the Pacific Express company is still $25,000 short, and there is a rumor that the deficit may reach $40,000. It was given out that nearly all the money stolen by Tiller had been recovered in Milwaukee, but this was a blind to aid the police in the recovery of the rest. The money was divided immediately after the robbery, and it is supposed McFadden and another party received a share of the spoils which they have thus far managed to keep out of the hands of the officers. Tiller is still under the control of the express company and is being worked for a confession. It was announced publicly to-day that the proceeds of the robbery amounted to $160,000.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

A Pittsburg chemist has discovered the lost art of making black glass.

The Gill Car company has failed at Columbus, Ohio, for $400,000.

The Maryland house of delegates has passed a senate bill reducing the marriage license fee from $4.50 to 60 cents.

Uncle Rufus stole a march on his partners, and quietly had the Yellowstone Park campany put into a receiver's hand.

Personal Points.

It is rumored that T. Polk of Tennessee is alive.

George Fuller of Boston, the prominent landscape and portrait painter, is dead.

By plenty of exercise and careful dieting Fanny Davenport has reduced her weight from 180 to 123 pounds.

The body of Miss Blanche Tilton of Philadelphia was cremated recently. She was afraid of being buried alive.

Some of the friends of Carl Schurz propose to raise a fund of $100,000 for him. Jesse Seligman has taken a prominent part in the movement and has the subscription under his charge.

Rev. John Lyon, pastor of the church of the Redeemer, Bridgeport Conn., is missing, and it is believed that in a period of temporary aberation he has wondered off in search of rare books, of which he is extremely fond.

R. M. T. Hunter, ex-secretary of state of the Southern Confederacy and ex-United States senator, and who for the past fifty-one years has taken great interest in the politics of Virginia, is dying at his home in Essex county. He was a classmate of Edgar Allen Poe, the poet, at the University of Virginia.

The leaves of Lieut. Col. D. H. Brotherton, Twenty-fifth infantry, and First Lieut. George H. Palmer, Sixteenth infantry, have been extended two months. Capt. George M. Wheeler, of the engineer corps, who has for years been at the head of the government surveys of the territories, is lying dangerously ill at No. 1826 I street. But little hopes of his recovery are entertained. Capt. John Lee, Fourth cavalry, has been ordered before the retiring board at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where Gen. Augur is president. Capt. L. A. Abbott, Sixth cavalry, has been found incapacitated for active service by an army retiring board, and his leave has been extended until further orders.

The widow of Lieut. De Long, of the Jeannette, has written a letter to Congressman Cox asking to be notified when the charges of Dr. Collins of Minneapolis against her dead husband are to be heard, as she desires to be present and defend his memory. There is very little interest taken in the matter, and the house committee on naval affairs, to which it has been referred, is reluctant to make the investigation. They regard Dr. Collins as a monomaniac on the subject of the reported trouble between his late brother and the other members of the Jeannette expedition, and consider that the inquiry made under the direction of the navy department exhausted the subject. Collins asserts that he has a great deal of new evidence to present, but before proceeding the committee proposes to examine and see whether it is not covered by the printed record of the naval board.

Political Notes and News.

It is said the Massachusetts delegation will be solid for Edmunds and Lincoln.

The Louisiana republican state central committee has selected the following campaign committee: A. J. Dumont, chairman; Gen. A. S. Badger, P. B. S. Pinchback, W. B. Merchant, I. J. Souer, George Drury, W. B. Smith, A. H. Leonard. Dr. Duperier, the republican nominee for state treasurer has declined.

A free trade league was formed in Winona, Minn., with the following officers: President, Hon. Earl S. Youmans; vice president, C. A. Morey, Esq; secretaay, Prof. W. F. Phelps; treasurer, F. A. Rising. Addresses in favor of free trade were delivered by Judge Thomas Wilson and E. S. Youmans.

A poll of the Republican members of the lower house of the Iowa general assembly shows Blaine, 29; Logan, 5; Arthur, 3; Allison and Edmunds, 2 each, and Gen. Sherman, 1.

Fred Douglass has come out squarely for John A. Logan.

The Republicans of Erie county, Pa., held an election to choose delegates to the national convention. All the candidates pledged themselves for Blaine and Lincoln before election.

John Ruger, of the New York court of appeals, is mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for the presidency.

The Iowa Democrats will hold their state convention at Burlington April 24.

Oregon will vote on the 22d of June next on a proposition to so amend its State Consititution as to admit the women to an equal right to vote with the men. The form of the proposition to be voted upon is to strike out the word "male" where it now occurs in the Constitution, the effect of which would be to admit women to the right of suffrage. The election is to take place on the day of the regular state election.

The first state election in this presidential year will occur in Rhode Island April 3. That of Oregon comes next, June 2. But the first real test will be the Maine state election in September.

Breckenridge, Democrat, son of the late vice president, has been elected to the California legislature in Mariposa county.

Foot and Mouth Disease.

Dr. N. H. Paaren and Simon Beattie, experts sent to Wapello, Iowa by the Breeders' Gazette, visited the herd of cattle of Jonathan C. Drake, a short distance west of this place. This herd was said to be affected by a contagious foot and mouth disease. They found fifteen head out of a herd of fifty, affected with foot rot, all being calves but two. The disease was found in various stages from those just beginning to show it to others that had lost an entire foot. The conditions of the affected cattle here is exactly like those described as existing in Illinois, the various stages being identical. The herd of Mr. Drake is the only one that can be heard of in this section that is in any manner diseased. The malady with which these cattle are suffering has no relation whatever to the foot and mouth disease.

Death of a Famous Singer.

Madam Anna Bishop, a once famous singer, died suddenly in New York of apoplexy. Anna Bishop was born in London in 1814, and was the daughter of Mr. Riviere, an artist. In 1831 she married Sir H. R. Bishop. Her debut was made in 1837. She won the highest distinction as a singer, both in classical music and modern opera. Her second husband was Mr. Schults of New York, whom she married in 1858.

Postoffice News.

Postoffices Established—Boeles, Emmet county, Iowa; Cox, Chippewa county, Wis. Postmasters Commissioned—Walter P. Pierce, Starkey, Dak.; Frank H. Byington, Johnston, Dak.; George Sokol, Baldwin, Iowa; Elias W. Kearby, Elkhart, Iowa; Robert F. Norton, Homer, Minn.; John H. Mitchell, Maple [illegible]

FARMERS IN CONVENTION.

Representatives of the Minnesota Agricultural Classes Convene at the State House in St. Paul.

An Intelligent and Earnest Body of Men Asserting Their Grievances and Devising Measures for Relief.

Fighting Against Alleged Elevator and Railroad Monopolies and the Present System of Grading Wheat.

The state convention of farmers of Minnesota called to consider grievences, such as the system of grading wheat, the methods of conducting the elevators, railroad freight charges, etc., met the 18th inst, at the state house in St Paul. There was a fair attendence of solid, substantial farmers, who evinced an earnest desire to get at the root of the evil complained of.

A. M. Burdick of Clay county, as chairman of the committee on arrangements, called the convention to order.

Mr. Matson of Wilkin county nominated Senator P. H. Rahilly of Wabasha county as temporary chairman, and on taking the chair he made a short address.

M. S. Converse of Becker county nominated George W. Taylor of Becker county as temporary secretary, and the motion prevailed without opposition.

The secretary was instructed to call the roll of counties in order that it might be determined what counties were represented. The call showed that nineteen were represented.

It was suggested that the governer had expressed a willingness to welcome the members to the city, and Messrs. Loring, Collins and Burdick were appointed a committee to wait upon the governor and invite him to address the convention. The committee soon appeared and Senator Rahilly, in presenting the governor, said it was not necessary to formally introduce him. The governor said:

Gentlemen of the Convention: I am very glad to respond to your invitation, to the extent of an expression of pleasure which I feel in seeing such a representative gathering of the agriculturists of our state convened for the purpose of considering questions vital to their future prosperity. It is almost a new departure for farmers as a class to hold conventions of this character. It is common enough for members of the professions and those following most of the industrial pursuits to organize for mutual protection and a furtherance of their special interests; but our farmers have always been slow to move in an organized form, even for a redress of grievances. It is surely a hopeful sign, that augurs much for the agricultural interests of our state. It indicates that more intelligent methods are directing the destiny of those great interests on which rests the prosperity and progress of our whole people, and it also indicates the existence of a state of things that calls for correction and demands relief. It is by an interchange of views and experiences among our farmers that those measures best adapted to meet the exigencies of the situation will be more readily suggested and most carefully considered and matured. If the farmers of our state organize for the protection and the better development of their interests, there can be no doubt but the remedy will appear and be applied; for the correction and cure of whatever grievances they suffer, and the best methods become known and adopted among them for the advancement of their interests. This convention, as I understand its purpose, is a step in that direction. As such, your movement, gentleman, will command the hearty sympathy and encouragement of every patriotic citizen of the state. Every citizen feels, whatever his avocation, that his future success depends upon the prosperity of agriculturists as a class. It must follow, therefore that your proceedings here will be of great interest to the general public of our state. I trust your deliberations will develop such a general consideration of the questions that have called you together that all the facts bearing upon the situation as it exists at present may fully appear, and that your conclusions may be formulated and promulgated in a manner that will command for your cause that earnest consideration its merits and importance demands. I bid you welcome, gentlemen, to the capitol and I wish for your efforts for the amelioration and furtherance of the agricultural class every success possible to be attained.

The address was greeted with applause, and a recess of ten minutes was taken to allow the members to pay their respects to the governor.

Upon motion of a delegate, a committee on permanent organization was selected, as follows: M. S. Converse of Becker county, H. G. Palmer of Marshall, Carrington Phelps of Stevens, John Frank of Mower, F. A. Dana of Ramsey county, Dak. The convention then adjourned until 3 o'clock.

Mr. Loring renewed the motion to appoint a committee on credentials, and the chair named the following gentlemen: A. M. Burdick of Clay county, A. M. Converse of Becker, H. P. Bjorge of Otter Tail, H. G. Palmer of Marshall, and G. M. Giltiman of Stevens.

The committee reported the following as entitled to participate in the convention:

Waseca County—Daniel Murphy, L. F. Pedeson, James P. Dahle.

Marshall County—H. G. Palmer, J. O. Benewitz, S. A. March.

Hennepin County—E. J. Woodward, J. A. Bull, G. W. Baird, B. C. Yancy, W. S. Charvan, Joseph Hamilton.

Grant County—John K. Lee.

Becker County—E. N. Tellum, M. S. Converse, J. W. Dunn, G. W. Taylor, O. A. Bae, Chris. Olson.

Faribault County—A. A. Williams.

Otter Tail County—E. W. Dewy, H. E. Baen, F. N. Field, E. O. Slitvold, H. P. Bjorge, W. Murzzy, Antony Bender, A. K. Frisberg, J. B. Hampe, John P. Monroe, D. L. Wellman.

Polk County—H. Steenerson, P. C. Slitten, B. Sampson, H. E. Cook, C. O. Utzinger, W. H. Jennings.

Kittson County—W. F. Kelso.

Big Stone County—W. M. Ewen, E. L. Kingsbury, William Nash.

Norman County—A. H. Baker, Charles Canung, P. S. Olson, Charles E. Cragen.

Grand Forks County, Dak.—William H. Brown, W. P. Collins, James K. Swan, James Twamley.

Dakota County—T. T. Smith, R. K. Guiteau.

Anoka County—E. T. Edgarton, N. Small, A. C. Himball.

Murry County—L. Aldrich, J. W. Byington, W. H. Millan, B. M. Law.

Mower County—John Frank, J. B. Redvord, J. J. Furlong.

Swift County—B. P. Cheney.

Pope County—Andrew Anderson.

Carver County—Mich. Hall, Peter Nelson, Gustav Ditmas, Frank Miessner, A. W. Tiffany, Charles Kone, Harman Muhlberg, William Frenkens.

Blue Earth County—H. C. Howard, W. G. Hay, I. Gilmore, Eli Warner.

Benton County—H. S. Norton.

Wilkin County—E. Matteon, H. S. Stordock, A. B. Pederson, A. E. Anderson.

Devil's Lake, Dak—F. L. Dana.

Renville County.—Henry Goebel, Carrington Phelps, W. K. Walker.

McLeod County.—M. R. Parks, J. Benjamin, S. P. Brown, G. W. Day.

Brown County—Charles C. Brandt.

Nicollet County—J. P. Schaubeck.

Wright County—A. P. Miller.

Clay County—A. M. Burdick, Lyman Loring, F. J. Shriber, R. M. Probsfield, John Erickson, W. H. Johnson, John Carls, Joseph Wessbisher, William Patterson, Robert Patterson, Guenther Tenbert, J. P. Aiken, John Weinmann, Henry Gertson, Gottleib Maetzhold, G. M. Powers.

Goodhue County—Henry Ahneman, Ulysses Tanner.

Freeborn County—Henry Tunnell.

Fillmore County—S. P. Sprague.

Grant County—O. G. Vanness, S. M. Harris.

Stearns County—D. C. Smith, John Maginnis, George M. Gittinan.

The committee on permanent organization reported as follows:

President—Samuel A. Adams of Wright county.

Vice Presidents—Dr. W. T. Collins of Dakota, J. W. Furlong of Monroe county, H. G. Stordock of Wilkin county.

Secretary—G. W. Taylor of Becker county.

Assistant Secretaries—A. K. Teisburg of Otter Tail county, Daniel Murphy of Waseca county.

Mr. Adams not being present, Dr. W. T. Collins, one of the vice presidents, was called to the chair, announcing that Mr. Adams was not in the city, but would be present to-morrow. Dr. Collins said the convention was called to redress, if possible, the grievances of the farmers, and to put a stop to the stealing by the grain buyers. In Grand Forks county alone, $360,000 had been stolen in grading the crop of 1882. The people [illegible] asserted by the railroads, but an increase of 10 per cent, which had been brought about by a peculiar construction of classifications.

COMMITTEES SELECTED.

Mr. Baker of Norman county moved that a committee of fifteen be appointed, three from each congressional district. The motion prevailed, and the committee was selected as follows by congressional districts:

First—John Frank, J. B. Revard, Mower; Henry Tumbell, Faribault.

Second—H. C. Howard, Blue Earth; Charles C. Brandt, Brown; A. A. Williams, Faribault.

Third—J. Benjamin, McLeod county; U. Tanner, Goodhue; S. P. Brown, McLeod.

Fourth—T. T. Smith, Dakota; W. S. Cowan, Hennepin; A. P. Miller, Wright.

Fifth—H. Steenerson, Polk; J. B. Hompe, Otter Tail; John Maginnis, Stevens.

Dr. Collins was added on motion, as the representative of Dakota, and Judge Foster as the representative of Wisconsin.

Other committees were constituted as follows:

On Programme—E. Mattson, Wilkin; H. E. Bowen, Otter Tail; J. J. Furlong, Mower; J. A. Bull, Hennepin; A. A. Williams, Faribault.

Railroads and transportation—First district—John Frank, Mower; S. P. Sprague, Fillmore.

Second—L. Aldrich, Murray; Charles C. Brant, Brown.

Third—M. R. Parks, McLeod; T. T. Smith, Dakota.

Fourth—W. S. Chowan, Hennepin; A. P. Miller, Wright.

Fifth—A. M. Burdick, Clay; D. C. Smith, Stevens.

Grading of Wheat and Elevators—First district—J. J. Furlong and J. Brevard, Mower; Henry Tunnell, Freeborn.

Second—Daniel Murphy, Waseca; John P. Schonbeck, Nicollet; G. W. Haigh, Blue Earth.

Third—G. W. Day, McLeod; R. N. Guiteau, Dakota; Frank Mesler, Carver.

Fourth—E. J. Woodword, Hennepin; A. C. Kimball and N. Small, Anoka.

Fifth—H. G. Palmer, Warren; J. H. Harris, Grant; H. G. Stordock, Wilkin.

The afternoon was spent in general discussion covering a wide range of subjects. In regard to State control of railroads, Mr. Burdick said he had received letters from the authorities of twenty-two states touching upon the inquiry made by him as to whether boards created by legislatures had power to regulate tariffs on railroads. In some states the authorities have complete control of this matter, and Minnesota can do the same thing.

Mr. McEwan of Big Stone thought it proper to confer with the railroads, and to meet them and hear any offer they had to make. He favored a committee for this purpose.

Mr. Chowen of Hennepin said the delegates were not here to go to the railroads to state their grievances. They were going before the people, and will elect a legislature in the farmers interests. Chairman Collins stated that Gen. Baker had written him several letters, and he did not think it proper for him to appear before the convention and make a speech.

Mr. Harris of Grant county said many of the troubles were of the farmers' own making, they not knowing how to manage such matters. They must organize and fight for their rights, but they must first master the intricacies of the railroad question.

Mr. McErwin, from Big Stone, moved that the convention proceed to the election of a state central committee, composed of fifteen members. The political question was launched by an inquiry made by Mr. Stordock of Wilkin county. He asked if the appointment of this state central committee was meant as a political move.

Mr. Norton of Benton said there was no difference between the Republicans and Democrats, except in name, and if the fathers stick to them they will never get their rights.

J. H. Hunt of Otter Tail said it was not necessary to organize a third party. Let the farmers put forward Democratic candidates for the legislature in Democratic counties, and the Republicans do the same in Republican counties. In this way the farmers can elect their candidates in almost every county in the state.

Mr. Monroe of Otter Tail, favored the organization of a farmers' party with a farmers' platform, asserting that the farmers could control two-thirds of all the counties outside of Ramsey and Hennepin. Sufficient was learned from the debate to show that the farmers mean to control the next legislature.

The second day's session opened with an increased attendance, quite a number of additional delegates coming in on the morning trains.

The following delegates reported, in addition to those named by the committee on credentials.

Stevens—W. K. Walker, G. M. Giltiman, Carrington Phelps, D. C. Smith, John Maginnis.

Blue Earth—John Diamond, George W. Haigh, H. E. Howard.

Chippewa—John Kohr.

Freeborn—Charles G. Johnson, P. Kelly.

Kittson—E. N. Davis.

Traverse—William J. Smith, C. P. Sargent, C. J. Knutson.

Hennepin—John H. Howe, John T. Blaisdell.

Rice—S. Reynolds.

Dakota—John Clague.

Mr. Cannon of Norman county read a message from his constituents, asking the convention to dash the scales of bigotry from their eyes, and unite together for the good of the farmers, eschewing politics.

Remarks were made by Messrs. Matson of Wilkin county, Diamond of Blue Earth, Tiffany of Carver, Loring, Kelly of Freeborn and others, mostly in favor of sending honest men to the legislature, irrespective of their party affiliations. A memorial to Congress from Mr. Steenerson, of the committee on resolutions, in favor of opening Red Lake Reservation and against pine land rings, etc., was unamiously adopted and forwarded to the Minnesota delegation.

Mr. Burdick of Clay offered the following:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that the next legislature of the state of Minnesota should enter upon a thorough examination and investigation of the subject of corporate taxation, and especially of all railroad properties, including railroad lands, whether they are bearing a just and equitable amount of the burden of taxation.

Unanimously adopted.

Mr. Davis of Kittson county detailed the grievances of which the farmers in his county complained. The system of grading wheat was an outrageous evil. On his crop of wheat he made over $200 by shipping direct to Minneapolis, instead of selling at his station to the elevator. The latter would give him a grade of No. 3 only, while in Minneapolis the wheat was graded as No. 1 hard. The farmers were robbed of at least 20 cents on the bushel on their wheat. If the farmers of the Red River Valley did not succeed in having their wrongs righted they will move out.

Mr Palmer of Marshall summarized the grievances in his district and the flagrant outrages to which farmers had been subjected.

Mr. Diamond of Blue Earth said Southern Minnesota would back the convention on everything that was right. He said that farmers must get out of exclusive wheat growing, and go into diversified farming.

Mr Cheeney of Swift severely criticised the methods of the grain buyers in his section, and cited personal experiences wherein he had suffered because of unjust grading.

Prof. C. I. Whitney of Michigan, made an interesting address, showing in elaborate statistics the magnitude of the farming interest, and counseling a thorough and systematic organization. After such a showing, ought not the farmers to have something to say, and ought they not to organize for the protection of their own interests? It was meet and proper in these days that the farmer should be cultivated instead of the farms. The productive industries of the country must pay off the national debt, as the farmers pay three-fourths of the taxes. This talk of "sending somebody" to look after the interests of the farmers would not do; if the farmers wanted their rights respected they must personally look after those matters which directly affected them. Sixty-five per cent of the voters are farmers, and yet they don't exercise their authority in political matters. He urged the farmers to organize, attend the primaries and elections, and realize the importance of even one vote.

The committee on resolutions, through their chairman, H. C. Howard of Blue Earth county, made their report, which was read by Dr. Collins of Grand Forks, as follows:

Whereas great burdens have been imposed upon several industries of agriculture, commerce and manufacturing by usurped powers of monopolies and the said abuses have assumed pro portions which threathen the future prosperity of our new Northwest; therefore be it

Resolved, First—That thorough organization of the farmers, trades and commercial industries of the new Northwest is necessary for the protection of the industries of the many as against usurped privileges offered and to that end immediate systematic organization is urgently recommended by this convention.

Second—That the usurped control and regulation of minimum capacity of elevators by railroad corporations is destructive of independent competition in the purchase of grain and such usurped control should be abolished by the enactment of stringent laws.

Third—That by reason of gross irregularities [illegible] houses, elevators and railroads is hereby commended to the said legislatures.

Fourth—That upon unrestricted through transportation of wheat to eastern markets rests the possibility of open independent competition in the grain market, and the future prosperity of agricultural and commercial industries of our country demands of railroad corporations liberal concessions to that end.

Fifth—That existing tariff rates now imposed by railroad corporations as throughout the new northwest are exorbitant, oppressive, and unreasonable, and by reason of the interests of said railroad corporations being identical with that of the citizens of the country traversed by said roads, it is demanded that liberal reduction be made in the tariff rates of said roads, without further or unreasonable delay.

Sixth—That the several industries of agriculture and commerce demands the enactment of a law by the national congress governing and regulating inter-state commerce, the same to be put into operation without unreasonable delay.

Seventh—That the system of granting and accepting free passes by and of railroad and other transportation companies being nothing more nor less than expensive systematic bribery, in the interest of monopoly as against public duty and policy, the same should be abolished by state and national legislation.

Eighth—That the adulteration of food, medicines and butter, in form of manufactured oleomargerine, and similar brands, is destructive of health and injurious to legitimate industries and should be prohibited by law.

Ninth—That we deem the improvement of the Minnesota river to and through Big Stone Lake, Lake Traverse and the Red river by slack water navigation to be of vast importance to the people of Minnesota and Dakota, as it will open up a free water route for their products and commodities, and we ask our representatives in congress to work and use their utmost exertions to secure necessary appropriations for the extention of said navigation.

Tenth—That in the opinion of this convention the letting out of convict and prison labor is antagonistic, unwise and unjust to the rights of mechanics and artisans, and should be abolished by the state.

Eleventh—That this convention recognizes the several agricultural and commercial associations existing throughout the Northwest as important factors in securing relief from existing burdensome abuses, and it is hereby urgently recommended that the said several associations co-operate in securing as their representatives in and for all municipal, county, state and national governments the election of men who shall be pledged to fidelity and the enactment of equal and just laws for the several industries of our government, and that such men shall be elected by reason of their known uncorrupted and incorruptable character.

Whereas, The present system of national taxation by the operation of protective tariff bears heavily and unjustly upon the farming and laboring classes of the Northwest by enabling the manufacturer to demand higher prices for their goods, thus transferring the wealth of the West into the pockets of the eastern monoplies, thus unjustly taxing the people of the West. And whereas the present tariff exceeds the legitimate expenses of the government, accumulating hundreds of millions of dollars in the treasury to be stolen by scheming rings of politicans, therefore be it

Resolved, That we insist on our representatives in congress using their influence and vote to lower the present existing tariff as low as possible for the support of the government.

Mr. Bowen of Otter Tail moved to adopt the resolutions as read. Mr. Matson of Wilkin moved as an amendment that the report of the committee be received, which was agreed to.

RAILROADS AND TRANSPORTATION.

The committee on railroads and transportation made their report through the chairman, Mr. Brandt of Brown county, as follows:

Whereas, Our present railroad and warehouse laws are known to be defective, and do not give officers acting under them proper authority, be it

Resolved, That this convention recommend that the next legislature of the State of Minnesota is hereby requested to pass a railroad warehouse law similar to the ones now in force in the States of Massachusetts or Illinois.

Resolved, That the members of this convention go home to their respective districts and use all the influences in their power to elect members of the next legislature who will pledge themselves to the support of such legislation; and

Whereas, The members of the state senate of Minnesota were chosen for four years, and those who constituted the last state senate will form the next; be it

Resolved, That the members of this convention, before the meeting of the next senate, shall use their best efforts with the present senators for their interest and co-operation in this matter, and that, by petitions and resolutions from their respective towns and counties they instruct the members of the present senate to work for the passage of such an act.

Resolved, That it is the desire of this convention that congress pass the necessary laws regulating interstate commerce.

The report was received.

WHEAT GRADING AND ELEVATORS.

H. G. Palmer of Marshall, read the report of the committee on wheat grading and elevators, as follows:

We find, after thoroughly investigating the present system of wheat grading, that it is a farce and a cheat, because it does not express the true value of wheat, and enriches the few to the detriment of the many. The right usurped by railroads to establish minimum capacity and kind of equipment of elevators is contrary to public policy and calculated to destroy independent competition in the grain market. We recommend a free and open market for our products, and that railroads shall receive and deliver such products to any point the shipper may desire on the line of their roads. We recommend a state inspector, appointed by the supreme court or our governer, to regulate a system of gradation of the true value of wheat, ascertained by chemical analysis. We recommend and believe the only way to redress these grievances is by legislation.

The reports were laid over for further consideration. Dr. Collins offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee of fifteen, three for each congressional district—to be selected by the delegations now present—whose duty it shall be to extend the work of agricultural associations throughout the state.

The appointment of the committee was agreed upon. The delegates from the different districts reported the following-named gentlemen as the committee:

First—S. B. Sprague, Fillmore; John Frank Mower; Charles G. Johnson, Freeborn; William Carrier, G. W. Harrington, Wabasha.

Second—J. A. Lattimore, Faribault; Daniel Murphy, Waseca; L. Aldrich, Murray; H. C. Howard, Blue Earth; Charles E. Brant, Brown.

Third—John Kokr, Chippewa; U. Tanner, Goodhue; R. K. Guiteau, Dakota; A. W. Tiffany, Carver; G. W. Day, McLeod.

Fifth—A. M. Burdick, Clay; John P. Monroe, Otter Tail; E. N. Davis, Kittson; E. N. Jellum, Becker; Carrington Phelps, Stevens.

The fourth district was not ready to report and the selection of the committee from this district was postponed.

The committee withdrew to select officers, and reassembling announced that the following had been selected: Chairman, A. W. Tiffany; Carver; secretary, J. J. Furlong, Mower; assistant secretary, G. W. Haigh, Blue Earth.

The question of wheat raising, the best varieties, etc., together with general farming operations, were the topics of discussion in the evening.

At the meeting on Friday, the names of the members of the committee of twenty-five from the Fourth congressional district were reported and ratified. The full committee, with their postoffice addresses, are as follows:

President—A. W. Tiffany, Norwood, Carver county.

Vice President—Carrington Phelps, Morris, Stevens county.

Treasurer—H. C. Howard, Lake Crystal, Blue Earth county.

Secretary—J. J. Furlong, Austin, Mower county.

Assistant Secretary—G. W. Haigh, Mankato, Blue Earth county.

CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT COMMITTEES.

First—S. P. Sprague, Prosper, Fillmore county (chairman); John Frank, Le Roy, Mower county (secretary); C. G. Johnson, Albert Lea, Freeborn county; G. W. Harrington, Plainview, Wabasha county; William Carrier, Black Hammer, Houston County.

Second—M. C. Howard, Lake Cristal, Blue Earth county (chairman); Charles G. Brandt, New Ulm, Brown county (secretary); Leonard Aldrich, Currie, Murray county; J. A. Lattimore, Winnebago City, Faribault county; Daniel Murphy, Waseca county.

Third—G. W. Day, Glencoe, McLeod county (chairman); H. K. Guiteau, Farmington, Dakota county (secretary); John Kohr, Montevideo, Chippewa county; U. Tanner, Cannon Falls, Goodhue county; A. W. Tiffany, Norwood, Carver county.

Fourth—J. A. Bull, Edina Mills, Hennepin county (chairman); N. Small, Anoka, Anoka county (secretary); M. Holstrom, Cocato, Wright county; Stephen Howsen, ——— Isanti county; Hugh Campbell, Marine Mills, Washington county; [illegible]

Fifth—A. M. Burdick, Glyndon, Clay county (chairman); Carrington Phelps, Morris, Stevens county; [illegible] Kittson county; John P. Monroe, Deer Creek, Otter Tail county.

Finance Committee—E. N. Davis, L. Aldrich, Daniel Murphy.

The delegates present from the Fifth congressional district assembled in a corner of the hall and selected a list of county sub-committees, which are in turn, to appoint township committees. The county sub-committees are as follows:

Kittson County—P. M. Hendrick and Mr. Kurn, Hallock.

Grant—Andrew Erlinson, Herman.

Stevens—W. K. Walker, R. J. Hall.

Becker County—J. W. Dunn and M. J. Converse, Detroit.

Benton—Charles Schuling, Dielm; John Wilson, Sauk Rapids.

Stearns—E. H. Atwood, Maine Prairie.

Marshall—H. G. Palmer, Warren; Ed. Buns, Stephen.

Sherburne—Charles George, Santiago.

Wilkin—E. Matson, Breckinridge.

Polk—E. Columbus.

Red Lake Falls—M. R. Brown, Crookston; Nels O. Roulswel, Neilsville.

Pope—A. Anderson, Nora; Patrick Jones, Glenwood.

Traverse—C. T. Harris, Brown's Valley.

Wright—A. P. Miller, M. Holmstrom, Cokato.

The report of the committee on railroads and transportation was unanimously adopted in the same form as it came from the committee.

And the original report of the committee on resolutions were adopted without dissent.

Mr. Reynolds offered the following resolutions:

Resolved, That it is the request of this convention that the next legislature pass a law compelling all millers or mill operatives, carrying on a gristing or exchange business, to do said gristing or exchange at the rate of one-fifth toll, namely: Thirty-five pounds straight flour, eight pounds bran, five pounds shorts. This is for No. 1 wheat, and all the lower grades in proportion.

The Reynolds resolution was put to a vote and adopted.

Hon. Clark Thompson and other officers of the State Agricultural society were invited to come forward and take seats beside the chairman, which courtsey was accepted.

Mr. Tiffany of Carver offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That it is high time in this country that we revive the sterling principles of our fore-fathers, "That the office shall seek the man, rather than the man the office."

The address authorized by the convention to be issued to the people of the state, will be prepared for publication by the committee of three, to whom the duty was entrusted, within the next few days.

After deliberating for three days, the convention of farmers from Minnesota and Dakota adjourned Thursday sine die. In addition to a full and free expression of their grievances, and suggestions as to the proper remedies, the delegates took official action upon several matters of interest and importance to the farming classes. Briefly summarized, the most important work of the convention was as follows: A plainly-expressed intention to control the next legislature in the farmer's interests, which was really the object of the convention; the appointment of a state committee, as expressed in the language of the resolution, "to extend the work of agricultural associations throughout the state"—in other words, to carry on the farmers' campaign; a plain and frank avowal that no third party is sought to be organized, but the farmers will fight for their rights inside the lines of the present political organizations; a vote of censure upon the so-called "Minneapolis pine land ring" favoring the opening for settlement of the agricultural lands of the Red Lake Indian reservation, and for the sale of the pine timber on the reservation for the benefit of the Indians; urging the next legislature to investigate the subject of corporate taxation, and especially of all railroad properties, including railroad lands; condemning the present railroad and warehouse laws, and urging upon the legislature the passage of a railroad warehouse law similar to the ones now in force in Massachusetts and Illinois; asking congress to pass the necessary laws governing interstate commerce; denouncing the present system of wheat grading as a farce and a cheat; condemning the monopoly existing between the railroads and the elevators; recommending the appointment of a state grain inspector, appointed by the governor or the supreme court; protesting against the excessive railroad freight charges; denouncing the policy of state officials or members of the legislature in accepting free passes over the railroads; recommending the prohibition of the manufacture of oleomargarine; endorsing the improvement of the Minnesota river to and through Big Stone Lake, Lake Traverse and the Red river; objecting to the letting out of convict and prison labor; opposing the protective tariff system; condemning the excessive tolls exacted by custom millers; declaring in favor of the principle that the office shall seek the man; appointing a committee to issue an address to the people of the state. Duly accredited representatives were in attendance from forty-one counties, aggregating 135 delegates. In addition, there were present a large number of farmers, not regularly appointed as delegates, but who were allowed to take part in the proceedings—the convention embracing, all told, about 200 members.

A Self-Possessed Woman.

One young Ohio woman didn't lose her head during the recent great flood. She is now visiting Detroit, and the Free Press relates her conversation with her friend:

"Susie, you must have had an awful time there?" "Why?" "On account of the high water. How near the river were you?" "Oh, not far." "Did the water come up around your house?" "I believe so. At least I heard the boys saying something about the basement being even full." "It must have been a great but terrible sight." "I presume so," she answered with a yawn. "Did the boats have to bring you provisions?" he persisted. "Did they? Well, now, I forgot to ask papa, but I presume they did." "And wasn't there danger of the foundations of the house way?" "I expect there was, but we keep four servants, and of course we let them worry about that." "You could see the whole inundation from your window, I suppose?" "I presume I could have, had I looked out." "Why, Susie, you don't seem to have taken the slightest interest in the affair?" "And how could you expect me to, when I had three new novels sent me the week, and had to decide between two offers of marriage? There was a flood of water or something, and they had to move back from the levee or somewhere and lots of people lost all they had or some such thing, but please don't talk about it. Such things make me tired."

Sonorous Waifs.

"Excuse me," said a polite citizen to a colored man. "I didn't kick you on purpose." "No, sah, kicked me on de shin, sah. 'Scuze yer dis time, but don't git in de habit ob it, sah."—[Arkansaw Traveler.

Philadelphia on New York.—"What has become of "Bowery Mike,' who kept a saloon which was a resort for notorious characters some years ago?"

"He is in the Legislature."

"And his partner, where is he?"

"He got found out and is in the Penitentiary."—[Philadelphia Call.

"Your father is worth at least half a million," said he to his jealous sweetheart. "That is true, she murmured. "And yet you doubt my love," he replied, in an injured tone.

Catching a Weasel Asleep.—Mrs. Ponsonby de Tompkyns (pointing to her books); "They are not many, I know, Adolphus, but they are all friends—dear old friends." Noble Poet (taking down a volume of his own poems and finding the leaves uncut); "Ah! I'm glad to find that you don't cut your old friends, Mrs. de Tompkyns." (Mrs. P. de T. is at a loss for once.)—Punch.

The San Francisco reporter didn't get anything new when he asked a Chinaman how the children of Confucius keep Christmas: "Samee like Melican man," was the rejoinder; "eat, drink and drunk."

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY

Senator Hawley has introduced a bill to authorize the secretary of the navy to offer a reward of $25,000 for rescuing or ascertaining the fate of the Greely Arctic expedition. Mr. Hawley said such a reward might induce ships cruising in or about the Arctic seas to keep a lookout for the exploring party or turn occasionally out of their own course in order to gather information about it. The plan was suggested by George Kennan, the Arctic traveler, when called before the Greeley relief board to give his views concerning the rescue of Greeley and his comrades.

The president has sent to the senate the following nominations: Sumner Howard, Michigan, chief justice of the supreme court of Arizona; Case Broderick, Kansas, associate justice of the supreme court of Idaho; Jacob B. Blair, Wyoming; Maj. Orville Babcock to be lieutenant colonel of the corps of engineers.

The president transmitted to the house a letter from Secretaries Lincoln and Chandler opposing the proposition to offer a reward for the discovery and relief of the Greely party by private enterprise. They think it unadvisable to offer an incentive to inadequately prepared private partieswhen the government expedition is thoroughly equipped. Another reason urged against the proposition is that the government, by inviting such co-operation, will assume certain responsibility toward those whom it thus induces to enter on a hazardous enterprise and its offers of to-day may lead to the necessity of further expeditions for relief or rescue hereafter.

Secretary Chandler has written a letter to Representative Cox, the chairman of the committee on naval affairs, strongly opposing a second investigation of the Jeannette artic expedition. He says the friends of Jerome Collins had every opportunity before the court of inquiry to ascertain the facts in the case, and that in his opinion the proposed reopening of the case is highly inexpedient, and it seems a pitiless sacrilege to again tear open the graves of the dead for the purpose of indecently calling public attention to what the court of inquiry correctly termed trivial difficulties, such as occur on shipboard even under the most favorable circumstances; and which had no influence in bringing about the disasters of the expedition, and no pernicious effects upon its conduct.

The postoffice appropriation bill was considered on Tuesday in the house and the proceedings were marked by three points of interest. The speaker ruled against his party on a point of order; Mr. Aiken, a democratic member from South Carolina, fiercely denounced the committee for certain parts of its work on the bill, stating that it was actuated by a desire to acquire a reputation for economy; and Messrs. Townshend and Reed engaged in a very warm controversy, the former charging the latter with defending railroad corporations and all kinds of jobbery and Mr. Reed replying vigorously. The amendment adopted by the committee of the whole increasing the amount for letter carriers $400,000 was rejected in the house and the bill passed.

Mr. Nelson has reported bills granting right of way through the Sioux reservation in Dakota to the Milwaukee & St. Paul and Dakota Central railway.

Senator Sabin has introduced a bill to grant a pension to Mrs. Minnie Hoeberle, widow of Leonard Hoeberle, late private in Capt. F. Meilas' company, Eleventh regiment, Minnesota state militia.

The senate. The Indian affairs committee reported it inexpedient to establish a military academy west of the Mississippi for Indian youths. The foreign relations committee reported a bill for the inspection of meats for exportation, prohibiting the importation of adulterated food, and authorizing the president to make proclamation in certain certain cases.

The house. The foreign affairs committee submitted a report with resolutions on the return by Prince Bismarck of the house resolutions on Herr Lasker. The report warmly commends the wise action of the state department in the matter, and the resolutions merely recite that the resolution was intended as a tribute of respect to Lasker, and the house does not deem it requisite to its dignity to criticise the manner in which the resolution was received in Germany. After speeches by Messrs. Ochiltree, Phelps, Cox of New York, Deuster and others, the report and resolutions were adopted; likewise resolutions thanking the Liberal Union members of the German parliament for their acknowledgment of the expression of sympathy contained in the house resolution on Lasker. The elections committee in the case of Garrison vs. Mayo, Virginia, reported awarding the seat to Garrison. By a vote of 137 to 118 the house decided to consider the bill to extend the whisky bond-d period.

The bill increasing the salaries of U. S. udges to $5,000 is still before the Senate, and licits a good deal of discussion, as also Blair's ll appropriating money for education.

The House election committee reported in vor of the contestant in the contested election
Garrison against Mayo, from the First dis-ct of Virginia, thus unseating Mr. Mayo, who readjuster. Mr. Mayo was allowed an ir in which to present his side of the case.
parting address resulted in heated colloquy tween Messrs. Ranney of Massachusetts, a publican member of the committee on elec-s, and John S. Wise, readjuster member n Virginia, on one side, and Turner of rgia, chairman of the elections committee,
Tucker of Virginia, on the other, relative the action of the board of canvassers of Vir-ia in throwing out the vote of an entire nty, on account of an informality the seal of the return.

n the debate in the house on the bonded isky extension bill, Mr Willis in whose dist most of the whisky is stored, claimed that whole Northwest, as well as Kentucky, was atly interested in this bill; and, among other sons, stated that the whisky industry used 00,000 bushels of corn two years ago, and 18,000,000 bushels this year, and that the sky in bond is owned by all classes of peoand principally by people of ordinary s, who had to borrow from the banks con-lly since the over production of whisky made their investment a bad one. He then the history of the measure, showing that position for the indefinite extension of the ed period had been unanimously reported ways and means committee last congress, ad passed the house with only twenty-nine against it.

motion of Senator McMillan the senate
d to the committee on woman suffrage ition of Sarah B. Stearns, C. M. Coleary E. Murdock, Dr. Anna W. Broskwa,
W. Kimberly, Mrs. E. S. Hammond ghty-one other citizens of Minnesota, re-ng the passage of a sixteenth amendment constitution prohibiting states disfran-citizens on account of sex.

house judiciary committee has agreed to favorably Representative Deuster's bill nd revised statutes so to provide that chilorn in a foreign country and now residing country, whose father or grandfather en-n the army of the United States, and either its service, or honorably discharged, be ered citizens of the United States.

e senate, on motion of Mr. McMillan, the accompanying the claim of W. H. Whit-Litchfield, Minn., and a bill for his re-on account of injuries received the rebellion while indirectly in the ser-the United States, were referred to the tee on claims. Mr. McMillan also ind, for reference to the committee on ands, the petition of H. T. Wells, John and five other citizens of Minneapolis, on to the location of lands under the ad and pre-emption laws. The petiich was introduced at the request of Sabin, who is temporarily absent, hat such change be made in the law ll bona fide purchasers from locations may be protected in their cases where the receipts have been is-the original locators previous to the them, and that all cases of alleged here the question arises after the issue final receipt, may be tried in a court under direction of law arising in parases, and requests the Minnesota del-hat if any changes are made in the aws to insist that the rights already ac-der existing laws shall be protected, les quiet and patents issued in all re final receipts have issued without fore local officers.

use spent nearly a whole day in disand finally passed a bill for the reof Gen. Averill, the noted cavalry nate bill for the construction of a idge across the St. Croix river, in and Minnesota, by the Chippewa Western Railroad company, was y Mr. McMillan to the senate tohe committee on commerce with a ecommendation. The bill as reported veral amendments, the only materiwhich consists of two additional secllows:

That the said railroad company shall right to construct passageways on for foot passengers and vehicles of ription, and to charge a reasonable m, subject to the approval of the war.
provides that any alterations or ll be made at the expense of the pany. It will be remembered that to be made of iron and steel, with ers.

Mexican Girls.

From a Letter from Mexico.

The rich are so very rich that they have no ambition; the poor so desperately poor that they have no hope, to speak of. The daughters of the wealthy pass their lives in vacuity; those of the poor are so poorly fed and dressed that they nearly all look hunger-bitten and ill-developed. There are no lyceums, debating clubs, dramatic associations, public lectures, picnics, or any athletic sports in which the women can join. They are as completely without good shape as any set of women I ever saw. I doubt if there are a dozen good forms in this city, and as to legs and feet—Apollo, bless us!—the stockings of an average Hoosier girl would go twice around for a Chihuahua belle. A resident physician tells me that the health of the higher class women is wretchedly poor. Very few of them can nurse their own children. They usually marry at from fifteen to seventeen, and are careworn at twenty-five. The physicians attempted to introduce bicycles, but the young ladies had neither strength to manage nor persistence to master them. A few hammocks were sold here, but the feeble things nearly broke their necks in getting out of them. A really plump, vigorous, healthy woman of the wealthy classes is a rarity, though many of them have a sort of languid beauty. Ponder these things in your heart, and the next time you see a "beautiful senorita" swinging in voluptuous langour (on the top of a cigar box) in a gorgeous hammock, with delicate wreaths of smoke circling from her pretty rosebud lips, you will know her for the printed humbug she is. As to real beauty, that which satisfies the heart of the natural man, I can find more of it in one class of Indiana high school girls than in the whole state of Chihuahua—if this city is a fair specimen.

Copying the Englishman.

Man is an imitative animal. Children imitate their elders, the maid copies her mistress' dresses, and the footman apes his master's manners. In England there was recently a craze for imitating "early English;" in the United States there is a mania for copying the modern Englishman. The American Queen thus comments upon the absurd fashion:

A good commentary on the fashion of of aping the English in their manner of dress and speech was the remark of a little girl who visited the Casino and looked upon its frequenters for the first time. She was from the south but had been in England.

"Why, mamma," she said, "where did all these English people come from? "Isn't it fun to hear them talk just as it was in Brighton?"

It is very cleverly done—this imitation of a certain style of Englishmen.

A young Bostonian I know has acquired it perfectly in five weeks. I can fancy him greeting you next winter in this fashion:

"Jolly cold day, eh? Egad! Boston's more than hawlf nawsty this beastly weath-aw. Got a new fad, I have, don't you knaw?" etc.

And yet they say we are no linguists, and this fellow has acquired a new speech all in a month. It is really very clever, as you will see.

It smacks of the English groom, to be sure, for the manly Englishman does not talk thus, and they who are beginning to cultivate the so-called English pronunciation talk very much like fools, and make very funny lapses, in unconscious moments, to their native speech.

"Please," said a girl to one of these ambitious young men, "say 'hawf-pawst, or 'half-past,' and not 'hawlf-past,' or 'half-pawst.'"

One of our Newport swells tells this story of himself. It is his pet story. It impresses different listeners differently.

Sometimes I think it doesn't impress them exactly as he expects it to, but it is his way of informing the world that he dresses for the evening religiously. I'll try to put it in his own words:

"I'm deuced absent-minded, don't you know? deuced absent-minded. Did something other morning just like me, don't you know?

"Valet was knocked up, lighted the gas myself when I got up; deuced stubborn moustache, mine is—have to curl it on an iron—lighted gas to heat iron and forgot to put it out.

"Of course, a fellah don't put on his morning clothes by gaslight, and I got into my evening suit. By Jove! opened the front door and stood in evening dress in broad daylight.

"Haven't got over it yet. Upset me entirely! Felt like a waitaw or a fool. Deuced absent-minded don't you know?"

What the Men Are to Wear.

New York Letter in the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"What are men going to wear this year?"

"There is very little change in the fashions. Cutaway coats will pe made with five buttons instead of four and the skirts will not be cut away as much as formerly. They will be made to fit the form as closely as possible and a trifle lower in the neck than heretofore. Trousers are not quite so tight and when the season has advanced a little more white waistcoats will be fashionable. Frock coats are double-breasted, buttoned very high in the neck and much shorter than formerly. The favorite suit, however, will be English tweed, the whole suit of the same material. The vests will be cut without any collar, and the sacque coat will be worn. I don't know that there are any other pronounced changes."

Nice Stuff to Eat.

New York Special: Charles Moses, a feeble man of about thirty years, propped up in a chair, yesterday told a remarkable story to the senate health committee, who are now examining the bogus butter. He said he had been employed in the packing room of Nathen's oleomargarine factory. He had not been there long before his hands became sore and raw. Soon they began to swell and the nails dropped off from his fingers. The liquor from the butter rotted his clothes and boots, caused his skin to crack, his teeth to loosen and his hair to come out. His condition became so deplorable that he was obliged to go to Bellevue hospital for treatment. The physicians there told him that if he went back to work again in the factory it would kill him. Other workmen in the shop that he knew were similarly affected, but not so badly as in his case.

Direct From Cœur D'Alene.

R. B. Buchan, writing to Gen. Townsite Agent Taylor of the Northern Pacific, from Eagle City, says:

It is much too early to do anything either in mining or merchandising, as there is three feet of snow, which is going off very slowly. The mines are not nearly as rich as reported, though for ten or twelve miles on Pritchard Creek there appears to be good wages, from $7 to $10 per day, and for a man with an occasional claim, something better. There has been no quartz of any promise discovered as yet, though I think there will be during the summer. There are probably 1,500 people in Eagle City, and town property is held at high figures, and of course if the camp is a success there will be considerable money made in town lots. The only route here as yet is by a walk of thirty-five miles from Trout creek, with very poor accommodation, either on the way or after arrival here.

The wagon road from Belknap to Eagle City was yesterday completed to Eagle creek. It ill be finished to Eagle City by Friday.

Disastrous California Overflow.

The breaking of a levee at Robert's Island, near Stockton, Cala., on the 19th destroyed 37,000 acres of wheat valued at $500,000. The broken levee was one of the largest in the island. The break occurred at the middle. A section of the levee was cut, in the hope of relieving the Cross levee, but the relief came too late. The water did not run off fast enough to take off the pressure. A sudden heavy rush of water was made, and as it swept down the island on its way toward the lower section the immense fields of tall grain disappeared from sight, transformed into one immense lake. The inhabitants quickly huddled together what they could carry off in wagons, seeking refuge on lower sections. Horses and cattle stampeded in wild fright, breaking across toward the dry ground of the lower portion. If the lower levee breaks the loss will be fully a million dollars.

Death of a Prominent Minnesotian.

News has been received in Anoka, Minn., of the death at Whitcomb, Georgia, of the Hon. Dwight Woodbury, of Anoka. Mr. Woodbury left Anoka about two weeks ago for the south in hopes of beneficial results, his health having been impaired for some time past. The funeral occurs Thursday at Charlestown, South Carolina at which place the remains will be interred. Mr. Woodbury was one of the oldest residents of Anoka, and a pioneer of the state. He represented Anoka in the state legislature several times, and filled many offices in his village and county.

Invalid Ladies—This is For You.

There are thousands of females in America who suffer untold miseries from chronic diseases common to their sex, this is due largely to the peculiar habits of life and fashion, and the improper training of girlhood. Then to the physical changes that mark the three eras of womanhood, the maiden, the wife and the mother, have much to do with her sufferings, most of which is endured in silence, unknown by even the family physician and most intimate friends. To all such, whose hollow cheeks, pale faces, sunken eyes and feeble footsteps, indicate nervous and general debility bordering on consumption, we would earnestly recommend that grand system renovating tonic Burdock Blood Bitters. It makes pure healthy blood, and regulates all the organs to a proper action, cures constipation, liver and kidney complaint, female weakness, nervous and general debility and all the distressing miseries from which two-thirds of the women of America are suffering. ALL INVALID LADIES should send for our SPECIAL CIRCULAR addressed to LADIES ONLY, which treats upon a subject of vital importance. ADDRESS FOSTER, MILBURN & CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Latest Northwestern Patents.

Henry H. Asimont, assinor to A. H. Harlson, Duluth, Minn., sash fastener; Robert Cameron, Burlington, Iowa, thill coupling; James Cummings, Janesville, Minn., hose coupling; Uriah Curtis, Concord, Minn., instrument for calculation, interest, etc.; John F. Hardisty, Bonaparto, Iowa, breast drill; Benjamin Hubbell, Afton, Iowa, staple extractor; Frederic Kubec, Riverside, Iowa, lever power mechanism; Charles J. Mikesh, Ruthven, Iowa, corn planter; Wilhelm Prochnow, Milwaukee, mortar mixer; William and W. D. Puffer, Janesville, Wis., steam trap; Alva H. Shoonover, Jr., Elliott, Iowa, cultivator; Allen J. Snyder and A. S. Kulp, Keota, Iowa, excavator; George E. Swan, Beaver Dam, Wis., harrow; Samuel M. Toay and E. Harris, Cambria, Wis., folding egg case; E. F. Zinna, Milwaukee, composition for fire-proof pottery.

Mr. Peter Mallen, 212 W. Twenty-fourth street New York, says that he suffered six years with rheumatism and found no relief until St. Jacobs Oil, the sovereign remedy, was applied, which cured him completely.

Death of a Venerable Bishop.

Bishop Kavanaugh, of the Methodist Episcopal church of the South, died at Columbus, Ga., Wednesday morning the 19th. Bishop Hubbard Hinde Kavanaugh, D. D., was born in Clark county, Kentucky, in 1802. Converted in his sixteenth year, five years afterward he was received into the Kentucky conference, and from that time until the present, sixty years, he has been effective. In 1854 he was elected bishop, and was among the first to cultivate fraternal feelings toward the Methodist Episcopal church, his ministry was one of great success both in the pastorate and episcopate. Though eighty-three years of age, he was, until his present illness, an untiring and successful worker, not only in the local church work in and near his residence, but out in the church generally. He gave but little evidence of his great age.

Exploration of New Guinea.

* * * "In connexion with the Waltham Watch Company, it may be stated that when the proprietors of The Age desired to present Mr. G. E. Morrison (the explorer of New Guinea) with a reliable chronometer, acting upon the advice of Mr. R. L. J. Ellery, the Government Astronomer, two Waltham were, however, procured for Mr. Morrison instead. These were kept at the Melbourne Observatory for a fortnight, and thoroughly and carefully tested, and were pronounced by Mr. Ellery, at the end of that time, to be better suited for Mr. Morrison's requirements than any chronometer."—Extract from the Melbourne Age.

To All Retail Druggists.

St. Paul Minn. March 1884. Our sales of Dr. Halliday's Blood Purifier have been large and increasing. We commend it to you as a good selling and satisfactory article to deal in. Respectfully, Noyes Bros. & Cutler, wholesale Druggists.

When Preaching Night After Night.

DR. C. D. WARNER: Dear Sir—Last winter I was very much troubled with my throat, especially when preaching night after night. I received the bottle of White Wine Tar Syrup you so kindly sent me, and am glad to say I was much benefited by its use and I regard it as a most excellent medicine for the throat and lungs.

Respectfully,
Pink Hill, Mo. REV. W. F. WAGONER.

For 25 years I have been afflicted with Catarrh so that I have been confined to my room for two months at a time. I have tried all the humbugs in hopes of relief but to no success until I met with an old friend who had used Ely's Cream Balm and advised me to try it. I procured a bottle to please him, and from the first application I found relief. It is the best remedy I have ever tried.—W. C. MATHEWS, Justice of the Peace, Shenandoah, Iowa.

Universally Approved.

J. A. Rogers, M. D., of Kenton, O., says: I must say Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup has been universally approved by my customers; never hear any complaints about it here; sold it for years.

Nature.

Dame Nature is the great teacher and physician, and Carboline, made from pure petroleum, is one of her grandest remedies for baldness. Try it and you will use no other.

Headache is immediately relieved by the use of Piso's Remedy for Catarrh.

S. Blackford, 274 East 7th St., St. Paul, Minn: Proprietor of Dr. Halliday's Blood Purifier. Sir.—We are pleased to say that our sales of Dr. Halliday's remedies are constantly increasing and we hear only words of the highest commendation of their merits. Yours Truly, Merrill, Sahlgaard & Thwing, wholesale druggists.

Try Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator and be convinced that it can cure all bilious disorders.

Reminiscences of Rochester.

The Falls of the Genesee and Sam Patch's Fatal Leap—One of its Business Houses and its Great Magnitude.

The present floods, which are either devastating or threatening the country in every direction, are justly cause for apprehension. No matter whether they come suddenly or by slow degrees, they are, in either case, a great evil and much to be dreaded, and yet America will always be troubled by these spring overflows. Probably one of the most disastrous that was ever known, occurred in Rochester, N. Y., about twenty years ago. The Genesee river, just above the falls, where Sam Patch made his fatal leap, became completely blockaded by ice, forming an impassable dam, and the water coming down the Genesee river overflowed the principal portion of the city of Rochester. This catastrophe would have been repeated the present year had not the energy and foresight of the city authorities prevented it. The writer happened to be in Rochester at that time and was greatly interested in the manner in which this great catastrophe was averted. Every few moments, a roar like the peals of thunder or the booming of cannon would be heard, and in order to see this ice blasting process, the writer went to the top of the new Warner building, which overlooks the Genesee river. From here he was not only enabled to see the process uninterruptedly, but also the magnificent building which has just been completed. This is unquestionably the finest building devoted to business and manufacturing purposes in America, being entirely fireproof, eight stories high, and containing over four and a quarter acres of flooring. Mr. Warner treated your correspondent very courteously, and in the course of the conversation said:

"We are doing a tremendous business and are far behind in our orders. This is the season of the year when people, no matter how strong their constitution may be, feel, more or less the pain and indisposition, the headaches, colds, neuralgia, rheumatism, dull pains, sore throats, coughs—all the 1,001 ills that flesh is heir to come this time of the year, if at all. It is natural, therefore, that we should be very busy. This is specially true of our Safe Rheumatic Cure, and it is crowding us very sharply for a new remedy."

"Singular, but I had forgotten that you do not advertise to cure all diseases from one bottle, as is done generally by many other medicine men, but I suppose Warner's Safe Cure was for the cure of rheumatism."

"And so it has been until our remedy which was especially for rheumatism and neuralgia, was introduced. We have been three years perfecting this new remedy. Study first taught us there were certain powerful elements in Warner's Safe cure, better known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, that made wonderful cures in chronic and acute rheumatism, but during our investigation, we learned of a remarkable cure at a celebrated springs, and put experts to investigate and found that the springs did not contain any valuable properties, but the course of treatment that was being given there was performing all the benefit. By carefully combining the active principles of this remedy with our Safe cure, we have produced our Safe Rheumatic Cure, and the cures it is effecting are simply wonderful, and I do not doubt it will become as popular as our Safe Cure."

"You seem to talk freely in regard to your remedies and appear to have no secrets, Mr. Warner."

"None whatever. The physician with his hundred calls and one hundred diseases, is necessarily compelled to guess at a great deal. We are enabled to follow up and perfect, while physicians can only experiment with their hundred patients and hundred diseases. With the ordinary physician, the code binds him down, so that if he makes a discovery he is bound to give it to the other physicians, which, of course, discourages investigation, to a great extent, this is why the great discoveries in medical science of late years have been made by chemists and scientists and not by physicians, and it in a measure accounts for the great value of our remedies, also for the remarkable success of all those doctors who make a speciality of one or two diseases."

"And you find that you are curing as great a number of people as ever before?"

"Yes, a far greater number. We never sold so much of our medicine as now and never knew of so many remarkable cures."

The writer departed after the above interview, but was greatly impressed, not only by the sincerity of Mr. Warner, but by the vastness of all he saw. Mr. Warner's medicines are used throughout the entire length and breadth of the land, and we doubt not the result they are effecting are really as wonderful as they are related to be.

Dr. Laws is convinced that Kansas really has the foot and mouth disease.

SUDDEN CHANGES OF THE WEATHER are productive of Throat Diseases, Coughs, Colds, etc. There is no more effectual relief in these diseases to be found than in the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. Price 25 cts.

After long Mercury and Potash treatment, I found myself a cripple from Mercurial Rheumatism. Tried Hot Springs two years without relief, and was finally cured sound and well by the use of Swift's Specific (S. S. S). CHAS. BERG, Hot Springs, Arkansas.

J. W. Jacobs, a New York merchant, went crazy Sunday over Salmi Morse's death.

"Rough on Rats," clears out Rats, Mice. 15c. Mother Swan's Worm Syrup, tasteless. 25c. "Rough on Coughs" Troches, 15c; liquid 50c.

Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters invigorate the Liver. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

For Nausea, dizziness and sick headache, Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator has no equal.

California made 880,000 pounds of salt from sea water in 1883.

Well's May Apple (Liver) Pills, 10c. "Rough on Toothache," instant relief. 15c. The "Rough on Tooth" Powder, elegant. 15c.

The Bennington, Vt., postmaster's (Tiffany's) default aggregates about $5,000.

"Our Experience"

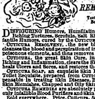
with Allen's Lung Balsam for colds and coughs has been of the most satisfactory character, writes the editor of a leading paper. He is only one in thousands who has tried this "Balsam," and has been convinced of its virtue and merits.

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms; also as a preventive against Fever and Ague, and other Intermittent Fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphorated Elixir of Calisaya," made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all Druggists, is the best tonic; and for patients recovering from Fever or other sickness, it has no equal.

John Knighton was shot dead at Clinton, Ia., by his brother-in-law John Kent.

"Buchu-paiba," Great Kidney and Urinary Cure. $1. "Rough on Corns," for Corns, Warts, Bunions. 15c. Wells' Health Renewer cures Dyspepsia, Impotence

Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) has relieved me of an obstinate case of Dry Tetter, which had troubled me for twenty-five years and had baffled all sorts of treatment. Rev. I. R. BRANHAM, Macon, Ga.



"I owe my Restoration to Health and Beauty to the CUTICURA REMEDIES."

Testimonial of a Boston lady.

DISFIGURING Humors, Humiliating Eruptions, Itching Tortures, Scrofula, Salt Rheum and Infantile Humors, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and thus removes the cause.

CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure, and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers.

Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents; Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON, MASS.

The Most Popular Medicine Extant

Allen's Lung Balsam!

A REMEDY THAT WILL CURE

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, CROUP,

All Diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Pulmonary Organs.

THE LUNG BALSAM
Has cured Consumption when other remedies and physicians have failed to effect a cure.

THE LUNG BALSAM
Contains no Opium in any form.

THE LUNG BALSAM
Is strictly pure and harmless to the most delicate person.

THE LUNG BALSAM
Is recommended by Physicians, Ministers and Nurses.

THE LUNG BALSAM
For Croup is a safe and sure Remedy. Mothers, try it.

THE LUNG BALSAM
Should be used at the first manifestations of a Cold or Cough.

THE LUNG BALSAM
As an Expectorant has no equal.

CAUTION.—Be not deceived. Call for ALLEN'S Lung Balsam, and take no other. Directions accompany each bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO. Limited, Cincinnati, O.
PROPRIETORS.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE DEALERS.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

The want of a reliable diuretic which, while acting as a stimulant of the kidneys, neither excites nor irritates them, was long since supplied by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This fine medicine exerts the requisite degree of stimulation upon these organs, without producing irritation, and is, therefore, far better adapted for the purpose than unmedicated excitants often restored to. Dyspepsia, fever and ague, and kindred diseases, are all cured by it. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

WATCH Free! 50 Satin Gloss Chromo Cards 10c. Latest designs, 19 pks. $1, and a Musical Watch free. Sample album 25c. W. F. AUSTIN, New Haven, Ct.

Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

WHY NOT! Write and get the best chance to make money easy. Bran new idea. J. E. BICKNELL & CO., Brockton, Mass.

PATENTS NO PATENT, NO PAY. R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Full instructions and hand-book on PATENTS SENT FREE.

GUNS Sent on approval. Catalogue Free. Fishing Tackle, Base Ball Goods, Boxing Gloves and Sporting Goods, &c. SUKER & SKINNER, Rockford, Ill.

PISO'S REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Easy to use. A certain cure. Not expensive. Three months' treatment in one package. Good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Dizziness, Hay Fever, &c. Fifty cents. By all Druggists, or by mail.
E. T. HAZELTINE, Warren, Pa.

SIX REASONS WHY THE SASKATCHEWAN FIFE WHEAT Is the Best Hard Wheat in the World.

1st. Because it will yield from 5 to 25 bushels more to the acre than the common Fife.
2d. Because it is the purest Hard Fife Wheat known.
3d. Because it is perfectly healthy, being free from blight and smut.
4th. Because on account of its great tendency to stool one bushel of seed to the acre is sufficient.
5th. Because it is from three days to two weeks earlier than the common Fife.
6th. Because the great millers of Minneapolis have pronounced it the finest hard milling wheat in existence.

PRICES REDUCED.

We have a few car loads of this celebrated Wheat left, which we will sell, at the following reduced prices:
In 25 bushel lots............$3 75 per bu.
In 50 bushel lots............3 50 per bu.
In 100 bushel lots and upwards.....3 00 per bu.

CAUTION.—The market is full of spurious Wheat, sold under the name of the Saskatchewan Fife. Send to the Originators and Proprietors of the Genuine Seed for their 16-page pamphlet, giving its full history and terms. Address,
W. J. ABERNETHY & CO., Minneapolis.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE! BEST IN THE WORLD. Get the Genuine. Sold Everywhere.

Agents wanted to sell the best solid perfume made. Sample 10c. Clinton Perfume Co., Clintonville, Ct.

LOST MANHOOD Restored. Cure guaranteed. Sample remedy, 10c. MORRIS & Co., Weedsport, N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE to sell the best Family Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit a pair of stockings with HEEL and TOE complete, in 20 minutes. It will also knit a great variety of fancy-work for which there is always a ready market. Send for circular and terms to the Twombly Knitting Machine Co., 163 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Any man or woman making less than $40 per week, should try our money-making business. Requires no talking and pays best of any. It will pay you to read our papers. $1 samples free to those who mean business. Exclusive territory given. Address, with 2c. stamp, R. H. Merrill & Co., Chicago.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.
DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York

FREE INFORMATION ABOUT THE SOUTHWEST.

Kansas, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, California and Old Mexico OFFER THE BEST FIELD for Farmers, Fruit-Growers, Stock-Raisers, Capitalists, Merchants, Miners and Mechanics of all grades. Maps, papers and pamphlets, giving detailed information, MAILED FREE on application to
C. B. SCHMIDT,
Com'r of Immigration, A. T. & S. F. R. R., Topeka, Kansas.

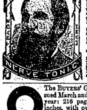
WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM

HEALS DISEASED LUNGS AND CURES COUGHS AND COLDS.

Made only by Dr. FRANK POWELL, Medicine Chief of the Winnebago Indians. LA CROSSE, WIS. Sold by all Druggists

THE DINGEE & CONARD CO'S BEAUTIFUL EVER-BLOOMING ROSES

The only establishment making a SPECIAL BUSINESS of ROSES. 60 LARGE HOUSES for ROSES alone. We GIVE AWAY, in Premiums and Extras, more ROSES than most establishments grow. Strong Pot Plants suitable for immediate bloom delivered safely, postpaid, to any post office. 5 splendid varieties, your choice, all labeled, for $1; 12 for $2; 19 for $3; 26 for $4; 35 for $5; 75 for $10; 100 for $13. Our NEW GUIDE, a complete Treatise on the Rose, 70 pp. elegantly illustrated FREE.
THE DINGEE & CONARD CO.
Rose Growers, West Grove, Chester Co., Pa.



Nerve Tonic.

A Positive Remedy for all forms of Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Spinal Affections, Chorea, Sympathetic Nervous Derangement of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, and all other Nervous Diseases.

Price: $1.00 per bottle or 6 for $5.00. Sent by express on receipt of money.

Send stamp for circular.

Address, DR. SPINNEY & CO., 10½ South Third St., Minneapolis, Minn. Also for sale by Druggists.

O The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year: 216 pages, 8½ x 11¼ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—7 cents. Let us hear from you.
Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

S.S.S.

CAUTION.

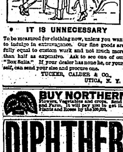
Swift's Specific is entirely a vegetable preparation, and should not be confounded with the various substitutes, imitations, non-secret humbugs, "Succus Alterans," etc., etc., which are now being manufactured by various persons. None of these contain a single article which enters into the composition of S. S. S. There is only one Swift's Specific and there is nothing in the world like it. To prevent disaster and disappointment, be sure to get the genuine.

Swift's Specific is a complete antidote to Blood Taint, Blood Poison, Malarial Poison and Skin Humor. J. DICKSON SMITH, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

I have had remarkable success with Swift's Specific in the treatment of Blood and Skin Diseases, and in Female Diseases. I took it myself for Carbuncles with happy effect.
D. O. C. HENRY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

I used Swift's Specific on my little daughter, who was afflicted with some Blood Poison which had resisted all sorts of treatment. The Specific relieved her permanently, and I shall use it in my practice.
W. E. BRONTE, M. D., Cyprus Ridge, Ark.

Our treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants.
SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.
New York Office, 159 West 23d St.



IT IS UNNECESSARY

To be measured for clothing now, unless you want to indulge in extravagance. Our fine goods are fully equal to custom work and not much more than half as expensive. Ask to see one of our "Box Suits." If your dealer has none he, or yourself, can send your size and procure one.
TUCKER, CALDER & CO.,
UTICA, N. Y.

Thousands Hastened to their Graves!

Relying on testimonials written in vivid glowing langdage of some miraculous cures made by some largely puffed up doctor or patent medicine has hastened thousands to their graves believing in their almost insane faith that the same miracle will be performed on them, and that these testimonials make the cures, while the so called medicine is all the time hastening them to their grave. We have avoided publishing testimonials, as they do not make the cures, although we have

THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS of them, of the most wonderful cures, voluntarily sent us. It is our medicine Hop Bitters that makes the cures. It has never failed and never can. We will give reference to any one for any disease similar to their own if desired, or will refer to any neighbor, as there is not a neighborhood in the known world but can show its cures by Hop Bitters.

A LOSING JOKE.

A prominent physician of Pittsburgh said to a lady patient who was complaining of her continued ill health, and of his inability to cure her, jokingly said: "Try Hop Bitters!" The lady took it in earnest and used the Bitters, from which she obtained permanent health. She now laughs at the doctor for his joke, but he is not so well pleased with it, as it cost him a good patient.

FEES OF DOCTORS.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in. We believe the schedule for visits is $3.00, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

A LADY'S WISH.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe."

GIVEN UP BY THE DOCTORS.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters, and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die, from Kidney and Liver trouble!"

Agents Wanted

Our elegant new Sewing Machine, High Arm, latest and best. Tucker, Ruffler and full outfit free. All the latest improvements. Warranted five years. Machines on trial. A new Singer Machine with all attachments warranted, $14.25. No better can be bought at any price. Circulars and testimonials free. The Champion Sewing Machine Co., Chicago, Ill.

SICK FOLKS Folks should send a three cent stamp for a free book of nearly 100 large octavo pages, full of valuable notes by Dr. E. B. Foote, the author of

MEDICAL COMMON SENSE AND PLAIN HOME TALK,

FREE on Scrofula, Diseases of Men and Women, and all chronic ailments, with the evidences of their curability. Address Murray Hill Pub. Co., Box 788, New York City. BOOK

30 DAYS' TRIAL.

ELECTRO-VOLTAIC BELT and other ELECTRIC APPLIANCES are sent on 30 Days' Trial TO MEN ONLY, YOUNG OR OLD, who are suffering from NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, REDUCED VITALITY, DEBILITY, and all diseases of a kindred nature, resulting from whatever causes. Speedy relief and complete restoration to Health, Vigor and Strength guaranteed. Send at once for Illustrated Pamphlet free. Address

Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich.

CATARRH Ely's Cream Balm

ELY'S CREAM BALM CURES COLD IN HEAD
CATARRH
ROSE-COLD
HAY-FEVER
DEAFNESS
HEADACHE
PRICE 50 CENTS
ELY BRO'S. OWEGO, N.Y. U.S.A.

when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. Price, 50 cents, by mail, or at druggists.

HAY-FEVER

ELY BROTHERS, Owego, N. Y.

THIS NEW ELASTIC TRUSS

EGGLESTON'S SENSIBLE TRUSS

Has a Pad different from all others, is cup shape, with Self-Adjusting Ball in center, adapts itself to all positions of the body while the ball in the cup presses back the intestines just as a person does with the finger. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circulars free. EGGLESTON TRUSS CO., Chicago, Ill.

SAMARITAN NEVER FAILS NERVINE THE GREAT NERVE CONQUEROR

A SPECIFIC FOR Epilepsy, Spasms, Convulsions, Falling Sickness, St. Vitus Dance, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Syphilis, Scrofula, Kings Evil, Ugly Blood Diseases, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Sick Headache, Rheumatism, Nervous Weakness, Brain Worry, Blood Sores, Biliousness, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Kidney Troubles and Irregularities. $1.50.

Sample Testimonials.

"Samaritan Nervine is doing wonders."
Dr. J. O. McLemoin, Alexander City, Ala.

"I feel it my duty to recommend it."
Dr. D. F. Laughlin, Clyde, Kansas.

"It cured where physicians failed."
Rev. J. A. Edie, Beaver, Pa.

Correspondence freely answered.
For testimonials and circulars send stamp.
The Dr. S. A. Richmond Med. Co., St. Joseph, Mo.
Sold by all Druggists. (17)
Lord, Stoutenburgh & Co., Agents, Chicago, Ill.

BUY NORTHERN GROWN SEEDS. Produce by all odds the finest Flowers, Vegetables and crops. Send for new Catalogue; contains everything for Garden, House and Farm. It will pay you to get it. Largest stock of pure Farm Seeds in the West. Beautiful Plants and Roses by the 100,000.
JOHN A. SALZER, La Crosse, Wis.

DIPHTHERIA

CROUP, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, Neuralgia, Rheumatism. JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT (for Internal and External Use) will instantly relieve these terrible diseases, and will positively cure nine cases out of ten. Information that will save many lives sent free by mail. Don't delay a moment. Prevention is better than cure. JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT CURES Influenza, Hoarseness, Hacking Cough, Whooping Cough, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus, Kidney Troubles, and Lame Back. Sold everywhere. Circulars sent FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

If you are Interested

In the inquiry—Which is the best Liniment for Man and Beast?—this is the answer, attested by two generations: the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. The reason is simple. It penetrates every sore, wound, or lameness, to the very bone, and drives out all inflammatory and morbid matter. It "goes to the root" of the trouble, and never fails to cure in double quick time.

STROWBRIDGE BROAD-CAST

SEED SOWER

THE BEST, CHEAPEST and SIMPLEST. Sows all grains, grass seeds, lime, salt, ashes, fertilizers—and everything requiring broadcasting—any quantity per acre, better and faster than by any other method. Saves seed by sowing it perfectly even. Sows single or double cast, all on either or both sides of wagon. Not affected by wind, as the seed is not thrown up into the air. Perfectly simple. Readily attached to any wagon. Lasts a life-time. Can be used wherever a wagon can be driven. Team walking one mile sows four acres of wheat. Crop one-fourth larger than when drilled. Send stamp for circulars giving terms and testimonials. Mention this paper.
C. W. DORR, Treasurer,
RACINE SEEDER CO., Des Moines, Iowa.

SEED CORN NORTHERN GROWN, VERY EARLY. Also, Flower, Vegetable and Field Seeds. 44 New Varities of Potatoes. Order early. Catalogue Free. FRED. N. LANG, Baraboo, Wis.

AGENTS WANTED for the best and fastest selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publishing Co., Chicago, Ill.

LONGING.

Taken from Matthew Arnold's Poems.

Come to me in my dreams, and then
By day I shall be well again!
For then the night will more than pay
The hopeless longing of the day.

Come as thou cam'st a thousand times,
A messenger from radiant climes;
And smile on thy new world and be
As kind to others as to me.

Or, as thou never cam'st in sloth,
Come now and let me dream it truth,
And part my hair and kiss my brow,
And say: "My love, why sufferest thou!"

Come to me in my dreams, and then
By day I shall be well again!
For then the night will more than pay
The hopeless longing of the day.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

From the Detroit Free Press.

"Feyther," said Mrs. Stebbins, holding up a thick envelope. 'Here's a let ter for you. 'Taint from brother Wil nor from Sile's wife. Whose been a writin' tew you, d' you think?"

Farmer Stebbins took off his warm coon-skin cap, tied the ears together, and hung it up; then he felt in each pocket for his horn spectacles.

"They're in the Bible where you left them last night, pa," said his daughter. Then she produced them, and he fitted them over his nose and held the letter out a good arm's length before him.

"J-o-h-n J-a-c-o-b S-t-e-b-b-i-n-s," read the old farmer slowly and in a loud voice. "That's me for sure. Now the question is, as you say, whose been an' writ to me."

"For mercy sake, do open it," said Mrs. Stebbins. "I shall fly if you set there and finger it any more 'ithout knowin' what it means."

"Yes, pa, do read it," urged the daughter. "Maybe its an offer of a school for me."

"Like enuff! like enuff!" answered her father. "Let's see what the postmark is. Why, its Bosting. Bosting ez sure ez I'm a livin' man."

"Call me if you happen to need me," said Mrs. Stebbins, with a fine sarcasm. "I'm goin' out to set the salt-risen' for the bread."

"Gimme the stamp, pop," said John Jacob Stebbins, Jr. "They're don't nobody rite to us only Hetty's beau, and he don't send enny thing but postal keerds."

By this time Mr. Stebbins had slowly and laboriously succeeded in getting the envelope off the letter. A bank check for $10,000 fell out. It was beautifully printed in green and gold, and indorsed on its back with the name on its face; not a line accompanied it.

"G-r-e-a-t Jerusalem!" exclaimed the farmer, "here's a windfall. Now who do you suppose wife ever sent me sich a heap of money?"

"The land knows," said his wife, who had done nothing but stare at the check.

"D'ye suppose Uncle Silas has come back from furin parts. and died and left me his hull estate?"

"He never did sich a a thing before," aid Mrs. Stebbins, innocently.

"We can move into town now," said Miss Hetty, proudly.

"So we kin," said John Jacob, Jr., "and I'll have a vlosspedo and a bisikel and wear plaid close and bang my hair, hooray! Won't we big apples swim tho'."

"Stop your noise," said the perplexed farmer, looking in the direction of a birchen stick that protruded from the clock-shelf. "You needn't think you'll git all you want 'cos I,m rich. I can find lots of places for money, an' don't you forget it, young man!"

"Feyther," said Mrs. Stebbins, "there's only one thing I've allus wanted to hev in case we ever got rich, an' now I kin hev it. It seems too good to be true."

"Some fol-de-rol, I suppose; out with it then, you haven't been half a bad wife and I don't mind letting you hev one silk gown, if it don't come too dear."

"But it ain't a silk gown, feyther," said Mrs. Stebbins bridling.

"Oh, it's a gold neckchain, is it, with a watch dangling on the end, so ye can see how you waste time. Well, if I did get this money easy, I don't stand no sort of chance of foolin' it away. I know its real vally too well."

"I guess what's yours is mine," said Mrs. Stebbins shortly.

"An' what's mine is my own; I am going to build on a new wing on the house with this, and buy in some fine stock and the meadow lot so Hetty can live with us when she gits married to Jim Vance."

"Indeed! Jim Vance! I guess I'll go to the city and get acquainted with folks, now we've got money," said Miss Hetty. "Jim is only a common farmer boy; not but what he is a good fellow but mebbe I can do better now."

John Jacob Jr., gave a long whistle. "I wouldn't giv up Jim till I see the other feller, Het," he said provokingly.

"It's time the bread-risin' was set," suggested Hetty to her mother.

"You can set it then," retorted Mrs. Stebbins crossly; "I've worked and slaved for your feyther nigh on to thirty years, and he never refused me before, but money hes made him hard-hearted."

"Mercy on us, woman, what is it you want?" he growled.

"A—a—camel's hair shawl all—all border," sobbed his wife.

"Great Jerusalem, woman, there isn't a camel nearer'n a thousand miles of us. How kin I get hair to make yer a shawl?"

"He never called me 'woman' before," sobbed his wife. "To think I should ever be called 'a woman' by my own husband, too. Oh John Jacob Stebbins, what a shame to let money harden your very soul in this here way."

"It's enough to drive a man destracted, crazy," said the farmer, stamping around the room; "you, John, go and feed the caows. I clean forgot them."

"I ain't agoin' to feed no caows enny more; you kin hire another man," said the youth, spreading himself.

Mr. Stebbins rose and took down the means of grace from behind the clock, but with a mocking laugh the youth fled out of reach.

"What's the matter with you, Hetty?" asked the unhappy man, as he saw large tears rolling down his daughter's face.

"Oh, pa, it's so hard to bear. Just to think that I—boo—hoo—may have to wear diamond ear-rings, and I (sob—sob) never had my ears bored."

"I'd mighty glad to change places with you," muttered the angry farmer. Then, going up to his wife he placed his hand on her bony shoulder.

"Come, wife, cheer up. If there's a camel to be had for love or money, you shall have that shawl. I s'pose I mought as well give in fust as last. Cheer up, old woman!"

"Old woman!" shrieked Mrs. Stebbins. "He calls me old. Have I lived all these long years to have that man tell me to my face I'm old. John Jacob Stebbins, I hate you! I s-o-o-r-n you! Keep your money! I'm a-goin' to leave you! Yes! I will hev somethin' new. I'll hev a divorce!"

Mrs. Stebbins threw her check apron over her head and sobbed aloud.

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the bewildered man, "what's going to come next? Hetty, me and your mother never hed a rale quarr'l yet, and here she is a-sassin' me to my face; it's all on akkount of that miserable consarned money. Take the check and send it back to the unknown fiend as sent it; nary cent of it will I tech."

"I ain't afraid of it, pa," said Hetty, wiping her tears away. Then she began to examine the check with a look of sudden interest. At last she exclaimed loudly:

"Why, pa! You never read it!"

Then she laughed; slowly at first, then louder and harder till she had a regular fit of hysterics. Mrs. Stebbins ran for remedies and Mr. Stebbins pounded on her back. When she got her breath again she nearly repeated the operation and each time that she looked at the check she went into spasms of laughter.

"Its nothin'" she gasped, with reference to the check she still held in her extended hand, "nothin' in the world but an advertisement."

"The fools ain't all dead yet," said the farmer dryly; "I might ha' knowed there was a catch somewhere."

"I must set the bread risin'," said his wife demurely, as she folded her tent like the Arabs and silently stole away.

"I fed the critters," said John Jacob, Jr., who had been listening at the door, and put in a shame-faced appearance.

"I'm thankful I escaped a livin' man," said the farmer, as he tore the bogus check into a thousand pieces.

"There's a man at the door," said Hetty. "Why, it's Jim Vance—dear Jim," and she hastened to welcome him in.

THE TASTE FOR ROMANCE.

Old People Who Are Anxious to Know How the Story "Will Come Out."

Gertrude Garrison.

I asked Mr. Bonner if he had never found it necessary to make any new departures in consequence of the changes in literary taste; if the same order of stories had pleased when people had read less and had less to read pleased now? He said he had in no way altered his original ideas on the subject of editing. He believed human nature to be always the same in any age—yesterday, to-day and forever.

The Ledger's enormous constituency is an index of taste common to all mankind—the taste for romance. All the world likes to read stories. The proiser and more uneventful the lives of the readers, the greater their delight in the exciting fortunes of the heroes and heroines of the novel. Romance rests them. It lifts them out of the dullness of every-day life, opens wide the gate which leads in the fair field of fancy and bids them walk therein and refresh their jaded souls. Existence is to sad and comfortless for many that to escape from it for a little while, even in imagination, by means of a serial that puts its heroine in continued jeopardy and only extricates her from a complicated series of misfortunes after the villain has met his just doom and her lover has inherited a large fortune, is a luxury not to be despised. Not only do all mankind like romance, but the majority like it strong, extravagant; yes, even impossible.

It is a mistake to suppose that only the young care for fiction. I have seen old, old men and women, hovering dangerously near the grave, who were the most confirmed and absorbed of novel readers, particularly Ledger readers. Having relied on it for romantic food for many years, they no more thought of giving it up than they thought of going barefooted—couldn't have done so without suffering.

Mr. Bonner told me of a good old man, pious and proper, who lived in a Connecticut village and was the mainstay of one of the godliest of churches, who tottered down to the post-office regularly every week to get the Ledger. A relative of anti-novel prejudices, who was visiting his family, expressed her astonishment that he would read "novels." "Oh, my dear, this is only a bit of a newspaper story," said the honest old man, and went on with his sturdy fore-finger under the lines, chasing a black-eyed heroine through a page and a half of sorrow and tribulation.

As another instance of an elderly person's fondness for stories, Mr. Bonner told this: When foreman of the Mirror office he took his proofs home to read at nights. A serial by Charles F. Briggs, called the "Trippings of Tom Pepper," was being published. It was biographical in character, and related the ups and downs of Mr. Pepper's eventful career very graphically beginning with his early childhood. Mr. Bonner's mother read each chapter in the proof, and grew quite impatient at the delay between installments. When her son laughed at her interest in the protracted "fib" she said, "Why, Robert, I want to see how the little fellow came out." And so they all want to see how the characters they grow interested in come out.

Hating People.

From the Catholic Herald.

Hate not. It is not worth while. Your life is not long enough to make it pay to cherish ill will or hard thoughts toward anyone. What if that man has cheated you or that woman played you false? What if this friend has forsaken you in your time of need, or that one having won your utmost confidence, your warmest love, has concluded that he prefers to consider and treat you as a stranger? Let it all pass. What difference will it make to you in a few years, when you go hence to the "undiscovered country?" All who treat you wrong now will be more sorry for it than you, even in your disappointment and grief, can be. A few more smiles, a few more tears, some pleasure, much pain, a little longer hurrying and worrying in the world, some hasty greetings and abrupt farewells, and life will be over, and the injurer and injured will be laid away and ere long forgotten. It is not worth while to hate each other.

General John Pope, of the army, intends to take up his permanent residence in Milwaukee, next fall. His wife and children will spend the summer there and prepare a house for him

THE FRANCO-GERMAN WAR.

Interesting Reminiscences of the Great One-Sided Conflict.

Archibald Forbes in the English Illustrated Magazine.

Perhaps in all history there is no episode so barren of touches of nature as was the Second Empire. From first to last it was a mere scaffolding of meretricious artificiality. There was the sham Cæsar, flaccid person with a knack of uttering obscurities conveying a vague flavor of ominousness at which the nations pricked their sensitive ears. The inner line of the empire was a strange mixture of rottenness and gimcrackery. What a court! The atmosphere of Compiegne had a confused aroma of bastardy, the demi-monde, the bourse, bogus nobility, journalism in the degradation of prostitution, militaryism, half bravo, half galant; of intrigue, of dissoluteness of insincerity, of ghastly hollowness. It is among the most humiliating problems of modern times how long this nasty gaudy caricature of empire was able to impose on the world. It is a poor consolation for the world's long self-delusion that when the windbag was once resolutely pricked, it should have collapsed with such headlong swiftness. The humiliating memory cannot out of that eighteen-year-long imposition.

I have seen Napoleon III at the pinnacle of his hollow splendor. From the German picket line on the 2d of August, 1870, I heard the distant cheering on the Snicherenberg that greeted him and the lad whom he had brought from Metz to receive his "baptism of fire." Again I saw him on the morning after Sedan, as the broken man—broken in power, in prestige, in health, in spirits—sat with Bismarck on the grass plot in front of the weaver's cottage on the Donchery road. Next morning he witnessed his departure into his Wilhelmshohe captivity. I have seen him doddering about Brighton and strolling under the Beech trees that encircle Chislehurst Common. And for the last time of all I saw that stolid careworn face, as it lay on the raised pillow of the beir in the broad corridor of Camden Place; and when the face was no more visible I witnessed the coffin laid down in the little chapel among the Chislehurst elm trees. I knew the boy of the empire when the shackles of the empire had fallen from his limbs, and he was no longer a buckram creature, but a lively, natural lad. My acquaintance endured into his manhood. When the twilight was falling on the rolling veldt of Zululand, and his day's work in the staff tent was done, he liked, as it seemed to me, to gossip with one who knew the other side of the picture, about the early days of the Franco-German war—a war that had wrought at once his ruin and his emancipation. And finally, poor gallant lad! I saw dimly through tears the very last of him, as he lay there dead on the blood-stained sward by the Ityotyosi river, with a calm proud smile on his face, and his body pierced by countless assegai stabs. Men have called his death ignoble. Petty as was the quarrel, wretched as was the desertion that wrought his fate, I call him, rather, happy in the opportunity of his death. Had he lived, what of artificiality, what of hollow unreality might there not have been in store for him! As it was, he had moved in the world a live ghost. Better than this, surely, to be a dead hero:—to end the Napoleonic zero-comedy with his young face gallantly to his assailants, and his life-blood drawn by the cold steel!

I do not know how the palace of St. Cloud looks now, but when I saw it last it was a ghastly fire-blackened wreck. A German picket of infantry men were quartered in the roofless salon, where they had built themselves a shelter of a kind of scyrched tapestrie, and singed carpet scraps. A troop of Uhlan recruits were practicing the manege on the little bend bordered by the stream—a spot that had been the empress' flower garden. Six months earlier who, in the wildest speculation of fancy, could have imagined the possibility of such a fate as this for the beautiful chateau? There was the gaunt framework of a bow window whose outlook was up the Seine in the direction of Paris; this was the chief window, I was told, of the room that had been the private bureau—the "study," as we should perhaps call it—of the Emperor Napoleon. At that window he sat late on the after noon of 16th July, 1870. It was a fair scene that lay before him. Out on the lawn close under his eye was the toy railroad track that had been one of the rare playthings of his boy. But it was hardly a time for admiring scenery or thinking about toys. The dreamy-eyed man with his head on his chest had more serious food for reflection. War had been declared. The Germans were mobililing like clock-work; the French were trying to mobilize, and finding that the attempt produced chaos. Ollivier had proclaimed his lightness of heart in taking the arbitrement of war. It was in the council chamber next door where Le Bœuf had proclaimed the army ready to the last button on the last soldier's gaiter. But the gloomy, brooding man shared none of Ollivier's insouciance; and he knew too well how hollow had been Le Bœuf's swagger. Ever a puppet, whose wires men with stouter will pulled, he was never a stupid man. His intelligence was so keen as to impair his happiness; had he been a duller man, he would have had a much better time of his spell of empire. He saw himself poised between the all but certainty of a revolution and the all but desperate chances of a war. In the one direction there was no hope; in the other he could not but realize there was only a forlorn hope. For he had read those ruthlessly lucid letters of Stoffel, detailing the German preparedness; he had seen that loyal officer's finger of warning held sternly and nakedly aloft. He knew that the sham empire had deterioroted the once puissant French army into nearly as great a sham as itself.

In Butte, Montana, there is a G. A. R. post and a post of Confederate veterans. They work in harmony, turn out in holiday processions and occasionally hold union meetings.

Senator Morrill, of Vermont, is the oldest member of the upper house, he having just passed his 74th birthday. Mr. Kenna, of West Virginia, who is but 34, is the youngest [illegible]

F. W. Smith of Glens Falls went into his saw mill to start the machinery, and was hit on the head by a revolving wheel, killing him almost instantly.

FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE.

Miscellaneous Farming Notes.

An experienced breeder of farm horses gives as his opinion that the best animal for the farm is that produced by crossing the thoroughbred (the running horse) on large, coarse mares. If the mares are partly Norman or Clydesdale, so much the better; but the use of the thoroughbred insures stamina, endurance, and vigor. The small but hard bones of the thoroughbred are heavily covered with muscle, and the horses of that breed are famous for speed, courage, and power. The cross produces a horse very similar to the Clevelands, and such horses are not only well adapted for nearly all purposes on the farm, but do not fail till well advanced in years.

Dr. R. Bayley of Derby, Vt., writes: "There are many who have not learned that it is not the feed which makes the stock do well, but the relish with which they eat that which is fed them. A good appetite gives clean mangers and clean mangers give a good appetite. I never like to feed anything, either hay, straw or corn fodder so poor that my stock will not clean their mangers in at least one and one-half hours."

Professor Browne, of the Canadian School of Agriculture, says Dr. Hoskins, asserts, on the strongest possible grounds—by evidence indisputable, again and again proved by actual trial in various temperatures, with a variety of the same animals, variously conducted—that for fast and cheap production of pork, raw peas are fifty per cent. cheaper than cooked peas or Indian corn in any shape. This seems to corroborate the experience of quite a number of persons.

A vote was reached on the 15th inst., on the resolution advising the governor to pardon Finis Allen, and resulted in its passage by 20 to 9. No other business was transacted in the house. The state veterinary surgeon bill provoked a lengthy discussion, resulting in its reference to the committee on agriculture. A bill levying a special half mill tax for the ensuing two years passed. This will make the state tax exactly what it has been the past two years.

There is no reason why, on the majority of farms, the kitchen and the small fruit gardens should not be large enough to allow of planting sufficiently far apart to permit of horse cultivation. This would do away with one of the greatest objections to a garden in the minds of many farmers.

It is said that 15,000,000 of horses are now owned in America and more than 1,000,000 a year must be fed annually to keep us the supply. The largest portion of these are used for agricultural and heavy draft purposes, and such horses bring from $175 to $250 each.

Carbolic acid is death to all insects in every stage of their growth. A fruit grower in Duchess County, N. Y., whose quince trees were being destroyed by borers, used a mixture of one gallon of soap to two of water and a gill of carbolic acid. This he applied to his trees with complete success, the millers refusing to deposit their eggs on the trees. On another occasion he applied the mixture, which was washed off by frequent rains, when the pests annoyed him seriously. He thinks repeated applications very effectual, and recommends the mixture to all who have orchards.

It is estimated that there are now in the United States 15,000,000 milch cows; and that there are made annually 1,500,000,000 pounds of butter and 450,000 pounds of cheese. In 1880, as shown by the census, 772,204,000 pounds of butter were made on farms and 29,451,000 pounds in factories, and a total of 243,145,000 pounds of cheese. Besides this, over 17,000,000 pounds of oleomargarine were also manufactured.

The watermelon, the muskmelon and cantaloupe, though of distinct genera, are so similar in their habits that they are generally treated under the same head—melons. They are supposed to come from the East, and some cantaloupes are yet called Persian. They are certainly of semi-tropical habits, and the temperate climes and sandy plains of the South are the most favorable to their culture, though they may, with care, be raised in all these States.

Household Notes.

Oatmeal porridge is one of the best things to begin the day with. Those who dislike it should take it as a medicine.

Coarse brown paper soaked in vinegar and placed on the forehead is good for sick headache. If the eyelids are gently bathed in cool water the pain in the head is generally allayed.

A good way to remove dust from a carpet is to fasten a damp cloth over the broom; with this the dust may be literally taken up. This will be found useful in the sick room, and also in any room where there are many small articles to catch dust. It brightens a carpet to wipe it off in this way even after the usual sweeping has been done.

When silk is used for working on cloth a succession of slender leaves of picturesque tints of red and brown should be employed. For this purpose, the native Indian Tussore embroidery silk is best. For working on merino or cashmere, nothing else does so well, for it is as light as a feather and has no tendency to draw the material. For embroidery on satin there is no kind of silk so pleasant to use as the shiny and beautiful filofloss, in which charming results can be obtained.

Concerning Towels.—Huckaback towels of the finest qualities are now chosen in preference to the smooth damask towels that are objectionable by reason of their smoothness, Harper's Bazar says. These old fashioned huckaback towels now come of great size, with diaper figure quite small, yet well raised to make the towel pleasantly rough. Those in plain white are again most liked, but the fanciful colored borders are still seen upon them in Persian patterns and in figures like those of tapestries. The damask towels may also be had with either white or colored borders. For the large Russian bath towels those of cotton are preferred to the rougher linen, and these have new broche borders that imitate Persian embroidery in dark colors. The honeycomb and oatmeal towels for the bath are most durable when bought unbleached.

Home Hints.

Never wash in warm water before going out in the cold air. Such a practice will roughen the skin. Warm water should be used only before retiring.

To Keep Lemons.—When lemons are cheap, it is prudent to lay in a good store of them, as they will keep well by running a fine string through the nib at the end and hanging them up in a dry place, taking care that they do not touch each other.

Painting Woodwork.—Here is a suggestion which should be borne in mind: When you have the woodwork in a room painted it is a good plan to have about two inches of the floor painted also; have the paint the same color as that of the baseboard; then if, when changing carpets, the carpet will not come close to the wall, the little space left will not be so unsightly.

If your windows are narrow, or even if they are of the usual width, and you feel that you cannot afford double curtains, single ones may be draped so gracefully that they will answer admirably. They should not be looped back with ribbons, but be pinned or tacked back in several places. Begin to tack or pin back quite high, or you cannot prevent a drawing and awkward appearance lower down.

Malaria, in 99 cases out of 100 is a synonym for disordered liver. A treatment, the efficacy of which has been proven, is to take a dose of cathartic medicine before indulging in quinine. A goblet of hot (not lukewarm) water, drunk every morning before breakfast, is a potent preventive of shakes and intermittent fever. This simple perscription will be found worth a dollar a line to the victims of malaria.

To make fancy mats or tidies, cut out the required shape in coarse net; obtain a paper pattern of a flower and leaves for wool work, and small piece of canvas not too fine. Lay the canvas and tack it on to the net; work the pattern on in colored silk, or all in gold color; then pull away all the threads of the canvas and leave the worked design on the net. The effect is very pretty and the work easy. The embroidery is of course done in cross-stitch. The net may be edged with delicate lace or white silk fringe. This work is Russian, and small table mats made thus are much used. They are also pretty, made of soft white or colored muslin or satin.

Points About Raising Turkeys.

Correspondent Farm and Home.

The one thing that has paid the past year is turkeys. They had a quick sale at Thanksgiving for 20 cents a pound, and at Christmas for 21 to 23 cents., and the farmers could have had 25 cents., at the last season if they had known as much about the market three days before Christmas as they did three days after. And this price is not exceptional. The average for good New England turkeys for the last twenty years, I believe, will exceed 18 cents a pound, if it does not reach 20 cents.

If a farmer has reasonable "luck"—that is, if he has as good luck as generally comes of intelligent care—he can make 1000 pounds of turkey meat for $100 easy, and sell the same for $200, or, putting it better: A flock of 100 turkeys will not cost him grain fed out, over $75, if they are killed before Thanksgiving, and they ought to average twelve pounds each, which makes 1200 pounds in all, and to sell for 20 cents a pound, or $240. I have raised turkeys for many years, most years with fair success, and, whatever the success, they have always been the best paying production of the farm.

This is my plan: Keep over ten hens and a tom; the hens the best birds in the fall flock; part old and part young. Old hens of good habits are to be preferred. Feed lightly all winter. About March 1 increase the feed and provide places for their nests near the house. When they begin to lay be careful that the eggs do not get chilled. Do all you can to get your turkeys to setting as early as possible. Early turkeys are twice as likely to live as late ones. When the young come off put them in little board pens in a warm place for a week or more, feeding them six or eight times a day with coarse meal and chopped hard-boiled eggs, mixed with water, or, what is better, sour milk. As soon as they are strong enough give them a pasture range at first, then turn them into a meadow, but by all means feed them at noon, and to this end drive them up to the house. This will get them accustomed to coming up for their dinner, and so they will not go far away from home. See that they are always fully fed and safely housed at night, so that foxes and skunks will not and cannot destroy them. Make it a matter of thought to see that your turkeys are safe all summer. Begin to fatten in September and kill for Thanksgiving, and you will be able to put a few dollars in some near savings bank which you may honestly call pay for your care and work and profit in the grain fed. This business cannot be overdone, and I advise farmers to put a few dollars into turkeys for next season (if they can find them) at once.

The Choice of a Sire.

National Live Stock Journal.

If, on careful and sufficient trial, your bull proves a poor breeder, or even a very irregular breeder, "why there's an end o' it," and the only course open to a wideawake breeder is to discard him forthwith, without ceremony or regard to pedigree. Don't hesitate till he has done irreparable damage to your herd. Actions of this sort to be worth anything, must be prompt. On the other hand, don't be too easily influenced by a few cases of extreme bad produce from particular cows. I doubt if any herd could be gotten together in which some cows would not breed peculiarly badly to any given bull; cows, too, whose produce by other sires would be fine. Never breed such cows back to that bull, if after a fair trial you obtain that result, and another bull can be reached. Your sire again may possess the power of stamping his own image on his get to a very marked extent. This prepotency is, of course, a very valuable quality, one without which you can scarcely have a great sire. But, at the same time, you not infrequently had a sire quite as useful in a herd that only enables the dam to reproduce herself. These are the two extremes, the normal being the admixture of the qualities of sire and dam. No doubt this, too, is the most desirable, but either of the other cases may be made to prove equally, or even more valuable in a herd, it being the simpler case; just as an equation of one unknown quantity is easier of solution than one containing two. I have only considered the cases in which the peculiar power of the animal is exercised with good results; of course each instance has its parallel, where some evil feature is reproduced. In such cases one can best say, "enough," and cease to use the bull.

Another Penitent Thief.

The most persuasive of the "Evidences of Christianity" is the fact that it makes good men out of bad men. What reply can the honest doubter make to this fact? There is now working in New York City a successful philanthropist, who, five years ago, was one of the most expert thieves in the country. He was made what he is by the Christian religion.

His mother was an abandoned woman and his father a thief. Born in the atmosphere of crime, he took in the art of stealing with his mother's milk.

Training and an acute mind made him a place among the most successful thieves. This so gratified his depraved ambition, that during forty-six years he devoted himself to crime. Thirty-six years he lived in prison. He was an old acquaintance to the wardens of Blackwell's Island and Sing-Sing.

"We'll keep your cell warm for you, Mike, for six weeks. You'll be back by that time," said the warden of Sing-Sing prison to him, as he left it, five years ago.

The discharged convict smiled, as he tossed back an "All right, sir!" and hastened to his old haunts in the city.

But one day the Master met him, in the person of an earnest Christian man, and through his teachings the old jail-bird found out that he was not only a bad man to his fellows, but a sinful man before God. Then he discovered that the Master had come into the world to seek and save such reckless, outlawed men as himself.

The two facts germinated in his heart until they made him a new man. He abandoned his old crimes, but his heart went out towards his old "pals." The active brain, hitherto used to plan robberies, begun to devise a way in which he might save those who should be turned out of prison, homeless and friendless.

He laid hold of two controlling ideas. "I must," he said he said to himself, "have a home to which I can take the men I would save. A discharged convict turned loose into New York City must steal to live. And every man I help must earn what he eats."

When this ex-convict laid out his plan for saving his "pals," he had not a cent in his pocket. But he pawned his coat, and with the proceeds hired a room in that part of the city where thieves resort. Entering this little asylum, he locked the door, knelt down, and laid the constitution and by-laws of his society before God.

"No discharged prisoner," ran his vow, "shall be turned from this room so long as there is space to shelter him.

"No man shall eat a second meal in this room till he has earned it."

The beginning was small and the plan simple. Yet Mike has sheltered eleven hundred discharged convicts, many of whom he has led into a new life by persuading them to become servants of his Master.

The little room has given way to a building that cost forty thousand dollars. All prisoners know "Michael Dunn's House of Industry." They also know that when discharged from prison they will find there a welcome, a home, and aid wherewith to begin a better life.

But they must earn what they eat, for Mike believes that industry is the first step to honesty. Such are the legitimate effects of Christianity on heart and life.—Youth's Companion.

Useful Precepts.

First catch your lover.

Hold him when you have him.

Don't let go of him to catch every new one that comes along.

Try to get very well acquainted with him before you take him for life.

Unless you intend to support him, find out whether he earns enough to support you.

Don't make up your mind he is an angel. Don't palm yourself off on him for one either.

Don't let him spend his salary on you; that right should be reserved until after marriage.

If you have any conscientious scruples against marrying a man with a mother, say so in time that he may either get rid of her to oblige you, or get rid of you to oblige her, as he thinks best.

If you object to secret societies and tobacco, it is better to come with your objections now than reserve them for curtain lectures hereafter.

If your adorer happens to fancy a certain shade of hair, don't color or bleach yours to oblige him. Remember your hair belongs to you and he doesn't.

Be very sure it is the man you are in love with, and not the clothes he wears. Fortune and fashion are both so fickle it is foolish to take a stylish suit for better or worse.

If you intend to keep three servants after marriage, settle the matter beforehand. The man who is making love to you may expect you to do your own washing.

Don't try to hurry up a proposal by carrying on a flirtation with some other fellow. Different men are made of different material, and the one you want might go off in a fit of jeolously and forget to come back.

If you have a love letter to write, do not copy it out of a "Letter Writer." If your young man ever happened to consult the same book he would know your sentiments were borrowed.

Don't marry a man to oblige any third person in existence. It is your right to suit yourself in the matter. But remember at the same time that love is blind, and a little family advice from one whose advice is worth having may insure you a life-time of happiness, or prevent one of misery.

In love affairs always keep your eyes wide open, so that when the right man comes along you may see him.

When you see him you will recognize him, and the recognition will be mutual.

If you have no fault to find with him personally, financially, conscientiously, socially, morally, politically, religiously, or any other way, he is probably perfect enough to suit you, and you can afford to—

Believe in him;
Hope in him;
Love him;
Marry him!

IN THE JAWS OF A SHARK.

The Marvelous Experience of Alfetto While Working at His Calling of Diver

From the Panama Herald.

Alfetto the Spanish diver, who has been at work on the wreck of the At, lanta, near Morehead, thus speaks of an adventure had by him a few days ago:

At the time I was at the bottom of the sea. I was just about to signal to be drawn up for a moment's rest, when I noticed a shadowy body moving at some distance above me and toward me. In a moment every fish had disappeared, the very crustaceans lay still upon the sand and the cuttle fish scurried away as fast as they could. I was not thinking of danger, and my first thought was that it was the shadow of a passing boat. But suddenly a feeling of terror seized me. I felt impelled to flee from something I knew not what. A vague horror seemed grasping after me, such as a child fancies when leaving a darkened room. By this time the shadow had come nearer and taken shape. It scarcely needed a glance to show me that it was a maneater, and of the largest size. Had I signaled to be drawn up then it 'would have been certain death. All I could do was to remain still until it left. It lay off twenty or twenty-five feet, just outside the rigging of the ship, its body motionless, its fins barely stirring the water about its gills.

It was a monster as it was, but to add to the horror the pressure of the water upon my head made it appear as if pouring flames from its eyes and mouth, and every movement of its fins and tail seemed accompanied by a display of fireworks. I was sure the fish was thirty feet long, and so near that I could see its double row of white teeth. Involuntarily I shrunk closer to the side of the vessel. But my first movement betrayed my presence. I saw the shining eyes fixed upon me; its tail quivered as it darted at me like a streak of light. I shrank closer to the side of the ship. I saw it turn on one side, its mouth open, and heard the teeth snap as it darted by me. It had missed me, but only for a moment. The sweep of its mighty tail had thrown me forward. I saw it turn, balance itself, and its tail quivered as it darted at me again. There was no escape. It turned on its back as it swooped down on me like a hawk on a sparrow. The jaws opened and the long, shining teeth grated as they closed on my metal harness.

It had me. I could feel its grinding teeth on my copper breastplate as it tried to bite me in two, for, fortunately it had caught me just across the middle, where I was best protected. Having seized me it went tearing through the water. I could hear it bound forward at each stroke of its tail. Had it not been for my copper helmet my head would have been torn off by the rush through the water. I was perfectly conscious, but somehow I felt no terror at all. There was only a feeling of numbness. I wondered how long it would be before those teeth would crunch through and whether they would strike first into my back or my breast. Then I thought of Maggie and the baby and wondered who would take care of them and if she would ever know what had become of me. All these thoughts passed through my brain in an instant, but in that time the connecting air tube had been snapped and my head seemed ready to burst with pressure, while the monster's teeth kept crunching and grinding away upon my harness. Then I felt the cold water begin to pour in and heard the bubble, bubble, bubble, as the air escaped into the creature's mouth. I began to hea great guns and to see fireworks an rainbows and sunshine and all kinds o pretty things, then I thought I w floating away on a rosy summer cloud dreaming to the sounds of sweet musi Then all became blank. The shar might have eaten me at his leisure a I never would have been the wise Imagine my astonishment then when opened my eyes on board this boat an saw you fellows around me. Yes, sir, I thought I was dead and ate up, sure.

Alfetto was found by his comrades a few minutes after the snapping of th line. He was picked up insensible, wit several holes punched in the metall part of his diving suit.

Mumps.

There are three glands, or rather c lections of glands, on each side of t mouth that secrete saliva—the fl which keeps the throat moist and he to digest food. One collection is below the ears; the second below ends of the lower jaw; the third un the tongue. Mumps is a brief fever, one of its characteristic sympton an inflammation and swelling of t glands, generally those near the —whence its medical name, parotiditi inflammations of the parotid gla the name mumps is from the mumb way in which the patient often spe it being painful to move the infla jaws.

Every inflammation of these gl does not constitute mumps, but such as is caused by a peculiar kind contagion, which probably enters mouth in breathing, and thence find way to the glands through the ducts.

In all infectious diseases there period of "incubation"—a term ta from hatching—the time between exposure and the first symptom. mumps this period varies from e or ten days to two or three weeks.

The swelling begins below the ea tends back to the end of the jaw, thence spreads in all directions. S times it is so slight as to be sca noticed; sometimes it is so great on sides as to give the neck and h pyramidal shape. 'And yet very s symptoms are sometimes connected the slightest swelling.

The swelling may be confined t side of the neck, but most often i tends to both, the one, however, affected being the worst. The disappears in eight or twelve day rare cases the swelling extends portant glands in other parts of the sometimes with serious results.

The fever is often so slight that t tient keeps about, and unless it e to other glands is always withou ger, and requires only the si treatment.

The period of greatest susceptibi an attack is between the ages of fi fifteen. It is unknown under one and not common in adults. Yet sons who have seemed proof aga when young are sometimes sever tacked late in life. It is one diseases which are seldom repe Youth's Companion.

FARMERS' CONVENTION.

The Farmers' Convention, held in St. Paul last week, was a grand success in point of numbers and interest. We devote considerable space to it this week on account of its importance to the business interests of the State. When THE JOURNAL commenced the agitation last fall, feeling the absolute necessity of a change in the management of our wheat market that should give us an open market. We hardly expected to see so much accomplished as has been and we are now more than ever convinced that if our farmers will only unite in their own defence, by joining our Farmers' Alliance, that we can obtain an open market for our wheat next fall, which means a saving of thousands of dollars to our county. The convention resulted in a better understanding throughout the State and a determination to fight our grievances through legislation, and to establish an independent line of elevators along this railroad and the N. P. The attempt of a few disgruntled politicians to organize a third party was wisely frustrated, showing that this is not a political move, as has been charged by the Minneapolis Millers' Association, and is simply and solely an effort of the farmers to obtain simple justice. The Monopolists have deemed themselves perfectly secure, paying but little attention to this popular uprising, thinking that it wouldn't amount to anything, but in this they will find themselves mistaken, if farmers will but stick together. Committees were appointed to see that county and town organizations were perfected. For Polk County the committee is M. R. Brown, of Crookston; Edward Columbus, of Red Lake Falls, and Nels O. Paulsrud, of Neillsville. The following resolution was introduced by Senator Steenerson and passed without a dissenting vote:

WHEREAS, There is now pending in congress a bill for opening to settlement of the agricultural lands of the Red Lake Indian reservation, in Northern Minnesota, and for the sale for the benefit of the Indians residing thereon of the pine timber standing on portions thereof, by the provisions of which the interests of the government, the Indians and the settlers contiguous to said reservation on the west, are wisely protected and provided for, a bill eminently satisfactory to the department of the interior, the Indians and their friends, and the landless home-seekers of the country; and especially in the interests of thousands of new settlers of the treeless prairies of the Northwest; and

WHEREAS, The immense combination of capital and political influence centering in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Stillwater, and sometimes known as the "Minneapolis Pine Land Ring," for the purpose of perpetuating their monopoly of the pine and lumber interests of the Northwest, and adding to their accumulated millions, yet other millions extracted from the impoverished settlers of the vast prairies of that region, is now fully represented at Washington by their agents, seeking by means other than that of arguments or reasons, to defeat said bill; and

WHEREAS, There are not less than 50,000 homes in Northern Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota to be supplied and built up with pine lumber, their only available building material, and which, without the opening of said reservation, must be shipped to them at exorbitant rates for transportation, an average distance of 150 miles, while the pine on this reservation would at a trifling cost float to their very doors. Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the farmers of Northwestern Minnesota and Northern Dakota, respectfully petition and appeal to the congress of the United States for protection against the inordinate greed and corrupt intermeddling of the said "Pine Land Ring," and for the passage at the earliest practicable day of said bill for the opening of the Red Lake Indian Reservation, and be it

Resolved, That the foregoing preamble and appeal be signed by the chairman and secretary of this convention, be printed in convenient form and furnished to each senator and representative in congress by the secretary.

[Signed] J. J. FURLONG,
Presiding Vice President.
A. K. THOMAS,
Secretary.

After three days of good solid work for the cause the convention adjourned without date. We trust that the good seed there sown will spring up and bear fruit an hundred fold.

The Canadian American, of Minneapolis, got out what it claimed to be a boom edition on Feb. 22d, but if all of its items were as wide of the mark as was the purported letter of Dr. J. H. Thomas, of our city it is all a lot of gross misrepresentations. The doctor is accused of having said:

"J. H. Thomas, St. Hilaire, Minnesota, formerly of Fenelon Falls, Victoria county, Ontario: I came to this country in 18[illegible], have remained here ever since, and here intend to remain. Went into stock raising exclusively, and am doing well. This is the best country in the world for stock. The wild grasses are as good for stock as the timothy or clover of Canada. I have now 175 head of stock, and intend increasing the number. I consider that there is more money in stock raising here than there is in wheat growing."

All of which is a forgery as the doctor never wrote it nor any thing else for that paper. Upon reading the article he wrote to the editor of the American requesting to know from whence he received such a valuable net work of [illegible] and requesting said editor to state if he (J. H. Thomas) had never written the letter. To which the editor replied that it came from St. Hilaire and doubtless was from some other J. H. Thomas. As our worthy doctor is the only J. H. Thomas who has a farm at St. Hilaire and as his former place of residence is stated he naturally concludes that he is the man meant and that some coward has taken the liberty to forge a letter and forge the doctor's name to it, all of which does not go very gracefully with the doctor. He would like to see the color of the sneak's hair who did the dirty work. The doctor says the country is all right and will stand on its merits and needs no such lies as he is represented as telling to boost it up. He [illegible] in 1879 took a claim and hired a man to work it, broke up some and raised wheat principally, has not made stock a specialty but has made dentistry a specialty and if the sneak who wrote that pack of lies don't believe it the doctor will guarantee to break his jaw for him free gratis if he will show up.

The following letter from Hon. D. M. Sabin shows that gentleman to be heartily in favor of Nelson's bill and that he will do all in his power to pass it. Mr. Sabin says:

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 19, 1884.

Messrs. H. Steenerson and P. C. Sletten, Crookston.

GENTLEMEN:—I have your favor of the 14th inst. Notwithstanding the opposition of certain interests to Mr. Nelson's bill bringing into market the Red Lake Reservation, I am unqualifiedly in favor of the bill and shall labor faithfully and earnestly for its passage, and shall in no wise be influenced by any appeals from from interested lumbermen who feel that this measure would interfere with their personal interests. If this narrow view is to obtain, probably no party in the Northwest would suffer more than myself. I have, however, never in public matters acted in this capacity, and neither do I propose to, and in short I am unqualifiedly in favor of the development of our whole State in every particular, and especially so of your section, which I think can be so materially assisted by placing in market the valuable agricultural and timber lands covered by this bill. If any suggestions occur to you whereby I can serve you in the future, please command me, as it will always be a pleasure to do so.

Very truly yours,
D. M. SABIN.

Farm Notes.

American Agriculturist for April.

THE BABY HATCH.

Former notes upon the cultivation of the small fruits, have been given under "Fruit Garden." Perhaps the very persons for whom they are especially intended—the farmers, thinking they have no fruit garden, have passed them by. By fruit garden, we mean essentially a berry patch. As farmers more than most others deprive themselves of the small fruits, which they might and should have in abundance, we have endeavored to show that their culture is a simple matter. Let the determination once be made to have an abundance of small fruits, all the rest is easy. To make a beginning, unless some friendly neighbor will furnish plats, there must be a small outlay at the start. If only a few plants of each kind of fruit are procured to begin with, these can be increased very rapidly, indeed, some multiply themselve. No investment will bring such a large return in health and family comfort, as that expended for the plants to stock a berry patch. Send to some reputable dealer for his catalogue, make a selection and send the order early. The express or mail will bring the plants in due time. When the plants come, there must be a place ready to receive them. Select the best land that can be found near the house. It is well to have it in sight, as trespassers will be less apt to trouble it. It would be better to have prepared the soil for the patch last fall, but do it now, rather than to postpone the garden for a whole year. Prepare the soil as well as you know how with the means at hand. This means well-rotted manure, and thorough working with the plow and harrow.

STRAWBERRIES ON THE FARM.

The catalogues are confusing with their many varieties, old and new. For home use, no new or untried kinds are worth taking as a gift; what we want is fruit and plenty of it. Charles Downing, Bidwell, and Sharpless are among the reliable kinds that have been tested and may be planted with confidence. Having ordered the plants, prepare a place for them. The size of the bed will of course depend upon the number of plants, which are to be two feet apart each way from one another, and two feet from the margins of the bed. Make the soil rich with old, decomposed manure and ashes, to be worked in as deep as possible by spading. When the plants come, their roots should be shortened or cut back to two-thirds or one-half their former length, and all the dead leaves removed. In planting, open a wide hole with the hand, and spreading the roots in all directions, separating those that are matted, carefully work the earth in among them, and having covered them with earth press it firmly over them. The plants will soon start into growth, and new leaves open. It is probable that clusters of flower buds will appear in the center of some of the plants; if so, pinch them off as soon as they are seen, as we now wish to raise plants and not fruit. As the season advances, runners will be formed, and at length a bud will appear upon the end of each and finally take root. If the runners do not become fixed readily—as they are often blown about by the winds—place a cloud of earth upon them to hold them fast. After the plant from the first bud has grown to some size, that will throw out runners, and so on, all the season. The object being to raise as many plants as possible, the runners should be watched, and not allowed to interfere with one another, but distributed evenly over the bed. If necessary water the bed, and pull up by hand all weeds that appear.

SOME VEGETABLES NOT GENERALLY GROWN.

Potato Onions.—Those who wish early onions, can have them sooner from these than from sets. The seedsmen sell the bulbs, which soon grow into large ones. The Top Onions behave in the same manner, but we have not had so much experience with these. We find the Potato Onions very useful in the family garden. Try some of them.

Salsify is not generally grown, at least not in farmers' gardens. It is as easily managed as parsnip or other roots. The root is rarely more than an inch through at the larger end. By giving it a rich soil and thinning to five or six inches apart in the row, the size may be increased. This is often called "Oyster Plant," or "Vegetable Oyster." A soup made from it has somewhat the flavor of oyster soup. It may be cut into inches and stewed, or boiled tender, dipped in batter and fried.

Parsley is in demand not only for flavoring, but for ornamenting, or garnishing dishes; the leaves of the finer kinds being really beautiful. The seeds are very slow in starting—often remaining several weeks in the ground, and when transplanted are slow in recovering. Thin seedlings or transplant to eight inches apart. Provide enough plants to allow some to be kept in a box, to afford leaves during the winter. In sowing seeds of winter cabbages, do not forget to try some of the Savoys, now so highly recommended. Brussells Sprouts, another variety of the cabbage, with small heads along the whole length of a tall "stump" or stalk is as easily raised as common cabbages. This is seldom raised in the market gardens.

CARE OF THE TEETH.

While it is a fact that good and bad teeth are largely inherited, yet good ones may soon be injured by neglect. Not only as a matter of health should the teeth be preserved as far as possible, but for appearances. Nothing more detracts from the comeliness of a young man or woman, than the display of teeth yellow and black from neglect; the better looking the person, the more glaring is this blemish. Parents are often greatly to blame in this respect. As soon as a child gets its permanent teeth he or she should be taught to use a tooth brush, with water, at least once a day. This would often save the child from much mortification and perhaps misery in after life. The use of a tooth brush not too stiff, with water simply, morning and night, is all that most teeth require. If tarter collects in spite of this, the use of Castile soap (the white is preferable) upon the brush will generally answer. If something more is needed to keep the teeth clean, prepared chalk is one of the safest tooth powders. Avoid all tooth powders that are at all gritty, Some contain powdered pumice stone, which will remove both the tartar and enamel. In using the brush, it is equally as important to apply it to the back-side of the teeth as to the front, and instead of only moving it across the teeth, a part of the brushing should be from the gums upward and downward, to remove any particles that have lodged between them. Never use a metallic tooth-pick; a sliver of wood is preferable even to the quill so commonly used. Whenever decay is noticed in the teeth, go to the dentist at once.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: Mr. F. J. Kline returned from Detroit last Friday to see to the completion of the Clearwater piers. The piers are now completed and a good boom put in at the foot of the log jamb, which is expected to hold both the logs and ice till the latter is melted. The logs will then be run to Crookston. Mr. Kline started in company with Col. Langevin for the Clearwater logging works, Wednesday morning, the latter making the trip for pleasure and recreation. Mr Kline will again return to this place in about two weeks.

GRAND
GIFT ENTERPRISE
—AT THE STORE OF—
HACK & GALLASCH
Secure one or more Tickets and you will be happy.
—ALL—
DRY GOODS, WINTER GOODS,
BOOTS, SHOES, CAPS, GLOVES,
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
—AT BOTTOM PRICES.—
☞ Call in and we will try to please you and tell you all about the
GIFT ENTERPRISE.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS
—AND DEALERS IN—WATCHES,
CLOCKS
AND JEWELRY.
ROBERT STREET,
Crookston Minn.

MERCHANTS HOTEL
J. E. [illegible], Prop.,
WAHPETON, D. T.

Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of five hundred and seventy-six and 23-100 dollars ($576 23) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John Ralston and Hannah Ralston, his wife, to Eugene Besse, bearing date the 5th day of March, A. D. 1883, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1883, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 551, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All of the northeast quarter (¼) of section twenty-four (24) Township one hundred and forty-nine (149) Range forty-seven (47) containing one hundred and sixty acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston in said County and State, on the 9th day of May, A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and forty dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 18th, A. D. 1884.

EUGENE BESSE, Mortgagee.
JOHN McLEAN, Attorney for Mortgagee. [47-1]

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Ludvig Olson mortgagor, to Svening Hageson mortgagee, dated the third day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota on the 12th day of December A. D. 1881, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., in book "E" of mortgages, on pages 571, 572, 573 on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of eighteen hundred and seventy-six and 13 100 dollars ($1876 13-100,) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the west front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the tenth day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and the taxes if any on the premises in said mortgage described and forty ($40.00) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, pieces or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The Southwest quarter (sw¼) Section eighteen (18) in Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) of Range forty-eight (48,) containing one hundred and forty-five and 8-100 (145 8-100) acres according to the government survey thereof. The above mortgage was given to secure the payment of the promissory notes therein described, which were executed and delivered by said mortgagor to said mortgagee as part payment of the purchase price of said above described premises.

SVEMING HAGESON,
Mortgagee.
LEO & STEENERSON,
Attorney's of Mortgagee.
Dated March 26th, 1884. [43 2]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 25th, 1884

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, on May 10th, 1884, viz: OLE H. BJOIN, Pre. D. S., No. 8,145, for the n½ sw¼ sw¼ sw¼ S. 29, and nw¼ nw¼ S. 32, T. 147, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Hans C. Sampson, Thor S. Hestvedt, Ed Labree and George Labree, all of Fasten, Polk Co., Minn.

[43-1] JOHN CROMB, Register.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.
PAID IN CAPITAL, - - - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - - 1,400
MONEY TO LOAN on Long or Short Time on Approved Security.
INTEREST ON TIME DEPOSITS. Faithful Attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE President.
E. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANGEL BATES, Cashier

P. A. DUFOUR,
ATTORNEY & COUNSELOR AT LAW
—MAIN STREET,—
CROOKSTON - MINN

COMMERCIAL HOUSE.
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor.
SECOND STREET - CROOKSTON, MINN.
Having leased this new and commodious hotel we are now prepared to supply the needs of the traveling public in first-class style. Our house is entirely new and newly furnished; we have had a long experience in the hotel business and hope to be able to meet the wants of our patrons and friends. We would respectfully invite a share of the public patronage. Call and see us.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL!
Fred Anderson Proprietor,
MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.
The Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars on Hand.

CROOKSTON
NURSERIES!
Tree Claim Stock.
I DESIRE to inform my customers and others that I shall make a GREAT REDUCTION from former prices on Forest Trees and Seeds
FOR TREE CLAIMS
I have good thrifty two-year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of
SMALL FRUITS,
such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty, Transcendent and Hislop Crab apple trees.
The firm of Haseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the Old Nursery Grounds
in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.
Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.
☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.
F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minnesota.

THE KIMBALL ORGANS
Have attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior. They contain every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce. These excellent
ORGANS
are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty of finish, perfect construction, making them the
MOST ATTRACTIVE,
ORNAMENTAL AND DESIRABLE
ORGANS
For Homes, Schools, Churches,
Lodges, Societies, Etc.
ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
Unequalled Facilities, Skilled Workmen, Best Material, and aim to Excel combined, make this THE POPULAR ORGAN. Every Organ Warranted for Five Years.
INSTRUCTION BOOKS AND PIANO STOOLS.
Catalogue and Price Lists, on application, FREE. Address
C. J. KOPS, Crookston, Minn.
GENERAL AGENT W. W. KIMBALL CO.

This space is reserved for I. M. Underhill, General Insurance and Real Estate Agent.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all Principal Points in
RED RIVER VALLEY,
NORTHERN MINNESOTA,
NORTHERN DAKOTA
—AND TO—
DEVIL'S LAKE AND TURTLE MOUNTAIN DISTRICTS,
—CONTAINING OVER—
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!
The Land Department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that Department. Maps and pamphlets describing the country, giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE to any address, by
JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner.
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. Ry, St. Paul, Minn.

Intelligence Office
AND
LAUNDRY
Now open and ready for business. All Laundry work at reduced rates. Lace curtains and kid gloves cleaned equal to new. Girls desiring good places, or parties desiring good, competent help should leave their name and address at this office.
M. [illegible],
Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.
H. B. MONTGOMERY, St. Paul, Minn. President.
M. R. BROWN, Crookston, Minn. Vice President
J. KELSO, Bellevue, Iowa. Second Vice President
W. M. ROSS, Crookston, Minn. Cashier
CASH CAPITAL, $32,000.
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.
Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
W. M. ROSS, Cashier.

Bigham & Olafson
Successors to Juve & Bergland.
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
Main Street, Crookston,
Have on hand, and are constantly receiving, full lines of
DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS,
GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS
In fact everything usually found in First-Class General Store,
Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at
LOW PRICES
☞ GIVE US A CALL.

—THE—
RED LAKE FALLS
FLOURING
MILL
Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do Custom Work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & OLBENTSON,
PROPRIETORS,
RED LAKE FALLS, POLK CO., MINN.

REMOVAL!
Having purchased the store formerly owned and occupied by W. T. Dickey,
HAVE MOVED MY Entire Stock
INTO IT.
And am now prepared to welcome my friends at the new stand. I have a full and complete stock of
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE
To which I invite the attention of all.
CALL AND SEE ME
At my New Store on Main Street.
A. YVERNAULT,
Crookston, Minn.

NEW
DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD
DR. A NELSON, Prop.
The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my New Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of fresh
DRUGS, MEDICINES,
PAINTS, OILS,
and YANKEE NOTIONS.
'Tis no longer necessary to go 40 or 60 miles for anything in this line as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see!
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON
I am also ready to answer all calls, by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co. Minn.
DR. A. NELSON.

LIVERY FEED'
—AND—
SALE STABLES
Two doors north of U. S. Land Office
Main St., Crookston, Minn.
T. H. BJOIN, Proprietor
Work horses, buggy horses, saddle horses, mules and oxen bought and sold, and traded.
For a stylish rig, by day or night, call at Bjoin's Livery Stable.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED.
Latest Edition has 118,000 Words, (3000 more than any other American Dict'y,)
3000 Engravings,
(nearly 3 times the number in any other Dict'y,) also contains a Biographical Dictionary giving brief important facts concerning 9700 Noted Persons.
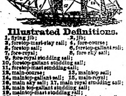
The following, from page 1164, shows the value of



Illustrated Definitions.
1, flying jib; 2, jib; 3, foretop-mast stay sail; 4, fore-course; 5, foretop sail; 6, foretop-gallant sail; 7, fore-royal; 8, fore sky sail; 9, fore-royal studding sail; 10, foretop-gallant studding sail; 11, foretop-mast studding sail; 12, main-course; 13, maintop sail; 14, maintop-gallant sail; 15, main-royal; 16, main sky sail; 17, main royal studding sail; 18, main top-gallant studding sail; 19, maintop-mast studding sail; 20, mizzen-course; 21, mizzen-top sail; 22, mizzen-top-gallant sail; 23, mizzen-royal; 24, mizzen sky sail; 25, mizzen-spanker.
Among the many that can be cited are the following: Beef, Boiler, Castle, Column, Eye, Horse, Moldings, Phrenology, Ravelin, Ships, (pp. 1164 and 1219) Steam Engine and Timbers. These 15 pictures define 343 words and terms.
THE STANDARD.
Webster is the Standard of the U. S. Supreme Court and in the U. S. Gov't Printing Office. Recommended by State Sup'ts of Schools in 36 States. Sale 20 times that of any other series.
G. & C. MERRIAM & CO., Pub'rs, Springfield, Mass.

CROOKSTON TONSORIAL PARLORS
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
Shaving, Hair Dressing, and all work in my line done in the latest styles of the art. Give me a trial.
PROF. THOMPSON.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University, Quebec, Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec. Late of Michigan University, U. S.
Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store, Crookston, Minn.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office on Main Street, one door north of Star Drug Store. Professional calls by day or night promptly attended to.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, silver or cement fillings [illegible] Work warranted.

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, THURSDAY, MARCH 27

R. R. TIME TABLE.

CROOKSTON.

—GOING NORTH.—

	ARRIVE.	DEPART.
No. 1 Passenger,	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
" 19 freight.	1:20 a. m.	2:50 a. m.
" 15 "	4:00 p. m.

—GOING SOUTH.—

	ARRIVE.	DEPART.
No. 2 Passenger,	4:00 a. m.	4:10 a. m.
" 16 Freight,		5:25 a. m.
" 18 "	1:15 p. m.
" 20 "	6:30 a. m.
" 24 "	6:15 p. m.
" "		4:30 p. m.

Grand Forks and Devils Lake.

No. 46 Mixed	4:45 p. m.	9:15 a. m.

St. Hilaire Branch.

Mixed trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10 a. m.; returning at 3 p. m.

'ROUND HOME.

Sealskin Jim has changed his mind about trading his team for a pair of snow shoes and has concluded to wait until fall.

Two train loads of emigrants, with their stock, farming implements and movables passed here last Sunday for the north.

Moser & Meckel have moved into their new office. The front is pretty well covered with signs and they seem to be all ready for the spring boom.

W. J. Bailey is erecting a shop on Broadway, near Crocker's building When completed he will be ready to take in any kind of carpenter work.

Seely's Exchange, the neat little place on Second street, is undergoing a change. Painters are at work fixing things up. Charlie is always on the improve.

Sam Harlow, an old Crookston boy, is in the city shaking hands with old friends. Sam is looking for a location, and we hope he will not have to go any farther, but will find a suitable location here and remain with us

Capt. W. H. Jennings has returned from his trip to St. Paul. We have heard it rumored that he is thinking some of moving to that city. We hope it is merely a rumor, for Crookston cannot afford to lose so good a citizen.

We visited the Valley Roller Mills last Monday where we met Mr. Lee who kindly took us round, showing us the machinery and the processes that wheat has to go through before it becomes flour. This mill is without doubt one of the best in the State and no better flour is to be found anywhere than that manufactured at Lee & Herrick's Valley Roller Mills. Their success is greater than their fondest anticipations and they cannot begin to supply the demand (from foreign places) for their popular brands. We are pleased to note this grand success.

Fertile Items.

FERTILE, Minn., March 18, 1884.

EDITOR JOURNAL: For a long time our correspondent from this little berg has not been heard from.

Since the holidays, times have been very quiet.

The vote cast on the R. R. bonds was the heaviest ever polled in our town, viz: 104 against and 2 for. Our people want a road and are willing to pay for it, but we prefer to have the line located first, and then we will give them a tax, but no bonds.

Messrs. Sohler & Co. are getting lots of timber on the ground, (one mile west from here) for their new grist mill. By next fall they can grind all the grain the farmers may bring, and as soon as the ice loosens they will be ready to grind with their mill already completed all the grain needed for flour.

Our merchants, Messrs. Le Duc & Co. and A. Gilmour, say trade is getting lively again.

We expect good times here the coming summer, as we are on the only good road to the 13 towns, and we have the cheapest place to buy flour or anything needed.

At our annual town meeting there were 89 votes cast, and the election was very close. On the question of license, by the counting, the ballots stood 41 for (counting 0 that had only "license" on them) and 40 against (by throwing out 5 that had "against cigar license" on them, but were undoubtedly meant for "against liquor license.") This is unsatisfactory to some of our most prominent citizens, and a new election to vote on license is to be held at once.

Our people were thrown into great excitement a short time ago by finding that one of our citizens, Mr. M. H. Duckstad, while under the influence of liquor, had started from Aldal about 10 p. m., been lost all night on the prairie and had badly frozen his hands and feet. A bottle containing whisky was found in his hands. Previous to this his young wife had warned those who, though unlawfully, had been selling liquor, not to sell her husband any more. But they had disregarded her warning and the consequence is that Dr. F. H. Stewart was called upon Saturday to amputate part of both feet, and the poor fellow must endure a long and painful siege before he will be able to do any work. Meanwhile his family must have aid, although I understand that the liquor sellers have offered to care for them until he is well.

Let the people of this town make up their minds to do one of two things—vote liquor out and see that the law is enforced, or vote the license in and have the curse legally inflicted.

Mr. F. Barholz has rented his hotel to A. Gilmour and gone to Wild Rice to take possession of Sohler & Co's mill, rented by himself and Richard Ohne.

We hear rumors of an approaching wedding to take place here soon.

Le Duc & Co. have a fine stock of all kinds of goods and are selling at bottom prices. They take wheat for goods at market price.

Mr. John Holton is selling tickets from the old country on time. Call and see. Address him at Fertile. L.

St. Hilaire Racket.

From the Spectator.

A considerable amount of wood is being shipped from this place to Crookston and other parts.

Saw logs are coming into the mill here now by the thousand. This looks as if our worthy grangers intend making some valuable improvements this spring.

The Indians brought in three beaver skins yesterday, one of which was the largest we have seen. C. G. Rapp was the purchaser, and the price paid for the three skins was $10.

Young people's meeting held in the Baptist Chappel every Sunday evening from quarter after six to quarter after seven. Meeting dismissed in time to get to other church services. All the young people cordially invited.

WHITE EARTH, Agecy.
March 11th, 1884.

The advertisement appearing in this paper under date of February 14th, 1884, for the sale of dead and fallen timber cut by the Indians on White Earth and Red Lake Reservations by submitting sealed bids to the agent is so far modified by the direction of the Hon. Secretary of the Interior as to be sold to the highest bidder at public auction on Thursday, the 10th day of April 1884 at the front door of the Court House at Crookston, Minn. The sale of said logs not to be considered final until approved by the Hon. Secretary of the Interior.

One dollar per thousand feet will be required to be paid by the successful bidder at the time of sale, the same to be applied on account in case the bid is accepted and to be returned to the bidder if not accepted.

C. P. LUSE.
U. S. Indian Agent.

WHITE EARTH AGENCY, Minn.
February 14th, 1884.

Sealed proposals for the sale of dead and fallen logs cut by the Indians on Red Lake and White Earth Indian Reservations will be received at this agency until Monday the 24th day of March 1884 at 12 o'clock noon at which time the bids will be opened. The logs located at the following points on

Red Lake Reservation.

About 100,000 feet in 2 camps located on Clearwater Lake. About 600,000 feet in 3 camps located on Clearwater River below Clearwater Lake. About 125,000 feet in 1 camp located on "Four Legged Lake" River about 5 miles from junction of the Clearwater River. About 600,000 feet logs in three camps located on Sandy River about 3 miles from the outlet of Red Lake. About 200,000 feet logs in 1 camp located on Red Lake about 10 miles from outlet.

White Earth Reservation.

About one million feet logs located on Clearwater River about 6 miles from its source. About one million feet logs located on "Walker's Brook" a tributary of Clearwater River.

The terms of this sale is, that all bids must be accompanied with a certified check upon some reliable bank for at least one dollar ($1 00) per thousand feet as an assurance of good faith, the same to be returned to the unsuccessful bidder or bidders depositing the same when the bids are opened.

These logs to be scaled by the State Surveyor whose measurement shall be considered final. Twenty-five (25) per cent. of the worth of the logs purchased will be required to be paid in to me within ten (10) days from the acceptance of the bid or bids and the remainder within thirty (30 days.

The Agent claims the right to reject any or all bids as may seem best for the parties for whom the logs are sold. Mark on outside envelope "bid for logs."

C. P. LUSE,
U. S. Indian Agent.

Dead and Fallen Logs.

INSTRUCTIONS DISREGARDED.

Washington, Special Telegram, to the Pioneer Press, March 13.—A letter dated Feb. 27, 1884, written by P. C. Sletten, Receiver at Crookston, Minn., was received some time ago by Mr. Nelson inclosing an advertisement for sealed proposals for the dead and fallen logs cut by the Indians on the Red Lake and White Earth Reservations, the bids to be sold aggregate over 4,000,000 feet. The advertisement is signed by C. P. Luse, Indian agent. Mr. Sletten says in his letter that at this rate it will not take long to cut down every tree on the reservation.

"It is absurd," he says, "to suppose that there is any such quantity of dead or fallen logs. The plain truth is that they are cutting down sound timber, and we are told that they even start fires to scorch trees so as to have an excuse for cutting them down. We have an idea that white men and half breeds are running these camps where this pine is cut. We think the Interior Department erred when it issued authority for Indians to cut down dead and burned timber, and it ought to be revoked without delay if the government expects to save any part of these reservations from spoliation."

Mr. Sletten asks that the attention of the Secretary of the Interior be called to the matter at once, as it was reported there that certain lumbermen were interested in all the pine cut at these so-called camps. Mr. Nelson at once referred Mr. Sletten's letter to the Department, and to-day received an answer from the Commissioner of Indian affairs, saying it was the first intimation the Department had received that the timber now being marketed by the Indians on the Red Lake and White Earth Reservations was liable to be sold otherwise than at public sale, the agent in charge having been so instructed, and that the Commissioner had telegraphed the agent on the 8th inst. as follows:

You must sell those logs at public sale to the highest bidder, and not on sealed proposals, as the newspaper notice says; and you must give the newspapers notice to so change the advertisement as to make the sale in this way. No sale will be complete until approved by the Secretary of the Interior.

WANTED.

A position as housekeeper. Best of reference given. Inquire at this office.

To Rent.

Ready for grain in the spring 100 acres on Section 12, Township 149 Range 46 and 320 acres on Section 11 Township 148, Range 46. Both tracts have a good house and barn. Apply Peter Cornelius, Crookston, Minn. [33-37]

MONEY! LAND!

$100,000
To Loan.

20,000
Acres of Land for Sale

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY
AND IT WILL BE SOLD

Law and Insurance, Collections Made,

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,

PALMER & BOND

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY

IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City FREE OF CHARGE.

FARMERS!

When you want the best Machine Oil go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Salt by the barrel, go to D. BUCHANAN'S

If you want Flour and Bran, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Pork, Lard or Salt Fish go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Teas, Coffees, Syrups, or anything in the Grocery line, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

Or if you want to Sell your Butter and Eggs, go to

D. BUCHANAN'S

on Broadway, between 2d and Robert Streets.

STEWART & LAWRENCE,

—Dealers in—

Pine Lumber.--Pine Lumber.

Windows, Doors, Mouldings, Building Paper, &c.

YARD ON OAK STREET. NORTH OF BROWN'S LIVERY STABLE.

A. Allen,

AGENT

—FOR THE—

HOWE

SCALE

COMPANY.

Deep Wells!

R. W. RANNEY

IS NOW PREPARED

TO GO TO CHINA

OR THEREABOUTS

AFTER A

FLOWING

WELL

IF NECESSARY.

☞ He will contract by the day or job at living rates. If you want a good flowing well, address

R. W. RANNEY,
[6-32] Glyndon, Clay Co., Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, - Minn.

McKINNON BROS.

MANUFACTURERS OF

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES, WAGONS,

CUTTERS, SLEDS, &C., &C., &C.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN

FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Johnson Bros. Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and the Plano Harvester and Binder, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, in fact we have everything in Machinery, from a wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine. Extras for all machines, always on hand.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY

The Dennet or Beloit

HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY,

And the Van Brunt & Davis

SEEDER COMPANY,

Are Represented

BY

STEENERSON BROS.,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

IVES & HATLESTAD,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW,

Collection and Land Office Business made Specialty.

Money secured for final proofs on short notice

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.

GRADUATE McGILL UNIVERSITY, MONTREAL

Licensed College Physician and Surgeon, Quebec.

Office Over Medical Hall.

A. A. JUST, M. D,

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Rooms corner Main Street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

FURNITURE STORE.

OAK STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

BATAGLIA & KNACK, PROPRIETOR

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rockers, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings and Picture Frames. Repairing done to order. Goods of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

TOM MORRIS,

—THE—

CITY

JEWELER

REPRESENTS THE

CELEBRATED

Rockford Quick Train

WATCH

THE ONLY

Railroad

Watch

IN EXISTENCE.

NEW BROADWAY

Meat Market.

JEROME BROS., Proprietors.

Fresh and Salt Meats

OF ALL KINDS,

VEGETABLES

in their season. All goods delivered if requested.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, we shall at once put up from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice and be prepared to supply the trade for 1884. Wishing you all

—A HAPPY NEW YEAR!—

we are, yours respectfully,

E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

THE NEW

Livery, Feed

AND SALE

STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth streets,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA

TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

Good turnouts at all times at reasonable prices.

Good Hearse, and a Careful Driver when needed.

E. D. SCHRADER

LIVERY,

Feed and Sale Stab

Best Turnouts in the city. Sin
Double Rigs, with or without d or Saddle horses always ready at ments notice by day or night. I want a

NOBBY TURNOU

—CALL AT THE—

RED BAR

E. D. SCHRADE

Cor. Main and Third Streets, Croo

Fortier's Plac

Corner Broadway and Robert

EVERYTHING N

NEAT AND NOBBY

Billiard, Pool, and the Choicest Wine and Cigars. The purest High Proof Wholesale Prices.

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON D

M. M. VanD

PHYSICIAN & SURGE

COR. MAIN AND SECOND ST

Will attend to all professi promptly.

WM. WATTS

ATTORNEY AT

AND DEALER I

REAL ESTAT

Office Over Merchants'

JOHN LEO, H. ST

LEO & STEENER

ATTORNEYS AT

Room 8, U. S. Land Office B

CROOKSTON

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS----$1.50 per Annum.

VOL. VII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1884. NO. 49

Polk County Journal

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar Fifty Cents, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum sent to any address.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 year
¼ Inch...	.50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$2 00	4 50	6 00
1 Inch....	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 Inches..	1 50	2 35	3 00	3 50	6 20	9 50	15 00
3 Inches..	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 00	13 20	20 00
4 Inches.	2 25	[illegible]	4 50	5 20	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 Inches..	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ Column	5 50	4 50	15 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ Column	6 00	7 5	10 00	14 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 Column	9 00	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class Matter

Hon. Steenerson and Paul C. Sletten returned from St. Cloud on Friday last where they had been to attend the meeting of the Republican District Committee which was held for the purpose of fixing date and place for holding the district convention. It was decided to hold a convention at Moorhead on Thursday, April 24th for the purpose of electing two delegates to the Republican National Convention, at Chicago. The basis of the representation will be one delegate from each organized county in the district and one for each 200 additional Republican voters or major fraction thereof as determined by the vote cast for Knute Nelson and C. F. Kindred for congress in 1882. This basis was decided on so as to include all republicans who might have cast their votes for either of the Republican candidates.

Farming vs Other Callings.

Farmers' Review.

To a young man just starting in life for himself the choice of a calling to be pursued is the one important question for him to settle, and it sometimes proves an exceedingly difficult one to settle and not infrequently he has tried and had some experience in several different callings before finding that to which he is best adapted. Things are not stereotyped in this country, do not run in ruts as they do in the countries of the old world. It is so easy a matter to change from one calling or business to another that some men are all their lives changing, but hey generally illustrate the proverb hat "a rolling stone gathers no moss." t is certainly a great point gained by ny young man if he can early in life nd out what he wants to do and then et himself persistently to doing it. ut our purpose in this article is briefly o consider the relative chances for uccess in life in farming as compared ith other callings. As between farm- g and working for a salary in rchandising, manufactures, rail- ading, telegraphing or any of the eat interests which employ armies of en there can be no question. The ploye is likely—almost certain to main an employe all his life, and at a salary which barely affords living, without the possibility of umulating a competence for old : The professions—law, medicine ; the ministry—are all overcrowded rge percentage of the graduates r a little time drop out into other ngs. A few reach eminence : nd fess, but the great mass are only liocre in either attainments or le, like a lottery, has prizes for a but blanks for the many. Over ty out of every hundred merchants sooner or later. Modern methods nducting business make it more more difficult for the man of erate means to achieve success in . The small fish are sooner or swallowed by the large ones. ning does not offer such brilliant s as those which are gained by few fortunate ones in trade: but es offer a reasonable certainty of a measure of success when pursued ligently and persistently. Few ers are obliged to apply to the upt court in comparison with engaged in other callings. all farmers get rich, though the er of those who become wealthy no means small. But the great of them gain property, become nder, in a moderate way sur themselves and families with all ded comforts of life, give their en a fair education, live free from rplexities and worries which con- beset the man of business and ute, as a class, the very bed rock prosperity as a country. ing is, at the present day, about y calling in which a man of r moderate means can start and to an independent business of . The false idea which has at nes prevailed, that farming as g la lower down in the scale ner occupations is largely done and now the man who owns ises crops or live stock is re- as he always should have been, eer of any other man. Land up is becoming, in this country, ays his been in Eur pe, a boon to be sought after, and the owner of a good farm need envy no other man living.

"THE NIAGARA FALLS ROUTE."

Michigan Central.

Beginning Sunday, February 17, 1884, all Through Express Trains of this Company will run solid, via Detroit and the new Welland Cut-off, to Buffalo via Niagara Falls. These trains stop at Falls View Station, within a hundred yards of the famous Horse Shoe Fall, and from which are obtained the finest views of the Great Cataract without detention or additional expense. The trains then pass over the new steel Cantilever Bridge to the American side and along the east bank of the Niagara River to Buffalo, stopping also at Suspension Bridge and Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Please inform passengers that all tickets over this line, whether reading via Buffalo or Suspension Bridge, will be accepted by the above described route

Through Express Trains leave Chicago as follows:

8 55 a. m.	4.15 p. m.	8.40 p m.	9.55 p. m.
Ex.Sunday	Daily.	Daily.	Ex.Saturday.

W. L. Wyand,
Northwestern Passenger Agent.
St. Paul. Minn.

Philadelphia Excursion.

An excursion at very low rates, will be run from Chicago to Philadelphia, to accomodate delegates and others going to that city during the session of the great Quadrenial General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which meets there May 1st. The excursion party will leave Chicago in a train of Pullman Palace coaches and baggage cars Monday, April 28th, at 1:30, p. m. The party will meet at the Grand Pacific Hotel, Chicago, in the forenoon of that day.

A special party will leave St. Paul, Friday Apail 25th, at 7:45, P. M, to join this Excursion at Chicago.

Delegates and others living along the lines of the Chicago and Northwestern, Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul, Rock Island, Minneapolis and St. Louis, and Chicago, St. Paul, Minn. and Omaha Railways, wishing to join this excursion, and paying full fare to Chicago, will be returned from Chicago at one-third fare on the presentation of a certificate of attendance in Philadelphia during the General Conference.

Very low rates east of Chicago. For further particulars and tickets apply to

S. Sherin, F. A. Berry,
St. Paul Minn 169 22d St., Chicago.

WHITE EARTH, Agecy. }
March 11th, 1884. }

The advertisement appearing in this paper under date of February 14th, 1884, for the sale of dead and fallen timber cut by the Indians on White Earth and Red Lake Reservations by submitting sealed bids to the agent is so far modified by the direction of the Hon. Secretary of the Interior as to be sold to the highest bidder at public auction on Thursday, the 10th day of April 1884 at the front door of the Court House at Crookston, Minn. The sale of said logs not to be considered final until approved by the Hon. Secretary of the Interior.

One dollar per thousand feet will be required to be paid by the successful bidder at the time of sale, the same to be applied on account in case the bid is accepted and to be returned to the bidder if not accepted.

C. P. LUSE.
U. S. Indian Agent.

WHITE EARTH AGENCY, Minn. }
February 14th, 1884. }

Sealed proposals for the sale of dead and fallen logs cut by the Indians on Red Lake and White Earth Indian Reservations will be received at this agency until Monday the 24th day of March 1884 at 12 o'clock noon at which time the bids will be opened. The logs located at the following points on

Red Lake Reservation.

About 400,000 feet in 2 camps located on Clearwater Lake. About 800,000 feet in 3 camps located on Clearwater River below Clearwater Lake. About 150,000 feet in 1 camp located on "Four Legged Lake" River about 5 miles from junction of the Clearwater River. About 600,000 feet logs in three camps located on Sandy River about 3 miles from the outlet of Red Lake. About 200,000 feet logs in 1 camp located on Red Lake about 10 miles from outlet.

White Earth Reservation.

About one million feet logs located on Clearwater River about 6 miles from its source. About one million feet logs located on "Walker's Brook" a tributary of Clearwater River.

The terms of this sale is, that all bids must be accompanied with a certified check upon some reliable bank for at least one dollar ($1.00) per thousand feet as an assurance of good faith, the same to be returned to the unsuccessful bidder or bidders depositing the same when he bids are opened.

These logs to be scaled by the State Surveyor whose measurement shall be considered final. Twenty-five (25) per cent. of the worth of the logs purchased will be required to be paid in to me within ten (10) days from the acceptance of the bid or bids and the remainder within thirty (30 days.

The Agent claims the right to reject any or all bids as may seem best for the parties for whom the logs are sold. Mark on outside envelope "bid for logs."

C. P. LUSE,
U. S. Indian Agent.

Dead and Fallen Logs.

INSTRUCTIONS DISREGARDED.

Washington, Special Telegram to the Pioneer Press, March 13.—A letter dated Feb. 27, 1884, written by P. C. Sletten, Receiver at Crookston, Minn., was received some time ago by Mr. Nelson inclosing an advertisement for sealed proposals for the dead and fallen logs cut by the Indians on the Red Lake and White Earth Reservations, the bids to be sold aggregate over 4,000,000 feet. The advertisement is signed by C. P. Luse, Indian agent. Mr. Sletten says in his letter that at this rate it will not take long to cut down every tree on the reservation.

"It is absurd," he says, "to suppose that there is any such quantity of dead or fallen logs. The plain truth is that they are cutting down sound timber, and we are told that they even start fires to scorch trees so as to have an excuse for cutting them down. We have an idea that white men and half breeds are running these camps where this pine is cut. We think the Interior Department erred when it issued authority for Indians to cut down dead and burned timber, and it ought to be revoked without delay if the government expects to save any part of these reservations from spoliation."

Mr. Sletten asks that the attention of the Secretary of the Interior be called to the matter at once, as it was reported there that certain lumbermen were interested in all the pine cut at these so-called camps. Mr. Nelson at once referred Mr. Sletten's letter to the Department, and to-day received an answer from the Commissioner of Indian affairs, saying it was the first intimation the Department had received that the timber now being marketed by the Indians on the Red Lake and White Earth Reservations was liable to be sold otherwise than at public sale, the agent in charge having been so instructed, and that the Commissioner had telegraphed the agent on the 8th inst. as follows:

You must sell those logs at public sale to the highest bidder, and not on sealed proposals, as the newspaper notice says; and you must give the newspapers notice to so change the advertisement as to make the sale in this way. No sale will be complete until approved by the Secretary of the Interior.

Wanted to Exchange.

Fifteen acres in city lots, near Chicago, worth $1,000 per acre, for good farming lands in the Red River Valley, or property in Crookston or Grand Forks. The most beautiful place in the west, located on the lake shore; splendid improvements; the best society, schools and churches; has a Ladies Seminary and a University; twenty trains to Chicago every day; low fares This property is bound to increase in price as Chicago grows Will sell in parcels of one acre each or more. Inquire of the Editor of this paper. [48 1]

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN McLEAN, Atty at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston. Minn.

Wanted.

An experienced office salesman for handling machinery. Must understand bookkeeping. Address Steenerson Bros, Crookston, Minn. [49-tf]

Lost.

A clerk's day book somewhere between Bigham & Olafson's store and Austin Larson's residence on Ash Street opposite the Catholic church; finder will confer a great favor by returning the same to Austin Larson at the store. [49-50]

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office for the week ending March 29th, 1884. Persons calling for any of these letters will please say "advertised."

- Andersen, Arne
- Anderson, Entra O
- Andrews, P W
- Bendikson, Miss Anny
- Berge, Ole Tp
- Beueau, Miss Anne
- Butler, P J—2
- Cristenson, Hans Chr
- Ducharme, Moese
- Duval, Stephen
- Erikesen, Edvart
- Espeset, Knud O
- Garon, Jean Baptist
- Gray, Miss Jessie—2
- Hanson, Miss Lucy K
- Havass, Viking J
- Halvorsen, Helena
- Johansson, G
- Jones, Martin
- Lindseth, Beret A L
- Miller Frank
- Mercer, Joseph
- Moen, Emma P
- Murgar, C H
- Olsen, O Gustar
- Rockstad, Mrs Carrie
- Rude, John O
- Sandberg, Emma
- Stete, Miss Julia
- Tulland, Ole Custafson
- Voldnes, Peder A

D. JACOBUS, P. M. Per WILDER.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Ludvig Olsen mortgagor, to Sveming Hageson mortgagee, dated the third day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota on the 19th day of December A. D. 1881, at 8:20 o'clock a. m., in book "E" of mortgages, on pages 571, 572, 573 on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of eighteen hundred and seventy-six and 18-100 dollars ($1876 18-100,) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the west front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the tenth day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and the taxes if any on the premises in said mortgage described and forty ($40.00) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, pieces or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The Southwest quarter (sw¼) Section eighteen (18) in Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) of Range forty-eight (48,) containing one hundred and forty five and 8-100 (145 8-100) acres according to the government survey thereof. The above mortgage was given to secure the payment of the promissory notes therein described, which were executed and delivered by said mortgagor to said mortgagee as part payment of the purchase price of said above described premises.

SVEMING HAGESON,
Mortgagee.

LEO & STEENERSON,
Attorney's of Mortgagee.
Dated March 20th, 1884. [48-8]

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL,	$100,000
SURPLUS,	1,400

MONEY TO LOAN on Long or Short Time on Approved Security.

INTEREST ON TIME DEPOSITS. Faithful Attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE President.
E. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier

COMMERCIAL HOUSE.

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor

SECOND STREET - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

Having leased this new and commodious hotel we are now prepared to supply the needs of the travelling public in first-class style. Our house is entirely new and newly furnished; we have had a long experience in the hotel business and hope to be able to meet the wants of our patrons and friends. We would respectfully solicit a share of the public patronage. [illegible]

MERCHANTS'

BILLIARD HALL!

Fred Anderson Proprietor,

MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN

The Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars on hand.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED.

Latest Edition has 118,000 Words, (3000 more than any other American Dict'y,)
3000 Engravings,
(nearly 3 times the number in any other Dict'y,) also contains a Biographical Dictionary giving brief important facts concerning 9700 Noted Persons.
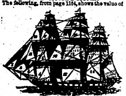
The following, from page 1164, shows the value of



Illustrated Definitions.

1, flying jib; 2, jib; 3, foretop-mast-stay sail; 4, fore-course; 5, foretop sail; 6, foretop-gallant sail; 7, fore-royal; 8, fore sky sail; 9, fore-royal studding sail; 10, foretop-gallant studding sail; 11, foretop-mast studding sail; 12, main-course; 13, maintop sail; 14, maintop-gallant sail; 15, main-royal; 16, main sky sail; 17, main royal studding sail; 18, main top-gallant studding sail; 19, maintop-mast studding sail; 20, mizzen-course; 21, mizzen-top sail; 22, mizzen-top-gallant sail 23, mizzen-royal; 24, mizzen sky sail; 25, mizzen-spanker.

Among the many that could be cited are the following: Beef, Boiler, Castle, Column, Eye, Horse, Moldings, Phrenology, Ravelin, Ships, (pp. 1164 and 1219) Steam Engine and Timbers. These 12 pictures define 343 words and terms.

THE STANDARD.

Webster is the Standard of the U. S. Supreme Court and in the U. S. Gov't Printing Office. Recommended by State Sup'ts of Schools in 36 States. Sale 20 times that of any other series. G. & C. MERRIAM & CO., Pub'rs Springfield, Mass

GRAND GIFT GIFT GIFT ENTERPRISE

—AT THE STORE OF—

HACK & GALLASCH

Secure one or more Tickets and you will be happy.

—ALL—

DRY-GOODS,	WINTER GOODS,
BOOTS, SHOES,	CAPS, GLOVES,
GROCERIES,	PROVISIONS,

—AT BOTTOM PRICES.—

☞ Call in and we will try to please you and tell you all about the

GIFT ENTERPRISE.

CROOKSTON

NURSERIES!

Tree Claim Stock.

I DESIRE to inform my customers and others that I shall make a GREAT REDUCTION from former prices on Forest Trees and Seeds

FOR TREE CLAIMS

I have good thrifty two-year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty, Transcendent and Hislop Crab apple trees.

SMALL FRUITS,

The firm of Haseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

Old Nursery Grounds

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.

F. T. HASELTINE,

Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minnesota.

Proud & Macdonald,

(Successors to Fixen, Hansing & Co.)

Dealers in DRY GOODS

AND NOTIONS,

BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS

&c., &c., &c.

A CALL SOLICITED.

New York Store.

We make the Lowest Prices.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

TO THE

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

CHOICE LOST

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Pure Drugs,

Reliable Medicines,

LOWEST LIVING PRICES,

AT

Medical Hall,

CROOKSTON,

Beecher & George, Prop's.

U. S. LAND OFFICE. Crookston, Minn., March 25th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, on May 10th, 1884, viz: OLE H. BJOIN, Pre. D. S., No. 8,145, for the n½ sw¼ sw¼ sw¼ S. 29, and nw¼ nw¼ S. 32, T. 147, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Hans C. Sampson, Ther S. Hastvedt, Ed Labree and George Labree, all of Fosston, Polk Co., Minn.

[46-1] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE. Crookston, Minn., March 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Register and Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 6th, 1884, viz: STANISLAS VANDRON, Hd. 2,045, for the sw¼ Sec. 19, T. 150, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Oscar Charpenter, of Lake Pleasant, Polk County, Minn., Pierre Lecuyer, Pierre Barette, of Gentilly, Polk County, Minn., George Beauvais of Carman, Polk County, Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn. March 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN PETTERSON, Pre. D. S. No. 8,181, for the lots 4, 5 and 6, and se¼ sw¼ Sec. 19, and lot 1, Sec. 30, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Burg, John A Tafiland, W. Tergerson, Ole Fincepe, all of King P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., March 8th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on April 24th 1884, viz: ELISHA B. SCRIBNER, H'd No. 3478, for the sw¼ S. 34, T. 149, 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Herbert Mason, V. D. Carruth, George Holk and John E. Chilback, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[45-51] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., March 6th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on April 19th, 1884, viz: FRANCOIS TRUDEAW, Pre D. S., 6016, for the ne¼ S. 22, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Timothe Disgroseillier, Francois Labonte, Hilvier Demers and Cheri Montcalow, all of Gentilly, Polk Co., Minn.

[45-51] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE. Crookston, Minn., March 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 6th, 1884, viz: PIERRE LECUYER, Hd. No. 2,044, for the n½ ne¼ sw¼ ne¼ and ne¼ nw¼ S. 26, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Stanislas Vandrin, Oscar Charpentier, of Lake Pleasant, Polk County, Minn., Timothe Desgroseillier, of Gentilly, Polk County, Minn., George Beauvais, of Carman, Polk Co., Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., March 3d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on April 11th, 1884, viz: OLE P. ONSTAD, Pre. D. S., No. 6,018, for the ne¼ S. 10, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Knut H. Berg, Colben Thoreson, Fertile, Lars P. Olstad, Crookston, Ole P. Hunsid, Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.

[45-50] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE. Crookston, Minn., Feb. 21st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Register and Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on April 5th, 1884, viz: ERIC OLE WIKSTROM, Pre. D. S., No. 8,630, for the ne¼ sw¼, se¼ nw¼ and lots 5, 6 S. 6, T. 147, R. 44 He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: George Courtright, Albert Gilmour, Charles Davis and Nils O. Skor, all of Fertile, Polk Co., Minn.

[44-49] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston Minn., Feb. 23d 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn, on April 10th 1884, viz: ALBERT BODDY, H'd No. 1,944, for the ne¼ S. 20, T. 147, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: A. S. Middleton, Patrick Connery, R. S. Mayo, Edna, and H. S. Leech, Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[44-49] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Feb. 26th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on April 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN E. HANSON, H'd Nos. 1,781 and 4,813, for the e½ se¼ and e½ ne¼ S. 14, T. 149, R. 49. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Ole O. Esteuson, Hans H. Berg, Hans H. Bongen and John Thompson, all of Neby, Polk Co., Minn.

[44-49] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Feb. 28th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn, on Friday, April 4th, 1884, viz: MARTIN THOMPSON, H'd No. 5,290, for the sw¼ S. 24, T. 148, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Richard Olson, Frank Grody, Gilbert Broaden and Ole Sornerud, all of Maple Bay, Polk Co., Minn.

[44-49] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of five hundred and seventy-six and 23-100 dollars ($576 23) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John Ralston and Hannah Ralston, his wife, to Eugene Besse, bearing date the 5th day of March, A. D. 1880, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of March, A. D. 1880, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 551, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All of the northeast quarter (¼) of section twenty-four (24) Township one hundred and forty-nine (149) Range forty-seven (47) containing one hundred and sixty acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston in said County and State, on the 9th day of May, A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and forty dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 18th, A. D 1884.

EUGENE BESSE, Mortgagee.
JOHN McLEAN, Attorney for Mortgagee. [47-1]

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 3.

Crookston Markets.

Wheat, No. 1 per bushel		76.
" No 2 " "		72.
Oats, " "		50.
Barley, " "		75.
Potatoes, " "		35.
Hay, per ton		5 00.
Beef Sides	per lb	13.
Corn Beef	"	12½
Roast Beef	"	18.
Roast Veal	"	18.
Roast Pork	"	18.
Beef Steak	"	20.
Pork Steak	"	20.
Mutton Chops	"	20.
Veal Chops	"	20.
Boiling Meat	"	12½.
Salt Pork	"	14.
Pork Sausage	"	20.
Bologna Sausage	"	20.
Sugar Cured Hams	"	18.
Lard	"	16.

'ROUND HOME.

Lovely weather mud fast drying up.

Tom Sprague left this morning for Fargo.

No change in the price of wheat. 79 for No. 1 Hard.

The sleighs will now take a rest until next winter.

We hear that a few farmers have commenced seeding.

Minneapolis downed Ames about 6000. It seems to be a bad year for the ins.

The Grand Forks papers gave our Dramatic Club fine complimentary notices.

We are glad to state that the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Box are improving rapidly.

The battle is over—the slain all buried and the wounded duly bathed and cared for.

The Pennock Ditcher and Grader cannot be excelled. For particulars call on Moser & Mœckel.

And don't you forget it. We guarantee the Pennock Ditcher and Grader.

MOSER & MŒCKEL.

Henry Shepard downed all opposition and got there in fine shape by a large and respectable majority.

Cap. Geo. Whitcomb was in the city this week. He has discarded his fur cap on account of warm weather.

John Confair, one of Crookston's early settlers, is in the city for a few days. John is now located at Maple Bay.

Prof. Casey, of Fisher, was enjoying civilization in our city on Wednesday. He put up at the Shermon, of course.

Mr. H. G. Proud has returned from Winnipeg with his family and will occupy the Bivins residence this summer.

The Farmers Tribune, of Minneapolis has changed its form and appearance and is improving greatly in quantity and quality.

There was some lively snatching of planks and timbers at the bridge to Sampson's addition on Wednesday in anticipation of the threatened break-up.

The JOURNAL office was surrounded by the cornet bands last night, and the welkin rang with the music. Sorry we were not at home to receive you, boys.

We are sorry to note the death of two children of Mr. Edward Columbus, a boy and a girl, both of whom died last month from that terrible scourge, diphtheria.

Sam. Huggard and John Mikkulecky, of the town of Tabo were in the city this week to see about the grading of roads in that town. See their advertisement elsewhere.

Mr. H. G. Proud reports that farmers along the C. P. R. R. west of Winnipeg have commenced seeding. The warm chinook winds have taken the snow all off and left the ground in good shape.

A little five year old Crookston lassie, who with her papa attended the Hidden Hand entertainment, gave it as her opinion that Old Hurricane was "entirely too cross."

The Surprise, Detroit's new paper, has put in an appearance. It is the finest looking, newsiest paper we ever saw printed at that place. Hamilton will have to look sharp or it will prove a surprise to him that he will not relish.

Whiteley's Original Hidden Hand Company appeared at Ericsson's Hall on Tuesday evening. They were greeted by a full house and kept their audience on the broad grin during the whole performance. They are an exceptionally fine troupe and the executions of their pianist, Emma Clarke Brasie, have never been excelled in this city. Taken altogether the performance was the best we have seen for some time.

There was quite a large party went to Grand Forks last Saturday evening on the excursion gotten up by the Crookston Dramatic Company. The company was welcomed at Gotzain's Opera House in Grand Forks by a large and appreciative audience, to witness the great drama, "Led Astray" This company have labored long and earnestly on this drama and their efforts have certainly been crowned with success.

Last Friday evening, about 10 o'clock, Major Mix discovered a U. S. car with the seal broken. His suspicions were aroused, so he proceeded to investigate, and upon sliding back the door he found that the car was occupied so he immediately closed the door, locked it, and made them prisoners. He then sent for assistance and Pete Misgen arrived on the scene on very short notice, and the occupants, three in number, were lodged in the city lockup for the night. In the morning they were brought before justice Lewis and their bails were fixed at three hunered dollars, in default of which they were taken to the county jail there to await the pleasure of the District Court.

H. W. Brown, of the Argyle Banner, made us a pleasant call last week.

Henry Lewis rejoices in the return of his family from a visit to friends below.

Ex-Co. Commissioner Isiah Gervais, was in the city visiting his many friends this week.

Both bands were out on Tuesday evening serenading the successful candidates.

As Ed Walsh goes in unpledged the conundrum now is who will be the appointees?

Charlie Seely is painting up his front and intends to maintain the reputation of his place.

M. R. Brown's sale of farm machinery and horses to-day drew a big crowd and everything sold well.

The Montreal house is washing its face as it were. Its front is being neatly painted.

The Pinkertons are busy as bees receiving car-loads of machinery at Stone & Pinkerton's warehouse.

The sale of horses by M. R. Brown on Thursday March 27th was well attended and the horses all were sold cheap.

The original Crookston Cornet Band will Give a grand ball on the evening of easter Monday at Ericsson's Hall. A good time is promised.

Harry Attix, of Maple Lake, made us a call this morning. He reports roads between the Lake and the city to be very heavy just at present.

A. N. Hopkins is making preparations to move out on to the farm. He has secured a fine crop of ice for his summer's use which will be a luxury that all could have but few take the pains to secure.

There is talk of building on Opera house on Broadway to be 100x40, which building will be used for an opera house and a roller skating rink. The parties who will do this have a bonanza and will make a big thing.

Young people's meeting held in the Baptist Chappel every Sunday evening from quarter after six to quarter after seven. Meeting dismissed in time to get to other church services. All the young people cordially invited.

One of the belles of Grand Forks says that she will never get married unless it be to Dick Kivel. She seems to have fallen in love with our worthy towns man. You had better lock up Dick.—Argyle Banner.

That is where the young lady in Grand Forks—shows her education. Some party has requested us to remark that Dick was strayed or stolen, but we would not do that, but it is a relief to find out the truth of the matter. It is all right Dick. Train leaves for Grand Forks at 9:15.

The Grand Forks Herald says: "While Tom Morris, as Major O'Hara, was applauded for his brogue and coolness, he was not as vivacious as the character imports."

No wonder. We reckon if the Herald man had been running for alderman in the second ward, with his mind burdened with the cares of State consequent thereto he would not be extra "vivacious." Besides that, Tom Morris did not appear in any character on the stage.

It is pleasant to receive such letters as the following from the secretary of the Lake Pleasant farmers club:

RED LAKE FALLS March 31st 1884

ED. JOURNAL: At a meeting of the Lake Pleasant farmers club held March 1st we unanimously voted to extend a vote of thanks to the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL for the interest it has taken in the farmer's cause and ask you to accept our best wishes and the hearty support of our little club for the future welfare of the JOURNAL. We trust that the JOURNAL will continue in the future as firm a friend to the farmers as it has been in the past. Yours truly.

EDWARD COLUMBUS Secretary.

Fall In, Comrades!

The papers necessary to establish a post of the G. A. R. and to procure a charter have been furnished and the charter is daily expected together with an officer to muster. Due and timely notice will be given that old soldiers may govern themselves accordingly.

Notice to Contractors.

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to Wednesday noon, April 30th 1884 for the ditching and grading of all the roads in the Town of Tabor, being town 153 range 48, in all seventy-two miles of road; bids to be made at price per yard of grade; the whole to be completed to the satisfaction of the town board in two years from the date of agreement.

SPECIFICATIONS.

Road-bed to be 18 feet wide.

Beermes six feet wide each.

Ditches, eight feet wide on top.

Depth of grade, two feet.

Width of grade twelve feet on top.

Grade to be made level.

Payment for the work to be made in town bonds running from five to six years drawing ten per cent interest. Bonds to be issued for one-half the work as soon as one-half the work is completed and the balance as soon as the whole is satisfactorily finished. Security will be required for the faithful fulfillment of the work in a sum equal to the amount of contract.

The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids. Address all bids plainly marked "Tenders for grading" to Frank Ormondsek, town clerk, Angus, Polk Co., Minn.

SAMUEL HUGGARD, Chairman of Board.
JOHN MIKKELESKY,
JAMES KOYEN.

CITY ELECTION.

The following are the official returns of the city election, held on Tuesday, April 1st. 1884. The whole number of votes cast was 620:

FIRST WARD.

MAYOR.
E. M. Walsh	132
W. H. Stuart	45
ALDERMAN AT LARGE.
R. Houston	110
R. P. Herrick	67
TREASURER.
A. G. Gallasch	118
W. H. Topping	55
RECORDER.
W. D. Hurlbut	107
O. L. Hamery	69
ASSESSOR.
A. P. Bond	117
S. W. Ritchie	56
CONSTABLE.
Henry Shephard	175
ALDERMAN.
L. Fontaine	165

SECOND WARD.

MAYOR.
E. M. Walsh	121
W. H. Stuart	73
ALDERMAN AT LARGE.
R. Houston	91
R. P. Herrick	99
TREASURER.
A. G. Gallasch	112
W. H. Topping	80
RECORDER.
W. D. Hurlbut	122
O. L. Hamery	63
ASSESSOR.
A. P. Bond	108
S. W. Ritchie	54
CONSTABLE.
Henry Shephard	192
ALDERMAN.
Paul Bataglia	148
Tom Morris	45

THIRD WARD.

MAYOR.
E. M Walsh	55
W. H, Stuart	36
ALDERMAN AT LARGE.
R. Houston	40
R. P. Herrick	53
TREASURER.
A. G. Gallasch	41
W. H. Topping	52
RECORDER.
W. D. Hurlbut	65
O. L. Hamery	27
ASSESSOR.
A. P. Bond	41
S. W. Ritchie	53
CONSTABLE.
Henry Shephard	92
ALDERMAN.
W. Walker	57
John McLean	37

FOURTH WARD.

MAYOR.
E. M. Walsh	121
W. H. Stuart	36
ALDERMAN AT LARGE.
R. Houston	112
R. P. Herrick	56
TREASURER.
A. G. Gallasch	105
W. H. Topping	47
RECORDER.
W. D. Hurlbut	84
O. L. Hamery	68
ASSESSOR.
A. P. Bond	109
S. W. Ritchie	43
CONSTABLE.
Henry Shephard	142
ALDERMAN.
C. A. Chiniquy	146

List of Grand and Petit Jurors drawn for the June term of court.

GRAND JURORS.

E. K. Overland,
R. E. Lommen,
L. H. Judson,
J. B. Menell,
O. O. Estenson,
Henry Witte,
John Locken,
E. O. Flanders,
Wm. Kertson,
Charles Davy,
Mansin P. Danigan,
Daniel Sculley,
A. M. Malenberg,
J. E. Sullivan,
George Coulter,
Charles Wedenhoefer,
D. Dodge,
Joseph Lansonn,
Hans Anderson,
P. Quigley,
M. E. Bartlett,
Michael McGuire,

PETIT JURORS.

Chris Olsen,
Otto Kankle,
Chas Cahoun,
Nils O. Paularad,
P. J. Kelley,
John Fisher,
A. G. Kingston,
Nels H. Nelson,
W. J. Winslow,
Fred Fox,
Thomas McVety,
Hans Nelson,
Fred Tuedt,
Ole U. Rene,
Frank Lytle,
Orin Simmons,
Ole Rise,
M. F. O'Brien,
H. A. Kelley,
S. L. Farnsworth,
F. M. Schwalk,
A. M. Wolf,
Ole P. Onstad,
Martin Gilley.

Teachers Examinations.

Spring examinations for teachers of Polk County will be held as follows:

Crookston, at the Court House, March 27th and 28th.

East Grand Forks, at School House April 1st and 2d.

Red Lake Falls, at School House, April 4th and 5th.

V. D. CARRUTH,
County Supt. of Schools.

March 13, 1884. [46-48]

CLEAN DRY WOOD,

Stove lengths, full measure, delivered in any part of the city on short notice. $3 a cord.

[28-tf] LEECH & SHELLANUS.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Main street, opposite U. S. Land Office.

[14-tf] H. STEENERSON.

To Rent.

For three years; a fine farm with plenty of wood and water handy; good house and stables. No money required as rent can be paid in improvements on the farm. A rare opportunity for some industrious men Address JOURNAL office.

Timothy Seed.

The undersigned has a quantity of Timothy seed for sale. Call on or address J. M. Bain, Fisher Minn.

[46-49]

Wanted.

A position as foreman on a farm or as a blacksmith on a large farm.

Address, W. B. Ross, Crookston.

[46-49]

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries and propose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining Trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence one block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754. Most respectfully.

[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

Sweep, Ho!

If you want your chimney cleaned in a scientific manner call on August Koeppo. He knows how it is done.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax, is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing,

JOHN MCLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

So far, Crookston has fortunately escaped the ravages of that dreaded monster the Fire Fiend, but we know not at what hour he may appear in our midst. The only way to meet this terrible foe is by good, reliable Insurance. Look over our Million List of staunch, fire-tested companies and make your selection before you have cause to regret a loss.

Hartford	$9,761,279
German American, N.Y	3,604,650
German, Freeport, Ill.	1,023,497
Niagara,	1,887,497
Liverpool London, Globe	4,777,566
Fireman's Fund, California,	1,166,917
National, of Hartford.	1,704,896
N. Y. Alliance,	1,097,949
Phoenix, of Hartford	2,094,592
Union, California,	1,29,828
British America,	1,262,088
North British	1,678,622

We also represent the Travelers Life and Accident Insurance Co., of Hartford.

I. M. [illegible]
[illegible] Agency

For Sale.

Horses, oats, cordwood, fence posts and potatoes for sale at the farm of Jacob Stambaugh on the Sand Hill River 7 miles east of Beltramistation. Parties wishing to purchase any of the aforementioned property will do well to call.

[46-tf]

To Rent.

Ready for grain in the spring 160 acres on Section 12 Township 149 Range 46 and 220 acres on Section 11 Township 148 Range 46. Both tracts have a good house and barn. Apply

Peter Cornelius, Crookston' Minn.

[38-tf]

DITCHING

AND ROAD GRADING

MADE EASY.

The Pennock Ditcher and Grader can be bought for one-fifth the cost of the New Era Grader, and it will do the work better than any machine heretofore brought into the market. Will sell the machine on its merits. No work, no pay. Apply to

MOSER & MŒCKEL,
[48-3m] Gen'l Northwestern Agents.

For Sale.

A fine farm of 480 acres, 270 acres under cultivation. Good house, barn and well; teams and machinery to run it. On account of ill health will be sold at a big sacrifice for cash. For further particulars address JOURNAL office.

Seed Wheat.

I have 1500 bushels of pure Scotch Fife wheat for sale. Call on or address,

FRANK BIVINS,
[45-tf] Crookston, Minn.

MONEY LOANED

at lowest rates of interest. Special attention given to land contests, both in the local office and the general land office at Washington, D. C.

J[illegible] & McGraw,
Attorneys at Law and Real Estate [illegible],
[illegible], Crookston, Minn. [50-tf]

MARRIED.

DURKEE—SMITH.—In this city on Wednesday April 2d, 1884, by G. W. Lewis Esq., Mr. JOHN DURKEE, to Miss SARAH A. Smith, all of this city.

DIED.

BOX—In this city on Thursday March 27th 1884, Jeano Eva, daughter of Wm. and Lizzie Box, aged 12 years 3 months and 15 days.

Thus for the second time is that stricken home invaded by the grim reaper, Death, and a lovely flower removed from the loving circle to be transplanted to a heavenly home, and while loving hearts are crushed by this double affliction yet the sweet assurance is left that it is well with the loved ones gone before.

THE

RED STAR

GROCERY

NOW OPEN

In the Building adjoining the Canada House,

Broadway, Cor. Fletcher Ave.,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A FRESH STOCK OF GENERAL GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

I will make a specialty of Canned Goods.

I will also introduce a Japan Tea cheaper than ever before offered in Crookston.

Your patronage is kindly solicited and a visit to the Red Star Grocery will convince any one of the LOW PRICES.

Goods will be delivered throughout the city free of charge.

Terms Strictly Cash.

Remember the place, Sign of the Red Star Grocery, Broadway, cor. Fletcher Avenue, Crookston, Minn.

E. LEPAGE.

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Christopher C. Dillon and Ella Dillon his wife, mortgagors, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the twenty-seventh day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "1" of mortgages, on pages 509 and 510, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $51 25 100, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and as to be sold, is the lot piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-two (22) in Township one hundred and forty-eight (148) north, of Range forty-five (45) west containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.

R. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Zebedee Lasia, mortgagor, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 16th day of November A. D eighteen hundred and eighty-two and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the seventeenth day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "1" of mortgages, on pages 499 to 501 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $80.75, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and as to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the east half (e½) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of section two (2) in Township one hundred and fifty-three (153) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.

R. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th, 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Moses Blair, mortgagor to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 3d day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the fourth day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "1" of mortgages, on pages 427 and 428 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $88 70-100, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

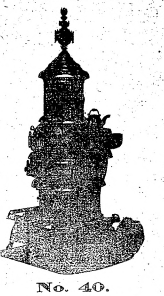
The premises described in said mortgage, and as to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and lots one (1) two (2) of Section seven (7) in Township one hundred and fifty one (151) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and fifty-two 97 (152 97) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.

R. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th 1884. [49-3]

EIKEN BROS.,
DEALERS IN
Hardware, Tinware, Stoves and Shelfware.
We keep Full and Complete Stock of Goods in our Line, and invite the patronage of all.
COR MAIN ST. AND FLETCHER AVE., CROOKSTON.

UNIVERSAL



No. 40.

JEROME'S

ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,

DEALERS IN GENERAL MERCHANDISE,

CARMAN

Carry a full line of everything usually found in a General Store, and sell at reasonable prices.

GIVE US TRIAL.

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

HEAVY AND SHELF Hardware, Tinware Of all kinds. JOB WORK a specialty.

BAR IRO STEEL, AND Blacksmith SUPPLI Building Pa, Sash, Etc.

ALSO AGENT

For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

CROOKSTON CITY BAKERY!

EARNEST MILLER, Proprietor.

(SUCCESSORS TO THE PLUMB BROTHERS.)

Takes advantage of the occasion to say that he will keep a full line goods that are usually found in a

FIRST-CLASS BAKERY,

And that the citizens of Polk County will find none but the best at his of business. A fine line of

CIGARS AND TOBACCO, NUTS, FRUITS, CANDIES, PIES, CAKES, BRE

AND EVERY THING TO FILL OUT A HUNGRY

AN UNHAPPY PARENT.

Five daughters—four of them engaged—
I think I shall go mad!
For such a surfeiting of love
No parent ever had.
The atmosphere is charged
With it; no matter where
I go about the house, I trip
Upon some whispering pair.

At evening when I take my pipe
And seek a quiet nook
To sit and read my paper, or
Some new and tempting book,
I ope, perhaps the parlor door,
When a familiar sound,
Quite unmistakable, suggests
It is forbidden ground.

So then more cautiously I turn
To our reception room;
But lo! again upon my ear
From its romantic gloom
Comes softly, yet with emphasis,
That warning; when I start
And leave as Lady Macbeth wished
Her guests would all depart.

My next resort is then the porch,
Where roses trail and bloom;
Ha! is it echo that betrays
The joys of yonder room?
Ah, no! a startled change of base
Reveals the presence there
Of cupid's votaries, and alas!
There's still another pair.

"But sure," I think, "my library
Will be a safe retreat."
So there at once with quickened step
I take my weary feet.
Vain hope—that warning sound again
Breaks on my listening ear;
Thank heaven! my youngest hath not yet
Attained her thirteenth year.

Hark! there she is! and bless my heart,
That popinjay, young Lunn,
Is at her side—I do believe
That she, too, has begun.
Oh, ye who have to sit and dream
Of future married joys,
Pray heaven with highest fervor that
Your girls may all be boys.
—Philadelphia Press.

CONCERNING RAZORS.

here They Are Made, How They Are Used and What Becomes of Them.

"Razors" said the expert to a repre- ntative of the New York Sun, vinging one of the tools in his hand th a freedom that made the reporter udder, "why, they're a field broader an the moral law. They are the touch nature that makes all mankind kin, m President Arthur in his dressing m to his constituents at a penny-ante ker game in Thompson street. No, v razors are made in this country— ne worth speaking of—say one in a llion. The best come from England he next best are Swiss. The French zors deserve a proud distinction of maxing the worst, so far as I know. me used to be made at Bridgeport, nn., but I believe the enterprise was andoned. Some are made yet in assachusetts, at Worcester, but not any.

"In one respect we do better here an in England. We can give here a eeper concave grind than the English rinders can put upon a razor, conse- uently many thousand dozens of blanks e shipped here every year for finish- g. The reason for this is that the illed and careful German grinders e in the business here. The business arted in Hamburg and has drifted to German hands almost entirely so r as this country is concerned. Years o the most famous Sheffield firm of tlers in the razor trade imported two rman grinders to show how their class work could be done. It precipitated general strike, and the employers had come to the strikers' demands—the uncing out of the Deutchers.

The Sheffield grinders are English- and will not readily accept the petition of men of other national- or adopt the method of others. y are not fond of change. Razors nd to perfection over here been shown to them as models, lo you imagine they would follow ? No, indeed. Primarily a to be good, must be made of steel, but it must also be ground rly to be fit for shaving. Every- in fitting any edge tool for use, ds upon a correct understanding service it is expected to perform, aice adaption of its edge to just service. A carving-knife, for in- , must be ground flat on one side edged-shaped on the other; a pock- ife must be ground convex, and a sufficient thickness behind its o keep it; and a razor must be d thin and concave. See this one, tance. It is, as you will observe, r a little back of the edge than o it, hardly thicker than a sheet er. Nip the end of its edge with humb-nail, and you will hear it ike a little silver bill. More ra- e spoiled by improper grinding any other way. The only way ow positively whether a razor is or not is to shave with it. The not determine its quality. But a razor is of the best steel and ly ground it may be spoiled and d quite unfit for shaving by im- stropping. A little too much g, or not quite enough and you e a bad edge. Then the razor is really not at all to blame, is ned as no good.

en, too, people who are not in the handling of razors com- at their razors do not shave hen the fact is that they scrape em, holding the blade almost at gles to the skin, or use them straight push of the edge against r. The proper way is to draw or with an easy gliding motion the hair—so. Use it right, and, it is not quite a first-class razor fect condition, you can still get y satisfactory shave with it. lack of doing that, people get rest notions about their razors— attribute to them whims and ies as if they were sentient I know one gentleman who hat his best razor, his pet in ill not shave him at all in the He actually belives that. is, that he is away from his condition of being and sur- s when in the country, and, ously of course, neither treats nor uses it as he would at home. affirm that their razors refuse ell on the seacoast, as if the ed where it is used. Three- f the people who shave them- not know how to use a razor, quently are liable to condemn e.

is supposed to be better for er it has been used for a good nd it is. My idea about it is nperceptible rust gathers on it and when that is honed and off its edge is thinner and an before. But you will not ly hear a barber speak of a eing tired' and 'needing rest.' avoid wearing a razor by se by the expedient of having ll using them in turn. Here e, is what we term a 'calendar case,' got to meet the requirements of gentlemen who take that sensible view of their razors. It contains, as you will observe, seven fine razors, lettered on the backs for the days of the week. Such cases are sold at various prices, all the way up from $7 to $20. Why do I call it 'a sensible view?' Because, naturally, seven razors, by such changing round, will each do but one-seventh of what would be required of one razor in constant use, and consequently the evil day of regrinding is put seven times further away. Some men have a great number of razors, and keep adding to their collection all the time. Joe Jefferson, the actor, buys at least a dozen per annum from a big cutlery house on Nassau street alone, and I know he also buys elsewhere. I should imagine that he must have a trunk full of razors, if he does not loose them or give them away all the time.

"A good razor is worth from $1.50 to $2.50, but there are cheap kinds sold as low as $3 a dozen. Those are the kind generally employed in Thompson street to stiffen up weak poker hands or persuade people who don't 'carry a razzer.' There are an infinite number of styles and sizes of razors. Some like a big, heavy blade; others, a small, light, very narrow and deeply concaved blade, I rather think the latter are least liable to cut the skin. In all cases the blade and handle of the razor should balance perfectly when it is held in position for use."

"It is a wonder to me where all the razors go to—what becomes of them," said the genial proprietor of the big cutlery house in Nassau street. "Now, I deal only in strictly first-class goods, in razors as in all other kinds of cutlery, so my business is more restricted than some others, but last year I imported 2,467 dozens of razors, worth more than $20,000 to me. And that is about what the demand is every year. Some houses here—and there are eight or ten prominent importers—do considerably more than I do, and it is not at all uncommon for me to sell 100 dozen a day. Every boy should be taught to shave. It should be made a part of his education, just as much as swimming, dancing or carving—all necessary accomplishments."

Secret of Actor Irving's Success.

The success of Irving grows as he goes on in this country. The Boston Transcript, of Monday, says: "The extraordinary scenes of the Boston Theater, Saturday night, and the extraordinary figures in which such scenes are reduced to their money value, show that Mr. Irving's arrival in America makes an epoch—a point of departure—in the history of our stage. The managers must be studying his enormous, his unprecedented success, and preparing to repeat the conditions which have led to it. What are they? Let two or three representative facts about Mr. Irving illustrate. He has brought his entire company and paraphernalia, down to a titled stove and doors that latch with a click like real doors, across the ocean dragged them around this country in a freight train of thirty carloads; he has kept a young London singer of distinction on a good yearly salary in order to sing him one song in 'Much Ado About Nothing;' he has spent the larger part of every day from 10 o'clock in the morning to 4 in the afternoon, on the stage rehearsing with his company, and some of his oldest actors have been known to be obliged by him to go back and enter through a door upon the stage seven times over before suiting Mr. Irving. All day was thus spent upon Louis XI., before its last performance here. This work it is that has made the Irving performances remarkable; that has made not less of a stir in stage matters in England; that brought the artists of the Comedie Francaise and the critics of Paris, and even the Meiningen Company, to Mr. Irving's feet to learn of him and study his effects.

A Woman at the Wheel.

Mark Twain ought to kindly volunteer to give Mrs. Capt. Miller the benefit of r few lessons in Mississippi river navigation. According to the veracious Chicgo News she is sadly in need of instruction:

Capt. Mary Miller, the Mississippi river steamboat woman, after several months' practice, is still hopelessly deficient in the art of managing a river boat. It is said she cannot get the knack of ripping out those beautiful, flowing, polysyllabic oaths that have so inspiring an influence over deck-hands and roustabouts; and as for knocking a cook overboard once or twice a day, she says she fears she will never learn that essential steamboat method of gaining respect. The other day she was trying to make the bend below the St. Francis flats, and stood on the hurricane roof to give orders to the new pilot. "Now, sir," said she, "will you be so kind as to turn your wheel to the right hand very rapidly." The pilot stood with open mouth looking down the river. "Mr. Pilot," she said striving to draw his attention, "Please, Mr. Pilot, do you hear me?" "Hey?" grunted the man at the wheel. "Will you do me the favor to turn your wheel over seven or eight times as fast as ever you can?" Over went the wheel. "Oh, no, sir, no, sir, not that way, if you please, sir; quick, my dear sir quick! Gracious me! we are within twenty fingers of the bar." Just then the first mate came up through the for'ud hatchway, and the poor little woman, half distracted, said: "Oh, dear Mr. Mate, I'm feeling faint; I think you'd better take command of the ship." "Aye, aye ole gal," and, turning to the pilot, he sung out: "Hey, there you ——sleepy-headed son of a gun, hard a port there, 'r I'll knock a hole in yer ——carcas bigger 'n a ball o'hay!" The boat slid out into deep water, and Capt. Mary Miller went down into her Texas state-room, where nobody could hear her study her lesson in river conversations. As the boat glided up to the New Orleans wharf she popped her head out the state-room door and called out to a lieman on shore: "Hi, sir, make fast the bow line, and the one at the other end, too. By darn!" And dodged back to put her head under the pillow and cry.

A beautiful incident of the carnival in New-Orleans last month was the presentation of a basket of choice flowers to the daughters of the late General Robert E. Lee by the General Joseph A. Mower Post, No. 1, of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The Early Closing Association of New York smashes the plate-glass windows of dry goods stores that do not close early. They want more time to improve their minds.

Woman's Tenacity of Life.

[Modern Age.]

It appears from the gathered statistics of the world that women have a greater tenacity of life than men. Nature worships the female in all its varieties. Among insects the male perishes at a relatively early period. In plants the seminate blossoms die earliest, and are produced in the weaker limbs. Female quadrupeds have more endurance than males. In the human race, despite the intellectual and physical strength of the man, the woman endures longest, and will bear pain to which the strong man succumbs. Zymotic diseases are more fatal to males, and more male children die than females. Deverga asserts that the proportion dying suddenly is about 100 women to 780 men; 1,080 men in the United States in 1870 committed suicide to 285 women. Intemperance, apoplexy, gout, hydrocephalus, affection of the heart or liver, scrofula, paralysis, are far more fatal to males than females. Pulmonary consumption, on the other hand, is more deadly to the latter. Females in cities are more prone to consumption than in the country. All old countries not disturbed by emigration have a majority of females in the population. In royal families the statistics show more daughters than sons. The Hebrew woman is exceptionally long-lived, the colored man exceptionally short-lived. The married state is favorable to prolongation of life among women. Dr. Hough remarks that there are from 2 to 6 per cent. more males born than females, yet there is more than 6 per cent. excess of females in the living population. From which statistics we conclude that all women who can possibly obtain one of these rapidly-departing men ought to marry, and that, as men are likely to become so very scarce, they can not be sufficiently prized by the other sex.

Clelia, the youngest daughter of Garibaldi, was recently married at Rome. Her husband is Prof. Grazialdi. King Humbert made her a wedding present of a diamond bracelet.

Gospel Facts.

[The following has appeared in nearly every newspaper throughout the United States, and is one of the finest testimonials ever won by a medicine, proprietary or otherwise. Dr. Crane (he is a graduate of medicine as well as a clergyman) gives this evidence without any solicitation whatever. It will repay all to read it.]

"I have never seen a medicine more perfectly adapted to its various applications than Thomas' Eclectric Oil. I was for many years a sufferer from quinsy; Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured me. My wife and child had diphtheria; Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured them; and if taken in season it will cure seven times out of ten. I am confident it is a cure for the most obstinate cold or cough, and if taken into the head, by the nostrils, two or three a week will positively remove the most offensive case of catarrh; and notwithstanding the delicate nature of the mucous membrane of the nasal organs, can be taken up with perfect impunity. For deafness and earache it has done wonders to my certain knowledge. It is the only medicine dubbed patent that I have ever felt like recommending, and I am anxious to see it in every place, for I tell you I would not be without it in the house for any consideration. It also operates in asthma as a specific, and whenever it is used it becomes indispensable to household safety. I am ready to give any one the benefit of my observation, both as to its effects and mode of application, if they will drop me a note making inquiry." Rev. E. F. Crane, Dunkirk, N. Y. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is sold everywhere by Druggists. FOSTER, MILBURN & Co., Prop's, Buffalo, N.Y.

Howard White, Senator Sawyer's son-in-law, now owns control of the Syracuse Journal.

Last winter I found positive relief from catarrh with Ely's Cream Balm. Was troubled for years. I have no doubt a thorough use of Cream Balm will cure a majority of cases.—E. D. NORTON, Ithaca, N. Y. (See ad.)

Frank Smith, a bar tender at Dickenson Dak., committed suicide.

"Rough on Rats," clears out Rats, Mice. 15c.
Mother Swan's Worm Syrup, tasteless. 25c.
"Rough on Coughs" Troches, 15c; liquid 50c.

Albany, N. Y., is to have a $500,000 Episcopalian cathedral.

Consumption

is a disease we all dread. It often carries its victim to an untimely grave. How important, then, for those who cherish life and health to prevent that disease in its early stages. Every Cold or Cough should be treated with Allen's Lung Balsam. There is no better remedy.

I can safely recommend Ely's Cream Balm for the cure of catarrh, cold in the head, etc. Before I have used the first bottle I purchased I find myself cured. At times I could scarcely smell anything and had a headache most of the time.—HENRY LILLY, Agent for the American Express Co., Grand Haven, Mich. (Price 50c.)

Gen. Slocum says the Brooklyn Eagle clears $260,000 a year.

Well's May Apple (Liver) Pills, 10c.
"Rough on Toothache," instant relief. 15c.
The "Rough on Tooth" Powder, elegant. 15c.

Piles! Piles! Piles!

Sure cure for Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. Single box has cured worst chronic case of twenty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying. William's Indian Pile ointment. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching (praticularly after getting warm in bed). Prepared only for piles and itching for the private parts. Noyes Bros. & Cutler, St Paul. Wholesale Agents.

I have taken Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) for Rheumatism, and found perfect relief. It is the best tonic and Blood Remedy known to science. D. P. Hill, Attorney at Law, Atlanta, Ga.

$10,000 would not purchase from me what Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) has effected in my case. It has cured me of Malarial Rheumatism. Archie Thomas, Springfield, Tenn.

Is your liver sound? 100 page book free. Address Dr. Sanford, 24 Duane St., New York.

"BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES" are excellent for the relief of Hoarseness or Sore Throat. They are exceedingly effective."—CHRISTIAN WORLD, LONDON, ENG.

The Best In The World.

Dr. J. W. Hamilton of Merrilan, Wis., says, I have sold Warner's White Wine Tar Syrup for years. It is the best cough medicine in the world and has no equal for asthma.

If a cough disturbs your sleep, one dose of Piso's cure will give you a night's rest.

There was a young man so well bred,
That the hair would not stay on his head,
But the Carboline oil
Put new hair on the soil,
And now with an heiress he's wed.

One greasing with Frazer Axle Grease will last two weeks, all others two to three days.

Pronounced A Great Remedy.

Dr. Warner:—Dear Sir—In behalf of the White Wine of Tar Syrup, I can say it is a great remedy for weak lungs. I had Pneumonia eight years ago, which left my lungs in bad condition. I used the White Wine of Tar Syrup you sent me, and am greatly benefited. I can recommend it as a good medicine. I hope you will supply our druggists at Cabool, Mr. Gorman, as I would like more of it.
Yours truly, REV. JOHN W. BROWN.

Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator will cure liver diseases where other remedies have failed.

Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters purify the Blood. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

Pure Cod-Liver Oil made from selected livers, on the sea-shore, by CASWELL, HAZARD & Co., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians have decided it superior to any of the other oils in market.

Chapped Hands, Face, Pimples and rough Skin cured by using JUNIPER TAR SOAP, made by CASWELL, HAZARD & Co., New York.

Barnes, the Kentucky evangelist, says he has now converted 84,000 people.

"Buchu-paiba," Great Kidney and Urinary Cure, $1
"Rough on Corns," for Corns, Warts, Bunions. 15c
Wells' Health Renewer cures Dyspepsia, Impotence

"THE THIRD HOUSE."

Its Good and Bad Members—The Remarkable Experiences of a Close Observer of Its Workings During a Long Residence at Washington.

Correspondence Rochester Democrat.

No city upon the American continent has a larger floating population than Washington. It is estimated that during the sessions of congress twenty-five thousand people, whose homes are in various parts of this and other countries, make this city their place of residence. Some come here attracted by the advantages the city offers for making the acquaintance of public men; others have various claims which they wish to present while the great majority gather here, as the crows flock to the carrion, for the sole purpose of getting a morsel at the public crib. The latter class, as a general thing originate the many schemes which terminate in vicious bills, all of which are neither directed at the public treasury, or toward that revenue which the blackmailing of corporations or private enterprises may bring.

While walking down Pennsylvania avenue the other day I met Mr. William M. Ashley, formerly of your city, whose long residence here has made him unusually well acquainted with the operations of the lobby.

Having made my wants in this particular direction known, in answer to an interrogative, Mr. Ashley said:

"Yes, during my residence here I have become well acquainted with the workings of the 'Third House,' as it is termed, and could tell you of numerous jobs, which, like the 'Heathen Chinee,' are peculiar."

"You do not regard the lobby, as a body, vicious, do you?"

"Not necessarily so, there are good and bad men comprising that body; yet there have been times when it must be admitted that the combined power of the 'Third House' has overridden the will of the people. The bad influence of the lobby can be seen in the numerous blood-bills that are introduced at every session."

"But how can these be discovered?"

"Easily enough, to the person who has made the thing a study. I can detect them at a glance"

"Tell me, to what bills do you refer?"

"Well, take the annual gas bills, for instance. They are introduced for the purpose of bleeding the Washington Gas Light company. They usually result in an investigating committee which never amounts to anything more than a draft upon the public treasury for the expenses of the investigation. Another squeeze is the abattoir bills, as they are called. These, of course, are fought by the butchers and market-men. The first attempt to force a bill of this description was in 1877, when a prominent Washington politician offered a fabulous sum for the franchise."

"Anything else in this line that you can think of, Mr. Ashley."

"Yes, there's the job to reclaim the Potomac flats, which, had it become a law, would have resulted in an enormous steal. The work is now being done by the Government itself, and will rid the place of that malarial atmosphere of which we hear so much outside the city."

"During your residence here have you experienced the bad results of living in this climate?"

"Well, while I have not at all times enjoyed good health, I am certain that the difficulty which laid me up so long was not malarial. It was something that had troubled me for years. A shooting, stinging pain that at times attacked different parts of my body. One day my right arm and leg would torture me with pain, there would be great redness, heat and swelling of the parts; and perhaps the next day the left arm and leg would be similiarly affected. Then again it would locate in some particular part of my body and produce a tenderness which would well nigh drive me frantic. There would be weeks at a time that I would be afflicted with an intermitting kind of pain that would come on every afternoon and leave me comparatively free from suffering during the balance of the twenty-four hours. Then I would have terrible paroxysms of pain coming on at any time during the day or night when I would be obliged to lie upon my back for hours and keep as motionless as possible. Every time I attempted to move a chilly sensation would pass over my body, or I would faint from hot flashes. I suffered from a spasmodic contraction of the muscles and a soreness of the back and bowels, and even my eyeballs became sore and distressed me greatly whenever I wiped my face. I became ill-tempered, peevish, fretful, irritable and desperately despondent."

"Of course you consulted the doctors regarding your difficulty?"

"Consulted them? well I should say I did. Some told me I had neuralgia; others that I had inflammatory rheumatism, for which there was no cure, that I would be afflicted all my life, and that time alone would mitigate my sufferings."

"But didn't they try to mitigate your miseries?"

"Yes, they vomited and physiced me, blistered and bled me, plastered and oiled me, sweat, steamed and everything but froze me, but without avail."

"But how did you finally recover?"

"I had a friend living in Michigan who had been afflicted in a similar way and had been cured. He wrote me regarding his recovery and advised me to try the remedy which cured him. I procured a bottle and commenced its use, taking a table-spoonful after each meal and at bed time. I had used it about a week when I noticed a decrease of the soreness of the joints and a general feeling of relief. I persevered in its use and finally got so I could move around without limping, when I told my friends that it was Warner's Safe Rheumatic Curre that had put me on my feet."

"And do you regard your cure as permanent?"

"Certainly, I haven'n been so well in years as I am now, and although I have been subjected to frequent and severe changes of weather this winter, I have not felt the first intimation of the return of my rheumatic trouble."

"Do you object to the publication of this interview, Mr. Ashley?"

"Not at all, sir. I look upon it as a duty I owe my fellow creatures to alleviate their sufferings so far as I am able, and any communication regarding my symptoms and cure that may be sent to me at 506 Maine avenue will receive prompt and careful attention."

"Judging from your recital, Mr. Ashley, there must be wonderful curative properties about this medicine?"

"Indeed, there is, sir, for no man suffered more nor longer than did I before this remedy gave me relief."

"To go back to the original subject, Mr. Ashley, I suppose you see the same familiar faces about the lobby session after session?"

"No, not so much as you might think. New faces are constantly seen and old ones disappear. The strain upon lobbyists is necessarily very great, and when you add to this the demoralizing effect of late hours and intemperate habits and the fact that they are often found out in their steals, their disappearance can easily be accounted for."

"What proportion of these blood-bills are successful?"

"A very small percentage, sir. Notwithstanding the power and influence of the lobby, but few of these vicious measures pass. Were they successful it would be a sad commentary upon our system of government, and would virtually annihilate one branch of it. The great majority of them are either reported adversely or smothered in committee by the wretchfulness and loyalty of our congressmen." J. E. D.

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK

20
THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

"See What Cuticura Does for Me!"

INFANTILE and Birth Humors, Milk Crust, Scalled Head, Eczemas, and every form of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous and inherited Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. Absolutely pure and safe. Cuticura the great Skin Cure, 50 cts.; Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and only Medicinal Baby Soap, 25 cts. and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, $1, are sold by druggists. Potter Drug and Chemical Co., Boston. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

The Most Popular Medicine Extant

Allen's Lung Balsam!
A REMEDY THAT WILL CURE
CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,
ASTHMA, CROUP,
All Diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Pulmonary Organs.

THE LUNG BALSAM Has cured Consumption when other remedies and physicians have failed to effect a cure.
THE LUNG BALSAM Contains no Opium in any form.
THE LUNG BALSAM Is strictly pure and harmless to the most delicate person.
THE LUNG BALSAM Is recommended by Physicians, Ministers and Nurses.
THE LUNG BALSAM For Croup is a safe and sure Remedy. Mothers, try it.
THE LUNG BALSAM Should be used at the first manifestations of a Cold or Cough.
THE LUNG BALSAM As an Expectorant has no equal.

CAUTION.—Be not deceived. Call for ALLEN'S Lung Balsam, and take no other. Directions accompany each bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO. Limited, Cincinnati, O.
PROPRIETORS.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE DEALERS.

PENSIONS to Soldiers and Heirs. Send stamp for Circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

CATARRH

ELY'S
CREAM BALM
CATARRH
CURES COLD IN HEAD
ROSE-COLD
HAY-FEVER
DEAFNESS
HEADACHE
PRICE 50 CENTS
ELY BRO'S, OWEGO, N.Y. U.S.A.

HAY-FEVER

ELY'S CREAM BALM
Causes no Pain. Gives Relief at Once. Thorough Treatment will Cure. Not a Liquid or Snuff. Apply with Finger. Give it a Trial.
50 cents at Druggists. 60 cents by mail registered. Send for circular.
ELY BROTHERS, Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS,
DISORDERED LIVER,
and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect
ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.
Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

PISO'S REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Easy to use. A certain cure. Not expensive. Three months' treatment in one package. Good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Dizziness, Hay Fever, &c. Fifty cents. By all Druggists, or by mail.
E. T. HAZELTINE, Warren, Pa.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

The kidneys act as purifiers of the blood, and when their functions are interfered with through weakness, they need toning. They become healthfully active by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, when failing short of relief from other sources. This superb stimulating tonic also prevents and arrests fever and ague, constipation, liver complaint, dyspepsia, rheumatism and other ailments. Use it with regularity. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again, I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you. Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

Any man or woman making less than $40 per week, should try our money-making business. Requires no talking and pays best of any. It will pay you to read our papers. $1 samples free to those who mean business. Exclusive territory given. Address, with 2c. stamp, R. H. Merrill & Co., Chicago.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.
DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER
Their cause and cure.
Knight's new book sent free.
Address, L. A. KNIGHT,
15 East Third St., CINCINNATI, O.
Mention particularly this paper.

MARLIN MAGAZINE RIFLE.

45 Govt. and 40-60 Grain Cartridges.
Very Strong. Perfectly Safe.
THE BEST RIFLE in the world for Large Game. Much more effective than 44-cal., which uses small amount of powder and lead. Superior in accuracy, rapidity, model and finish, to any other.
BALLARD Gallery, Sporting and Target Rifles. Send for Catalogue.
Marlin Fire Arms Co. New Haven Ct.

DR. SPINNEY'S
TRADE
MARK
NERVE TONIC

Nerve Tonic.
A Positive Remedy for all forms of Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Spinal Affections Chorea, Sympathetic Nervous Derangement of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, and all other Nervous Diseases.
Price: $1.00 per bottle or 6 for $5.00. Sent by express on receipt of money.
Send stamp for circular.
Address, DR. SPINNEY & CO., 10½ South Third St., Minneapolis, Minn. Also for sale by Druggists.

Trade Mark

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."

IF YOU WANT A SUIT OF CLOTHES THAT IS DURABLE, GENTEEL IN APPEARANCE, OF GOOD QUALITY, STRONGLY MADE AND PERFECT FITTING, ASK YOUR DEALER TO SHOW YOU SOME OF OUR CLOTHING. SEE THAT OUR LABEL IS ON THE COAT. IF HE HAS NONE FAVOR US WITH YOUR ADDRESS AND WE WILL TELL YOU WHERE TO OBTAIN IT.
TUCKER, CALDER & CO.,
UTICA, N. Y.

POTASH!

Iodide of Potassium is one of the strongest of the minerals used in medicine, and has produced much suffering in the world. Taken for a long time and in large doses, it dries up the gastric juices, impairs digestion, the stomach refuses food, and the patient declines in health and weight. Persons with Blood or Skin Diseases should be careful how they take these mineral poisons, as in most instances the effect of them is to almost permanently impair the constitution. To take the place of these poisons we offer you a safe, sure, prompt and permanent relief from your troubles. Swift's Specific is entirely a vegetable preperation, and it is easy to convince you of its merit.

I have cured permanently Blood Taint in the third generation by the use of Swift's Specific, after I had most signally failed with Mercury and Potash.
F. A. TOOMER, M. D., Perry, Ga.

A young man requests me to thank you for his cure of Blood Poison by the use of your Specific after all other treatment had failed.
JOS. JACOBS, Druggist, Athens, Ga.

Our Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants.
THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.
N. Y. Office, 159 W. 23d St., bet. 6th & 7th Ave.

J. A. SALZER, LA CROSSE, WIS.
"BUY NORTHERN GROWN SEEDS." Produce beautiful Flowers, fine Vegetables, large crops, Saskatchewan Fife French Imperial and other wheat sorts. New Oats, Corn & Potatoes. Wis., Ill., and other States will return to their old time grain yield if our pure Northern Seed is used. Catalog free.
Our Vegetable and Flower Seeds are fresh and pure. Don't buy of others. We deliver free by mail. Plants by the 10,000. Everything cheap.
J. A. SALZER, La Crosse, Wis.

It is a well-known fact that most of the Horse and Cattle Powder sold in this country is worthless; that Sheridan's Condition Powder is absolutely pure and very valuable. Nothing on Earth will make hens lay like Sheridan's Condition Powder. Dose, one teaspoonful to each pint of food. It will also prevent and cure
MAKE HENS LAY
CHICKEN CHOLERA, Hog Cholera, &c. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Also furnished in large cans, for breeders' use, price $1.00; by mail, $1.20. Circulars sent FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

For Two Generations

The good and staunch old stand-by, MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT, has done more to assuage pain, relieve suffering, and save the lives of men and beasts than all other liniments put together. Why? Because the Mustang penetrates through skin and flesh to the very bone, driving out all pain and soreness and morbid secretions, and restoring the afflicted part to sound and supple health.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY here and I will give you a situation. C. ECKHART, Sup't, Belle Plaine, Minn.

"THE WORLD," Most popular subscription Book published. Send for description and terms to agents. C. B. Taylor & Co., St. Paul, Minn.

PATENTS. Send stamp for our New Book on Patents. L. BINGHAM, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

WHY NOT! Write and get the best chance [illegible] J. E. BICKNELL & CO., Brockton, Mass.

WATCH Free! [illegible] W. F. AUSTIN, New Haven, Ct.

Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

HELP Having arranged a fine premium list for agents, which assures them of handsome pay, for work done, besides giving them a chance to secure large WANTED cash awards, we are anxious to [illegible] one, male or female, out of employment. Full particulars by mail. A free outfit to every agent. Don't delay, but send at once to THE TIMES, Kansas City, Mo. NOW

WHITE BEAVER'S
COUGH CREAM
HEALS DISEASED LUNGS
AND CURES COUGHS AND COLDS.
Made only by Dr. FRANK POWELL, Medicine Chief of the Winnebago Indians. LA CROSSE, WIS. Sold by all Druggists

Samples of Five Sizes Mailed on receipt of 50 cents. Send for Catalogue of ROAD MACHINERY,
DITCHING MACHINERY, BINDER TRUCKS, Eagle Wagon Bolster Springs, Victor One Horse Drills, CIDER PRESSES, STUMP PULLERS, IRON AND WIRE FENCES AND GATES.

Agents Wanted. Our elegant new Sewing Machine, the High Arm [illegible] Machines [illegible] $14.25 [illegible] The Champion Sewing Machine Co., Chicago, Ill.

AN OPTICAL WONDER For pleasure and business.
A NEW, original, cheap lantern, for projecting and enlarging photographs, chromo cards, opaque pictures and objects. Works like magic, and delights and mystifies everybody. Send for our full and free descriptive circular MURRAY HILL PUB. Co., Box 783, N. Y. City, N. Y.

LIFE LOANS
AT 4 PER CENT.
Principal not need ever be paid so long as interest is kept up.
No security required except for interest, and then only personal. These loans are for persons of moderate means, in amounts of $100, $500 FOR LIFE. Send four cents for particulars. W. Roberts, Manager, 103 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

U.S. STANDARD. JONES OF BINGHAMTON
5 TON WAGON SCALES,
Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box,
$60 and
JONES he pays the freight—for free Price List mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, Binghamton, N. Y.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year: 216 pages, 8½x11¼ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—7 cents. Let us hear from you.
Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

SAMARITAN
NEVER FAILS.
NERVINE

"You claim too much for SAMARITAN NERVINE," says a skeptic. "How can one medicine be a specific for Epilepsy, Dyspepsia, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Rheumatism, Spermatorrhea, or Seminal Weakness, and fifty other complaints?" We claim it a specific, simply, because the virus of all diseases arises from the blood. Its Nervine, Resolvent, Alterative and Laxative properties meet all the conditions herein referred to. It's known world wide as
THE GREAT
NERVE CONQUEROR.
It quiets and composes the patient—not by the introduction of opiates and drastic cathartics, but by the restoration of activity to the stomach and nervous system, whereby the brain is relieved of morbid fancies, which are created by the causes above referred to.
To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all those whose sedentary employment causes nervous prostration, irregularities of the blood, stomach, bowels or kidneys or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulant, SAMARITAN NERVINE is invaluable. Thousands proclaim it the most wonderful invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system. $1.50. Sold by all Druggists. (14)
For testimonials and circulars send stamp.
THE DR. S. A. RICHMOND MED. CO., PROP'S, ST. JOSEPH, MO.
Lord, Stoutenburgh & Co., Agents, Chicago, Ill.

STROWBRIDGE
BROAD-CAST

SEED SOWER
THE BEST, CHEAPEST and SIMPLEST. Sows all grains, grass seed, lime, salt, ashes, fertilizers—and everything requiring broadcasting—any quantity per acre, better and faster than by any other method. Saves seed by sowing it perfectly even. Sows single or double cast, all on either or both sides of wagon. Not affected by wind, as seed is not thrown up into the air. Perfectly simple. Readily attached to any wagon. Lasts a lifetime. Can be used wherever a wagon can be driven. Team walking one mile sows four acres. Crop one-fourth larger than when drilled. Send stamp for circulars giving terms and testimonials. Mention this paper.
C. W. DORR, Treasurer,
RACINE SEEDER CO., Des Moines, Iowa.

LANG'S LIVE SEEDS. NORTHERN - GROWN, THOROUGHLY TESTED. Flower Vegetable and Field. Illust. Catalogue free. Send names of your friends. FRED. N. LANG, Baraboo, Wis.

AGENTS WANTED for the best and fastest selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publishing Co., Chicago, Ill.

LOVE'S FRUITION.

Two girls were looking over a photograph album. The faces so near together were a striking contrast, for, while Nita Danvers was dark, with a brilliant coloring, her friend Beth was very fair.

To look at Beth one would immediately imagine a home shut away from the distractions of the world of fashion, and hour spent in doing deeds of charity.

But it would be a mistake, for although no more charitable heart ever occupied a maiden's breast, Beth had left a home of luxury and elegance to visit her favorite school friend, and, though by no means a frivolous, shallow girl, was one of society's brightest ornaments, winning, by her charm and intelligence, the palm from her more showy, vivacious sisters.

Upon the open page before them was pictured a man's handsome face, with features regular and denoting high character.

Beth exclaimed in pleasant admiration: "So that is Mr. Heith, your brother Robert's friend? What a splendid face!—how glad I am that I shall meet and know him! What a contrast to the dapper youths of whom your set—begging your pardon, Nita—seems to be rather largely composed."

Nita laughed a little, then pouted.

"You are not complimentary, Miss Ellis; but don't raise your anticipations too high. His face is handsome, I'll admit; but——"

Just then a loud call from the hall below, in Robert Danver's voice, interrupted Nita's sentence, and without waiting to finish it she ran to the door.

"Carriage ready, sis! You'd better hurry—you know Prince doesn't stand very well."

A short while later the two girls, seated beside Mr. Danvers in his stylish equipage, were whirling along the wide road at a pace that made Nita's cheeks glow and brought even a tinge of delicate color to Beth's unusually pale face.

She was dressed all in seal brown and the dark lace was eminently becoming to her pure complexion and flaxen hair.

As they drove a carriage containing one gentleman passed them.

Robert lifted his hat, while Nita bowed, and Beth, raising her brown eyes interestedly to his face, saw in life the original of the picture she had admired so much.

"A perfect Apollo!" she thought to herself.

From that time out Robert's theme was his friend, the perfection and nobility of his character, his benevolences, and so on. To all of which Beth listened without comment; but Nita broke in every now and then with some bantering remarks, until at length Robert was obliged to turn the conversation into channels more agreeable to his lively sister.

That evening the bell rings and the servant brings in to the ladies Mr. Heith's card.

As they enter the drawing room, Nita a little in advance, Beth is conscious of a sense of overwhelming surprise and pity, for the tall form that rises to meet them does so with the aid of crutches. That, then, is what Nita meant.

With an effort she composes her face, that is always too ready to translate her emotions, and performs her part in the introduction that ensues. But not before Le Grand Heith's keen perceptions have seen and understood the expression of the brown eyes that had met his one brief instant, and had then so quickly evaded his gaze.

"I am sorry I promised to come," he thinks to himself. "Whenever I break through my resolution of keeping only to myself I regret it. It will be the last time. Everyone shrinks from me, deformed hulk that I am!"

Thus for a few moments bitter thoughts throng through his mind; but they are dissipated ere long, for, with her exquisite tact and irresistible charm, Beth soon brings to him forgetfulness of aught save herself.

She fascinates without an intention of so doing, simply because she can not help it; and she has conceived a more than ordinary liking and sympathy for this noble-faced man, who has been endowed with so many of nature's good gifts to be deprived of one that men prize beyond all others—that strength and comeliness of frame without which mere beauty of feature counts as nothing.

And so Mr. Heith's call is but a prelude to many others. His own home is not far distant, and his magnificent conservatory supplies out of its wealth of bloom a daily excuse for visits which he is never made to feel are unwelcome.

One day, after two months have elapsed, as he is alone with his friend Robert in the latter's particular sanctum, Le Grand asks a question.

"Do you consider me insane in loving your sister's friend, Robert? Would you advise me to try my fate and gain or lose all?"

Robert's reply is unhesitating.

"Any girl you care for might feel herself honored."

And so, at the earliest opportunity, Le Grand risks all upon a maiden's yes or no.

He speaks frankly and eloquently. He tells of a boyhood and youth embittered by the misfortune that she alone, of all he had ever met, seemed neither to notice or to care for.

As she listens, Beth's whole frame tremble's and her eyes droop beneath the ardor of Le Grand's fervent passion.

"Do not speak further. Mr. Heith," she says, "I must not listen. Until the last few moments I had no idea you regarded me in any other light than that of an agreeable friend. If I had thought otherwise, I should have told you what I do now, that I am already betrothed."

"Betrothed!"

The pain in his voice is so keen that the girl quivers before it, and buries her face in her hands. They are drawn away, and looking up, she sees Le Grand kneeling at her feet.

"Do not weep! each tear shed by you drives me mad! I believe you. Why should I—a cripple—dare to aspire to the love of one like you? I see my mistake—I have known it all along—it was only the frenzy of hope that impelled me to take advantage of your kindness. Do not weep! Beth, farewell! I resign with this moment all nearer ties than those of friendship. It is no fault of yours, only my own mad mistake. Farewell!"

He was gone.

Six months before her acceptance of her friend Nita's invitation, Beth had promised her hand to the man into whose power her father, through his rash speculations, had been drawn.

Ostensibly rich, Mr. Ellis had in reality no claim to such a name, and Beth had been awakened with a rude shock to the instability of their fortunes, when her father in his agony of entreaty had implored her to save him in the one way opened before her.

Although the girl had shrunk almost with loathing from the old man who was thus proposed as her future husband, she had not hesitated.

She had given her consent, and then, with a sense as of escape, had flown to her friend Nita's, eager to avoid, if only for the space of a few months, the attentions of one who, however much she disliked him, had now the right to claim her society whenever it so pleased him.

One morning Robert tells his sister and her guests, with a grave, disapproving look in the latter's direction, of the departure for the Continent of Le Grand Heith.

A short time after finds Beth at home once more.

A year later the following letter is penned by Robert Danvers to his friend, Le Grand Heith, in Italy:

"Dear Grand—I have something to tell you that, if I am not much mistaken, will both surprise you and at the same time bring you back to your native land as fast as steam can accomplish the distance.

"Elizabeth Ellis is here at our home lying upon a bed of suffering and illness. This is not all; in her delirium she calls one name over and over again, and that name is yours.

"Grand, she did love you, but because of her enforced promise to another, who held her father's fate in his hand, she did not let you see that her pain in giving you a refusal was equal to yours in receiving it.

"A month back, while her betrothed was spending the night in her father's house, a fire broke out.

"Before the alarm was given it had gained such headway that all that could be done was useless to stem its fury; and out of all within the house at the time, Beth, whose sleeping room overlooked the front porch, was the only one saved.

"Her father and intended both met the same terrible fate. Directly following the appalling disaster, it was learned that Mr. Ellis' affairs were in a desperately involved condition, and that all his property would be insufficient to pay the debts he had incurred; that, therefor, had been the reason of Beth's intended marriage with this Mr. Hatton.

"I confess I never could understand where the attraction could be in him for a girl like Beth. However, I, of course, set her down as mercenary. Now I know differently.

"As soon as she heard of her trouble my sister went at once to her friend. When she returned she brought Beth with her — a stunned, apathetic shadow of her lovely self, with illness in her face and impending madness in her eyes. It was pitiful to witness!

"As I fully anticipated when I saw her, in a week's time she was stricken with brain fever. It was the natural outcome of what she had been through.

"Then it was we learned all—her abhorrence of the one to whom her hand was promised and her hopeless love for you.

"The crisis passed last night, and this morning, with haste, I pen you these lines with th. hope that, if you love her still, her convalescence will find by her side the lover for whom her heart yearns, and who alone can turn her thoughts from the horrible occurrences that so nearly cost her her life and reason."

Four weeks have rolled on, three of which sufficed to bring the eager lover back to the land he had left with such a heavy heart.

He stands now in the hall before the half open door of the library, within which is Beth.

"Hush! She sleeps! Come in very softly," Nita says, as she peeps within and beckons back to him.

"Shall I not startle her?" he asks, longing to enter, but hesitating.

"Joy, if it startles, does not harm," Nita replies, with unusual brevity. "Come!"

And he needs no second bidding.

Can this statuesque form, so deathly still, so wan, be Beth?

He kneels gently down beside her.

"Beth," he says, softly, "I have dared to approach you once more, for a great French doctor has taken from me the deformity that made me unworthy to be your lover. I have learned all—that you were induced through filial duty to sacrifice your freedom—and Beth, they have told me that in your sickness your heart spoke the name of him you truly loved, and that name was mine. Is it so? If it is raise those dear eyes to mine. I shall understand whatever they reveal."

It was true. While abroad an eminent surgeon had studied Le Grand's case, and had accomplished, with the aid of a perilous but successful operation, what none of his fellows had been able to do, or had ever ventured to think of.

But I doubt if in Beth's adoring eyes the lover who has come to change the darkness into light is one whit more handsome than he was the day her heart cried out to him "Yes" all the time her lips could only utter "No."—Bow Bells.

Professor Ayrton is of the opinion that the day for electric tricycles has not yet come, because of the difficulty of getting the supply of stored electricity replenished—though he believes that the period is not far distant when that curious contrivance, an electric tricycle, may be taken on a tour, and the smallest item of expense will be that chargeable to electricity.

Druggists complain that their trade is not so remunerative as it used to be. Besides the adverse influences of the "scalpers," conditions in the legitimate business are in other ways unfavorable. Toilet articles are now sold by grocers and other business men; patent medicines no longer remain specialties of the drug trade, and the monopoly of their most valuable wares has been broken.

A cow-horn measuring 4 feet 11 inches in length, and 18 inches around the base, is on exhibition at Monticello, Fla., and is supposed to be the largest cow-horn in the world.

Salvini tells a newspaper reporter that he was a soldier for two years, and fought under Garibaldi at the siege of Rome. But he prefers stage warfare much.

The Chicago cable roads draw 180 cars, carrying 27,000,000 yearly, on 20 miles of roadway.

Personal Paragraphs.

Mr. Astor, American minister in Rome, took one of the largest and handsomest balconies on the Corso for the carnival, and invited all the Americans in the Eternal City to share it with him. The flowers thrown at the procession were supplied at his expense.

Mr. Robinson Locke, the newly appointed American Consul at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, is a son of D. R. Locke (Nasby) and like his father, is a journalist. Since 1881 he has lived in Europe and is said to have perfected himself in the French and German languages.

Mrs. Mary L. Booth, the editor of Harper's Bazar, says that the great advantage man has over woman in the struggle for existance is—pockets. A woman has to carry a shopping-bag, but man "turns the key of the world's great lock easily and well, having both hands free to that exercise."

Mrs. A. R. Allen heads the list of millionaires in St. Louis, paying tax on $1,197,3000. Henry Shaw is put down as worth $1,176,120, the heirs of Jesse G. Lindell $1,115,460 and Miss Bernice Morrison $964,000.

Senator Jones of Florida, who is considered one of the most cultivated men at the capital, and who certainly is one of the most eloquent men in the senate, is entirely self-educated. He never had many school opportunities, even of the "common" kind, and owes his education wholly to his own efforts since he was 21 years old.

Twenty-six years ago Roscoe Conkling was elected Mayor of Utica, N. Y., the ex-Senator being then but 28 years, 4 months and 2 days old. James S. Sherman, the present Mayor, was 28 years 4 months and 10 days old when he assumed office on the 4th instant. Mr. Conkling, therefore, still remains in the field as the youngest Mayor Utica ever had by eight days.

Oscar Wilde, the hairy herald of æstheticism, having coined a sufficiency for subsistence in this country is now drawling a lecture through England that is devoted to running down the American people. He characterizes Americans as being the noisest people in the world; they are always in a hurry, and the National occupation is train-catching.

Francis Radoux, of Portland, N. H., claims to have been a member of company Q, Seventy-fourth regiment of France, at the time of the battle of Waterloo. He was, with his command, enroute to the scene of the conflict, when word came that Napoleon had been whipped. He was once taken prisoner while serving in the French navy, but won his freedom by jumping overboard and saving the life of an English officer. He then came to this country and became a hatter and taught dancing.

The President of the French Republic has $120,000 a year, and he is allowed $32,000 for household expenses, while Queen Victoria has $1,818,800 a year, not counting the revenue of the Duchy of Lancaster, which amounts to a cool $185,000 a year. The Prince of Wales gets $175,000 a year, and the royal family has other annuities amounting to $166,000. And all for the sake of keeping up the "empty show" of royalty, without any compensating service or consideration.

President Arthur has become quite fond of horseback exercise, and often toward evening he may be seen mounted upon a fine brown charger striking out from the White House toward the avenues and pleasant drives in the northwestern portion of the city. Rain or sunshine, it is all the same to him, for a rubber outfit affords sure protection in bad weather and the pure air is refreshing after the day's confinement in his office attending to the routine of daily work and receiving calls from innumerable visitors. The persistance with which the President keeps up his favorite exercise has a marked effect upon his health and appearance, and it is a common remark that he looks stronger than at any time since he entered upon the active discharge of the duties of his office.

Spouting Oil Wells in Russia.

It is reported that on the 10th of September last a well was tapped at Baku, from which petroleum commenced to spout with a jet 300 feet high, at the rate of two million gallons daily. According to later official reports, the fountain was still flowing at the end of November; and the efforts of the owners to stop it had so far only resulted in checking the outflow to 1,000 tons of oil per day. During November another well at Baku, which has been giving a regular supply since 1874, suddenly commenced to "play," and threw up 5,000 tons of petroleum every 24 hours. The effect of this sudden outburst is disastrous to the district, pending arrangements for disposing of such a vast quantity of oil. Whole lakes of crude petroleum have been drained into the sea or set on fire, to get rid of the liquid, and the price of petroleum has sunk to 3¼ d. per ton on the spot. The great refining firm of Nobel Brothers have fourteen spouting wells capped over and idle, it being cheaper for them to buy oil than to use their own. This firm announce that by next spring they will be able to distill 75 million gallons of kerosene, and to transport 90 million gallons. As yet the Baku oil has only supplied the Russian, Austrian, and East German markets via the Volga; but a new line of railway just opened will convey the product to the southern European markets. It is believed that oil exists over 1,100 square miles of the Baku region, of which only a small area has been bored. The supply is regarded as inexhaustible, and is expected to keep down the value of petroleum oils in Europe, notwithstanding the condition of the American centre of production.

A country newspaper reports that "there has not been enough fresh butter in town this week to grease a gimlet."

There are two unhappy persons when castor oil is going down. One is the man who has bought it at a higher figure, and the other is the small boy who is taking a tablespoonful of it.

Mr. Wright of Indiana, has bequeathed $1,000 to each of his 20 nieces and nephews. There are very few young men and women who can start wrong on $1,000.

HINTS FOR FARM AND HOUSE.

Miscellaneous Recipes.

RUBBER CEMENT.—In answer to an inquirer the Scientific American gives the following recipe for making and applying rubber cement. "The ordinary rubber cement which is so much used by fine shoe makers is made by dissolving a quantity of gutta-percha in chloroform or carbon di-sulphide until the solution has the consistency of honey. Thin down the parts to be cemented, then spread a small quantity of the cement well over the parts to be joined. Warm the parts over a flame or fire for half a minute, bring the surfaces to be united together, and hammer well or clamp firmly. The cement dries in a few minutes."

CORNS AND BUNIONS.—If "F. A. D." will put one teaspoonful of powdered saltpeter into one ounce of sweetoil and rub the mixture well into the bunions each night, she will find it will relieve the swelling while it is only inflamed, but should it fester she must apply a poultice of raw, grated carrot, renewing it often till it has drawn all the inflammation out. For corns, one ounce of glycerine and 12 drops of carbolic acid, well shaken together and rubbed on every night, give much relief. Never cut a corn, but pick it off with a needle.

CURE FOR CORNS.—Any one troubled with corns may cure them permanently with very little trouble. Procure some iodine. After soaking the feet, rub the corn with it, and repeat the operation every few days, and the corn, with a little coaxing, will leave its resting place. This is a certain and painless cure for these common nuisances. A few cents' worth of iodine will cure a dozen. The bottle should be kept out of the reach of small children.

TO CURE HAMS.—Rub them over with molasses. Have ready, on the stove, where it will become hot, a kettle with a quart of salt in it. With a long-handled iron spoon dip some salt on the ham, and rub it well with the hand all over, especially around the bone. Keep using hot salt in this way until you have been over the hams very thoroughly. Then put them all in some convenient place, where they will not freeze, and in about ten days repeat the operation. After three rubbings, they may be hung in the smoke-house and smoked according to taste. They will be found of a flavor superior to that of those which have been pickled. This method requires more labor than to put them in brine to cure, and probably would not answer in very warm weather. The salt should always be hot and well rubbed in by hand, although some use a wooden paddle.

Custard to be served in cups with cake is made by adding three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch to one quart of milk, rub the cornstarch smooth in a little cold milk, and when the quart of milk is boiling stir it in; when it thickens and bubbles remove it from the fire and add the yolks of four eggs, well beaten, a lump of butter the size of a butternut, some nutmeg and lemon. Put it into the cup, then make a meringue of the whites of the eggs with sugar, and put on the top of the custard.

How to Keep the Boys at Home.

From the Rural New Yorker.

I believe that no surer method can be devised for driving an ambitious boy away from the farm, than that of hurrying him to a fresh task the instant the old one is completed; allowing him no time for books or play; giving him always the poorest tools and the most disagreeable portions of the work, and permitting him to feel no sense of ownership in anything pertaining to the farm, and no responsibility for the successful outcome of any of its operations. The boy thus treated—and are such—has no other hope than to leave the parental homestead at the earliest possible opportunity, and seek for more favorable chances on some other farm, or in some other calling. But by the time he has thus been driven to strike out for himself, he will generally have become so disgusted with farm life, that he will avoid that calling for all time to come.

On the other hand, I know boys whose natural inclinations might be supposed to lie in other directions, may be so treated as to conceive an ardent love for the farm. For instance, a boy with less than average physical strength, and with a passion for books, was required to perform daily tasks, which were often irksome, but a liberal margin was always allowed for play after the tasks were completed. A pet ewe lamb was given him and he was allowed to spend the value of its annual fleece, and of those of its increase, for such things as all boys crave; yet at the same time, by indirect methods, he was prevented from spending much of his money foolishly. The sense of responsibility involved in the spending of his money, the keeping of the little accounts relating to it, and the interest in his growing flock, which increased, not only by reproduction, but also by purchase from other flocks, with the wages which he was permitted and encouraged to earn by doing odd jobs for the neighbors when work was not pressing at home; all these, not only brought out some of the pleasanter sides of farm life, but also laid the foundation of habits afterwards found very serviceable in business matters.

Can any one doubt the evil effect upon this boy, if, after he had fed and played with his lamb for a Summer or two, believing, in his childish heart, that it was really his own, learning to love it with the full force of his nature, it had been sold to the butcher, and the money quietly dropped into his father's pocket! Yet just such things have happened. The lamb was but an item among many. As the boy grew older he was allowed to plant plots of ground for himself, and though his crops were sometimes failures, and the money brought by the successful ones was not judiciously spent, yet, in the work of caring for them, the discovery was made that labor is not necessarily drudgery, but may be so lightened by the hope of ultimate reward as to become rather a pleasure; while the planning for his crops stimulated a desire to learn what others had done in similar directions, and this led him to agricultural books and papers. Both this stimulus, and the value of the experience gained were far greater than would have been probable, not to say possible, in the case of working under the direction of another.

Hot Water Remedies.

Hall's Journal of Health publishes some interesting facts relative to hot water as a remedial agent. It says:

There is no remedy of such general application, and none so easily attainable as water; and yet nine persons in ten will pass by it in an emergency to seek for something of far less efficiency.

There are but few cases of illness where water should not occupy the highest place as a remedial agent.

A strip of flannel or a napkin folded lengthwise, and dipped in hot water and wrung out, and then applied around the neck of a child that has the croup, will usually bring relief in ten minutes.

A towel folded several times and dipped in hot water, and quickly wrung and applied over the seat of the pain in toothache or neuralgia, will generally afford prompt relief. This treatment in colic works almost like magic. I have seen cases that have resisted other treatment for hours yield to this in ten minutes. There is nothing that will so promptly cut short a congestion of the lungs, sore throat or rheumatism as hot water when applied promptly and thoroughly.

Pieces of cotton batting dipped in hot water and kept applied to old sores or new cuts, bruises and sprains, is the treatment now generally adopted in hospitals. I have seen a sprained ankle cured in an hour by showering it with hot water, poured from a height of three feet.

Tepid water acts promptly as an emetic, and hot water taken freely half an hour before bed-time is the best of cathartics in the case of constipation, while it has a most soothing effect on the stomach and bowels. The treatment continued for a few months, with proper attention to diet, will cure any curable case of dyspepsia.

Headaches almost always yield to the simultaneous application of hot water to the feet and the back of the neck.

It is an excellent plan to record facts like these in a note book, which should be always at hand when wanted. In the anxiety caused by the accident or sudden illness in the family, one becomes confused, and is not apt to remember quickly what should be done; hence there may be prolonged and unnecessary suffering before propper remedies are applied.

Nightdress and Handkerchief Cases.

Just at present cases for nightdresses and sachets for handkerchiefs seem popular. They usually match, and are always lined with a contrasting color. The newest fashion is to make them almost square, with one corner turned back and split up the center. The two pieces are fastened back, and one is quilted satin or satine, secured by a fancy headed pin, while the other is plain, and has a monogram or device embroidered on. The slit up the turned back corner extends six inches or so from the point. The lining of the case is wadded and quilted, and sometimes scented, and the whole edged with gathered lace, hemmed muslin, or frayed silk. The handkerchief case opens in half, and on each side are two places for handkerchiefs to slip in, from the middle—plain ones, fancy ones, evening, and colored. Another favorite shape is a square, bordered fully with lace, with the four corners tied together with a bow, and the name or monogram worked on one. Black satin lined with quilted yellow sarsenet, brown lined with pink, and pale blue with coral, are fashionable, trimmed with tinted lace. The brush case is also made to match, the brushes and combs being thrust through at the corner. The last idea is to make the usual ugly sponge bag ornamental, by either covering it with colored satin, and working a flower on each side, or in American cloth, painting it and binding all around with galoon.

Small squares of contrasting color, such as pale pink and blue, form very pretty sachets. Crossway stripe of silk or satin lined with muslin, are pleated so as to form alternate squares of two colors. The trimming is composed of a spray of artificial flowers; honeysuckle is charming with soft shades of pink and blue, and the sachet if finely edged with lace; in a white sachet, half the squares are of velvet, and the others are of Ottoman.

How to Have Early Vegetables.

Earliness in any kind of vegetables is generally considered by men who ought to know to be one of the greatest points gained in profits.

Not one farmer or village plot owner in a hundred yet understands how very easy it is to have plenty of early vegetables, green peas, corn, potatoes, etc., with a variety of early flowering plants. After long deprivation of fresh garden products, every week gained in spring and summer is so much added enjoyment, and is health-promoting. Moreover, any enterprising man living accessible to a village or two will find large profit in being ahead in the market, since, as with early spring lamb, those first offering fresh garden products, peas, corn, radishes, lettuce, beans, beets, tomatoes, etc., will realize two, or three, or fourfold the ordinary prices. An instructive illustration was that given by a farmer in Eastern Iowa, who, pointing to his excellent farm with fine buildings, said the American Agriculturist in effect gave him these, as it led him to go into this early culture, and the extra profits largely paid for both farm and fixtures. Many others can give similar illustrations.

Hot-beds are very good helps, but they are a bug-bear to many, simple and easily managed as they are, and they are not essential. Mr. Andrews' method (see February number, page 65) is very good. The cheapest method for ordinary, and especially for larger operations, is the following: Procure a full supply of good sods, two or four inches thick, when practicable cutting off an inch or so of the grass side with a sharp spade. Select the southerly or southeasterly side of a board fence, and place boards along its bottom to shut off cold northerly winds, or loose straw piled along its colder side will answer well. In lieu of a fence, boards set on edge a little leaning against a row of stakes furnish a good windbreak, and are even better than a fence, as one can walk over the top of them. Lay along the sunny side of the boards or fence a bed of the sods grass side down, two to four feet wide, packing them firmly upon the previously cleared ground surface. If the sods are not a rich mold, and if they are, it will be an advantage to sprinkle or wet them with liquid manure dipped from a low place in the barnyard, or that made by partly filling a barrel or cask with manure from the horses or cattle heaps, and filling with water, stirring and then dipping it out, or drawing it from a plugged hole at the bottom.

Now, with a sharp spade or other thin implement cut through the sod, not disturbing it, but leaving it in squares of various sizes from an inch or two to four or five inches across, and in the middle of each square place a few seeds of anything and everything which is desired to bring forward early, as peas, beans, corn, tomatoes, cabbage, cucumbers, melons, egg plants, etc., etc., and of various flower seeds if desired. Potatoes cut in suitable sizes, or small whole ones, can be placed in the larger squares. All the above can be done quite rapidly, and as soon as the snow is off. It would have been better to have had the sods cut in the autumn and piled up with leaning boards over them to shed rain; but when not done the sods can be gathered as soon as the surface frost is out. Sheltered from the colder winds and exposed to the sun, the seeds will vegetate and get the roots well started in the sod. If a freezing night is approaching cover the sods with boards, or throw on a layer of loose straw when the plants are above ground. Whenever the open ground is warm and dry, and danger of frost is over, these sod pieces are to be set in hills or rows. The growth will go right on rapidly with a full month or more of time gained, as few plants vegetate and extend their roots beyond the diameter of the sods within a month from the time of sowing.

The cost and profit are easily seen and estimated. A bed of sods a yard wide and only four rods long will furnish 9,504 squares, averaging three inches across, or about exactly enough to plant two full acres with hills three feet apart each way in the rows.—American Agriculturist.

Little People.

Little Dot had just passed the ordeal of vaccination. Looking at her inflamed arm, she queried: "Mamma, I won't have to be baptized again, will I?"

"What was Polly Auger's name when she was a little girl?" asked a wag of a class of children. They gave it up. "Why, Polly Gimlet, of course," said he.

"What does the word 'pedigree' mean, John?" "It means 'descent.'" "Write a sentence on the board containing the word." John went up and chalked off the following: "We pedigreed down the hill."

"What is a limited monarchy, Johnny?" "Well, my idea of a limited monarchy is where the ruler don't have much to rule." "Give an example." "An example? Lemme see. Well, if you was bossin' yourself, for instance."

Romie and Ella were awake early one morning, and began a spelling match. "N-o, no," said Romie, the small boy. "Well, there's another kind," said Ella. "Yes, said Romie; "there's a know and a I don't know," which was his case exactly.

Mlle. Andre is three years old; she is playing with her doll, and with her talk with it she calls herself a lady. "You a lady?" says one of the friends present, purposely to bother her. "Certainly I am a lady. I already thrash my little one!"—French Fun.

Little Nell—"Mamma, what is color blind?" Mamma—"Inability to tell one color from another, dear." Little Nell—"Then I dess the man dat made my g'ography is color blind." Mamma—"And why, my pet?" Little Nell—"Tause he's got Greenland painted yellow."

Bright Thoughts.

Love, that has nothing but beauty to keep it in good health, is short-lived, and apt to have ague fits.—[Erasmus.

A skeptical young man one day, conversing with the celebrated Dr. Parr, observed that he would believe nothing which he could not understand. "Then, young man, your creed will be the shortest of any man I know."

The most censorious are generally the least judicious, who, having nothing to recommend themselves, will be finding fault with others. No man envies the merit of another who has enough of his own.—[Rule of Life.

There is no virtue that adds so noble a charm to the finest traits of beauty as that which exerts itself in watching over the tranquillity of an aged parent. There are no tears that give so rich and sweet a luster to the cheek of innocence as the tears of filial sorrow.—[St. Julian.

Coolness, and absence of heat and haste, indicate fine qualities. A gentleman makes no noise; a lady is serene.—[Emerson.

The pleasure of reading without application is a dangerous pleasure. Useless books we should lay aside, and make ll possible good use of those from which we may reap some fruit.—[Foster.

There are no persons more solicitious about the preservation of rank than those who have no rank at all. Observe the humors of a country christening, and you will find no court in christendom so ceremonious as the quality of Brentford.—[Shenstone.

Good nature and evenness of temper will give you an easy companion for life; virtue and good sense; love and constancy a good wife or husband.—[Addison.

A Popular Leader Forgotten.

The Demosthenes of the Chartist movement, which agitated England fifty years ago, was Henry Vincent. Thousands of Englishmen listened in breathless sympathy, when in burning words he demanded universal suffrage and the ballot. Crowds surged around him wherever he spoke. So great was his influence that the government, looking upon him as a dangerous character, thrust him into prison. The severity of his treatment produced an outbreak. Hundreds of workingmen gathered to release the people's hero. They were repulsed by soldiers and armed policemen, after a conflict in which ten workmen were killed and fifty wounded. Thirty years after this popular demonstration, there was a riot in London. A great crowd, exasperated at not being permitted to hold a public meeting in Hyde Park, broke down the park railings. A mass meeting was held in Trafalgar Square to denounce the action of the authorities. Suddenly there appeared on the pedestal that supports Landseer's lions a portly man, with a fine head and white hair. Silence having been attained, he exclaimed at the top of his voice: "Gentlemen, I think it right to tell you that I am Henry Vincent." The once famous orator paused and—nobody cheered. The Demosthenes of the Chartists was a forgotten man. Such is popularity.

A Variety of Things.

Jennie June says it takes $50,000 a year to live in any style in New York.

France of all Europeans countries has the largest percentage of electors to the population, 26,85 to every 100 inhabitants; Switzerland, with 22,55, stands second; Germany third, with 20,08, Denmark fourth, with 15,16; England fifth, with 8,83.

A son of Senator Arkell of Canajoharie, N. Y., has just effected the purchase of the Albany Evening Journal.

The Psychological Journal gives the increase of the number of insane persons in the United States at, from 1850 to 1860, 8,432; 1860 to 1870, 13,380; 1870 to 1880, 54,565. The whole number of our insane is given at 81,997; idiots, 70,865. More than one-half are not under hospital treatment.

The chemist of the Philadelphia Call argues that while unbolted flour may be harder to digest than bolted flour, a bolted meal certainly presents more digestive difficulties than an unbolted one.

An English tourist says that most of the hard wood shipped from this country to Scotland is converted into paper folders and other trinkets and sent pack to us as souviners from the house in which Burns was born or died, or the tree under which Walter Scott wrote some of his most brilliant gems.

Treasury department statistics show shipments of petroleum abroad during the month of January of the value of $3,285,783, and for the seven months of the fiscal year ending January 31 of $25,910,516.

It has been demonstrated in Philadelphia that the most satisfactory electric lights are those supplied by underground cables. The flame is steadier and the illumination more brilliant. This result must greatly strengthen the probability of an early removal of all the ærial lines.

A steamer with a cargo of 8,000 bales of cotton, sailed from New York a day or two ago en route to China, by the way of the Suez Canal. This is the first time a freighted American ship will have passed through the canal.

The roll of the British lords, temporal and spiritual, has just been issued, as is usual at the beginning of a new session of parliament. It contains the names of 522, or rather 517, peers, five of the members of the government being mentioned both in the places to which their offices entitle them and according to the dates of the creation of their titles. The youngest peers, in point of creation, are Bramwell, Fitzgerald, Alcester, Wolseley, Selborne (earldom), and Tennyson.

Mrs. Daniel O'Connell, wife of the Liberator's only surviving son, gave a fancy-dress ball in London lately, at which her son appeared dressed in legal attire similar to that worn by his grandfather, to whom he presented a marvelous resemblance.

A class in cooking has been formed at Providence, and the Journal predicts that the result "will probably be that a goodly number of young wives and housekeepers will discover a new interest in the common and to many humdrum matter of household cooking; and that it is really an art, capable of almost unlimited expansion, to the gratification of many a weary husband's palate, who will perhaps thus discover a ne and hitherto hidden source of attractic in his home and in the wife who is so important a factor in making it what i really should be."

Railroad communication will soo knock over any fancy ideas we may e tertain in regard to Mexico. Speakin of Mexican women, a traveler says tha the daughters of the wealthy pass the lives in vacuity; those of the poor a half fed and dressed, and nearly all lo hunger bitten and badly develope They are completely without sha The health of the higher class of wom is wretchedly poor. A plump, healt woman is a rarity. The picture so oft seen on the cigar boxes of a beauti senorita, swinging in voluptuous la guor, in a hammock, is a pictorial fra The average Mexican senorita is feeble that she would break her ne getting into a hammock.

Alice Stone Blackwell, who write the Boston Herald that the services c monly rendered by wives are conside worth much more than board and lo ing, when they have to be perform by a hired servant, further remar "In 1880 there were in the United Stat according to the census, 9,945,916 f ilies, and only 1,075,655 domestic s vants. Thus only about one family nine could keep a servant, even if family kept more than one. The g majority of wives do their own work."

Dancing in Philadelphia.

The belles of Philadelphia are w are known as "dancing girls," and only begin young, but keep it up in life. The Times of that city says t are more dancing married wome Philadelphia, and more young old g who dance whenever they can g partner, than in any other place w dancing looms into prominence as a art. It is said to be the custom in P delphia; before any large ball, women who have grown so rust "brush up" a little, and accordi they resort to the dancing-ma The day before the last assemb pronounced "old girl"—she was years old if she was a day—entere domain of a fashionable teacher told him in a grand way, with a g deal of manner, that he must " sider himself engaged" to tice with her for the bly, and "the interview must be a Wincing at his hard luck, the pro went at it. After a dozen turns the large practice-room had been the wrinkled and venerable belle b to enjoy her lesson. "Faster," she "can't you do the galop step? You pull me around enough!" "Mad said the perspiring and desperate fessor, "it will be five dollars ext me to pull you around any more am doing." "All right," she said the extra sum was paid, without mur. A gentleman who came in q also to practice, was witness of The same gentleman saw the belle at the assembly with a hu quet, but in vain she waited fo ners—not one came to "pull her aro

PERENNIAL BEAUTY.

Ever the Spring returns with skies serene,
And balmy breath of infant buds and flowers;
Even the hills renew their primal green,
And melodies that gladdened earth's first hours
Are heard again in many a hazel screen.

Warm hearts turn cold, quick pulses cease to beat,
And love grows languid in the lapse of time;
But beauty still tempts youth's pursuing feet,
Bright eyes are endless themes for passioned rhyme,
And lovers' vows will be forever sweet.

Great souls have died for truth and left their fame
To be the watchword of another age;
But virtue, justice, courage, and high aim
Descend through time, a common heritage,
And heroes live to-day in all but name.

Years wax and wane, the good and true remain;
How sweet love is my own heart telleth me.
Mine eyes have seen the Summer in the plain,
And in the crowded street, unwittingly,
I may have passed a martyr in his pain.
—Charles L. Hildreth, in Lippincott.

SAVED ON THE GALLOWS.

A Good Minister Praying Against Time.—The Days When Theft Was a Capital Crime in Canada.

Erie, Pa. Letter to Philadelphia Times.

The following brief news item appeared in a local paper on Thursday:

Richard Carr, an old Canadian octogenarian, who had lived on this side of the lake for many years, died on Monday last and was taken to Ontario for interment. He was once sentenced to be hanged.

It was seen by Dr. M. J. Clark, of this city, and the doctor furnished the following account of Carr's escape from the gallows:

"I had no idea that Carr was living on this side of the lake, or that he was living at all. Not having heard anything of him for thirty years I supposed him long since dead. His arrest, conviction, sentence and escape are events closely connected with my family and my childhood, my uncle, Rev. John Ryerson, being the clergyman who attended Carr to the scaffold and who prayed against time for the purpose of cheating the hangman. He succeeded, and this is how it all happened: I was a child at the time, and it happened at Vittoria, a Canadian village just across the lake, about fifty-five years ago. Who did Carr kill? No one. He was a quiet and inoffensive young man, and so was Smith, condemned to die with him. The affair formed the theme for many atrocious ballads by villainous village poets, just as the execution of the three Thayers in Buffalo did. I see by the papers that nowadays a cold-blooded murderer frequently escapes the attention of her most excellent Majesty's hangman through some fine point of law; but in the good old days no poor wretch, whose suffering family prompted him to steal sheep or oxen, escaped. They were swung off promptly if not artistically.

"One day, I remember well, the village was thrown into great excitement by the discovery of a crime for which the penalty was death. The whole village of Vittoria was in an uproar. Some one had stolen an ox. A dilligent search resulted in the discovery of the hide, and suspicion fell upon Carr, who was known to be poor, and in whose house the odor of cooked meat still hung. The village Dogberry and shallow dignitaries, that were next to deities in my eyes then, succeeded in extorting a confession of guilt from Carr and another poor fellow named Smith. The culprits were brought to trial, and a jury of twelve fellow-men found no difficulty n consigning both to the scaffold, after he learned judge had expatiated for hours upon the enormity of the crime against God and man.

"Sentence of death was passed upon Carr and Smith and they would proba- ly have been executed the next day, ut I suppose the Sheriff thought it ould be regarded as ungentlemanly d unfriendly if he did not arrange the me so that his distant constituency ould get in to witness the sight. Trav- was slow in those days of no railroads. mong those who were horrified and hocked at the approaching execution ere my uncle, the spiritual adviser of e poor fellows, and Dr. John Rolf, hose memory still clings to the village. he Rev. John Ryerson was brother to . Egerton Ryerson, D. D., Superin- ndent of Education in the Province of ntario, who died two years ago, the ouses of Parliment adjourning to at- nd the funeral. Dr. Rolf was more ited than any other of Smith and r's sympathizers and he determined ride to Toronto and intercede with Governor, who I nk, was Sir John Col- n. Before departing on his hazard- errand of mercy, Dr. Rolf was seted with my uncle, Rev. John Ry- son. The latter subsequently told that he had agreed to delay the ging all he could by making the sing prayer as long as his strength d power of utterance would permit, vided that Rolf had not returned. od Dr. Rolf calculated upon getting k a few hours before the time set for execution. He set out on the swift- horse to be had in the village, but people had little faith in his ability make the journey in time and less in the Governor's inclination to in- ere. The days flew on and the peo- flocked in from the surrounding ntry, Uncle John did all he could comfort the doomed men and lead to a realization of a greater mer- han man's, but they refused to be forted. The fatal morn came, without any tidings of Dr. Rolf. hour arrived and the men were ut to die. Private hangings had come into fashion then. It was idered good and wholesome for common people to witness the aw- d just punishment of the horse, or cattle stealer. The gallows ected out in the open air and in full f all. It was none of your pat- latest style instrument of death. and-bag or scientific tests were to assure the quickest death pos- It was a rude structure, upon the village carpenter may not xpended more than two hours mith and Car were placed in posi- and when the hangman's little inaries were over the Sheriff formed that all was ready for the 's final blessing or prayer. The yerson got down on his knees gan the longest and most remark- ayer on record. His voice was [illegible], for he wished to hus- his vocal strength. He prayed [illegible] minutes without [illegible] for long prayers were distasteful then as now. But entered upon the second half [illegible] restlessness was manifested [illegible] poured down upon the uncovered heads and many did not hesitate to say aloud that they were getting to much of a good thing. The Sheriff was impatient and the hangman looked weary. The preceedings made him tired. Even the poor wretches waiting death showed signs of annoyance, for Uncle had not told them of his compact with Dr. Rolf. The murmurs rose higher and higher, but Uncle prayed on without ceasing. An hour passed and he was still on his knees. There was now no relevancy in his appeal. He merely uttered words and disconnected phrases to consume time. The muscles of his throat contracted, his tongue was dry and clove to his mouth and his voice was husky, but he prayed on, the words falling without meaning upon his hearers.

"He told me later that he did not know what he was saying, and that the only real prayer uttered in all that time was a silent one and composed of four words: 'God hasten Rolf's footsteps.' Whenever I see the play of 'Damon and Pythias,' I am reminded of that fearful scene," continued Dr. Clark. "At the end of an hour and a half there was quite an uproar, and the discontent had almost become a riot, when a voice cried: 'Here comes Dr. Rolfe!' My uncle did not hear or heed the new tumult that now arose, but prayed on, becoming weaker each minute. Soon the horseman approached near enough to be recognized, and the doctor dashed up to the very foot of the scaffold, scattering people right and left. He was too weak to speak or move, but a man in the crowd snatched a document from his hand and mounting on the back of the horse, shouted: 'Reprieve! Reprieve!' It was so, and that is how Carr and Smith were saved."

THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

How the Members of the House of Commons are Chosen.

The House of Commons consists of six hundred and fifty-two members. Of these, four hundred and eighty-seven represent England and Wales, sixty Scotland, and one hundred and five Ireland.

The constituencies are of three kinds—boroughs, (which comprise the cities, as well as most of the large and some small towns,) universities and counties. The boroughs are represented by three hundred and sixty members, the counties by two hundred and eighty-three members, and the universities by nine members.

A House of Commons, unless sooner dissolved, lasts for a period of seven years. But the Cabinet can at any time, by so advising the Queen, cause a dissolution of the House, and a new general election. As a matter of fact, the House rarely lives longer than four or five years.

Every householder or lodger in an English borrough can vote for members of the House. But in the counties no man can thus vote, unless he pays an annual poor rate tax of the value of twelve pounds, or sixty dollars.

A candidate for the House need not be a resident of the constituency which he seeks to represent. Any Englishman can contest any district in Great Britain, no matter where he lives.

Until recently, candidates for Parliament were not "nominated" at all. hey presented themselves, or were urged by their friends to come forward, or they were recommended by one of the London political clubs. But a few years ago a form of the American caucus system crept into some of the large English boroughs, and is extending.

When a general election of a House of Commons takes place, the voting continues daily in different parts of the Kingdom for about two weeks. It is not, as with us, all done on the same day. The election officers of each county and borough appoint a day for that special locality.

All the voting is done, as with us, by secret ballot; but the ballot, in England, is more carefully guarded, as to safety and secrecy, than it is in the United States.

The English ballot is furnished by the election officers, and has the names of all the candidates printed in alphabetical order. The voter makes a cross against the name of the person for whom he wishes to vote.

Each ballot has a number stamped on the back, and attached to the ballot is a "counterfoil," which is what we call a "stub" or a "coupon," which bears the same number.

"At the time of voting," says the law, "the ballot paper shall be marked on both sides with an official mark, and delivered to the voter within the polling place; and the number of such voter shall be marked on the counterfoil; and the voter having secretly marked his vote on the paper, shall place it in a closed box in the presence of the officer, after having shown to him the official mark at the back."

The only qualification in England for a member of Parliament is, that he shall be twenty-one years of age. A naturalized foreigner could formerly only be admitted to a seat in the house by virtue of a special act of Parliament, but since 1870 the restriction is removed.

But certain officials and classes are excluded from the house of commons. Judges; clergymen of the English, Scotch and Roman Catholic churches; government contractors, sheriffs, and election officers for the localities for which they act, are disqualified from being members.

No English or Scotch peer can be a member; but Irish peers are qualified to sit in the house of Commons.—Youth's Companion.

Personal Paragraphs.

The wife of Congressman Springer, of Illinois, although an invalid, is said to be of great assistance to her husband in his Congressional duties, attending to a great part of his correspondence, and aiding him by her wise advise and counsel. She is an intellectual woman and highly educated.

Jacob Eyler of Trotwood, Ohio, aged seventy-two years, who is credited with owning the greatest part of the lively village in which he lived, committed suicide recently for fear he would have to pay a neighbor for $100 damages, resulting from an overflow of water from one of the ditches on his farm.

Somebody thus feelingly writes of a well-known gentleman of leisure: "A tramp may be a very bad man, but a tramp's life is bad enough for any bad man. No house, no home, no friends, no money, no food, no fire, no regular meals, no warm room or blankets at zero, no smiles from his fellow-man; his food picked out of the gutter and ash-barrels when begging and stealing fail him. A bird has a nest and in its life something like regular habits

ONLY.

BY WALDO MESSAROS.

Only a heart to offer,
Red with the flush of love;
Only a life to proffer,
A faith that naught may move.

Only a few ambitions,
Crowned with a dream of gold;
Only the labored treasure,
The future's hands may hold.

Only a mind where duty
Shrinks not, nor is afraid;
Only the inner beauty
For which great Plato prayed.

These are the gifts I offer;
These are the gifts I claim—
Wealth in our mutual coffer,
Grace for our mutual name.
—Phila. Call.

THE ONLY PUPIL.

Miss Elizabeth Hill was still a pretty little woman, with nice hair and a tidy little figure, when her father died.

One after the other her elder sisters had married and left home; and Lizzie kept house for her widowed father and forgot the lapse of time.

The two old servants considered her a mere child, and she was always the youngest at the rare family reunions. Her father had advised, praised and scolded her as though she had been in her teens to the last.

He was so old when he went quietly to sleep for the last time that people had thought Elizabeth would be "prepared for her loss;" but she was not, and after the first great grief and the shock of leaving the old home, when the property was divided and the house sold, she found that another change had befallen her.

She was no longer Miss Lizzie, the youngest daughter still at home, but middle-aged spinster living in a boarding house.

Often when she had hurried up stairs and shut the door of her room she had thought to herself that she could not endure this condition of things much longer, but, after all, she dreaded to make a change.

She was exactly in the condition to jump at anything which offered occupation and interest, when the postman one day brought her a circular, gilt-edged and rose-tinted, bearing these words:

"Mr. Buckle respectfully desires to make known to the public the fact that he is about to reopen his class in water-color painting, English school, next Monday. Terms most reasonable. Early application desirable, as the number of pupils will be limited. Studio No.—,——street."

It was an attractive looking card, and as Miss Elizabeth read it an idea came into her mind. Why should she not take lessons in water-color painting?

She would enjoy the work. She could afford it. It would pass the time. She could, perhaps, sketch from nature next summer.

A little thrill ran through her at this thought. She got her bonnet and mantilla, her parasol and her gloves, and, taking the card with her, hurried to make application for a place in the class before it was too late, for it was now Saturday afternoon.

She found the number easily. A large building with many rooms, and at the very top of the house four engravers, a lady "designer on wood," and Mr. Buckle's name on a neat door plate.

Miss Elizabeth, quite breathless by this time, applied her knuckles to the panels, and after a little delay and some creaking of boots on a bare floor the door opened and a middle aged gentleman with a few gray hairs in his whiskers and a bald spot on his head, appeared, with a palette on his thumb and a brush in his hand, and bowing politely, requested the lady to enter.

"Mr. Buckle?" Elizabeth asked with an interrogative inflection.

The gentleman bowed again.

"I received your card," said Miss Elizabeth, "I think I should like to join your class, if it is not full."

"It is not full as yet, madam," replied Mr. Buckle, "and I should be delighted to receive you as a pupil."

He opened a portfolio as he spoke.

"My work," he said; "perhaps you'd like to look at it."

The portfolio was full of sketches in water-color of English scenes, cottages, lanes, old women gathering faggots, ladies walking in old parks.

They were not great, but they were very good. Miss Elizabeth was delighted.

"How kind of you to take a class," she said, beaming. "Such an artist as you are."

Mr. Buckle bowed again. He evidently preferred bowing to speaking.

"I'm sure I've seen your pictures in the Academy," she said, "and admired them."

Mr. Buckle blushed violently and bowed again.

"How modest!" thought Miss Elizabeth.

She inquired his terms. They were very reasonable. She paid it on the spot, received a little list of necessary paper, colors, &c., and went away.

Sunday past slowly, despite its three episodes of church-going, she awaited her first lesson with such impatience.

At last the hour came. She climbed the stairs again, and entered the door of the room on which the name of Buckle appeared. A long pine table and six cane-bottom chairs, an easel, and some canvases and portfolios, furnished the room. A South American hammock was twisted into a coil and hung over some pegs. A blanket portiere hung on a rod within the door. But there was no one there but Mr. Buckle.

"Am I too early!" Elizabeth asked, glancing at her watch. "I see I am the first."

"Oh no, indeed," replied Mr. Buckle. "It is the other pupils who are too late. We won't wait for them."

He began his lesson at once, and Miss Elizabeth was absorbed in her work. An hour passed—two.

The lesson was over. No pupils had arrived.

"Ladies are seldom as prompt as you are," said Mr. Buckle. "Any time will do to begin; any time. They delay. They procrastinate. It's a pity."

"It is surprising to me that they are not more anxious to avail themselves of such advantages," said Miss Elizabeth, hardly able to tear herself away from the contemplation of the blue sky, with white clouds that had grown under her brush. "I have had a delightful lesson."

Again she waited with impatience. Again she climbed up the long stairs. Again there were no other pupils present. Again none arrived.

But this time a brown roof grew under her brush and gray branches lay against the sky.

The trunk of a tree was indicated and the figure of a child was carefully sketched amongst the blossoms, as, yet outlined in the foreground.

Miss Elizabeth trembled with pride and happiness.

"You must find me very stupid," she said. "But don't you think I can learn if I apply myself?"

"I am sure you will do well," said Mr. Buckle, "more than well. You have talent, madam—decided talent for art,

On her way home Miss Elizabeth thought with rapture that perhaps a day might come when she should open a catalogue and see "Sunset," or "Reverie," or Moonlight Hours," or some such romantic title, among the list of pictures, followed by the delightful words, "by Miss Elizabeth Hill."

The thought chased away the scruples that troubled her as to the propriety of being the only scholar of a single gentleman; and, then, he was so gentlemanly. He never quite closed the door. He sat at the opposite side of the table. He was decorum itself. And such a genius! How foolish of the other members of that limited class not to avail themselves of such opportunities! The quarter was over, and she was beginning to wonder whether Mr. Buckle would trouble himself to teach a class of one for so small a sum. When hurrying up stairs to her lesson she heard voices within the door and paused. Two men were talking. One was Mr. Buckle.

"If you can but wait a little," she heard him say.

"Well, I have waited, haven't I?" replied the other voice. "I know you mean well; but studios are in request. I can't let mine for nothing. You haven't given me one cent for two months, Mr. Buckle."

"Lou see I'm just establishing myself," Mr. Buckle; "pupils come slowly. I spent all I had in advertising and paying the first month's rent and buying such furniture as I've got. I sleep in that hammock, and take down the portiere for a blanket; and so far I've got only one pupil. It won't do to starve. I live on a dollar a week. Now, where is the money for rent?"

"Don't seem to be any," replied the landlord; "that's why I think maybe you'd better move."

"Ah well, I suppose I must," said Mr. Buckle. "I'll just give this lesson and hang myself, or something—not here, it would give the place a bad name you know, and you've been most kind. Good morning. Ah, no, don't apologize; it is all in the way of business; and then a large man in a light overcoat bounced out and nearly upset Miss Elizabeth as he ran down stairs.

She, for her part, went into the room all tremulous with surprise and grief, and could hardly utter her usual greeting.

She looked at Mr. Buckle as he laid out the pattern, and tested the shade of the color in her palette cups, thinking what a fine, kind, pleasant face his was.

She noticed, two, that the braid that bound his coat was worn out and that his knees were shiny.

Then he came around the table and for the first time he sat down beside her.

"I'm going to give up this studio, Miss Hill," he said. "This will be our last lesson. I'll give you the address of an excellent teacher who has vacancies. He's a little dearer than I am, but ever so much better——"

"Oh that can't be!" cried Miss Elizabeth.

"Oh, yes, indeed," said Mr. Buckle I'm after all, only an amateur—a sort of imposter. I'm rather good at water-colors, I know, but I'm not professional, unless teaching you makes me so. I feel like telling you the truth.

"I had a little fortune when I came here and they told me that I could treble it. I'm sure I couldn't say what I did, with that object, but was told one day that I had lost it all.

"I'm not a business mam, you know; and then I thought I'd teach water-colors; and—well, you've been my only pupil, you know, so I've got to say goodbye; and—there's something else I'd like to tell you—but you might be offended."

"Oh no," said Miss Elizabeth.

"You'll forgive me. Thanks," said Mr. Buckle. "Well, it is this—if I hadn't been such a poor beggar I'd have asked you if you could like me enough to marry me. I never met any one so nice—indeed, I never did; and our tastes are alike, and all that.

"I'll try not to think of it more than I can help, but I felt that I must tell you before we parted for ever."

Miss Elizabeth had put her handkerchief to her eyes, and now was heard to whisper something.

"Beg pardon," said Mr. Buckle.

"I—I've got plenty," said Elizabeth.

"Plenty?" repeated Mr. Buckle.

"Money!" gasped Miss Elizabeth. "Plenty for both."

"You kind little woman," said Mr. Buckle, and took her hand.

The brushes lay neglected, the color dried on the palette.

They sat thus for a long while, then:

"If you really love me," said Miss Elizabeth. "it doesn't matter which has the money."

"It's awfully sweet of you to feel that way," said Mr. Buckle. "Only, would it be right of me, you know? "What would your family say?"

In the mellow twilight that had begun to steal over the empty little room, Miss Elizabeth's face looked wonderfully soft and young as she looked up at him; but I think she scarcely could have done what she did but for that fancy picture of himself which he had made for his landlord. If she were not brave now she felt he might indeed be found pendent from a branch somewhere.

"Heaven knows! I'm of age," she said, with a little laugh; "and a family that has left me alone at a boarding-house may say what it pleases; I don't care."

"It is the right spirit," said Mr. Buckle. "I think it very fine, and I shall be made so unutterly happy by it, my dear."

They kissed each other in the twilight, and left the little room together arm-in-arm.

*

"It was very sly of Elizabeth. We expected more confidence," said the oldest sister to her friends shortly after. "But she has married well—a celebrated artist, exceedingly rich. I presume they all are. His name is Buckle."

About 80,000,000,000 clothes-pins are used up in this country yearly, and yet we wonder what becomes of the timber of our destroyed forests.

HINTS FOR FARM AND HOUSE.

THE HOUR.

The bells begin; come, let us go!
Great hour! he waits for me at last
Before the altar. Shall I grow
A wife ere this one hour is past?

I tremble. Oh, the church, the stare,
The ritual! I would rather stand
In our own wood and wed him there
By simply giving him my hand.

But now the timid bird of love,
Long used in tender shades to play,
Must change the quiet of his grove
For the great garish light of day.

Wife! husband! Oh, my bosom swells!
I think he loves me—nay, I know.
Sweet, sweet, oh, sweet melodious bells!
They call me, sister; let us go.
—Harper's Bazar.

Household Recipes.

To take grease out of velvet, pour a little turpentine over the spot, then rub briskly with a piece of dry flannel.

Pretty bedroom curtains are made of a single width of crimson ottoman cloth over a second pair made of antique lace.

If any poison has been swallowed, give instantly half a glass of cold water, with a heaping teaspoonful each of common salt and ground mustard stirred into it.

INFLAMED EYELIDS.—One cent's worth sulphate of zinc in two ounces of rain-water: one drop in the eyes or twice daily; dilute if too strong. Put in a glass vial and cork tightly; it will keep a long time.

PROMPT CURE OF RINGWORMS.—R. W. Taylor, M. D., in the Journal of Cataneous Diseases, reports the best results from the use of paint composed of a tincture of myrrh and four grains to the ounce of bichloride of mercury. Other skin affections are cured by the application of this remedy.

We have had considerable experience in owning a farm which we could not live upon nor till ourselves; have hired help to carry it on and have let it out upon shares, and we have no hesitation in saying that the second method is in every way preferable for a man in the circumstances our subscriber states.

Sweet biscuits are made in this way; If economy is no object, set a sponge over night of one pint of sweet milk, the whites of six eggs, one quarter of a pound of butter, one quarter of a pound of sugar. Beat well, add flour until it is about like ordinary bread sponge. In the morning knead in flour to make it stiff enough to roll. Bake in a moderate oven.

You cannot fail to have good brown bread if you follow this rule: take one pint each of graham and wheat flour, make a stiff batter with warm water, put in a piece of butter, the size of a marble, and one teaspoonful of molasses, a piece of a yeast cake about the size of a hickory nut, or one large tablespoonful of yeast, a pinch of salt; mix with a spoon; do not try to knead it; heat your bread tins, butter them, and put the sponge in; when very light bake in a moderate oven. It usually requires a little more time for the brown bread to rise than for white.

Business for Boys.

A Western Rural correspondent thinks it easily possible so to treat the boys as to lead them to like the farm life and suggests the following process:

"Give a boy a calf, a colt, chickens or other stock, and have him understand that whatever he makes by faithful attendance shall be his own. If he is careless or indifferent let him suffer the loss, but take pains to show him what he might have made had he been more faithful and dilligent. A boy who will take care of a litter of pigs, feeding and watering regularly and caring for in every way, if he is told that when they are first placed in his keeping that one of them shall be his own for his work, he will take the greatest interest in the task.

"The field, the garden, the orchard and the culture of small fruits, afford ample variety for differences of disposition. And, by the way it is well that in nearly every farmer's family these differences are found; since the various interests to be looked after in well regulated rural homes need on this account their several specialists. But whatever the inclination of a boy may be he should be fairly and honestly dealt with, and taught to see and realize it in his own experience, that there is a profit in well managed farm work.

"Treated in this way he is instructed and practised in actual business, and surely this is no small advantage. Besides, he is made to feel that he has an interest in the farm and the home, other than that of mere obligation to stay there. He becomes conscious of the honor which attaches to business and ownership. As he grows older he is led to find in the occupation of the farmer ample scope for the display of the best executive or business qualities, and he will scarcely fail to see the superior advantages and pleasures of a peaceful country life."

There is nothing novel in this plan, but its educational influence in the right direction can scarcely be overestimated.

Strawberr'es For Farmers.

From New York Tribune.

Any soil that will raise a first-rate crop of corn or potatoes will raise a good crop of Wilson strawberries. I say Wilson because I have always been successful with them, and only comparatively so with the best of others that I have tried, while a part of them have been almost entire failures, and many of them very annoying and expensive ones. Other things being equal, a light, loamy soil, rather too damp than too dry, is preferable. Still, no water must be allowed to stand upon or near the top of the ground. Hence the necessity of draining. Manure heavily, say at the rate of thirty or forty loads to the acre, and plough it under. Common stable or barnyard manure will answer every purpose. The soil should be made fine and mellow. We will suppose this is all done in the spring, about as soon as the ground is in first rate condition for working. Now mark off the ground in rows, say three and a half feet apart, and set the plants twelve or fifteen inches apart in the rows, press the earth firmly about the plants, and if the weather is dry and hot, as it sometimes is in early spring, put about one pint of water about each one of them.

How large shall the bed be made? The method I am proposing should yield at least one bushel of fruit to every square rod of ground. Hence each family can judge for itself of the area of ground they need for this purpose. After the plants are set there is a large vacant space between the rows that may be utilized for other quick-growing crops that will pay for the cultivation of the plants for the first season. Early peas or beans of the dwarf varieties, lettuce, radishes, early beets, carrots or the Jersey Wakefield cabbage may be raised between the rows of plants without damage to them, provided they are taken off in due time, the ground cultivated, and put in good condition for the young plants as they begin forming runners. Let the runners form a thick green bed until they are a matted row of say two feet wide. After this run through with either the horse or the hand cultivator, and destroy those intruding upon what is left for the path or alley between the rows. The Wilson will almost always attempt to bear some fruit the first season, but it will be much better for the growth of the plants, as well as for the next season's crop, if the blossoms are all picked off, and no fruit allowed to grow the first season.

Keep the plants free from weeds and grass through the entire season, and at its close when the ground has frozen sufficiently hard to bear, cover the plants with some marsh hay, or straw is equally good, provided it is not filled with foul seeds to annoy you the following season. Put on cover sufficient to hide the leaves from view. Leave it in the spring, until the ground is done freezing nights and thawing day time. It may then be raked off the plants, and left in the alleys or carried entirely from the beds as may be preferred. As the warm weather comes on the plants will load themselves with blossoms, and then with fruit. While the fruit is growing the beds need plenty of moisture. If nature does not supply a sufficient quantity, it is much better to do it by artificial means than to fail of having a nice crop after all the labor that you have already done upon them. It is much better to give them one thorough watering, and then leave them for a few days, than to merely sprinkle the plants every day.

After the crop is taken off clean out all the weeds and grass, and the old plants that look feeble and exhausted and give ground to the young and thrifty ones, and you will almost certainly secure another good crop the following year.

Downer's Prolific is a hardy plant, a fair bearer of moderate-sized early fruit, and of excellent quality. If one wants to prolong the season, the Kentucky is the best that I have tried for that purpose. It is a fair bearer of good-sized berries, and they are of good quality. I like it much better than the Glendale for a late berry. If one wishes for some very large fruit, the Sharpless is a fine grower, and will give one a few very large berries, only moderate in quality. With me it is utterly worthless except as just mentioned. The farmer should not bother with any of the pistillate kind. They have no advantages over the perfect-flowering varieties, and do require some extra work and care to secure a crop. It will not, as a rule, pay the farmer to try to get more than two crops from a single bed; in fact, it is better to set a small one each year; then he will be sure of fruit if his old bed fails after the first year, as it sometimes will if it bears very heavily.—J. M. Smith, Brown Co., Wis.

Ginghams.

It is said that the ginghams will be more in demand than ever this season, as their wearing qualities and various other advantages have been thoroughly tested and demonstrated. They are certainly found in most desirable shades and patterns and will make up into most graceful and becoming toilets for mid-summer wear. In the plaids and checks the bright, conspicuous colors of a few seasons ago are noticeably absent, and more delicate and less clashing shades substituted in their place. Some of the prettiest of the designs are seen in broken checks and plaids combining two shades of the same color with white, such as a deep and a delicate pink alternating with narrower lines of white or shades of blue in the same arrangement. Others show only one shade with white, arranged in regular checks or blocks in almost any desired size, from the pinhead checks to the blocks an inch and a half square. Some of the shades of pale green are unusually pretty, and drabs, grays, and buffs are also noticeable from their frequent occurrence. Narrow black velvet ribbon was used on some of the gingham suits of last season, and with very pretty effect. The general arrangement outlined straight rows, although an occasional exception was seen in the use of full rosettes. Velvet ribbon is really a more appropriate and prettier trimming than might at first be apparent, as gingham is classed among the wash materials. But with the exercise of a little care a dress may easily be worn through an entire season, and at the end of that time a change of trimming and also design is generally considered desirable. New sateens are also seen, with designs similar to those of last season, but with a modification of color noticeable.

Stomachs Differ.

Two head of cattle of the same age standing side by side may eat alike, but it does not follow that they digest alike. The difference in this respect should be carefully noticed, and the animals be fed accordingly—each getting more or less than the other according to its ability to digest its food. The difference in digestion may be detected by the condition of the excrement as well as by the general appearance of the animal. A looseness of the bowels indicates too much food, although it may exist from other causes. Cold horns and a light skin show that the animal does not get food enough or has poor digestion, which makes a feeble circulation of the blood, of which no doubt there is a scanty supply. Such an animal must have a variety of food and be kept out of the cold. A moderate dose of stimulants daily will do it good.

Start the Celery.

The wisdom that crowned the mountains with pines and fringed the the streams with willows is unerring. All plant life finds by natural selection its true home, and we may learn the whole secret of celery culture by studying its surroundings in its native swamps and marshes. It belongs to a family of plants that grow along the water-courses and flourish in cool, moist situations, and these conditions, if not natural to the chosen site, must be artificially supplied for best success. I am convinced that fine celery can be raised in almost any soil kept open by frequent stirring. I have seen a marked improvement in the celery offered in our York markets since the publication of my articles on the cultivation of celery two years ago. Such specimens as were exhibited by a few persons only at fairs, are now common and excite no comment.

Celery should be sown as early in the season as the ground can be worked. If snow and freezing weather follow, it will do no harm. Dig, break up, and pulverize the soil thoroughly, add a light top-dressing of soot, smooth the surface evenly, and scatter the seed thinly; giving plenty of room to make good stock plants. Do not cover the seed with earth, but press lightly into the soil with a board. Never allow the soil to become dry after sowing, but keep it moist by frequent waterings. If there should be heavy winds, it is best to protect with a light covering. If the seed is slow to start do not be discouraged, but continue the waterings. I have had it lie six weeks before germinating. Of course you will grow none but the best varieties. The Dwarf White Solid is preferred; I confess to a great partiality for the Sandringham Dwarf. As soon as the plants are an inch high thin them. Keep the soil open about them by frequent stirrings, and keep them constantly moist that they may receive no check until the time arrives for setting them out in the trenches.—[Mrs. H. M. Crider, York, Penn.

The Head Dress.

Happy the fortunate ones who have preserved relics of antiquity in combs of pale amber tortoise shell, the odd Spanish comb of extreme size, either plain, richly clouded shell, or exquisitely carved, generally accompanied with side combs, are now worn with the high coiffure. An immense comb of shell carved in lillies, wheat sheaves and delicate folinge and stars is disinterred from a chest where it has lain for two or three generations. Another of silver gilt in coronet shape is set with ten large sapphires. Side combs corresponding with the large combs are set with Rhine pebbles, cairngorm, false topaz, aquamarine, or large gems. The Empress Josephine coiffure is revived, consisting of a long graceful ostrich plume, laid about the high knot.

For classical faces there are Greek bandeaux of carved, filigree or plain gold, set with pearls or precious stones. Hovering on long gold pins are birds or butterflies, such as a butterfly of sapphires, rubies and diamonds, and dropped with spots of burnished gold; a humming bird of radiant diamonds, emeralds and rubies, with emerald head and garnet eyes, the wide spread transparent wings studded with shifting lights of silver green, rosy cream and blue opals.

Woman in the Garden.

We recommend to all women who are fortunate enough to have a piece of land at their command to cultivate a vegetable garden. The culture of strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, gooseberries, currants and golden vegetables is as delightful and profitable as anything in which a woman can engage. She may sprinkle her garden well with flowers. All the better for that. A snowball in this corner and a rose in that, a dahlia bed there and a moss border here, will not be out of place. Only let the substantial and useful constitute the chief part. A touch of the ornate, like a ribbon on a good bonnet, is not in the least objectionable. In all the schools the girls study botany. It is healthful, pleasing and useful. The principles of horticulture are the principles of botany put into practice. Farmers study agriculture; why should not their wives and daughters study horticulture? The employment is both healthful and pleasant. What woman cannot raise beets, tomatoes, onions, lettuce, and furnish her own table with them? What woman cannot plant a raspberry bush, or currant or gooseberry, and attend to it well. The experiment is both pleasing and profitable. —[Ex.

Farm Management.

No fixed rules can be laid down for the management of farms. The soil of one township may be best fitted for growing some kinds of grain, while the adjoining ones can be most profitably devoted to live stock. No two farms situated side by side are exactly alike. The distance from market, the demand for special products, and, not the least, the individual taste of the farmer, have all much weight in determining the system of farm management that it is best to adopt. Those who have given the most thought to this subject are the slowest to advise any general system to be applied to every farm. It is like a garment that is intended to fit all persons and suit none. Every year of progress made in agricultural knowledge teaches more forcibly than previous ones the truth that a farmer must rely much upon his own intelligence and judgment in working out the best system for his own farm. Even in so seemingly trifling a matter as the pruning of a grape vine, the wisest vineyardist can only give general rules, and each grape grower must adapt them to the peculiarities of each vine.—Farmer and Dairyman.

Speaker Carlisle and a Negro Girl.

An incident occurred yesterday evening in one of the 3-cent cars which go from the Capitol to the White House, which attracted no attention at the time, but which, had it occurred in the days before the war, would have been widely commented upon. The car was full of gentlemen and ladies, and Speaker Carlisle was sitting beside me looking very grave and probably thinking himself a great fool for having accepted such a trying position as Speaker of this Congress, when a young negro girl entered the car. There was no seat for her, and she grasped the strap, looking vainly around for a seat. There was none to be seen, and no one rose to give one. At length the Speaker coming out of his meditation saw her. He half rose to give her, his place, when he changed his mind, and, crowding the rest of us toward the end of the car, made room for her beside himself, and motioned her to sit down. She did so. There was no ostentation about it, and the Speaker relapsed into his moody meditations as soon as it was over.—Washington Letter.

Mr. Edison says that in fifty years at the furthest we shall reach the electrical millenium. All the town-boy, who would fly his kite secure from those vexatious wires, has to do is to wait.

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Hon. Emory A. Storrs, one of the first lawyers of Chicago, finds serious fault with the pleuro-pneumonia bill, now before Congress, and says it will fail to pass because "it is not proper, or right, or reasonable, or just to place the enormous cattle interests of this country under the absolute control of a few horse dealers, veterinary politicians, and give them power to prevent the shipment of cattle to market every time a cow sneezes." This is apparently just about the size of it, not only here but in foreign countries where such enactments have been attempted.

The most successful journals of the country are newspapers—in fact as well as in name. The old style papers, full and redundant in opinions and chary of facts, have ceased to be profitable. Some of them are yet in existence, but the income therefrom is small, and in some cases, below expenses, which have to be eked out by the bounty of politicians and others more remotely interested in their continued life than the public in general. The masses want facts and details of events, and believe themselves capable of forming their own opinions therefrom. Hence the wonderful success of newspapers that are newspapers, and not simply conduits of editorial opinion.

The rulings of the courts have been so uniformly against the legality of all gambling contracts—dealings where no delivery of the goods bought or sold is ever made or expected to be made—that there is no novelty in the announcement that the Court of Appeals of Missouri has sustained such a decision made by a lower court. Judge Thompson, in delivering the opinion of the court, said the evidence fully warranted the finding that the transactions between the plaintiff and the defendant were not intended in their conception to be bona fide sales and purchases, but were intended to be mere bets or wagers upon the future state of the market; and if this were so they were such contracts as the law condemns and as courts of justice will not enforce.

Most of the people in this latitude have had a long period of comparative rest, but the summer is at hand and it behooves all to make the most of it. Those who want to be comfortable in winter must work to that end during the summer. The old saw "make hay while the sun shines" may be extended to include gathering in all other products of the soil, and firewood for winter. If farming products are low raise an additional amount to more than cover the deficiency. That is the best way of getting even. Let there be a diversity in sources of income. A great many things are scarce and bring a high price in all the markets. Don't put all your eggs in one basket.

Farmers in Iowa and other states are looking about for good seed corn. The seed gathered after the severe freezing of the middle of last November, has been subjected to the usual tests has failed to grow in a way to indicate it safe to plant in the most favorable spring. On the other hand all the specimens gathered prior to this date—even when in the first stages of glazing—and carefully dried have germinated in that perfect vigorous way that indicates safe seed for the most unfavorable seasons. There are few things more disheartening than the failure of seeds and the greatest cause will doubtless be exercised in planting this year. Corn especially, will be closely scrutinized and tested, and more attention than usual should be bestowed upon seed wheat.

Mr. Henry Clews, the distinguised New York millionaire, undisguisedly and publicity says that "the laboring classes must be educated up to accept a reduction of say 33¼ per cent on the present rates of wages"; that "we must have as cheap rates as Europe or our interests will suffer." This man Clews is but the type of a class that seems determined to break down the dignity and independence of American citizens. This was the class that would nave deluged the country with "cheap Chinese labor." It was welcomed as a fitting substitute for America in all the departments of labor, because of its cheapness, and what is peculiarly grateful to the latter-day snobs—its slavish servility—more degrading, if possible, than slave labor. All of the large cities and many of the smaller, contain just such friends of their own race as Henry Clews, and it really seems as if they might succeed in their wicked and inhuman schemes.

Quite a panic was produced in New York and vicinity by reports set afloat by home butchers that western dressed beef, sent in refrigerator cars was unwholesome from a chemical process used in preparing it for transportation. Western men denied this emphatically and Mr. P. D. Armour, of Chicago, who is a responsible man, asserted positively that there is nothing in the process of refrigeration that renders the beef unwholesome. When chemicals are used for refrigeration, it is in pipes that do not come directly in contact with the beef. Of course, after having been frozen, the beef may not keep so long as that killed at home; but except in occasional instances, that is not a serious objection. The newspapers did their best to allay the panic, and the trade was not materially injured, and probably will hereafter be greatly augmented. The people of the east look to the west more than ever before for their bread and butter and beef.

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington Gossip.

The senate passed a bill to pay for depredations of the Utes at White River agency in 1870.

Mr. Nelson presented the petition of James Billings, relative to the improvement of the Shell and Crow Wing rivers.

During the first eight months of the present fiscal year the internal revenue receipts were $78,000,350, a decrease of $18,451,200, as compared with the corresponding period of 1883. The aggregate receipts in February were $2,030,802 less than February, 1883.

The house committee on postoffices and post-roads decided, 7 against 4, to recommend the passage of a bill providing that all letter carriers at free delivery offices be entitled to a leave of fourteen days each year, without loss of pay upon the same conditions now granted employees of the postoffice department.

Ex-Senator Dorsey has written a letter to say that he will appear before the Springer committee any time he is wanted, to give his experience and knowledge of the management of the star route investigation and trial, and intimates that there will be music by the full orchestra when he takes the baton in hand.

Hallet Kilbourne has got another verdict against ex-Sergeant-at-Arms Thompson, of the house of representatives, for false imprisonment at the time of the Forty-fourth congress, when he would not give up his private books and papers to an investigating committee. This is the third verdict. The first was for $100,000, the second $60,000, and this time he gets $37,500; but now the difficulty is to get the money. Thompson has got nothing, and will have to go to congress for relief. The verdict, which has been set aside as excessive, will probably be allowed to stand this time, and a bill will be introduced in the house to appropriate the money; but it will be a difficult appropriation to secure, and it will require a good deal of lobbying to get it through.

Railroad Rumblings.

The Milwaukee & St. Paul has opened South Alma, Iowa, a new station on the Cedar Rapids & Ottumwa line, thirty-one miles from Marion.

Telegrams are recieved daily at Milwaukee from Manager Merrill, of the St. Paul road, now sojourning in California. They report that gentleman as steadily regaining his health.

The Northern Pacific Express company has established an office at Fort Coeur d'Alene, at the head of the lake of that name. A line of steamers run from the fort to within twelve miles of Eagle City, the central point of the mining district. The tariff from St. Paul to the fort is: Currency, $7 per $1,000, and freight $12.25 per 100 pounds.

The first through party from the City of Mexico, over the recently completed Mexican Central railway, arrived at Chicago from Kansas City the 26th, in a special train over the Burlington road. The party is made up jointly of Americans who had been visiting the Mexican capital, and thirty American students, who left for Norte Dame.

The contract for building the 100-mile extension of the Wisconsin Central, from Chippewa Falls to St. Paul, was let to Wells, Harrison & Green, the well-known railway contractors of Milwaukee. The road is to be completed and in running order by Oct. 15 next. Wells, Harrison & Green have probably built more miles of railway than any contracting firm in the west.

Record of Casualties.

At Chicago, P. C. Hanford's building at Wabash and Water streets, was partly burned. E. A. Cook & Co., publishers, lost $15,000; insured for $8,500.

The cyclone that destroyed the village of Scipio, Ohio, on the 25th inst., besides killing Mr. Winston, fatally injured E. Kales and seriously hurt Mrs. Stevens. The storm followed the track make by another two years ago across the country to Collinsville, tearing down all fences and trees, and ruining many farm houses and barns. Loss, $100,000.

Personal Points.

John J. Cisco, who died in New York on Sunday, began life a poor boy, became a tailor, entered the dry goods business and subsequently made large sums of money as a banker, dying a millionaire.

In the French chamber of deputies Barodet submitted a resolution for a revision of the constitution, and demanded "urgency" for it. M. Ferry stated the government would submit a scheme of revision in May. Thereupon the chamber rejected Barodet's claim of "urgency."

Ivan Balabanoff, a Bulgarian, constitutes the senior class at Hamilton college since the bolt of his former classmates. He was born in Tirnova twenty-six years ago, was converted to the Christain faith and fled to this country to escape persecution. His father was beheaded by the Turks for some trivial reason.

Miss Mary Anderson requested a correspondent to deny in the most ample and authoritive manner the latest piece of matrimonial gossip which the romancers of the society journals have connected with her name. This rumor was to the effect that she had received and rejected an offer of marriage from Lord Chief Justice Coleridge.

Matt. H. Finch, one of the most prominent lawyers of Wisconsin, died at Milwaukee, aged fifty-five. He was prostrated ten days ago with spinal disease and was unconscious up to within an hour of his death. Mr. Finch was the active member of the well-known law firm of Finch, Lynde & Miller, and had a wide acquaintance in legal circles through-out the state.

Nuggets of Foreign News.

At a consistory recently Pope Leo appointed Right Rev. D. Mauncey, now at Corpus Christi, Tex., bishop of Mobile.

Gen. Gourko, governor general of Poland, is adopting energetic measures for the Russification of that province.

Bismarck has directed the senate of Bremen to ask for admission to the imperial customs union. The senate is unwilling to do so, but must yield.

Isidore Dreifus, clerk of Pollock & Co., importers of dry goods, New York, has been arrested on a charge of embezzling over $11,000, which he squandered in stock speculations.

In the bundesrath at Berlin a Saxon delegate urged that the federal states oppose the demand of the new Liberal party that a responsible ministry for the whole empire be instituted. Decision was defeated.

The Paris police have discovered a gambling house, the frequenters of which were women. There were twenty-six women present playing baccarrat. The proprietor of the house was arrested. Several ladies had been enticed to play and fleeced,

It is stated in Toronto that an American named Dunelin, now in Ireland, says an American friend informed him he was the person, who, three years ago, killed Manager Kero of Toronto royal opera, robbed him of $3,000 and pitched the body over the Suspension bridge.

In debate on the franchise bill in the commons Thursday, Chamberlain, president of the board of trade, declared it was the fixed and unanimous intention of the government to include Ireland in the bill, he said, let the nation decide between them and the government. He had no fear of the result.

The exporting merchants of Montreal are greatly excited over the news that the parliament of Newfoundland has passed a law imposing a duty of 100 per cent. on all packages containing goods imported into the colony. This is said to be a retaliatory measure against Canada for passing the law for the inspection of Newfoundland herring.

Franklin Este, formerly treasurer of the town of Southborough, Mass., issued a note for $5,000 fourteen years ago, and used the money, making no record on the town books. He paid the interest from his own funds. Este's bond for that year cannot be found. A similar irregularity occurred a year ago and a $1,400 shortage found. He settled the last affair and was obliged to resign. Este had been treasurer twenty-three years.

Appropos of the appointment of Sargent minister to Russia, the Berlin Tagblatt considers [illegible]

The Black Watch, mentioned so frequently in the dispatches from Suakim as having borne the brunt of Gen. Graham's last engagement is the name given to the Forty-second regiment Highlanders. Into this regiment were enrolled in 1737, the companies dressed in black or dark tartans, that had watched the Highlanders during the war for the restoration of the Stuarts. Nearly all of the older regiments of the British army have familiar names, sometimes derived from some feature of their uniforms and sometimes from some incident in their history.

Another sensational divorce suit is on in London, for a judicial separation brought by the beautiful Lady Colin Campbell, the Miss Gertrude Blood, against her husband, Lord Colin Campbell, the fifth son of the duke of Argyll and brother of the marquis of Lorne. The lady alleges adultery, and her husband, while making a general denial of her charges, retorts with a counter suit for absolute divorce, in which he accuses her of many acts of maritial infidelity. The wedding which occurred last year was an unusually brilliant affair, the queen being represented by the Princess Louise. The hearing is private by special command of the queen, who fears the public scandal that will attach to more than one noble family if the coming revelations are not strictly guarded.

The Criminal Calendar.

At Burlington, Iowa, Lawyer Bremmerman did the general borrowing act among his friends and silently stole away.

At Laconia, N. H., the grand jury indicted Thomas Samon for the murder of Mrs. Jane Ford, Frank Ruddy and child, for attempting to kill Mrs. Ruddy and for burning a house.

While returning from Joliet, Ill., to his home, Micheal Conlin, collector of the township of Troy, was waylaid by masked men and robbed of $2,500 in funds belonging to the township. The robbers made good their escape in Mr. Conlin's buggy leaving him tied hand and foot by the roadside.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

Matthew Arnold made £1,200 by his lecturing tour in America.

A biennial session amendment passed the Connecticut senate, 18 to 8.

The private banking house of William Locke, Noblesville, Ind., suspended payment.

The taxable value of Missouri property for 1884 is put at $710,000,000, an increase of $118,000,000 since 1881.

A Lawrence, Massachusetts jury decided that Archbishop Williams must pay the money deposited with the Catholic Augustinian society.

The question of fast mail trains for the Northwest is still under consideration by the postmaster general. The complaints regarding the running of these trains are not of an official character, but are of sufficient weight to cause the department to give the subject proper attention.

In the life insurance case of Catherine L. Edwards vs. The Connecticut Mutual, in the United States circuit court at Utica N. Y., the jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff of $5,445. An appeal was taken. In the case against the Travelers' company, growing out of the same death, a similar verdict was obtained in Albany at the last term. The defense in both cases was suicide.

Fish Commissioner Blackburn of New York, in a recent interview, said the opening of the Northern Pacific express is a new and highly important development for the fish workers in the East. Heretofore it took twenty-one days to get a shipment of Columbia river salmon to New York. Now it takes but seven, and they arrive in perfect order. The commissioner says 1,000 pounds of fish is received in New York daily from the Columbia river, but this amount will preceptibly increase, after the opening of the "chinnook" season. The chinnook is the better class of Columbia river salmon.

Carl Schurz Declines $100,000.

The movement on the part of friends of Carl Schurz to raise him a testimonial of $100,000 has been abandoned, at the earnest request of Mr. Shurz. The matter coming to Shurz's knowledge he requested that the money should be returned to the subscribers, and out of regard to his feelings this has been done. In a letter to Gustave Schwab, treasurer of the fund, the ex-secretary says he is proud to know that he has such good friends, but this movement is very embarrassing to him. He says: "I feel as if, while I am able to work, I could not accept such sums without giving a proper equivalent for them."

Purchase of the Arlington Estate.

The ownership of the Arlington estate by the United States is now complete, the final payment of $25,000 having been made to Mr. G. W. C. Lee, who was adjudged the owner by the United States supreme court, by the check of Col. R. N. Batchelder, deputy quartermaster general. This sum was withheld until the State of Virginia should give consent to the purchase of the property by the United States and should cede jurisdiction over it, and also until the United States should be freed from liability for taxes alleged to be due are to become due. These requirements on the part of the government have been met by the passage by the Virginia legislature of "An act consenting to the purchase of the Arlington estate by the United States, ceding jurisdiction, and remitting taxation thereon," which became effective Feb. 23, 1884.

St. Paul Markets.

Wheat, No. 1, 90c@93c; No. 1 hard, cash, 98c; No. 2 hard, 94c; No. 2 common, 84c; seed wheat, $1.10@$1.23. Corn, No. 2, cash, 50@51c; No. 3, 50c; new mixed, 48c. Oats, No. 2, mixed, 30@31c; No. 3, 29c; No. 2, white, 33c; No. 3, white, 32c; rejected, 27c. Barley, No. 2, 65c; No. 3, extra, 58c; No. 3, 45c. Rye, No. 2, 53c. Ground feed, $18.50@$19.00. Corn meal, coarse, $18.00; bolted, $24.00. Bran, sacked, $13.50; loose, $12.75. Hay, wild, bailed, $7.25 @$7.50; timothy, $9.50@$10.00. Seeds, timothy, $1.35; clover, $6.25. Potatoes, 25c.

Milwaukee Markets.

Wheat, No. 2, 87½c. Corn, No. 2, 55c. Oats, No. 2, 32c; white, 36@37c. Rye, No. 1, 63½c. Barley, No. 2, 65@65½c. Pork, $17.85. Lard, $9.30. Hams, 12@12½c. Live hogs, $5.85@$6.85.

Chicago Markets.

Wheat, No. 2, Chicago spring, 83⅝@86⅝; No. 3, Chicago spring, 71c. Corn, 51½@54c. Oats, 29½@32c. Barley, 62@64c. Pork, cash $17.80 @$17.85c. Lard, cash, $9.30@$9.35.

Prince Leopold Dead.

Prince Leopold, duke of Albany, fourth and youngest son of Queen Victoria, died suddenly at 2 p. m. at Cannes, France, on the 28th. He died in a fit as he was on the point of starting for Darmstadt to attend the wedding of his niece, Princess Victoria of Hesse. Great reticence is observed as to the precise cause of the duke's death, but it is generally supposed to have been apoplexy.

At 5 in the evening, while standing on a chair in the theater balcony circle to witness a battle of flowers, he suddenly fell to the floor. He was carried to Villa Nevada, the residence of Capt. Percival, where he expired. The duke was on the eve of returning to England when he died. He visited Cannes incognito under the title of Baron Arklow. Delicate health prevented the duchess accompanying her husband. Her accouchement is expected in a few weeks. When the news of the death reached London, flags were placed at half mast on public buildings and hotels, church bells were tolled and many shops partly closed.

When the Queen heard of the duke's death she was seized with a paroxysm of weeping. General Sir Henry Ponsonby informed the prince of Wales at Marlborough house of his brother's death.

His royal highness, Prince Leopold George Duncan, duke of Albany, earl of Clarence and Baron Arklow, prince of the United Kingdom, duke of Saxony, prince of Cobourg and Gotha, etc., etc., was the youngest son and the youngest child but one of Queen Victoria. He was born at Buckingham palace, April 7, 1853. From his infancy he was in very delicate health, being troubled with feebleness of the bones and joints. He studied at Oxford, which he left with the reputation of a quiet and studious young man of amiable disposition and more than ordinary ability. He was the best educated and most intellectual of the queen's sons. His tastes were scholarly and refined, and no scandal ever attached to his name. In 1880 Prince Leopold visited this country. [illegible]

The Transfer of Minister Sargent.

Regarding the transfer of Minister Sargent from Berlin to St Petersburg, Oswald Ottendorfer, editor of the N. Y. Staats Zeitung, says: "I think it is a very wise move. It shows that the American government appproved Sargent's course and promoted him at the first opportunity. He could not have been of any further service at Berlin, for the German authorities would have lost no opportunity of attacking him. This bit of diplomacy must confound the German chancellor. It will now be in order to let the German embassy remain vacant. The secretary of the legation can sufficiently care for American interests."

Dangerous Blaze in Washington.

Fire was discovered in the elevator shaft in the new war department building at Washington, on the 26th inst. The entire fire department was called out, and great excitement prevailed for a time, as there was danger of flames spreading to other parts of the building, occupied jointly by the state, war and navy departments. The fire, however, was soon extinguished. The only damage done was the destruction of an elevator car, burning out the sides of the shaft, and trifling damage to the roof of the building. Loss, $3,000. The fire caught from a gas jet.

After the Fraudulent Pre-emptors.

T. M. James, special agent of the land department, caused the arrest at Chamberlain, Dak., by United States Marshall Callanan of James Conner, twelve miles south of here, charging him with making a second entry under the pre-emption law, one at the Springfield office and one at the Mitchell office. He was brought before United States Commissioner John T. Stearns and placed on trial. He claimed that he abandoned the first pre-emption and never proved up on it although he lived on it several months and thereupon not carrying it through had a right to take a second claim. The commissioner bound Mr. Conner over to court to answer the charge.

A Rare Case of Conscience.

The example of Gov. Irwin of Idaho in returning his salary to the treasury, has been imitated by Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor of Ohio, who returns to the government $4,975 which he recently received under the arrears of pensions act. Gen. Grosvenor says he does not feel himself justly entitled to the money, but does not want it credited to the conscience fund. It is therefore placed among what is known as "miscellaneous receipts." A great many people have received as large, and in some cases larger sums than this under the arrears of pensions act who are not so much entitled to the money, as Gen. Grosvenor was a gallant soldier, and carries with him the wounds which testify to his courage.

Reduced Freight Rates.

The Northern Pacific recently issued a special summer tariff, taking effect April 1. It quotes a reduction of about 25 per cent. on all classes of freight, excepting in car-load lots. The following are the reduced rates quoted between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Minnesota Transfer, Duluth or Superior, and the points named below:

To—	First class.	Second class.	Third class.	Fourth class.
Bismarck, Dak.	$1 20	$1 10	$ 95	$ 75
Mandan, Dak.	1 23	1 13	98	78
Sims, Dak.	1 65	1 45	1 25	1 00
Glendive, Mont.	1 75	1 55	1 30	1 20
Miles City, Mont.	1 85	1 65	1 40	1 30
Forsyth, Mont.	3 00	1 75	1 45	1 35
Custer, Mont.	3 00	1 75	1 45	1 35
Billings, Mont.	2 25	2 00	1 60	1 50
Park City, Mont.	2 51	2 24	1 80	1 66
Livingston, Mont.	2 95	2 45	1 95	1 70

These rates expire Oct. 31, if not sooner revoked.

Pork Packing in the West.

The annual report of pork packing in the west as compiled by Charles B. Murray, editor of the Price Current. It shows the entire winter packing to be 5,402,064 hogs, against 6,132,212 last year; average weight, 251,44 pounds, a decrease of 15.58 as compared with last year; decrease in the yield of lard per hog, 2.18 pounds. The pork production shows 273,858 less than last year. The stocks of meat in the west, including barreled pork, were 113,000,000 pounds less than a year ago. The exports since Nov. 1 are 47,000,000 pounds less than a year ago, and 145,000,000 less than the average the seven previous years. The outlook for hog supplies indicates about 15 per cent. shortage for the summer. The Price Current concludes it is not impossible that there may be a falling off of 500,000, but thinks it more likely to be much less than the total packing for the twelve months ending March 1, 9,188,100, against 9,342,999 the preceding year.

The New Circuit Judge.

The following is a sketch of the new judge of the 8th circuit, comprising eight states and Territories. Judge Brewer was born in Smyrna, Asia Minor, June 20th, 1837. His father, the Rev. Josiah Brewer, was a missionary to the Greeks in Turkey. His mother's maiden name was Amelia Field, she being a sister of David Dudley and Cyrus W. Field, Judge Brewer commenced his studies at Wesleyan university in Middleton, Conn., but removed to New Haven and graduated at Yale college in 1856. On leaving Yale he entored the law office of his uncle, David Dudley Field, in New York city, in which he spent a year or more as a student and then completed his legal studies at the Albany law school, from which institution he graduated in the class of 1858. In the fall of that year he went west, and after a residence of a month in Kansas City started up the Arkansas Valley for Pike's Peak and Denver. He returned to Kansas in June, 1859. After a short visit home he located in Leavenworth, Sept. 13, 1859, since which time he has been a constant resident of that city. Oct. 3, 1861, he was married to Louisa R. Langdon, of Burlington, Vt. They have four daughters, all living. He has served as associate justice of the Kansas supreme court since 1870, and his term does not expire till 1888.

Minister Sargent Transferred to Russia.

Minister Sargent has been transferred from the Berlin mission to St. Petersburg. The transfer is made at his own request, as the unfriendliness of Bismarck and the attacks of the German press have made his residence in Germany very disagreable. The Lasker resolution increased the hostility of the comments of Bismarck's organs, which were extremely bitter and severe upon Sargent and the manner in which he treated the matter, while cordially approved by this government, rendered his relations with Bismarck more unfriendly than ever. Sargent has the confidence and respect of the president and secretary of state, but it was thought that a more efficient man could be sent to Berlin. The senate confirmed Mr. Sargent's appointment without the formality of referring it to a committee and Secretary Frelinghuysen sent the following telegram to Minister Sargent:

Sargent, Minister, Berlin: The president approves entirely your course in the Lasker matter. You have done nothing but obeyed the instructions of this government therein. The president, thinking it may be agreeable to you, nominated you as minister to St. Petersburg; and your nomination, without reference to any committee, was immediately and unamiously confirmed by the American senate. This action manifests appreciation of your worth, and does you an honor of which any citizen may well be proud.

[Signed] FRELINGHUYSEN.

Mob Law Threatened in Cincinnati.

In December last the dead body of William Kirk, a farmer, was found on the roadside just out of Cincinnati, he having been murdered by blows on the head with a club or something of the kind, while returning from the city to his country home. Suspicion fastened upon Berner, whose arrest soon followed. He made a full confession, stating that he had killed Kirke for the purpose of robbing him. In spite of this confession the jury found Berner guilty of manslaughter only. Public opinion immediately worked itself up into a furious state of ebullition in contemplation of this ridiculous verdict. Ten thousand people gathered in Music Hall, and after addresses, moved to the jail for the purpose of lynching Berner. It appears that Berner, after sentence, was disguised and placed in a buggy with Deputy Sheriff Dominick Devoto, and driven to Linwood, where they got aboard the Morrow accomodation and went to Loveland, to await the arrival of Deputy Joe Moses with the necessary papers for committal to the penitentiary, but of this fact the mob were ignorant and affected [illegible]

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY

Senator Dawes, from the committee on Indian affairs, has reported favorably the bill to accept and ratify certain agreements made with the Sioux Indians, and to grant the right of way to the Dakota Central railway company through the Sioux reservation in Dakota; and also the bill to accept and ratify certain agreements with the Sioux Indians, and to grant the right of way to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company through the Sioux reservation. These two bills have already been reported favorably by the house committee on Indian affairs.

The senate has confirmed the following nominations: Consuls: Willis E. Baker, Illinois, Rosario, Argentine Republic; Firth Charlesworth, Beloit, Kans., Funchal; Julius Stapel, consul general, Shanghai; Archer Russell Platt, consul, Chefoo, China; Brewster Cameron, Beloit, Kans., receiver of public moneys at Tucson, Ariz.; Jacob B. Blair, Wyoming, associate justice of the supreme court of Wyoming; Case Broderick, Kansas, associate justice of the supreme court of Idaho. Postmasters: George A. Selsby, Mitchell, Dak.; John W. Hart, Traer, Iowa; W. J. Brown, Emmetsburg, Iowa.

Senator Plumb, from the committee on public lands of the senate, reported adversely the bill introduced by Senator Cameron to restore to market and sale certain lands of the United States in Minnesota, and to authorize their sale subject to the right of flowage. They are the lands withdrawn from sale by the proclamations of the United States issued March 2, 1880, April 5th, 1881, and Nov. 26, 1881, the secretary of war having represented that they would be subject to flowage and required for use in the construction and maintenance of dams and other works proposed to be erected for the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi river and certain of its tributaries. These lands are regarded as valuable for their timber and for agricultural purposes. The views of the committee will be embodied in a report to be made to the senate hereafter.

Mr. Strait presented to the house the resolutions of the board of trade of Minneapolis, favoring the repeal of the act requiring the coinage of two million silver dollars each month. The resolutions were referred to the committee of coinage, weights and measures.

Senator Cameron, from the committee on Indian affairs, reported favorably the bill providing for the allotment of lands in severalty to the La Pointe band of Chippewa Indians in Wisconsin. The bill provides that—

The president of the United States may assign to each head of a family, or single person over twenty-one years of age, belonging to that sub-division of the Chippewas, of which Buffalo was chief, eighty acres within the lands reserved as addition to the Red Cliff Indian reservation; provided that such person has not received land under the provision of any article of the treaty.

A bill has passed the senate increasing the compensation of United States district judges from $3,500 to $5,000 a year, but prohibits these officers from filling places under them with their relatives. During the debate on the anti-nepotism clause, Senator Ingalls gave some of his colleagues a severe rap when he declared that it was highly improper and indelicate for government officials to appoint their relatives to office. Some senators have all of the available members of their families on the government rolls.

The President sent to the Senate on Tuesday the following nominations: David J. Brewer, Kansas, United States circuit judge of the Eight judicial circuit; Julius C. Burrows, Michigan, solicitor of the treasury; Col. David G. Stanley, Twenty-second infantry, brigadier general; Chauncey B. Sabin, district judge of the Eastern district of Texas; Asa E. Stratton, Jr., attorney of the United States, Wyoming; William A. Saylor, collector of customs, district of Paso del Norte; James O. Luby, collector of customs, district of Brazo de Santiago, Texas.

A joint resolution giving the Mississippi river flood sufferers $125,000 of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for the victims of the Ohio flood was adopted by both houses.

The following nominations were sent to the senate: Aaron A. Sargeant, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Germany, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Russia, vice William H. Hunt deceased; Robert T. Clayton, Georgia, consul to the United States, Para.

The Senate in executive session made the following confirmations: Aaron A. Sargent, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Russia; William M. Bun, Philadelphia, governor of Idaho; Summer Howard, Michigan, chief justice of the supreme court of Arizona; William A. Saylor, Texas, collector of customs district of El Paso del Norte, Texas and New Mexico; Elliot S. N. Morgan, Cheyenne, secretary of Wyoming; Lieut. Col. Thomas S. Casey, colonel of the corps of engineers; Lieut. Col. John G. Parke, colonel of the corps of engineers, Sixth regiment cavalry, Second Lieut. Robert D. Read, Jr., to be first lieutenant. Postmasters—Henry S. French, Northfield, Minn.; John W. Jones, Cheyenne, Wyo.

The senate passed the bill allotting lands in severalty to the Indians on various reservations and extended the protection of state and territorial laws over Indians.

A bill passed the senate paying ten claims for depredations committed by Ute Indians; among the claimants being Mrs. Meeker and her daughter, the latter now deceased.

The whisky bond bill was overwhelmingly defeated in the house by a vote of 84 to 185. The vote was a surprise to every one. That the bill would be defeated was a foregone conclusion, but no one imagined that the adverse majority would be a hundred or more. Fully half the democrats voted against it, as did nearly all of the republicans.

An analysis of the vote shows that the Northern States that furnished the votes for the bill were California, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Ohio and Wisconsin, with an occasional one from Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut. The only Southern States that supported the bill with any strength were Louisiana and Kentucky. The greatest opposition, both in the discussion and the vote, it was very noticeable, came from the South, except in the states named. This was largely due to the fact that in most of the Southern states there is a strong temperance sentiment.

The $70,000 of tax on the bonded whiskey has got to be paid. Some of it has already matured, and it is estimated that $20,000,000 more will become due between now and the 1st of June. The large lobby here are very despondent over their defeat, and are predicting financial disaster to many dealers and embarrassment to banks which have lost money on immense stores of whisky. Whether their fears will be realized remains to be seen. It is in fact that a large number of national banks were among the most persistent in urging the passage of the bill.

The joint resolution proposing amendment to the constitution to extend the right of suffrage to women reported favorably to the senate from the committee on woman suffrage by Senator Palmer, provides that the legislatures of the several states be asked to ratify the following article, which it proposes as an amendment to the constitution as article XVI:

Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any sex on account of sex.

Sec. 2. Congress shall have power to appropriate legislation to enforce the provisions of this article.

Mr. Nelson presented to the house the resolution of the St. Paul chamber of commerce relative to the head of navigation of the Minnesota river. It declares that the Minnesota river can be made navigable beyond the city of New Ulm and protests against any action on the part of the government which shall assume the head of navigation of that river at the place and in any sense which shall hereafter prevent the improvemant of this water way.

In the senate a resolution was offered by Mr. Van Wyck, and, after a verbal amendment by Mr. Garland, agreed to, as follows: Resolved, That the secretary of the interior be directed to furnish the senate copies of the correspondence between the departments of justice and the interior as to the present efficacy of the statute of March 31, 1807, empowering the president to direct marshals and employ such military force as may be necessary to remove certain persons and obstructions from the public domain.

In the Senate debate on the education bill, Senator George, of Mississippi said he had once believed a state had a right to secede from the Union. He believed now that the right then existed, but it had been irrevocably lost—lost amid the clang of arms and the horrors of war. He had once denied that the federal government was judge of its own power; yet that had been firmly established.

Those opinions, said Mr. George, "I have surrendered, however, unwillingly. I will not feed on the dry husks and emasculated remains of constitutional theories which, however respectable they may have been, now no longer control or influence the government or destinies of this great nation. We live in the present. We are actors in the present. We must meet the demands of the present. The world moves, [illegible]

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. George Selman of Clarissa, which weighed just twenty ounces at birth, and when two weeks old just turned the scales at two pounds.

At the late payment of the Mille Lacs Indians, one chief drew his annuity for the whole family and returned to his quarters. Presently he returned to the agent with the information that he had just had an increase of family, and the pappoose was duly entered on the roll and the annuity paid.

Sheriff Quinn, of Benton county, has arrested George Laughton for stealing timber off of school and railroad lands in Benton county, and took him to interview Judge Collins. Josiah Laughton and his son Joseph were both arrested in the county named. An indictment is out for the arrest of Albert, but according to last accounts he had so far succeeded in eluding two sheriffs who were after him.

Mr. Abbott of Hector has made an assignment. Liabilities, $5,000; assets about the same. Coykendall Bros. of Minneapolis are the principal creditors, having a claim of $2,400.

The Southern Minnesota Poultry and Pet Stock association has decided to delay its proposed incorporation until later in the spring.

A company is about being formed in East St. Cloud for the purpose of building a large saw mill with a capacity of 100,000 feet per day. It is proposed to convey the power by wire cable three-fourths of a mile from the dam at Sauk Rapids to a point at the foot of Maple island, where the mill is to be built.

The stock growers of St. Peter and vicinity have made arrangements for a monthly horse market at that place, commencing on Wednesday, May 7, and to be held on the first Wednesday of each month thereafter.

At the commencement of the present term of court there were four suits against the city of Waseca, brought for injuries sustained by parties passing along sidewalks, the amounts claimed aggregating $42,000.

The United States timber thieves who were arrested on the Red river between Drayton and St. Andrus, on Thursday, and who were placed in the county jail Saturday night, are O. H. Moe, Carl J. Johnson, S. A. Olson, Thomas McLain, Patrick Maloy, Edward Flaherty, William Linkie and John Linkie. The men all claim to be farmers, and say that they cut very little wood and did it to prevent being frozen. They say they are in very hard case, their crops having failed last year.

During the year ended March 1 Minneapolis had 3,879 arrests, 3,214 being of males and 635 of females.

The first annual meeting of the Minnesota State Bar association will be held at the capitol in St. Paul, April 1, at 4 p. m. Thomas Wilson of Winona will deliver an address, and reports are expected from the committees on legal history and biography (Isaac Atwater, Henry J. Horn and M. S. Wilkenson), on juris prudence and law reform (Eugene M. Wilson, W. P. Murray, John W. Arctander, W. H. Yale and J. N. Searle). In the evening a banquet will be provided. A meeting of the committee on admission will be held on or before next Wednesday, and all who desire to join the association are requested to forward their names to the secretary at once.

Ex-Secretary and Mrs. Windom are now in Italy, intending to tour there for six weeks. They spent most of the winter where their little daughters are at school. They have not changed their original intention of returning home early this summer, probably by June.

In the burning of the Minneapolis & St. Louis transfer house John Dooley perished.

The Minneapolis fair will come off as usual this year.

Maj. King has vindicated himself from the slanders of several young Leech Lake Indians.

J. J. McKullock, saloonkeeper at Fergus Falls, recently made an assignment to B. F. Lounsbery for the benefit of his creditors. Liabilities and assets not known, but supposed to be about $10,000.

George A. Freudenreich of Alexandria, is in Washington, en route for Russia. He has been four years in that country, representing the McCormick Harvesting Machine company of Chicago. His headquarters are in Odessa. He has been in this country on a brief visit to his home. His father, Baron Freudenreich, was among the early settlers in Minnesota.

New York papers print telegrams from St. Paul alleging that John Douglass, one of the Yellowstone Park Improvement company, accuses Rufus Hatch of treachery and deceit in securing the appointment of a receiver. Mr. Hatch, when interviewed concerning the matter, said he did not care to talk upon the subject. "The courts had charge of the affair, and would protect his interests from the sharks." The current understanding is that Hatch has a majority of the non-forfeited stock, and will have things his own way.

Sitting Bull visited the St. Paul engine houses and the boys astonished the old savage. The chief could not take in all the situation at one time and viewed the horses getting to place, the swinging harness, and the men sliding down the pole with huge delight, giving vent to a number of "hows." The hitching process was repeated for their benefit, and their eyes concentrated upon the sliding poles, which they seemed to regard with the greatest interest, One Bull saying, "Look man on iron." The chief's horse, which was unattended but went to its place ready for hitching, also delighted them. The hook and ladder truck was then run out and the fireman put on top of O'Leary's packing house. The last visit was to the fire alarm room, where they were allowed to pull a box prepared for them and see the blows come in on the gong [illegible] Sitting Bull in reply to a question as to what he liked best, said: "All of it, like everything." The Indians went to church dutifully in the morning and were pestered by sightseers, as usual, throughout the day and evening.

The house of Mr. Rolfe, near Pine City, burned, the inmates seeking refuge from the terrible blizzard in the smoke house, where they nearly perished.

The Grand hotel difficulty at Fergus Falls has been settled by the purchase of Chamberlin & Co.'s interest. This includes the settlement of all claims upon a satisfactory basis. The continued running of the hotel is regarded as an assured fact.

Hon. J. A. Leonard of Rochester, writes that he will soon leave Leith, Scotland, to assume his duties as United States consul in Calcutta. His family were intending to return to this country in the spring, but have decided to spend the summer traveling in Europe instead.

Daniel Banks and family, residents of Winona for twenty-seven years, have taken their departure for Portland, Ore., to make it their home.

The jail of Pine City, Pine county, was burned Sunday morning between 12 and 4 o'clock. Two men, supposed to have come from Murray's camp, had just been arrested and placed in the jail and are supposed to have been burned, as they are missing and were in the building at the time of the fire. It is supposed that the men being drunk one of them struck a match and accidentally set the building on fire.

On March 5, in response to a request of Gov. Rusk of Wisconsin, Gov. Hubbard issued a requisition for the arrest of Jack Dunkly, charged with arson committed on May 19, 1883, in Polk county, Wis. George W. Booth, marshal of Taylor's Falls, to whom the warrant was issued, has made his return to the governor, having arrested Dunkly on March 20, and delivered him at the state line to John Brokaw, the Wisconsin agent.

F. H. Pratt, an old resident of St. Paul and a Knight Templar, died at his residence on Marshal avenue, Tuesday, the 25th, after an illness of a week. Deceased came to St. Paul from Rush City and engaged in the wood and coal business, being a partner in the firm of F. H. Pratt & Son at the time of his death.

Secretary Hart, of the board of correction and charities, has returned from a conference with the authorities of Todd and Marshall counties. They proposed to erect poorhouses, but as the counties are small and find it comparatively difficult to raise funds, upon the advice of the secretary they will probably give up the idea.

Walter Mann has resigned his position as president of the National German-American bank in St. Paul, and Gustav Willius was chosen to succeed him. Joseph Lockey, formerly assistant cashier, was promoted to the cashiership, vice Mr. Willius made president.

John Drechler of Elizabeth, charged with cutting timber on government land, was discharged, the land being found to belong to him.

A large pipe-organ for the Congregational church at Northfield has arrived, and will be placed in position at once.

Mr. Fleck of Grafton, Ill., is building a steamer eighty feet in length to ply on Red lake.

The elevator capacity of Duluth is to be materially increased. At present there are three elevators. Two others are now in the course of erection. These will be completed in ample time for the storage of next season's crops. Among other improvements are the dock now building on the Wisconsin side by the St. Paul & Pacific Coal company, and the docks and warehouse of the Northern Pacific Elevator company on Minnesota point. When all the elevators under way are completed the storage capacity will reach 5,000,000 bushels. It is now about 2,700,000 bushels.

Officer John Casey, who has been on the police force of St. Paul since April 10, 1869, died Friday morning at St. Joseph's hospital from a rupture of a blood vessel in the brain. Casey has been sick for some time, and his death has been expected. He leaves one son who is in business in St. Paul.

Nicolas Galles, a former resident of New Ulm, is now one of the principal members of the New Mexico legislature and receives his mail as "Hon. N. Galles" with becoming dignity.

Arrangements have been completed to introduce the fire alarm system into Faribault. There will be four boxes, one being located so as to accommodate the public and educational buildings on the west of the city.

Considerable trouble has been caused by the depredations of wheat thieves in Clay county for the past winter and the evil has become so great that the commissioners passed a resolution offering a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the thieves.

Capt. Frank H. Pratt, whose death occurred at St, Paul on the 15th, was a Minnesotian of many years' standing, and was well known throughout the state, both on account of his public services and his business connections. He was a native of the state of Maine, whither he came to St. Paul in 1854 with his father, Henry B. Pratt, who became connected with the Minnesotian as one of its editors and proprietors.

Episcopal Visitations.

Rt. Rev. H. B. Whipple has issued a circular giving the following date for his visits to the various parishes of the diocese for holding service and confirmation: Owatonna. Thursday, April 24, at 7:20 p. m.; Northfield, Friday, April 25, at 7:30 p. m.; Hastings, Mon day, May 5, at 7:30 p. m.; Red Win Tuesday, May 6, at 7:0 p. m.; Fro tenace, Wednesday, May 7, at 7:30 p m.; Lake City, Thursday, May 8, a 7:30 p. m.; Wabasha, Friday, May 9, 7:30 p. m.; Faribault, Sunday, May 1 at 10:30 a. m.; Morristown, Sund May 11, at 2 p. m.; Mankato, Wedne day, May 28, at 7:30 p. m.; St. Pet Friday, May 30, at 7:30 p. m.; Cordov Saturday, May 31, 10:30 a. m.; Far bault, Whit Sunday, June 1, 10:30 a. m Shumway Chapel, June 1, at 3 p. m Norwegian Chapel, June 1, at 7:30 p. m.; Kasson, Thursday, June 5, at 7:30 p. m.; Rochester, June 6, at 7:30 p. m.; Pine Island, Friday, June 6, at 7:30 p. m.; Zumbrota, Friday, June 6, at 7 p. m.

About Ten Bushels.

Farmers Tribune.

It requires about ten bushels of wheat to the acre to pay for the expense of raising it. The plowing, sowing, harvesting, threshing and the price of the seed will take the best part, if not all, of the ten bushels to foot the bills. Thus far, when he sells the ten bushels, the farmer has made just fair wages, the same as the laboring man does who works out for a living. If eleven bushels is produced, there is a little profit. If B produces twelve bushels and A only eleven bushels, B makes just as much again money as A does and if C produces sixteen bushels to the acre he makes just four times as much as B does. After the ten bushels are raised, all over that number is clear profit, hence the necessity of the farmers, in order to make money by growing wheat, to have their land prepared for the reception of the seed. The soil should be well pulverized. It should be plowed deep. It will be all the better for a little of the virgin soil being brought to the surface, especially if plowed last fall. This semi-sub-soil is full of the properties that produce wheat. It is possible that in old fields where wheat has been raised for a number of years that these properties are exhausted. Too much care cannot be given to the land that is to be occupied with wheat, and, if among the possibilities.

SOW THE WHEAT EARLY,

because in nine years out of ten early sowed wheat produces the best crops. This is almost every body's experience who has ever raised a bushel of wheat in the Northwest. Never mind if the ground is not dry. If it is sufficiently thawed so that the frost will admit of the seed being sufficiently covered sow it, mud it in rather than to wait until the soil is dry and dusty. Don't be afraid that the seed will rot; if it is good, as it should be, there is no danger of that. Good pure seed will stand more sleet, snow, rain, thawing and freezing than we ever have in the Northwest after the wheat is sowed in the spring. It is very true we have known two or three seasons during the past thirty years, that late sowed wheat produced as good crops as that which was sowed early, but they are exceptions to the general rule.

We do not pretend to know the reason that causes early sowed wheat to produce better crops than that which is sowed late. The action of the spring frost appears to be connected with it in some way or other. Wheat seems to yield better when the seed has been frozen in the ground in the spring. It reaches maturity earlier in the fall, and almost always escapes the two or three days of extreme heat that is almost always sure to come just about the time that late sowed wheat is in the milk which ripens it prematurely, and causes a shrinkage in the grade as well as in the yield. When this visitation appears, which is little less than a regular simoon, wheat that is in the milk suffers to such an extent that we have known fields to be hardly worth harvesting.

Stock Raising.

Cor. Fargo Republican.

Will it pay to raise stock in North Dakota? If so what kind?

I have heard these question asked any times in the past five years. So far as I can remember the general objections are it is cold and the winters re too long to make it a success. Let s stop and consider this point. We ill compare our winters with one of e most successful stock raising states the union—Illinois. It is true that e mercury drops down some ten to fteen degrees lower than in Northern llinois, but the difference in the dryness of the atmosphere we have is ual to ten degrees on the point of vantage over that state. The surface of the country is level prairie land cept where it is broken by rivers d small streams, such as our Red, mes, Sheyenne, Maple and Goose vers. Stock must be fed there from ovember 1 to May 1, except a few eks in the cornfields during the fal d winterr out of six feed months half of the time there is mud knee ep, and some of the time it will drop wn to twenty and sometimes thirty thirty-five degrees below zero within week. These sudden changes are not od for stock of any kind. Then we ust take into consideration the difference in the price of land. I can call mind some of the Illinois stock rms that are worth fifty cents to $65 r acre without buildings; it takes ree acres of that land to keep a steer a colt one year. Now see what is land is worth; call the land worth 0 per acre and see what it costs for land only. Now we will compare r own expenses of raising stock.
sture is free to all; hay is plenty in st parts and can be put up for $1.50 r ton; $4 worth of hay will winter olt, cow or a steer in good shape.
mmer feed will only cost the price herding or fencing pasture. Winter p is about the same in both cases.
must keep in mind the class of k they raise in Illinois upon those k farms. It is the best of its kind ther swine, sheep, cattle or horses.
neral it is the best that pays the t, and I wish to call the attention ll new beginners to this point, that h the best improved stock to start
, it will pay if you do have to pay at you consider two prices at the
. In 1803 Mr. Charles Ellsworth,
m Ridge, Ill., bought a three-year
Norman mare for $250 cash. That a terrible price at that time. Mr.
worth realized from this one mare's over $3,030, and I can show many cases of such profit on well bred
, but I never knew of such profit common scrub stock. If common stock will pay for its keep in this [illegible] country, it is all we must expect of it. I think pigs will do well. We can grow plenty of barley, which is the best of all feed for pork. I think we can raise our own pork and a little to sell, with a good profit. Cattle will do well; no one can dispute but that this is the native home of the buffalo. Cattle of all kinds will do well on buffalo land, I never saw a nicer country to make butter in, and our beef fattened on prairie grass is of the very best quality. I think draft horses are the most profitable for the Red River Valley and North Dakota to raise of any stock. A good span of draft colts coming in to work every spring, either for sale or work, would not hurt any small farm. Then again, brood mares and colts can do all the work that is needed on a Dakota wheat farm, so every year we should turn out some horses for sale to help pay expenses instead of our having to go to the sale stables every spring and sometimes in summer to buy stock. What are we going to do when all of these old plugs of horses and mules are worn out that we bought a few years ago. Yes, send back to Chicago and St. Louis for some more old fretters, what the horse dealers call horses and mules, after they have doped them for a few weeks.

We have bought enough of this class of stock; we want something that is able to work—of good heft, that can stand all kinds of farm work. We can raise good farm horses just as cheap as any state or territory in the union. There is nothing that will pay the farmer better than to raise a few good colts, also cattle, hogs and poultry of all kinds. There is no Illinois farm that can raise these articles and ship them to our door for the price we can raise them for.

Now all that are aggrieved at the railroad and elevator monopolies, let us strike to the root of the evil, not depend on them to make all our markets. Let us turn our attention more to mixed farming; then these monopolies will not have so much control over us. Home market for stock is good, and it will continue so for some time to come. We have the best market for horses of any place in the union, and it will continue so just as long as we depend on wheat for our principal crop. I would advise all farmers, whether small or large to raise some young stock. It is a big expense to buy all of our meats in Chicago and get them shipped here and it is still more expense when we have to replace our work stock by selling wheat at 60 cents and paying from $300 to $500 a span for horses or mules that we can raise with little expense on our own farms. If we could raise plows, seeders, harrows, mowers, binders and steam threshing machines, why we would all go into the business. Why not raise our pork, beef, poultry, eggs, butter, cheese and all of our own work stock? We have all the feed to do so and why not make use of it? Prairie grass of the very best quality and oats, barley, and wheat straw are burnt up, millions of tons every year. Raising stock is not expensive only in the start, but it needs close attention to make it profitable. I would like to hear from some other farmers on the stock raising question; for I see there are many in favor of it, and we need all the information we can get on the subject.

P. R. Marsin.

A Solution of the Wheat Question.

Cor Breckenridge Record

The wheat question, now attracting considerable attention by the spasmodic agitation of unorganized gatherings suggesting legislative, political, and a dozen other foolish because impossible remedies, can best be settled by each individual farmer resolving himself into a committee of one, instructed to devote its time to self-interest and aggrandizement, by the proper cultivation of his individual soil, be it 60 acres or six hundred.

Railroads may refuse to draw your wheat except under certain restrictions ruinous to your prosperity, but railroads can't compel you to raise wheat! Elevator companies may insist on giving you false grades and low prices for your wheat but elevator companies can't compel you to raise wheat! The Minneapolis Millers' association may demand that you shall take this or that grade in the markets they control, but the Minneapolis Millers association can't compel you to raise one single bushel of wheat! You can do without transportation, elevators, or the Minneapolis Millers' association—can they do without you? What do you raise wheat for, any way? It is to pay 10, 18 or 20 per cent. interest on mortgages, chattel and real, that you may buy the latest improved farming machinery, to be laid aside in a few years for new and more improved kinds? It is and you know it. Is it that you may, after selling your "golden grain" to the "miller grocer" in the fall, balance your account with him by a note and mortgage for such "groceries" as eggs, meat, butter, lard, beans, potatoes, clothing? It is, and you know it. Open your eyes, men alive! it is your folly, not their wisdom that enables corporations to fatten and fatten on you. For ten, fifteen, twenty, thirty years, you've raised wheat, and to-day you find yourselves up to your ears in mortgages and debts. Are you going to continue ten, fifteen, twenty or thirty years longer before you wake up to the fact that you are spending your lives working for others, working out your brains and blood in self imposed slavery, that those who love to earn their living by the "sweat of other men's brows" may grow rich? These men will take all you give them, and who blames them? And in exchange they will give you a little taffy about election time as to your being the "prop of the nation," "the wealth of the country," etc., or they will give you mystifying statements as to how hard it is to make both ends meet on account of their liberality to you, and so on ad nauseam. Wake up friends hoe your own row! Don't put faith in the howlings on your behalf of any out-of-office demagogue. Go to work and farm. Do you hear? Farm! Let your cattle on the hill sides take the place of mortgaged machinery in the wheat fields, let your pig stys pay for your groceries and furnish the home market besides; let your horses and mules take the place of notes and chattel mortgages at the "millers' groceries." Wake up, and farm your land as God and nature intended you should, and you will find that though Shylock banks, railroad dividends, millers' associations, grocers, notes, and chattel mortgages and 20 per cent men generally become beautifully less in the land, you won't give a continental darn about the wheat question.

Mahz Reokle.

Bigham & Olafson

Successors to Juve & Bergland.
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
Main Street, Crookston,

Have on hand, and are constantly receiving, full lines of

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.

GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS

In fact everything usually found in First-Class General Store.

Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at

LOW PRICES

☞ A GIVE US CALL ☜

THE

St. Paul, Minneapolis

—AND—

Manitoba

RAILWAY,

WITH ITS

1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the

Park Region of Minnesota,

To all Principal Points in
RED RIVER VALLEY,
NORTHERN MINNESOTA,
NORTHERN DAKOTA
—AND TO—
DEVIL'S LAKE AND TURTLE MOUNTAIN DISTRICTS,

—CONTAINING OVER—

9,000,000 Acres

GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land Department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that Department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country, giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE to any address, by

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner.

C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y, St. Paul, Minn.

Intelligence Office
AND LAUNDRY

Now open and ready for business. All Laundry work at reduced rates. Lace curtains and kid gloves cleaned equal to new. Girls desiring good places, or parties desiring good, competent help should leave their name and address at this office.
M. [illegible]
Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Francis Feeney, mortgagor, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 5th day of July A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the sixth day of July A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 548, 549, 550, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $18 80 and there is yet to become due $48, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section (4) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north of Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.
E. J. Hodgson, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th, 1884. [illegible]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Joseph Valle and Zoe Valle, his wife, mortgagors, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the seventh day of July, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 560 to 563 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $40.90, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-three (23) in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.
E. J. Hodgson, Attorney of Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th, 1884. (498)

READ

The Prairie Farmer

FOR 1884.

The Leading and The Best of all Agricultural and Family paper Complete in all departments of Farm and Home Industry

Indispensible to the Farmer and his Family.

INSTRUCTIVE, VARIED, AND PURE IN CONTENTS.

embracing the Rural Industries, Literature, Science and Art. Its columns are enriched by articles from a host of

Eminent Contributors

in every department. Each issue contains

SUPERB ILLUSTRATIONS, and the LATEST NEWS in a nutshell, concise Market Reports, Etc.

$2 A YEAR, and a copy of the Splendid Prairie Farmer Standard Time Commercial Map of the United States and Canada (58x41 inches) FREE.

Or, if preferred to the Map, either of the following books will be sent to each subscriber sending us $2.

PRATICAL FARM DRAINAGE

by C. G. Elliott; the latest work on that subject. Or the Popular American Dictionary, illustrated, and 32,000 words, accurate definitions, proper spelling, and exact pronunciation. Or

ROPP'S CALCULATOR,

and Account Book for 1884, one of the most convenient and useful books for the Farmer ever issued. Or

American Etiquette and Rules of Politeness

—the latest and best standard work on the subject, containing, also, a large fund of additional information.

Send for specimen copy of the paper.

Address,

PRAIRIE FARMER PUB. CO.,
150 Monroe street, Chicago.

NURSERIES!

Tree Claim Stock.

I DESIRE to inform my customers and others that I shall make a GREAT REDUCTION from former prices on Forest Trees and Seeds

FOR TREE CLAIMS

I have good thrifty two-year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty, Transcendent and Hislop Crab-apple trees.

The firm of Haseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

Old Nursery Grounds

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.

F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minnesota.

THE KIMBALL ORGANS

Have attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior. They contain every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce. These excellent

ORGANS

are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty of finish, perfect construction, making them the

MOST ATTRACTIVE,
ORNAMENTAL AND DESIRABLE

ORGANS

For Homes, Schools, Churches,
Lodges, Societies, Etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,

Unequalled Facilities, Skilled Workmen, Best Material, and aim to Excel combined, make this THE POPULAR ORGAN. Every Organ Warranted for Five Years.

INSTRUCTION BOOKS AND PIANO STOOLS.

Catalogue and Price Lists, on application, FREE. Address

C. J. KOPS, Crookston, Minn.

GENERAL AGENT W. W. KIMBALL CO.

This space is reserved for I. M. Underhill, General Insurance and Real Estate Agent.

1870-THE IOWA FARMER-1884

THE OLDEST, LARGEST AND BEST

Stock & Agricultural Journal

In the Northwest. ENLARGED AND IMPROVED.

Improved Methods of Farming Breeding of Improved Stock. Dairying and Fruit Growing. Farm Crops and Prospects.

Are all treated fully in our columns. Besides we have decided to give for a few months the most elegant premium to subscribers, of any paper in the world, viz: The American Popular Dictionary, cut of which is here given, well worth three times what the FARMER costs. It contains over 500 large pages, handsomely bound, gilt lettered, etc. Every person subscribing for THE IOWA FARMER one year and forwarding one dollar, will secure the FARMER a whole year, postage paid, and receive by return mail, free of charge, as an absolute premium, a copy of this elegant dictionary, postage paid. Send at once and address all orders to THE IOWA FARMER CO., CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.

DR. P. THOEN.
Physician and Surgeon.
—OFFICE—
On Sampson's Addition and in Mr. Christensen' Drug Store.

PATENTS

MUNN & CO., of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, continue to act as Solicitors for Patents, Caveats, Trade Marks, Copyrights, for the United States, Canada, England, France, Germany, etc. Hand Book about [illegible]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., April 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 15th, 1884, viz: JOHN BAUMANN, H'd No. 6625, for the sw¼ s. 4, T. 147, 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. K. Gullickson, K. Gullickson, T. Steenerson and B. Haflerson all of [illegible], Polk Co., Minn.

(49-9) JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., April 2d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 19th, 1884, viz: JEREMIAH GRIFFIN, H'd No. 3257, for the ne¼ S. 35, T. 151, n., R. 45 w. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Baldrey, Jerry Donohue, Timothy Donahue and Thomas Casey, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[illegible] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY, President. St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN, Vice President. Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO, Second Vice President. Bellevue, Iowa.
W. M. ROSS, Cashier. Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $33,000.
SURPLUS, $16,538.83.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

W. M. ROSS, Cashier.

Second Street
MEAT MARKET

STANTON & CO., Proprietors

Choice Meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us. [illegible] Block, Second Street.

—THE—
RED LAKE FALLS
FLOURING
MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do Custom Work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & OLBENTSON,
PROPRIETORS,
RED LAKE FALLS, POLK CO., MINN.
—JOHN N. IVES.— —D. E. HALSTEAD.—

REMOVAL!

Having purchased the store formerly owned and occupied by W. T. Dickey,
HAVE MOVED MY Entire Stock
INTO IT,
And am now prepared to welcome my friends at the new stand. I have a full and complete stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
To which I invite the attention of all
CALL AND SEE ME
At my New Store on Main Street.
A. YVERNAGIE,
Crookston, Minn

NEW
DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD
DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my New Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of fresh
DRUGS, MEDICINES,
PAINTS, OILS,
and YANKEE NOTIONS.

'Tis no longer necessary to go 10 or 20 miles for anything in this line as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see!

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls, by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co. Minn.
DR. A. NELSON.

LIVERY FEED
—AND—
SALE STABLES
Two doors north of U. S. Land Office
Main St., Crookston, Minn.
T. H. BJOIN, Proprietor
Work horses, buggy horses, saddle horses, mules and oxen bought and sold, and traded
For a stylish rig, by day or night, call at Bjoin's Livery Stable.

P. A. DUFOUR,
ATTORNEY & COUNSELOR AT LAW
—MAIN STREET.—
CROOKSTON MINN

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL
WATCHMAKERS
—AND DEALERS IN—WATCHES,
CLOCKS
AND JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET,
Crookston - - Minn.

MERCHANTS HOTEL
J. E. MTTON, Prop.,
WAHPETON, - - - - D. T.
(37-tf)

CROOKSTON TONSORIAL PARLORS
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
Shaving, Hair Dressing, and all work in my line promptly attended to in the latest styles of the art. Give me a trial. Prof. Thompson.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.
☞ Office over th "Arcade" Clothing Store Crookston, Minn.

DR. H. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office on Main Street, one door north of Ring [illegible]. Professional calls, by day or night attended to with promptness.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial teeth from one to an entire set, inserted. Gold, silver or amalgam filling neatly done. Regulating children's teeth a specialty. All work warranted.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
H. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN.
Is ready for the Spring Trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc., etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON. THURSDAY. APRIL 3.

R. R. TIME TABLE.

CROOKSTON.

—GOING NORTH.—

	ARRIVE.	DEPART.
No. 1 Passenger,	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
" 19 Freight.	1:30 a. m.	2:50 a. m.
" 15 "	4:00 p. m.

—GOING SOUTH.—

	ARRIVE.	DEPART.
No. 2 Passenger,	4:00 a. m.	4:10 a. m.
" 16 Freight,		5:25 a. m
" 18 "	1:15 p. m.
" 20 "	6:20 a. m.
" 14 "	6:15 p. m.
" "		4:00 p m.

Grand Forks and Devils Lake.

No. 46 Mixed	4:45 p. m.	9:15 a. m.

St. Hilaire Branch.

Mixed trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10 a. m.; returning at 3 p. m.

Republican District Convention.

A Republican District Convention for the Fifth Congressional District of Minnesota will be held at the Opera house in Moorhead, Clay County, at 12 o'clock m. on the 24th day of April, 1884, for the purpose of choosing two delegates to the Republican National Convention at Chicago. The basis of representation will be one delegate for each organized county in the district, and one for each additional 800 Republican voters or major portion thereof as determined by the vote cast for Knute Nelson and C. F. Kindred for Congress in 1882. The following is the apportionment:

Aitkin,	2	Lake	1
Becker,	5	Mille Lacs,	2
Beltrami,	1	Morrison,	4
Big Stone,	3	Marshall,	3
Benton,	2	Norman,	5
Carleton,	5	Otter Tail,	13
Cooke,	1	Pope,	5
Cass,	2	Polk,	9
Clay,	6	Stearns,	9
Crow Wing,	9	Stevens,	4
Douglas,	7	St. Louis,	7
Grant,	4	Todd,	4
Hubbard,	1	Traverse,	2
Itaska,	3	Wadena,	3
Kittson,	3	Wilkin,	3
Total,			130

The attention of Republican county committees is called to the following resolution:

RESOLVED, That in case any county has no county committee, or having one, said committee shall fail to issue a call before the 15th day of April, for a convention pursuant to the call, the chairman of this committee shall appoint a committee of three Republicans to take action looking to the proper calling and holding of a county convention in such county or counties.

By order of the district committee.

GEO. W. BOYINGTON, Secretary. C. A. GILMAN, Chairman.

'ROUND HOME.

A big immigrant train went north to Manitoba on Monday.

E. M. Walsh seems to be selling lots of stoves nowadays.

Judge F. Ives, of St. Hilaire was in the city awhile last week.

W. E. McKenzie, of St. Hilaire was looking us over on Saturday.

Major Mix' family went out to the farm at St. Hilaire on Tuesday.

Mr. O. A. Ullen, of St. Hilaire was in the city on Saturday enroute for home.

Max Ericsson took a trip to St. Paul returning in time for the grand April fool masquerade.

An Italian string band struck the city last week and made sweet music at several public entertainments.

Ald Nolan has returned to civilization again—and this time to stay. He says—be he ever so handsome there's no place like home.

Rev. A. C. Anderson will hold services at the Norwegian Lutheran church on Sabbath next at 1 o'clock p m., and at 7:30 in the evening.

The Fisher Bulletin says that Mrs. Hugh Sang has an experienced nurse from Alexandria to care for her and is getting along as well as could be expected.

Fred Fox, who sometime since badly froze his left hand has suffered amputation having had three fingers taken off. Dr. Van Dyke thinks he may be able to save the index finger.

Mercedes, the celebrated Holstein cow, died recently at Iowa city. She had the best milk and butter record o any Holstein living, and was valued by her owner, Dr. Wales, at $10,000.

The Crookston Dramatic Company went to Grand Forks on Saturday evening last and played to a full house. The receipts were very gratifying and we are told that the Grand Forkers were highly pleased.

W. L. Trombley writes to his friends here that he is enjoying life at Las Vegas, New Mexico, hugely. He is rapidly recovering health but says it is fearfully dull down there. No business of any account.

The young folks dance held at Ericsson's hall last Friday eve proved to be a grand affair. There was quite a large attendance, the music on this occasion discoursed by the Italian band composed of four pieces was fine. It was a very enjoyable affair.

Harry Ives has bought the St. Hilaire Spectator and will hereafter preside over the destinies of that excellent local paper. Harry has the makin's of a thoroughbred newspaper man and is already no sleuch in politics. We wish him every success imaginable.

The Minneapolis Tribune has donned a new dress, is now worked off on Hoe-Webb perfecting press and altogether, under the new management, is a live, newsy paper. Minneapolis should appreciate the fact that she has a live, progressive morning paper and accord the Tribune a hearty support.

It was not a-w-w-walkaway!

At this rate the river will soon break up.

Prospects for early seeding are exceedingly good.

Miss Alice Van Dyke has been visiting with her brother, the doctor for a short time and left on this morning's train for Alexandria.

The new band favored the city with a serenade on Monday. This band is chiefly composed of the members of the first cornet band ever organized in Crookston.

Markham evidently believes in keeping nice and tidy even that he dont lay up a cent. He has just had the front of his new store painted up in good style which adds much to its appearance.

Dick Hussey is said to rival the great Nast with his little pencil. His vivid imagination would make his fortune if his pencil could portray one-half of it.

Chris Thieman, who for the past year has been employed on the JOURNAL farm has engaged to work on the Keystone farm and left for his new place on Monday night.

The new cornet band have recently received a lot of new music which they render in good style. They expect to add two more members to the band within a fortnight.

Hon. B. Sampson commenced this week driving piles on the West side of the river, for the purposes of protection to the banks where they have been cut into by high water. It is intended to extend the work from the dam to the wagon bridge.

Fred Reynolds returned home from Ann Arbor, Mich. on Saturday night. Fred has just graduated from the law school at that place and wears his honors meekly and becomingly. He will stay around awhile and may conclude to hang out his shingle.

August Wentzel dont think as much of an ice bridge as he did. In attempting to cross the river on Monday he came near getting into the draink through a loose plank in the ice bridge. He thinks the ice is getting "pretty much rotten altogether already."

E. Le Page will put a stock of groceries and provisions into the room in the Canada house, formerly occupied as a sample room by S. Marchildon. A large and choice stock of family groceries is now ready for the public whose patronage si cordially invited.

Glyndon has established a grange. Prof. Whitney of the State grange of Michigan has been there to lecture and afterward started the new organization in on its good work. We trust the good work will go on until hundreds of these organizations will be maintained throughout the northwest.

About seven o'clock a. m. on Tuesday the fire bell rang out its wild appeal to the fire depatment to hasten out, warning our citizens that the demon fire was about to contest for the supremacy. Fire had caught in an out-house belonging to the Linton house and for a few minutes the prospects were good for a first-class conflagration. A few barrels of water and some salt that fortunately were handy extinguished the incipient blaze before extensive damage was done.

Johnnie Hack one of our live grocery men is going to give the people of Polk County a surprise this spring. Everybody knows that Johnnie's judgment on horse flesh is considerably over the average and he has been on the lookout for something fine for some time past; his ardent wishes were gratified last Thursday. On the afternoon of the aforesaid day Johnnie might have been seen directing his steps toward M. R. Brown's sale stables; when he arrived at the place of sale he secured a good position where he could see to advantage the different horses as they were brought out to be sold. Several horses and mules were disposed of and Johnnie began to feel kind of discouraged like, thinking, we presume, that his ideal of a horse was not to be found at that sale when to his surprise and delight one of the men led out a beautiful bay that pranced and jumped around as playfully as a mud turtle. Johnie's heart leaped for joy and he said to himself that horse shall be my property no matter who bids. People noticed the determined look upon Johnnie's countenance, usually so mild and peaceful, and thought to themselves there is no use for us to bid on that horse against Johnnie. The seller took the horse explaining, as he asked for a bid, the good points about him. There was a perfect hush for a moment when someone, more bold than the rest, sang out "five dollars!" Johnnie studied a moment, but only a moment, and cried in a loud voice (Johnnie don't care for money you know when it comes to buying horses) "five dollars and fifty cents!" The result was "going-going-going-gone to Johnnie Hack for five dollars and fifty cents!" This beautiful animal was on exhibition all the next day in front of Johnnie's store on Main Street, so proud was he of his purchase. Take care, Star Bashaw, for another horse will be in the field for honors at the June races, won't there Johnnie?

The Original Crookston Cornet Band

Is re-organized and has favored our citizens with some choice music this week. The members are:

Rudolph Bruner, Leader,—b. b.
Ed Menges, 1st E. b.
M. Thorsen, 2d E. b.
Mr. Royal, — b. b.
Charlie Porger, E. b. Trombone.
Toby Valsar, — Tenor.
Jacob Utzinger, — Tuba E. b.
Mr. Dipple snare drum.
August Schuler base drum.

MONEY! LAND!

$100,000 To Loan. 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY AND IT WILL BE SOLD

Law and Insurance, Collections Made,

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,

PALMER & BOND.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City FREE OF CHARGE.

FARMERS!

When you want the best Machine Oil go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Salt by the barrel, go to D. BUCHANAN'S

If you want Flour and Bran, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Pork, Lard or Salt Fish go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Teas, Coffees, Syrups, or anything in the Grocery line, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

Or if you want to Sell your Butter and Eggs, go to

D. BUCHANAN'S

on Broadway, between 2d and Robert Streets.

STEWART & LAWRENCE,

Dealers in

Pine Lumber.--Pine Lumber.

Windows, Doors, Mouldings, Building Paper, &c.

YARD ON OAK STREET. NORTH OF BROWN'S LIVERY STABLE.

A. Allen,

AGENT

—FOR THE—

HOWE SCALE COMPANY.

Deep Wells!

R. W. RANNEY

IS NOW PREPARED

TO GO TO CHINA OR THEREABOUTS

AFTER A FLOWING WELL IF NECESSARY.

☞ He will contract by the day or job at living rates. If you want a good flowing well, address

R. W. RANNEY,
[6-82] Glyndon, Clay Co., Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, - Minn.

McKINNON BROS.

MANUFACTURERS OF

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES, WAGONS, CUTTERS, SLEDS, &C., &C., &C.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN

FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Johnson Bros. Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and the Plano Harvester and Binder, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, in fact we have everything in Machinery, from a wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine. Extras for all machines, always on hand.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY

The Dennet or Beloit

HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY,

And the Van Brunt & Davis

SEEDER COMPANY,

Are Represented

BY

STEENERSON BROS.,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

IVES & HATLESTAD,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

Collection and Land Office Business made Specialty.

Money secured for final proofs on short notice.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.

GRADUATE McGILL UNIVERSITY, MONTREAL.

Licensed College Physician and Surgeon, Quebec.

Office Over Medical Hall.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Rooms corner Main Street and Fletcher Avenue, over Elken Bros. Hardware Store,

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

FURNITURE STORE,

OAK STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

BATAGLIA & KNACK, PROPRIETOR

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bed Steads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rockers, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings and Picture Frames. Repairing done to order. Goods of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

TOM MORRIS,

—THE—

CITY

JEWELER

REPRESENTS THE

CELEBRATED

Rockford Quick Train

WATCH

THE ONLY

Railroad Watch

IN EXISTENCE.

NEW BROADWAY

Meat Market.

JEROME BROS., Proprietors.

Fresh and Salt Meats

OF ALL KINDS,

VEGETABLES

in their season. All goods delivered if requested.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, we shall at once put up from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice and be prepared to supply the trade for 1884. Wishing you all

—A HAPPY NEW YEAR!—

we are, yours respectfully,

E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

THE NEW

Livery, Feed AND SALE STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth streets,

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

TERRY & COLLINS. Prop's.

Good turnouts at all times at reasonable prices.

Good Hearse and a Careful Driver when needed.

E. D. SCHRADER

LIVERY.

Feed and Sale Stable.

Best Turnouts in the city. Single or Double Rigs, with or without drivers or Saddle horses always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a

NOBBY TURNOUT

—CALL AT THE—

RED BARN

E. D. SCHRADER,

Cor. Main and Third Streets, Crookston.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Stree

EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT AND NOBBY,

Billiard, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies Wholesale Prices.

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT

M. M. VanDyke

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON,

COR. MAIN AND SECOND STREETS

Will attend to all professional ca promptly.

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT LAW

AND DEALER IN

REAL ESTATE.

Office Over Merchants' Bank.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERS

LEO & STEENERSON.

ATTORNEYS AT LA

Room 8, U. S. Land Office Building,

CROOKSTON MIN

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS----$1.50 per Annum.

VOL. VII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA. THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1884. NO. 50

Polk County Journal

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar Fifty Cents, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum sent to any address.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 year
¼ Inch...	50	$1 00	$1 25	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	6 00
1 Inch.....	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 Inches..	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 Inches..	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 Inches.	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 Inches..	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ Column	3 50	4 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	25 00
½ Column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	25 00	50 00
1 Column	9 00	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class Matter

FARMERS' ELEVATORS.

The Moorhead News contains the following report of the committee on elevators, appointed by the farmers' convention. It will be seen that the committee are very sanguine that the true solution of the problem lies in the establishment of an independent line of elevators, and makes the following REPORT.

To the farmers of the Nothwest, Gentlemen:

Your committee appointed to report on the practicability of erecting an elevator system to be under the control of northwestern farmers would respectfully submit the following to-wit:—

1st. That in the limited time at our disposal after the adjournment of the farmers's convention in St. Paul on the 20th instant we visited the City of Duluth and examined the elevator system in that place and find that in addition to the former capacity, comprising elevators "A," "B" and "C" there are in course of erection three other large elevators of a combined capacity of over 2,500,000 bushels. This enormous addition added to the present will give to Duluth an elevator capacity of over five (5) million bushels for the receipt and storage of the next crop.

2d. We would respectfully suggest that in our opinion it would not be advisable to undertake the enormous expense of building an elevator at Duluth or elsewhere on the shores of Lake Superior at present, as the facilities for securing and storing are and will be ample for the time being.

3d. Especially would we recommend to your notice the Duluth & Western Elevator Company's new system of elevators—D and E—which have been built during the last six months and are now ready for business. These elevators are built under a plan that while the quickest possible dispatch of business is assured yet with the vast number of small bins and the excellent system of spouting from all sections of the elevators makes it not only possible but practicable for the manager to "special" a large quantity of the wheat consigned to them if requested to do so by the shipper, thereby preserving the identity of the wheat for sale by sample as well as by grade. We have the fullest assurance of the officers of this company that this will be done without any extra charge whatever, and from our previous knowledge of the owners and manager of this system of elevators we can with confidence recommend them as worthy of your patronage until such time as it may be advisable for the producers to build one or more elevators of their own at Duluth or some other point on the shores of Lake Superior.

4th. We would state further that according to the best of our knowledge and belief and from reliable information obtained from various sources and conversation with prominent grain dealers and business men that it is utterly vain, hopeless and impracticable for the farmers to expect or entertain the idea of a free and open market under the present system and management of elevators at the various country stations. Neither is it reasonable to expect that legislation, no matter how wise and good it may be will, of itself, unaided by any action on our part, step in and fully redress our grievances. Therefore our committee would urge the necessity and vital importance of an immediate and thorough organization for combined action and effort to secure the erection, purchase or lease, of thorough and reliable system of free and independent elevators to be located at such points along the lines of the railroads [illegible] to by and between the farmers and certain independent grain dealers that will at once secure to the farmers and shippers the inestimable blessing of a free and open grain market at our own doors, together with the additional privilege of shipping direct to any place or market the owner may desire, with the identity of the grain carefully preserved and weights guaranteed at place of destination. Neighbors and fellow citizens, these privileges through the earnest efforts of your committee are now within your reach. It is for you to determine whether you will accept or reject them. The propositions, which will be made to you are co-operative in their nature, plain, simple and business like, and will be fully explained to you by one or more of this committee, at any time or place when a meeting is called for that purpose.

We call attention to the communication accompanying this report of T. F. Oakes, Vice-president of the Northern Pacific railroad company covering the concessions that will be made by that company (marked Exhibit A;) also to that of A. Manvel, general manager of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba railroad company on the same subject (marked Exhibit B;) also to the communication of E. Locke, president of the Northwestern Grain Dealers' Association, submitting propositions for the erection of independent elevators at stations along the railroads (marked Exhibit C.)

Trusting that under the blessing of Almighty God we may be directed in the path of duty and right, and that by our combined efforts and action the desired objects for which this committee was appointed to investigate and report may in the near future be fully realized:

We have the honor to be gentlemen, your obedient servants.

LYMAN LORING.
H. G. PALMER.

[EXHIBIT A.]

Northern Pacific Railroad Company—
Office of General Manager.
ST. PAUL, Minn., March 25, 1884.

Messrs. Lyman Loring, Moorhead, Minn., and H. G. Palmer, Warren, Minn., Committee Farmers' Association:

GENTLEMEN:

I am in receipt of the following memorandum at your hands, to-wit:—

1st. Will your company lease us suitable grounds at any station we may desire to erect an elevator?

2d. At what rate will you transport the material for the erection of elevators?

3d. Can we rely on a fair distribution of cars, and that there will be no discrimination in rates of freight in favor of Minneapolis against Duluth?

4th. Will you give a certain number of the agents and master mechanics free transportation?

My answer to your inquiries, in their order, is as follows:

1st. This company will lease to any responsible person or persons whom you may designate, suitable grounds, provided the company has such, for the erection of an elevator, at such points as may at present be unprovided with more than one elevator—provided the elevator, to be erected, is equal in respect to capacity and facilities to elevators at other points of like importance and that the plans and specifications in each case to be acceptable to this company.

2d. You may rely upon the fair distribution of cars for the shipment of grain from elevators when erected. We will further guarantee that no discrimination in rates of freight in favor of, or against, either Minneapolis or Duluth, will prevail.

4th. We must decline to furnish free transportation to any of the agents and master mechanics engaged either in the erection or operation of the elevator.

In conclusion, I will say that your memorandum is so sweeping in its terms, it seems to me necessary to make the restriction provided for in my answer to your first question. If, however, on further consideration, and after a proper interchange of views with the shippers at points not included in the concession, it shall be found desirable to enlarge the privilege, we stand ready to do so, within reason.

The intent of this arrangement being for the benefit of the farmers, in the event of outside people—grain dealers, elevator men, or others—being admitted to copartnership, or participation in its benefits, we reserve the right to determine how far, and under what conditions this arrangement will hold good.

Very respectfully yours,
[illegible] Oakes,
Vice President and Gen'l Manager.

[EXHIBIT B.]

[illegible]

1st. "Will you lease us suitable grounds at any station we may desire, to erect an elevator?"

We will permit the erection, by any responsible company or individual, of elevators at any station on our line, upon such grounds as may be available for that purpose, subject to the usual conditions of our leases, upon plans showing capacity and mode of construction of each elevator it is desired to construct.

It is suggested it would be well to take our plat and see the grounds we have available for that purpose.

2d. "At what rate will you transport the material for the erection of elevators?"

Material for the erection of elevators will be transported for half our present tariff rate.

3d. "Can we rely on a fair distribution of cars, and that there will be no discrimination on rates of freight in favor of Minneapolis against Duluth?"

You can rely upon a fair distribution of cars. It is our desire to furnish cars in proportion to the amount each elevator company has to ship, care being taken as far as possible, to supply cars so that all elevators of proper capacity can be kept running.

There will be no discrimination in rates of freight.

4th. "Will you give a certain number of the agents and master mechanics free transportation?"

We have heretofore, to a limited extent, supplied free transportation to the proprietors and agents of elevators, but the tendency of this is to grow, and our rule in this respect will be changed and passes hereafter issued at our discretion and in no case to others than proprietors of a line of elevators.

I enclose for your examination one of our regular forms of leases.

Yours truly,
A. MANVEL,
General Manager.

[EXHIBIT C.]

Office of the Northwestern Grain Dealers' Association.
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 28, 1884.

To Lyman Loring and H. G. Palmer—Farmers' Committee on Elevators.

Gentlemen:

Permit me through your committee to present to the farmers of the Northwest the following proposition viz:

In the event of the farmers' decision in favor of aiding in a pecuniary way the erection of a complete system of independent elevators to be operated in the interest of a free and open market, I herewith append a synopsis of a plan on which I think it could be successfully carried out. At any station at which it might be deemed advisable to build an elevator and at which station the farmers and business men will agree to bear one half the cost of the building, said half not to exceed the sum of $2,000 or less than $1,500 in any place, I will agree to build an elevator of 30,000 bushels capacity to be operated by horse power, and will construct the same in such a manner that those of its patrons who may desire to ship their wheat and preserve its identity can as a whole be accommodated. I will further agree to guarantee weights of such special shipments at any place they may desire to ship in this state. The cash will be on hand at all times for the purchase of wheat at its fair market value; that the business shall be done on the principles of justice and equity alike to all. That our motto will be in the future as well as it has been in the past. We will pay a certain price for the wheat at time of delivery, or we will ship it for your account and will guarantee weights at place of destination at the usual elevator charges of 2¼ cents per bushel for moving, insurance and 15 days storage and loading into cars. I further agree to accept farmers' notes in good standing to any reasonable amount not less than $50 in any single note payable to me on or before the first day of November next, conditions as follows:

Upon subscribing to the capital stock of an elevator company to be designated and known by such a name as may be acceptable to you, that such subscriber shall at the time of subscribing as aforesaid give his note as aforesaid for the amount of his subscription; that the said notes shall be enclosed in an envelope and be placed in any bank of good standing they may designate; to be delivered to me or my successor in office at such times as an elevator of a certain capacity is built and ready for business, which shall be on or before the time at which the notes become due and in case the [illegible] twenty in the Red River Valley and vicinity can be erected on this or some other plan based upon business principles I will agree to and with the farmers and business men who may have identified themselves with this movement, to organize a joint stock company in which they shall have a fair representation, that a just and fair account of all expenditures shall be kept and the stock issue to be based upon actual cost and value of said elevators.

I would also suggest as a feasible plan for the operation of said line of elevators, that they be leased to the Northwestern Grain Dealers' Association at a rate to be agreed upon, say at about one cent per bushel for each and every bushel handled through the elevators, payable by said association at the end of each and every month. This would assure a reasonable remuneration to all stock holders, and at the same time they would not be subjected to any work.

E. LOCKE.
Pres. N. W. Grain Dealers' Ass.

WHITE EARTH, Agecy.
March 11th, 1884.

The advertisement appearing in this paper under date of February 14th, 1884, for the sale of dead and fallen timber cut by the Indians on White Earth and Red Lake Reservations by submitting sealed bids to the agent is so far modified by the direction of the Hon. Secretary of the Interior as to be sold to the highest bidder at public auction on Thursday, the 10th day of April 1884 at the front door of the Court House at Crookston, Minn. The sale of said logs not to be considered final until approved by the Hon. Secretary of the Interior.

One dollar per thousand feet will be required to be paid by the successful bidder at the time of sale, the same to be applied on account in case the bid is accepted and to be returned to the bidder if not accepted.

C. P. LUSE.
U. S. Indian Agent.

WHITE EARTH AGENCY, Minn.
February 14th, 1884.

Sealed proposals for the sale of dead and fallen logs cut by the Indians on Red Lake and White Earth Indian Reservations will be received at this agency until Monday the 24th day of March 1884 at 12 o'clock noon at which time the bids will be opened. The logs located at the following points on

Red Lake Reservation.

About 400,000 feet in 2 camps located on Clearwater Lake. About 600,000 feet in 3 camps located on Clearwater River below Clearwater Lake. About 150,000 feet in 1 camp located on "Four Legged Lake" River about 5 miles from junction of the Clearwater River. About 600,000 feet logs in three camps located on Sandy River about 3 miles from the outlet of Red Lake. About 200,000 feet logs in 1 camp located on Red Lake about 10 miles from outlet.

White Earth Reservation.

About one million feet logs located on Clearwater River about 6 miles from its source. About one million feet logs located on "Walker's Brook" a tributary of Clearwater River.

The terms of this sale is, that all bids must be accompanied with a certified check upon some reliable bank for at least one dollar ($1.00) per thousand feet as an assurance of good faith, the same to be returned to the unsuccessful bidder or bidders depositing the same when the bids are opened.

These logs to be scaled by the State Surveyor whose measurement shall be considered final. Twenty-five (25) per cent. of the worth of the logs purchased will be required to be paid in to me within ten (10) days from the acceptance of the bid or bids and the remainder within thirty (30 days.

The Agent claims the right to reject any or all bids as may seem best for the parties for whom the logs are sold. Mark on outside envelope "bid for logs."

C. P. LUSE,
U. S. Indian Agent.

Dead and Fallen Logs.

INSTRUCTIONS DISREGARDED.

Washington, Special Telegram, to the Pioneer Press, March 13.—A letter dated Feb. 27, 1884, written by P. C. Sletten, Receiver at Crookston, Minn., was received some time ago by Mr. Nelson inclosing an advertisement for sealed proposals for the dead and fallen logs cut by the Indians on the Red Lake and White Earth Reservations, the bids to be sold aggregate over 4,000,000 feet. The advertisement is signed by C. P. Luse, Indian agent. Mr. Sletten says in his letter that at this rate it will not take long to cut down every tree on the reservation.

"It is absurd," he says, "to suppose that there is any such quantity of dead or fallen logs. The plain truth is that they are cutting down sound timber, and we are told that they even start fires to scorch trees so as to have an excuse for cutting them down. We have an idea that white men and half breeds are running these camps where this pine is cut. We think the Interior Department erred when it issued authority for Indians to cut down dead and burned timber, and it ought to be revoked without delay if the government expects to save any part of these reservations from spoliation."

Mr. Sletten asks that the attention of the Secretary of the Interior be called to the matter at once, as it was reported there that certain lumbermen were interested in all the pine cut at these so-called camps. Mr. Nelson at once referred Mr. Sletten's letter to the Department, and to-day received an answer from the Commissioner of Indian affairs, saying it was the first intimation [illegible]

New York Store!

NEW

SPRING

DRY GOODS!

We have received an immense assortment of the latest styles of goods in every department, and are now offering special reduced rates in

Hamburg Embroideries,
Cottons,
Tickings,
Toweling,
Towels,
Table Linen,
Table Napkins,
Quilts,
Sheetings, &c., &c., &c.

A Full line of Ladies' Fine Boots and Shoes in different styles and prices.

Two cases of Men's Hats just opened. Inspection Invited.

Proud & McDonald.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

TO THE

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

CHOICE LOST

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Pure Drugs,

Reliable Medicines,

LOWEST LIVING PRICES,

AT

Medical Hall,

CROOKSTON,

Beecher & George, Prop's.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 25th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, on May 10th, 1884, viz: OLE H. BJOIN, Pre. D. S., No. 8,145, for the n½ sw¼ sw¼ sw¼ S. 29, and nw¼ nw¼ S. 32, T. 147, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Hans C. Sampson, Thor S. Haatvedt, Ed Labree and George Labree, all of Poston, Polk Co., Minn.

[48-1] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., March 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Register and Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 6th, 1884, viz: STANISLAS VANDRON, Hd. 2,015, for the sw¼ Sec. 19, T. 150, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Oscar Charpenton, of Lake Pleasant, Polk County, Minn., Pierre Lecuyer, Pierre Barette, of Gentilly, Polk County, Minn., George Beauvais of Carman, Polk County, Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn. March 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN PETTERSON, Pre. D. S. No. 8,131, for the lots 4, 5 and 6, and se¼ sw¼ Sec. 19, and lot 1, Sec. 30, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Burg, John A. Taftland, W. Torgerson, Ole Fiscope, all of King P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 8th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on April 24th 1884, viz: ELISHA B. SCRIBNER, H'd No. 3475, for the sw¼ S. 34, T. 149, 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Herbert Mason, V. D. Carruth, George Holk and John E. Chilback, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[46-51] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 6th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on April 19th, 1884, viz: FRANCOIS TRUDEAW, Pre D. S., 6016, for the ne¼ S. 22, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Timothe Disgroseillier, Francois Labonte, Hilvier Demers and Cheri Montcalow, all of Gentilly, Polk Co., Minn.

[46-51] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., March 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 6th, 1884, viz: PIERRE LECUYER, Hd. No. 2,044, for the n½ ne¼ sw¼ ne¼ and ne¼ nw¼ S. 26, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Stanislas Vandrin, Oscar Charpentier, of Lake Pleasant, Polk County, Minn., Timothe Desgroseillier, of Gentilly, Polk County, Minn., George Beauvais, of Carman, Polk Co., Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 3d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on April 11th, 1884, viz: OLE P. ONSTAD, Pre. D. S., No. 6,018, for the ne¼ S. 10, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Knut H. Berg, Colben Thoreson, Fertile, Lars P. Olstad, Crookston, Ole P. Hunsid, Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.

[45-50] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of five hundred and seventy-six and 23-100 dollars ($576 23) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John Ralston and Hannah Ralston, his wife, to Eugene Besse, bearing date the 5th day of March, A. D. 1883, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1883, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 551, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All of the northeast quarter (¼) of section twenty-four (24) Township one hundred and forty-nine (149) Range forty-seven (47) containing one hundred and sixty acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston in said County and State, on the 9th day of May, A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and forty dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 18th, A. D. 1884.

EUGENE BESSE, Mortgagee.
JOHN MCLEAN, Attorney for Mortgagee. [47-1]

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Ludvig Olson mortgagor, to Svenung Hageson mortgagee, dated the third day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota on the 12th day of December A. D. 1881, at 8:20 o'clock a. m., in book "E" of mortgages, on pages 571, 572, 573 on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of eighteen hundred and seventy-six and 18-100 dollars ($1876 18-100,) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the west front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the seventeenth day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and the taxes if any on the premises in said mortgage described and forty ($40.00) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, pieces or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The Southwest quarter (sw¼) Section eighteen (18) in Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) of Range forty-eight (48,) containing one hundred and forty-five and 8-100 (145 8-100) acres according to the government survey thereof. The above mortgage was given [illegible]

SVENUNG HAGESON, Mortgagee.

[illegible]

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP.

[illegible]

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 10.

Crookston Markets.

Wheat, No. 1 per bushel		78.
" No 2 "	"	72.
Oats,	" "	30.
Barley,	" "	75.
Potatoes,	" "	35.
Hay, per ton		5 00.
Beef Sides	per lb	14.
Corn Beef	"	12½
Roast Beef	"	18.
Roast Veal	"	18.
Roast Pork	"	18.
Beef Steak	"	20.
Pork Steak	"	20.
Mutton Chops	"	20.
Veal Chops	"	20.
Boiling Meat	"	12½.
Salt Pork	"	14.
Pork Sausage	"	20.
Bologna Sausage	"	20.
Sugar Cured Hams	"	18.
Lard	"	16.

'ROUND HOME.

M. P. Losey, of Euclid was in our city last Tuesday.

The Pine Log sale was held in front of the Court House to-day.

James McCarty, of Red Lake Falls registered at the Linton last Monday.

Chas. Robbecke started for St. Hilaire Tuesday morning. Charlie is proprietor of the E-rope-em-in hotel in that city.

Bob Netzer and Geo. Bucknam have each got a new hat since the election. It beats everything how business keeps up.

John M. Boyle and Adam Zeh of Red Lake Falls, and C. H. Rapp of St. Hilaire are registered at the Commercial.

S. L. Dobson is having the white coat put on his new building on Second Street. Rumor says that it is to be occupied soon.

McKinnon Bros. have just completed 15 wood-carts for T. B. Walker, and expect to make 15 more. They are a ponderous looking vehicle and well made.

A slight snow storm early in the week checked the seeding operations a little but a drying wind soon restored the equilibrium and soon the seeding will be in full blast.

Alfred Chabot returned from Montreal last Saturday evening, where he has been visiting friends for the past four months. We understand that he is to resume his old position as clerk for Hack & Gallasch.

Paul Bataglia has purchased the right for a patent spring bed and will at once begin to make an article that will enable all of our citizens to lie easier. We think there are already some among our subscribers who do not need any further assistance.

Gus Aubol has resigned his position with Ole Bang and has gone to his farm at St. Hilaire. Knute Holdal, an experienced bar-keeper from Grand Forks will do the honors at Bang's place in the future, and try to Hold-all of the boys level.

Mr. John O. Juve died at his residence in Clay Co., on Wednesday morning, of typhoid fever. Mr. Juve was well and favorably known in this city, being a member of the firm of Juve & Bergland until said firm sold to Bigham & Olafson. He had been away from here but a very few weeks and his sudden death will be deplored by hosts of friends. He leaves a wife and one child.

Last week, in setting up the list of names of the members composing the original cornet band, a very careful (?) compositor left out two of them. The list should have read:

Rudolph Buner, leader, B. b.
Ed. Menges, 1st E. b.
M. Thorson, 2d E. b.
J. O. Royal, B. b.
Charlie Porger, Baritone.
O. C. Utzinger, E. b. Trombone.
Frank Jabuke, B. B.
Toby Valear, Tenor.
Jacob Utzinger, Tuba, E. b.
C. W. Dipple snare drum.
August Schuler, base drum.

The suburbs of our little city is again the scene of a frightful outrage. This city for the past two or three years has been the scene of numerous depredations, and seems to have been infested by a gang of horse thieves, highway robbers, safe blowers, etc But the people of Crookston and vicinity will be appalled by the circumstances relative to the most terrible outrage ever perpetrated. The victim this time is one of our best citizens, peaceable, innocent and unsuspecting, and one of Crookston's early settlers. The plans were well laid and would have terminated for the victim had it not been for the tender heartedness of one of the socalled perpetrators who reached out a helping hand just at the right moment, and not a moment too soon either. The circumstances were these. Last Tuesday afternoon Wm. Guse, the victim, was persuaded by the following parties to go on what they called a hunting trip, a contrived plan, there was Bob, George Fred, Marsh, Harry and Lem, we will not mention their full names for reasons best known to ourselves. Will at first refused on account of his good clothes but was finally persuaded to go. On their return, while crossing a small stream, but quite deep, Will was precipitated head long into the rushing torrent and as we remarked before, had it not been for the assistance of one of the parties, Marsh by name, would [illegible]

T. H. Francis, brother of Jake, arrived from Nevada on Wednesday.

Charlie Seely's summer bill of fare is delayed somewhat by the weather.

Ada will try the high license system. They have fixed the license at $400 per annum.

Mr. A. Chabot, formerly clerk for Hack & Gallasch, who has been on a visit to Montreal, returned home on Saturday last.

Charlie Vanee and Jack Confair started to-day for the headquarters of the Walker drives. Business will commence as soon as the river is clear of ice.

Special Easter services will be held at the Congregational church on Sabbath evening next. Appropriate music by a male quartette led by Fred Durand.

Peter Anderson, one of the old settlers, died at his residence on Friday last, of enlargement of the heart. He was about 80 years old and leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss.

Mr. Arthur Yvernault, who has spent the winter in sunny France, returned on Tuesday evening looking and feeling well. He reports having had a splendid time but is glad to get back again. He says that farming lands are held at enormously large prices and that the soil naturally is not so rich as Red River Valley soil.

The Minneapolis Farmers' Tribune gives one dollar's worth of choice garden seeds—among which is a package of the Imperial Prolific Tree Bean—to every one who sends the name of a new subscriber (it may be his own name) with the yearly subscription price of the paper, $1.15. The seeds are of the purest quality, specially selected, and are what would be paid a full dollar for at any seed store in the country. Sample copies of the paper are sent free.

Council Proceedings.

Regular meeting of city council, Mayor Walsh in the chair. Present, Ald. Houston, Fontaine, Bataglia, Walker, Pierce and Chiniquy. The mayor made an address, recommending the appointment of John A. Dowling as marshal, Ole Bjoin and Ben McKinney as policemen, he also recommended that the marshal have control of the engine house and fire apparatus, and recommends the appointment of John Ives as city attorney and W. D. Hurlbut as city engineer. An informal ballot was then taken for marshal, six votes were cast of which John Dowling received 3, D. F. McDonald 3, a formal ballot was then taken, Ole Bang being then present, seven votes was cast of which John Dowling received 4, Dan McDonald 3, John Dowling was declared elected, an informal ballot on 1st policeman, Ole Bjoin 5 votes, Ben McKinney 1, D. F. McDonald 1, formal ballot O. Bjoin 6, McDonald 1, Bjoin was declared elected, an informal ballot was taken for 2 policemen, Ben McKinney received 4, C. Duval 2, C. Greenhalgh 1, formal ballot, Ben McKinney 4, C. Duval 3, McKinney was declared elected, an informal ballot on city attorney, John Ives 5, P. A. Dufour 1, John Leo 1, formal ballot, John Ives 6, P. A. Dufour 1, John Ives declared elected, informal ballot for city engineer, W. D. Hurlbut 6, Ole Hamery 1, formal ballot W. D. Hurlbut 7. The mayor announced the following committees on finance, H. M. Pierce and C. A. Chiniquy, fire department, Ole Bang, Henry Nolan and N. P. Stone ordinance committee, N. P. Stone, Robert Houston and the city attorney. Streets, alleys and sidewalks, L. Fontaine 1st ward, Paul Bataglia 2d ward, W. Walker 3d ward, C. A. Chiniquy 4th ward. Sewerage and drainage, L. Fontaine, R. Houston, W. Walker and city engineer. Board of health, Dr. C. E Dampier, Wm. Anglim and Ansel Bates were duly elected. A petition for two crossings at the intersection of Main and Third Streets. The bond of Henry Shephard as constable was read and excepted. Bond of A. G Gallasch, city treasure in the sum of $15,000 read and referred to the city attorney. The report of the city treasurer was read and referred to aldermen Pierce, Fontaine, Walker and Chiniquy. The recorder's report was read and referred to same committee. Report of city marshal, McDonald was read and accepted. W. D. Hurlbut was appointed city purchasing agent, to purchase all supplies required by the city. Bills allowed in the agregate amounted to $83.85. Bill of Pioneer Press of $16.50 for printing bonds was disallowed, on account of a mistake made by that company in the printing of said bonds. Moved by alderman Pierce that all bills presented by city council for payment shall be sworn to. Carried. The city recorder was instructed to advertise for bids for the city printing, and the marshal was instructed to perform the duties of street commissioner without extra pay. Adjourned.

Notice of Annual Election of the Crookston Agricultural Association.

To the Stock holders of the Crookston Agricultural Association:

There will be held an Annual meeting of the stock holders of the Crookston Agricultural Association, on Tuesday the 6th day of May, 1884, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, at the City Hall, in Crookston, Minnesota, for the purpose of electing a board of five directors and President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Dated Crookston, Apr. 8, 1884.

The G. F. C. & L. S. R. R.,

Several parties from Grand Forks and with a number of interested citizens here held a meeting here last Monday evening; the result was quite pleasing, for a starter resolutions were adopted to raise $50,000. In order to do this the stock books were opened and 1000 shares put on sale, 200 of which, were disposed of that evening at $100 per share one half of the sum to be paid in cash. The stock books are at E. M. Walsh's hardware store.

The work of clearing the ground where the Opera House is to be located was commenced yesterday corner of Broadway and Fletcher Ave. Mr. Fillatrault will rush the work so that it will be finished in about 30 or 40 days.

Anti-Labor Club.

Meet at Morris Bros. Jewelry store every afternoon. Its Pres. Bob. Vice Pres. Geo., Sec., Will, Harry and Perry executive committee. No Teasurer needed, no ball required. Tom Morris, has kindly interested himself in their behalf and will kindly give up his store room for their benefit at any time, day or night.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Main street, opposite U. S. Land Office.

[14-tf] H. STEENERSON.

To Rent.

For three years; a fine farm with plenty of wood and water handy; good house and stables. No money required as rent can be paid in improvements on the farm. A rare opportunity for some industrious men Address JOURNAL office.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries and purpose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining Trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence one block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most respectfully,

[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax, is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing,

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty five and 25-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Clarence C. Dodge (an unmarried man,) to the American Freehold Land Mortgage Company, of London, (Limited,) bearing date the 23d day of September A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of October A. D. 1882, at 1:15 o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 366, 367, 368 and 369, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one note of five hundred and one dollars, bearing even date with said mortgage, and due September 23d 1887, with interest thereon from date, until paid, at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable annually, on the first day of January in each year according to the terms of said promissory note of the said Clarence C. Dodge, with coupons attached, it being further stipulated in said note that if the maker thereof should fail to pay any of said interest when due, such interest should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum from the time it become due, and said mortgage should stand security therefor. Default having been made in the payment of the interest due January 1st 1884, and the interest now due on said interest the said mortgage thereupon elected that all of said sums described in said note should be immediately due and payable according to the provisions of said note and of the mortgage securing the same and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-two (32) Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the nineteenth day of May A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 2d A. D. 1884.

THE AMERICAN FREEHOLD LAND MORTGAGE COMPANY OF LONDON (LIMITED.)
Mortgagee.
J. P. DASH, FISK & PHELPS,
Attorneys for Mortgagee. [50-3]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 05-100 which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henry L. Gaylord and Laura M. Gaylord, his wife, to the American Freehold Land Mortgage Co., (limited) bearing date the 3d day of October A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of October A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 268, 270, 271 and 272, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one note of six hundred dollars bearing even date with said mortage and due October 3d 1887 with interest thereon from date, until paid at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable annually on the first day of January on each year according to the terms of said promissory note of the said Henry L. Gaylord and Laura M. Gaylord, with coupons attached, it being further stipulated in said note that if the maker thereof should fail to pay any of said interest when due, such interest should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum from the time it became due and said mortgage should stand security therefor. Default having been made in the payment of the interest due January 1st 1884, and the interest now due on said interest the said mortgage thereupon elected that all of said sums described in said note should be immediately due and payable according to the provisions of said note and of the mortgage securing the same, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-four (34) Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances [illegible]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Francis Feeney, mortgagor, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 5th day of July A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the sixth day of July A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 348, 349, 350, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $18 90 and there is yet to become due $42, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section (4) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.
E. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Joseph Valle and Zoe Valle, his wife, mortgagors, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the seventh day of July, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 360 to 362 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $40 90, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-three (23) in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.
E. J. HODGSON, Attorney of Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th, 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Christopher O Dillon and Ella Dillon his wife, mortgagors, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the twenty-seventh day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 539 and 540, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $51 25 100, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-two (22) in Township one hundred and forty-eight (148) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.
R. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Zebedee Lusie, mortgagor, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 15th day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the seventeenth day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 499 to 501 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $80.75, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the east half (e½) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of section two (2) in Township one hundred and fifty-three (153) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.
E. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th, 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Moses Blair, mortgagor to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 3d day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the fourth day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 437 and 438 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $38 70-100, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon and costs [illegible]

EIKEN BROS.,
DEALERS IN
Hardware, Tinware, Stoves and Shelfware.
We keep Full and Complete Stock of Goods in our Line, and invite the patronage of all.
COR. MAIN ST. AND FLETCHER AVE., CROOKSTON.

UNIVERSAL

No. 40.

JEROME'S
ADDITION
TO THE
CITY OF CROOKSTON
IS NOW
Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,
DEALERS IN GENERAL MERCHANDISE,
CARMAN
Carry a full line of everything usually found in a General Store, and sell at reasonable prices.
GIVE US TRIAL.

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
HEAVY AND SHELF Hardware, Tinware Of all kinds. JOB WORK a specialty.
BAR IRON STEEL, AND Blacksmiths SUPPLIES Building Paper, Sash, Etc.
ALSO AGENT
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

CROOKSTON CITY BAKERY!
EARNEST MILLER, Proprietor.
(SUCCESSORS TO THE PLUMB BROTHERS.)
Takes advantage of the occasion to say that he will keep a full line of all goods that are usually found in a
FIRST-CLASS BAKERY,
And that the citizens of Polk County will find none but the best at his place of business. A fine line of
CIGARS AND TOBACCO, NUTS, FRUITS,
CANDIES, PIES, CAKES, BREAD,
AND EVERY THING TO FILL OUT A HUNGRY MAN.

CITY TREASURER'S REPORT.

CROOKSTON, April 8, 1884.

To the Hon. Mayor and Council of the City of Crookston, Minn.:

GENTLEMEN:

I herewith submit to you a statement showing the receipts and disbursements of the City Treasury during the fiscal year ending April 1, 1884.

By looking my report over carefully, you will notice that there is a credit to all the funds except the general fund. All the current expenses and interest on bonds issued by the city are paid out of said fund, and the orders issued exceed the receipts, consequently orders now to be issued cannot be paid until the fund is replenished.

We have now drawn out of other funds $1508.88 to pay gen'l fund orders. There is now in the Treasury $5065 68 on which the city saves 10 per cent interest, as the interest on city orders ceases when they are advertised for payment. All orders are advertised as soon as there is money in the Treasury to pay them, and the amount in the Treasury is held against orders advertised March and July, 1883, and March 11, 1884.

Respectfully,
A. G. GALLASCH,
City Treasurer.

	Received.	Paid out.	Bal.
General Fund,	$37832 01	$23340 87
Special street,	3 00	17 60	$ 7 88
Oak Street,	2476 91	1002 75	1058 06
Houston Avenue,	822 73	125 73	345 49
Robert Street,	336 77	208 71	162 89
Second Street,	874 02	831 91	53 02
Fifth Street,	12 74		12 74
Sixth Street,	128 12		128 12
First Street,	45 73		45 73
Pine Street,	3 18		3 18
Sheridan Street,	12 09		12 09
Main Street,	3047 61	2081 08	1966 54
Fourth Street,	63 18	126 05	96 78
Third Street,	391 45		476 85
Loring Street,		25 08	48 24
Cemetery Street,			331 45
Seventh Street,	120 92		144 18
Alley, Blk 17,	19 67		145 58
Alley, Blk 18,	113 79		118 79
Ash Street, 2d to 3d	390 21		390 21
Ash Street, 3d to Houston Ave.	599 33		599 33
Ash St., 4th to 5th		53 56
Alley, Blk 6	63 98		66 93
Specific	2039 56	1813 14	302 35
Water Works	43 50		42 80
Fletcher Avenue,	238 04	197 89	238 90

Amt recd from apr. 1883 to 1884, $39391 01
On hand Apr '83, 3173 26
$42564 27

Total Amt paid out, $37506 52

Total to the credit of the different funds, $7519 60

RECEIPTS FROM VARIOUS SOURCES.

Liquor Licenses	$4688 54
Pool and Billiard Tables	335 50
Auctioneers Licenses,	200 00
Dog Licenses	73 00
Dray Licenses	65 00
Shows and Peddlers	149 00
Hall Rent	7 00
Recd from the Co. Treas., etc.	17614 50
do proceeds city bonds	16037 45
Total Amt Received	$39391 01

Amt pd out as per statement		$37506 59
Bal on hand Apr 1, 1884.		5065 68
Total to the credit of the different funds,	$7519 60
Deduct amt drawn out for Gen'l Fund,		1508 88
Deduct amt drawn out for Ash Street, 4th to 5th,		55 55
Deposited in 1st Nat. Bank,		3873 94
Deposited in Merchants' Nat. Bank,		2511 89
Cash on hand,		171 55
	$7519 60	$7519 60

CITY RECORDER'S REPORT.

To the Honorable the Mayor and City Council of the City of Crookston, Minnesota:

Gentlemen:

I respectfully submit the following financial statement of the City of Crookston, on the 1st day of April, 1884:

Registered orders unpaid, $10918 16
Bonded indebtedness, 50000 00
Total debt of City, $60918 16

The City Bonds are classified as Bridge Bonds, Water Works Bonds and Funding Bonds.

The Bridge Bonds were issued Nov. 7th, 1879 mature Nov. 7th, 1889, draw 10 per cent. interest payable annually, and amount to $1,000.

The Water Work Bonds were issued June 1st 1882, mature June 1st, 1912, bear 7 per cent. annual interest and amount to $33,000.

The Funding bonds were issued May 1st, 1882 mature May 1st, 1902, draw 7 per cent. interest and amount to $16,000.

There have been issued during the year orders on the General Fund amounting to $17,700.4 classified as follows:

Justice fees $159
Elections
Assessor
City Attorney
Street Commissioner's wages
Marshall's wages
City Engineer's wages
City Recorder's salary
Rodemen for City Engineer
Men on streets, wages
Pump Engineers
Fire Department
Engine House and Lookup
Pump House and Water Mains
Fuel
Printing
Physician's salaries
Board of prisoners and paupers
Blacksmithing
Team work on streets
Lumber
Merchandise
N W Band
Interest on bonds
Grading, by gen'l fund
Miscellaneous expenses

Referring to the above table I wou[illegible] the item of city attorney includes two yea[illegible] That of Fire Department includes [illegible] for a hose cart, 500 feet of hose, besides [illegible] purchases, and the wages of Chief Engine[illegible] That of engine house and lock-up is for [illegible] ing, repairs and purchases, as is also pump house and water mains.

Printing includes advertising and [illegible] bonds, with the official printing.

Grading by gen'l fund is for cemetery road near Lee & Herrick's mill, work at View and 8th street.

Miscellaneous expenses is for rent of Round House, land taken for street [illegible] Rochester sufferers and various small [illegible] properly coming under any of the other [illegible]

Street orders have have been issued du[illegible] year as follows:

Hunter St., Houston Ave to Spendley
do Spendley to Cowing
Cowing St., Houston Ave to Cromb
do Cromb to Houston
Pine and D Sts, 6th to Sheridan
Sheridan, B and Grant sts, D to A
Fourth St, Oak to Elm
Ash Street, south of Houston Ave
Elm St, 4th to Central Av
Ash St. 4th to 8th
Front and C, 7th to Sheridan
Fifth st, Oak to Elm
Total street orders
Sidewalk orders issued
Crossings

The above street orders have been [illegible] grading alone during 1883, as were the [illegible] orders for crossings built during the [illegible] These orders are payable out of the [illegible] of each street, and are therefore [illegible] The sidewalk orders were issued for [illegible] built during 1883. They are paid [illegible] tax levied on each lot to which the [illegible] is laid.

The City Charter provides that the [illegible] "shall annually report to the Council [illegible] mate of the expenses of the city [illegible] the current year and the revenue [illegible] rized therefor."

As such estimate I would report [illegible] fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000) for [illegible] which we have just entered. The [illegible] City Treasurer show the receipts [illegible] the General Fund to be $11,324.[illegible] fines and taxes. The receipts will [illegible] ceed this sum for the current year [illegible] to be $13,000 which with $2,000 to [illegible] will leave a deficiency of $2,000 to [illegible] for, either by increased taxation or [illegible] of licenses. I would recommend the [illegible] funded debt be created by ordinance to [illegible] payment of the principal of our city [illegible] it become due, and that an annual [illegible] made to pay the interest on said bond [illegible] Of which is respectfully submitted [illegible] Dated at Crookston, Minn., [illegible] April, 1884.

Second Stre
MEAT MAR
STANTON & Co., Prop
Choice Meats of every kind [illegible]

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

The Attorney General's Decisions.

In response to a question of Charles N. Hewitt, M. D., secretary of the state board of health, Attorney General Hahn yesterday rendered an opinion to the effect that the state board of health has no power to enforce the provisions of the sections of the statutes as to the apointment or election of local health boards or as to the securing a physician as a member of said board. An individual citizen has the right to apply to the court for a mandamus to enforce the election of such boards. Mandamus is the proper remedy in such case. The making of the annual inspection and report can be enforced in the same way.

To M. B. Chadwick, county auditor of Steele county, the attorney general writes that a county auditor cannot pay a bounty to any person for killing a wolf unless the claimant produces the head of the wolf with the ears and scalp entire, and delivers it to the proper officer; no promise or agreement can be substituted, and to pay bounty without receiving such head and scalp would be dereliction of duty.

To E. P. Peterson, county attorney of Meeker county, the attorney general writes that a county treasurer, in all counties where the valuation is less than $4,000,000, can receive but $1,200 in fees, and all excess thereof must be paid into the revenue fund. The point arose as to whether fees received on collection on sales of school lands were to be included in the $1,200, and the attorney general rules that they are.

PROF. NORTHROP.

He Finally Accepts the Presidency of the Minnesota State University.

Prof. Cyrus Northrop, of Yale, has accepted the presidency of the Minnesota state university at Minneapolis.

The last week of February Regents Pillsbury, Clark and Davis met at the Fifth Avenue hotel, New York, and decided to offer the presidency of the state university to Prof. Northrop. President, now Professor, Folwell resigned over a year ago, and some impatience began to appear with the unfavorable situation in which the university was placed. Fleeting rumors early in the interval were to the effect that ex-Senator Patterson of New Hampshire was to come to the head of the institution—a selection that was not generally approved. It is understood that the selection of Prof. Northrop was practically unanimous with the board of regents. Gov. Pillsbury and Judge Clark went to New Haven February 24th, and formally offered the position to Prof. Northrop, who took the matter under consideration. March 9th Prof. Northrop arrived in Minneapolis and spent a week in looking over the university and gaining an acquaintance with the situation. It was stated hat the salary offered was $4,500, but that he id not wish to give up a salary of $3,500 at ale at a time when he had just completed a ine residence, to incur the expense attendant n moving so far West. During his visit here reception was given Prof. Northrop by Mr. Charles A. Pillsbury, to which were invited the ale graduates and the prominent citizens of th cities. The impression at the time was at the offer would not be accepted. Prof. Northrop is forty-eight years old, is a good wyer, a brilliant orator, something of a polician, and has been professor of rhetoric in ale college twenty years. For twelve years he was collector of the port of New Haven.

Minnesota Bar Association.

The Second Annual Meeting of the Minnesota ar Association was held at St. Paul on Tuesday last. The president, Gordon E. Cole, of aribault, presided. H. F. Stevens of St. Paul fficiated as secretary. The committee on adission reported a list of over 50 names for membership in the association.

The following officers were elected for the nsuing year:

President—Judge Thomas Wilson, Winona. Vice presidents—First district, Fayette arsh, Stillwater; Second district, I. V. D. eard, St. Paul; Third district, W. H. Yale, inona; Fourth district, P. M. Babcock, Minpolis; Fifth district, A. D. Keyes, Faribault; th district, M. S. Wilkinson, Welles; Sevh district, J. W. Mason, Fergus Falls; hth district, Frances Cadwell, Le Sueur; nth district, John Lind, New Ulm; Tenth rict, H. R. Wells, Preston; Eleventh dis- J. D. Ensign, Duluth; Twelfth district, Strobeck, Litchfield.

retary—Hiram F. Stevens of St. Paul.
easurer—Walter H. Sanborn, St. Paul.

e following committees were announced greed to:

mission—W. C. Williston of Red Wing, C. Brien of St. Paul, R. A. Jones, Rochester; ar M. Keith, Minneapolis; A. C. Hickman, nna; Daniel Buck, Mankato; George W. d, Brainerd; E. Southworth, Shakopee; Ives, St. Peter; A. G. Wedge, Albert Lea; Billson, Duluth; L. C. Spooner, Morris. cutive—H. R. Bigelow, St. Paul; J. N. , Stillwater; John M. Shaw, E. G. Rogers, al; L. L. Wheelock, Owatonna. fessional Conduct—C. K. Davis of St. W. J. Hahn of Minneapolis. Greenleaf of St. Paul, George M. Baxter of Fari- C. Benton of Minneapolis. prudence and Law Reform—Eugene M. of Minneapolis; W. P. Murray, of St. hn W. Arctander, of Willmar; Robert of Kasson; J. N. Searle, of Stillwater. History and Biography—Isaac Atwater, apolis; Henry J. Horn, of St. Paul; C. of Winona.

tiring president Mr. Cole read an ad- W. Arctander, of the committee on ence and law reform, read the report mmittee; the President elect, Judge also read an address.

evening there was a jolly banquet at hant's Hotel. Judge Flandrau was ter. Speeches were made by Judge Chief Justice Gilfillan, Judge Atwater o, Judge Wilder, J. N. Castle, John , H. J. Horn, Eugene Wilson, W. P. V. D. Heard, etc.

lighth annual meeting of the Missionary society of the ry of St. Paul convened in the Hope Presbyterian church. delegates were present from a of local missionary societies. ttendance numbered at least s. Mrs. R. P. Lewis, the ial treasurer, submitted her the past year. The entire including an organ and a box sseton Indian agency—were all of which have been dis- th the exception of $22, being the foreign missionary work.

ily of Leonard Gewter, living on Greenwood prairie, Wa- ty has been suffering from a disease, which on investiga- es to be trichinosis of a very d type. The members of the e been eating more or less during the winter. Mr. ed of the disease a few days veral members of the family pected to recover. The re- have got abroad have been ggerated. It is understood nfected pork was brought onsin by the family when o this state last fall.

tor of the Northwestern has made a compilation number, character and f the publications issued in e statistics are as follows: ly publications, 6; weekly, 7; total, 82. Of the 6 printed in English and 2 of the monthly publica- in English, 3 German, 1 Scandinavian; of month- glish, 1 Scandinavian. weeklies are devoted to [illegible]

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

ST. PAUL, March 28, 1884.

A Republican State Convention will be held on Thursday, the 1st Day of May, 1884, in the city of St. Paul, at 12 o'clock noon, for the choice of four delegates at large, and four alternates to the National Republican Convention, and for the selection of two delegates and alternates from each Congressional District, in the method provided by the Republican National Committee, where such district delegates and alternates shall not have been chosen previous to the meeting of the State Convention; and also for the nomination of seven Republican Presidential Electors, and such other business as may properly come before the Convention.

The various Congressional Districts have the option of electing two delegates and two alternates to the National Convention at separate popular delegate conventions, called on not less than twenty days' published notice, and held at any time within the fifteen days next prior to the meeting of the State Convention.

All citizens are invited to co-operate in the election of delegates who favor the elevating and dignifying of American labor, protecting and extending home industries, without discrimination in favor of any class or interest, giving free popular education to the masses of the people, securing free suffrage and an honest counting of the ballots, and effectually protecting all human rights in every section of our common country, and who are willing to support the nominees of the National Republican Convention.

The representation, as per schedule hereunto annexed, is based upon the average Republican vote for State officers at the last general election, in the ratio of one delegate for every four hundred votes, or the major fraction thereof.

R. N. McLAREN, Chairman.
MARK D. FLOWER, Secretary.

SCHEDULE OF REPRESENTATION.

Counties—	Total.	Average.	Delegates.
Aitkin	596	97	1
Anoka	5,219	869	3
Becker	6,665	1,110	4
Benton	1,679	279	2
Big Stone	3,267	544	2
Blue Earth	12,149	2,024	6
Brown	5,242	873	3
Carlton	3,630	605	3
Carver	5,513	918	3
Cass	1,379	229	2
Chippewa	5,024	837	3
Chisago	6,569	1,094	4
Clay	3,900	650	3
Cook	102	17	1
Cottonwood	2,746	457	2
Crow Wing	6,301	1,050	4
Dakota	7,764	1,294	4
Dodge	6,945	1,157	4
Douglas	6,368	1,061	4
Faribault	7,247	1,207	4
Fillmore	12,241	2,040	6
Freeborn	9,835	1,639	5
Goodhue	17,703	2,950	8
Grant	4,077	679	2
Hennepin	30,785	5,130	14
Houston	6,373	1,062	4
Hubbard	721	120	1
Isanti	3,163	527	2
Itasca	1,288	213	2
Jackson	3,601	600	2
Kanabec	962	160	1
Kandiyohi	9,288	1,548	5
Kittson	3,658	609	3
Lac qui Parle	4,471	745	3
Lake	367	61	1
Le Sueur	5,970	995	3
Lincoln	2,703	450	2
Lyon	3,672	612	3
McLeod	4,667	777	3
Marshall	4,185	697	3
Martin	4,225	704	3
Meeker	7,270	1,211	4
Mille Lacs	1,461	243	2
Morrison	3,205	534	2
Mower	8,282	1,380	4
Murray	2,593	432	2
Nicollet	5,595	932	3
Nobles	3,374	562	2
Norman	4,692	782	3
Olmsted	9,604	1,600	5
Otter Tail	14,909	2,499	7
Pine	883	147	1
Pipe Stone	2,019	338	2
Polk	8,383	1,397	4
Pope	4,674	779	3
Ramsey	27,553	4,592	12
Redwood	4,917	819	3
Renville	4,369	728	3
Rice	12,256	2,042	6
Rock	2,081	346	2
St. Louis	3,343	557	2
Scott	2,747	457	2
Sherburne	1,136	189	1
Sibley	4,005	667	3
Stearns	6,825	1,137	4
Steele	7,299	1,216	4
Stevens	3,423	570	2
Swift	4,657	776	3
Todd	5,736	956	3
Traverse	2,869	478	2
Wabasha	7,083	1,180	4
Wadena	2,930	488	2
Waseca	7,125	1,187	4
Washington	12,424	2,070	6
Watonwan	3,114	519	2
Wilkin	2,089	348	2
Winona	9,825	1,637	5
Wright	12,105	2,017	6
Yellow Medicine	5,172	862	3

THURSDAY, MAY THE FIRST.

Such is the Date for the Republican State Convention Decided upon by the State Central Committee.

THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

Promptly at 2 o'clock last Friday at St. Paul the Republican state central committee assembled in the ladies' parlor of the Merchants and was called to order by Gen. M. D. Flower, secretary, in the absence of Gen. R. N. McLaren, who was detained at Washington. Prior to assembling the members of the committee greeted each other and friends and acquaintance in large numbers, in the corridors of the Merchants, and the action taken later was pretty well understood before the regular assemblage. The following gentlemen constituted the committee: M. D. Flower, St. Paul, with proxy from R. N. McLaren; A. K. Finseth, Kenyon; E. S. Corser, Minneapolis; E. S. Warner, proxy for William Thomas, Mankato; John G. Nelson, Parker's Prairie; T. D. Strait, proxy for D. S. How, Shakopee; D. Sinclair, proxy for Thomas Simpson, Winona; Robert Taylor, Kasson; W. P. Dunnington, proxy for W. P. Dickinson, Redwood Falls; C. H. Conkey, Preston; H. C. Kendall, Duluth; Z. B. Clarke, Benson, proxy for John P. Arnott, Canby. Z. B. Clarke was chosen to preside, and Secretary Flower distributed printed copies of the call of the national Republican committee. After Chairman Clarke had stated that the committee was called together to fix upon a date for a state convention, M. D. Flower moved that the committee decide upon such time, stating that the convention would elect four delegates at large and four alternates to the national convention in Chicago, June 3; would also nominate an electoral ticket of seven, and would choose district delegates, if separate conventions had not already done so. He further explained the time limit, as set forth in the call of the national committee, and stated that it had been agreed upon as desirable to give the district committees all the time possible, and also to fix a date in the middle of the week, so that delegates from a distance could come and go without Sunday interfering. The committee did not dissent from these views, and on motion of Mr. Flower, seconded by Mr. Conkey Thursday, the first day of May, was selected as meeting all the conditions.

THE CALL READ.

Secretary Flower then submitted the following call, prepared by himself and modeled after calls similar committes in New York, Massachusetts and other states:

A Republican state convention will be held on Thursday, the 1st day of May, 1884, in the city of St. Paul, at 12 o'clock noon, for the choice of four delegates at large and four alternates from each congressional district, in the method provided by the Republican national committee, where such district delegates and alternates shall not have been chosen previous to the meeting of the state convention; and also for the nomination of seven presidential electors, and such other business as may properly come before the convention. The various congressional districts have the option of electing two delegates and two alternates to the national convention at separate popular delegate conventions called on not less than twenty days' published notice, and held at any time within the fifteen days next prior to the meeting of the state convention. All citizens are invited to co-operate in the election of delegates who favor the elevating and dignifying of American labor, protecting and extending home industries without discrimination in favor of any class or interest, giving free, popular education to the masses of the people, securing free suffrage and an honest counting of the ballots, and effectually protecting all humane rights in every section of our country, and who are willing to support the nominees of the national republican convention. The representation is based upon the average republican vote for state officers of the last general election.

THE BASIS BY VOTES.

Next came the question of delegates as [illegible]

A Choir Anecdote.

In the April Century Rev. Dr. Charles S. Robinson continues his discussion of the annoyances and humors of the musical service in churches, and relates this anecdote: "Glorious Easter was at hand and great preparations were made in the rural parish for its celebration; boughs were twined in the arches of the building; flowers swung in wreaths overhead and shone in beautiful baskets among the aisles; children had been rehearsing carols. All the town came in on that notable morning. It was a scene never to be forgotten. The minister was radiant; his eyes beamed with delight. But a thought struck him; this audience, so happy, so generous, so enthusiastic—would they not hear him a moment for a stroke of business? After the invocation and the first song, he surprised them with a proposition to bring 'Easter offerings' now at once to God's altar, and lift the dear old church out of debt; oh, then there would be a resurrection! The congregation would come up from under its great stone into a new life if they would roll it away! Then the plates went their course and hearts were touched and purses were emptied, and the heaps of money lay before the moistened eyes of the relieved pastor as he tremulously thanked a good God for his people's fidelity in response. 'The money is here, I am sure it is,' he exclaimed. 'If there be a little in arrears it can be made up in a day, and and now we are ready heartily to go on with the worship of our risen Lord.' So the fixed programme proceeded. A little German had been procured from the metropolis for an annex to the tenor; his solo came in at this exact crisis of grateful emotion; he rendered it with a fresh aplomb, though the consonants were awkward. 'An' de det sall de raised—do det sall be raised—an' de det—an' de det—sall be raised—sall be raised—in de twinkling of an ay-ee!

"Now, it is queit safe to say that after the congregation went home, the theme of the day was dissipated, and the two events uppermost in everybody's mind were the surprise which the eager minister had sprung upon the people and the ridiculous appropriateness of the declamatory solo which followed it. On general principles we have no objection to the collection of money to discharge religious obligations, even in divine service; but it does seem a pity that a humorous episode should be the chief reminiscence of such a solemn occasion."

Kidney Complaints.

The kidneys form a very important channel for the outlet of disease from the system, carrying off accumulations that poison the blood. As the lungs remove the carbonic acid, the liver the biliary acid; so the kidneys remove the uric acid. The undue accumulation of this acid is the poison that often produces rheumatism and other chronic diseases. The kidneys are often affected and cause serious disease when least suspected. If there is weakness, heat or pain in the back or loins, weariness, nervous restlessness, and any unnatural condition of the urine, a hot dry skin, and hectic flushes, bloating of the body or swelling of the limbs, annoying headaches, obstructed circulation, with sediment or gravely or albuminous deposits in the secretion from the kidneys; or if that secretion be either extremely pale or high colored, then the kidneys are evidently not doing their natural work. Many suffer from serious kidney trouble without knowing what ails them. No matter in what form the kidney complaint may exist there is no better purifying regulating diuretic and tonic, than Burdick's Blood Bitters; its action upon the kidneys is at once manifested. Working upon this and all other channels of purification in a prompt and permanent manner.

Three Months Failures.

Bradstreet's Journal of N. Y., publishes the following: We find the first quarter's failures in 1884 in excess of any like total in preceding years, the total number being 3,320. This points to a record of over 10,400 business deaths within the current year. The probable total of failures for 1884 may exceed that of the heaviest of the list 1878, yet such a result would in no way liken the commercial healthfulness to that in 1878. As pointed out a number of times heretofore, the commercial death rate is always greatest during periods of trade depression. If then, with the enormous increase in the number of traders throughout the country which has taken place within the past six years from an increased population of at least six millions, the list of commercial deaths barely exceeds that of 1878, the death rate per 1,000 in business as compared with 1878 will be much lower. Not more than 84 per cent. of the firms and business enterprises of the country are employing each $5,000 or less capital. The failures in the different districts for the first quarter of 1884 are:

Eastern states	448
Middle	700
Southern	775
Western	1,113
Pacific States	101
Territories	93

The aggregate liabilities were $3,188,414.

The Friends.

Mr. R. T. Bently, a member of the estimable community of Quakers at Sandy Springs, Md., says he was severely affected by rheumatism in his right hand. Mr. Bently applied St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain-cure, and by its continued use, in a short time, was completely cured.

"The Book of Mormon."

A statement recently published reads as follows:

When the "Book of Mormon" was published in 1830 there was published with it a certificate of three men, afterwards known as the "three witnesses," who declared that they saw the angel of God come down with the golden book which Joseph Smith interpreted. Subsequently all three of the men renounced Mormonism and declared their testimony false. David F. Whitmer, one of the three, is now living, in his 80th year, in Missouri. He was a brother-in-law of Oliver Cowdery, who wrote a copy of the book for Smith.

On this, Elder Joseph Smith, son of the founder of Mormonism, writes to the Chicago Times as follows:

"Please look over your file for 1865, I think in December, and you will find an interview of a Times correspondent with this David Whitmer, affirming his testimony of 1830 most emphatically. Mr. E. L. Kelley, formerly of a Glenwood, Iowa, law firm, now of Kirtland, Lake Co., O., received a letter from the said Whitmer to the same effect, in a discussion on the origin of the "Book of Mormon" with Rev. Clark Braden, of the Disciple Church. In this letter Mr. Whitmer again affirmed his testimony of fifty years ago. Martin Harris died at Salt Lake City, in fellowship with Mormonism. Oliver Cowdery died near Council Bluffs, Ia., maintaining the truth of his statement concerning the "Book of Mormon." What is the necessity to continue to publish false statements concerning these men? [illegible]

IMPOSSIBLE ESCAPE.

Absolute Truth with Collateral Proof From Which There Can Be no Appeal.

For the past three years we have had a standing offer of $5,000 for any statement of cure published by us which was not, so far as we know, bona fide. We did this in order that all readers might know the absolute truth of all our assertions and that they were based upon the value of our remedy and not upon idle words. Below we give a few extracts from recent letters, which speak for themselves. We will only add that we could furnish one hundred thousand more of a similar nature did occasion require, but we believe the entire American public is now convinced of the positive value of Warner's Safe Cure. H. H. WARNER & Co. Rochester, N. Y.

"Warner's Safe Cure does all claimed for it." MAJ. JAMES SINGLEY. Petaluma, Cal.

"I was cured of kidney disease and bleeding piles by 11 bottles of Warner's Safe Cure." Auburn, Me. B. H. HOWARD.

"I was a physical wreck by kidney disorder, but Warner's Safe Cure has completely cured me." Columbus, O. G. C. LANING.

"I was a sight to behold from kidney dropsy, but was restored to perfect health by Warner's Safe Cure." Troy, N. Y. JAMES ALLEN.

"My physicians said I would never get out of bed again. I took Warner's Safe Cure and felt like another being." Beverly, N. J., F. CUYLER HUTCHINS.

"I had 22 quarts of water taken from me caused by dropsy. Ten bottles of Warner's Safe Cure entirely restored me." GEO. B. PAESLEY., Manchester, N. H.

"A neighbor of mine, W. A. Thompson, has been raised from the dead by the use of your Warner's Safe Cure. JOHN NORTON P. M., Summit City, Pa., Feb. 8th.

"Physicians said I could never be cured of calculus and stranguary, but four bottles of Warner's Safe Cure entirely removed my complaint." San Francisco, Cal. T. O. LEWIS.

"I was wholly prostrated by a complication of diseases and as a last resort purchased Warner's Safe Cure. Every one of the old troubles have disappeared and I am very grateful." W. E. BENEDICT, Albany, N. Y. Press and Knickerbocker.

"I suffered for over twenty years with a lame back caused by kidney complaint, and my spine and nervous system were badly affected. When I had abandoned all hope I began the use of Warner's Safe Cure, and have not felt so well and strong for twenty years." J. J. WRIGHT, Fon du Lac, Wis.

"For two years I suffered intensely and was made miserable through diseased kidneys and bladder, with nervous exhaustion and entire prostration. Doctors and medicine did not afford me any relief, and I was advised to use Warner's safe Cure, which I did in connection with the Safe Pills, and am thankful to state I am entirely cured of the dreadful malady. MRS. DORMER. 448 South Tenth street, Denver, Col., Feb. 19th.

"I want to state how much my husband has improved while taking Warner's Safe Cure. All swelling has disappeared from his limbs; his water trouble is much better and his voice is so improved that he preaches every Sabbath. We are very thankful. The people all around here are taking the remedy, and some are getting well by the use of a few bottles. Multitudes more must have it." Mrs. Rev. F. A. Soule. Sing Sing, N. Y., Feb. 29th.

"For a score of years I suffered with what the doctors pronounced dilation and valvular disease of the heart, but now I am led to believe that the heart trouble was only secondary and a symptom of other complaints. Frequently I was threatened with death by suffocation, my breath failing me entirely. I became cold and numb, and was as near death as any living person ever has been. This was three years ago and I have ever since enjoyed complete health wholly through the use of Warner's Safe Cure." A. BILDERBECK; Chicago, March 1st. 28, 13th street.

Try Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator and be convinced that it can cure all billious disorders.

At Lexington, Ky., Policeman O'Connor was dirked by his mistress.

Consumption. is a disease we all dread. It often carries its victim to an untimely grave. How important, then, for those who cherish life and health to prevent that disease in its early stages. Every Cold or Cough should be treated with Allen's Lung Balsalm. There is no better remedy.

James Livingston apologized to Fred Gebhardt for calling him a liar.

"Rough on Rats," clears out Rats, Mice. 15c. Mother Swan's Worm Syrup, tasteless. 25c. "Rough on Coughs" Troches, 15c; liquid 50c.

The increasing sales of Piso's Cure attests its claim as the best cough remedy.

Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) has cured me of a long-standing case of Eczema, which has resisted all sorts of treatment. Rev. W. J. Robinson, N. Ga. Conference.

Mother Shipton's prophecy is supposed to be about four hundred years old, and every prophecy has been fulfilled except the last—the end of the world in 1881. Buy your Carboline, the great hair restorer, before the world comes to an end.

I Can Honestly Say. DR. WARNER: I can honestly say that I was decidedly benefited by the use of your White Wine of Tar Syrup. Respectfully yours, Fort Recovery, Ohio. Rev. M. W. DIGGS.

A Valuable Medecine. DEAR SIR: At the time I received a bottle of your White Wine of Tar Syrup, which was about the first of last January, I was troubled with Sore Throat and Hoarseness, and it relieved me at once. And, sir, I believe it to be a valuable medicine, and just what you recommend it. Yours truly, Rev. D. F. RENFRO, Salem, Dent Co., Mo. Pastor M. E. Church.

Senator Maxey wants to substitute the half-dollar as the standard silver coin.

Well's May Apple (Liver) Pills, 10c. "Rough on Toothache," instant relief. 15c. The "Rough on Tooth" Powder, elegant. 15c.

Prevent malarial attacks by invigorating the liver with Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator.

[illegible] THE GENUINE ARE SOLD ONLY IN BOXES.

[illegible]

Cattle Wanted. Parties having cattle for sale of any class, please address, giving grade, numbers, age and price. John G. Abbott, Box 2250, Denver, Col.

Arthur recommended $100,000 for the protection of lower Mississippi levees.

"Buchu-paiba," Great Kidney and Urinary Cure. $1. "Rough on Corns," for Corns, Warts, bunions. 15c. Wells' Health Renewer cures Dyspepsia, Impotence.

Cuticura A POSITIVE CURE for every form of SKIN & BLOOD DISEASE. FROM PIMPLES to SCROFULA. ITCHING, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous, Inherited, Contagious, and Copper Colored Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with loss of Hair, are positively cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and removes the cause. CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair. CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin. CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers. Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents; Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. Prepared by POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON, MASS. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

The Most Popular Medicine Extant. Allen's Lung Balsam! A REMEDY THAT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, CROUP, All Diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Pulmonary Organs. THE LUNG BALSAM Has cured Consumption when other remedies and physicians have failed to effect a cure. THE LUNG BALSAM Contains no Opium in any form. THE LUNG BALSAM Is strictly pure and harmless to the most delicate person. THE LUNG BALSAM Is recommended by Physicians, Ministers and Nurses. THE LUNG BALSAM For Croup is a safe and sure Remedy. Mothers, try it. THE LUNG BALSAM Should be used at the first manifestations of a Cold or Cough. THE LUNG BALSAM As an Expectorant has no equal. CAUTION.—Be not deceived. Call for ALLEN'S Lung Balsam, and take no other. Directions accompany each bottle. J. N. HARRIS & CO. Limited, Cincinnati, O. PROPRIETORS. SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE DEALERS.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. The kidneys act as purifiers of the blood, and when their functions are interfered with through weakness, they need toning. They become healthfully active by the use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, when falling short of relief from other sources. This superb stimulating tonic also prevents and arrests fever and ague, constipation, liver complaint, dyspepsia, rheumatism and other ailments. Use it with regularity. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

TUTT'S PILLS TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA. From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA. Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE. GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1. Office, 44 Murray Street, New York. TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

PATENTS. Send stamp for our New Book on Patents. L. BINGHAM, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

AGENTS WANTED for the best and fastest selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publishing Co., Chicago, Ill.

PISO'S REMEDY FOR CATARRH. Easy to use. A certain cure. Not expensive. Three months' treatment in one package. Good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Dizziness, Hay Fever, &c. Fifty cents. By all Druggists, or by mail. E. T. HAZELTINE, Warren, Pa.

CONSUMPTION. I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year: 216 pages, 8½x11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—7 cents. Let us hear from you. Respectfully, MONTGOMERY WARD & CO. 227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

CATARRH ELY'S CREAM BALM HAY-FEVER. THIS REMEDY [illegible]

WHY NOT! Write and get the best chance to make money easy. Bran new idea. J. E. BICKNELL & CO., Brockton, Mass.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE! BEST IN THE WORLD. Get the Genuine. Sold Everywhere.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE to sell the best Family Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit a pair of stockings with HEEL and TOE complete, in 20 minutes. It will also knit a great variety of fancy-work for which there is always a ready market. Send for circular and terms to the Twombly Knitting Machine Co., 163 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Any man or woman making less than $40 per week, should try our money-making business. Requires no talking and pays best of any. It will pay you to read our papers. $1 sample free to those who mean business. Exclusive territory given. Address, with 2c. stamp, R. H. Merrill & Co., Chicago.

ELASTIC TRUSS. SENSIBLE TRUSS. Has a Pad different from all others, is cup shape, with Self-Adjusting Ball in center, adapts itself to all positions of the body while the ball in the cup presses back the intestines just as a person does with the finger. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circulars free. EGGLESTON TRUSS CO., Chicago, Ill.

GOLD WATCH FREE! The publishers of the Capital City Home Guest, the well-known Illustrated Literary and Family Magazine, make the following liberal Offer for the New Year: The person telling us the longest verse in the Bible, before May 15th, will receive a Solid Gold, Lady's Hunting Cased Swiss Watch, worth $50. If there be more than one correct answer, the second will receive an elegant Stem-winding Gentleman's Watch; the third, a key-winding English Watch. Each person must send 25 cts. with their answer for which they will receive three months' subscription to the Home Guest, a 50 page Illustrated New Year Book, a Case of 25 articles that the ladies will appreciate, and paper containing names of winners. Address Pubs. of HOME GUEST, HARTFORD, CONN.

ALLEN'S IRON TONIC BITTERS. The most Elegant Blood Purifier, Liver Invigorator, Tonic, and Appetizer ever known. The first Bitters containing Iron ever advertised in America. Unprincipled persons are imitating the name; look out for frauds. See that the following signature is on every bottle and take none other: J. P. Allen, Druggist & Chemist. ST. PAUL, MINN.

$1 SENT POSTPAID SEVEN-SHOT NICKEL PLATED REVOLVER. Send for Catalogue of Guns, Fishing Tackle, Base Ball and Sporting Goods of all kinds. BUKER & SKINNER, Rockford, Ills.

CATARRH. The subscriber has discovered a remedy which he warrants to cure catarrh in one week, and to relieve headache in 5 minutes. This is no humbug. Every box warranted to cure or money refunded. Forwarded free by mail, at 50 cts a box or $3 a doz. All afflicted, order at once and be relieved. M. H. DAVIS, Island Pond, Vt.

"THE WOMAN'S PHYSICIAN." A common sense medical work for ladies only. Fully answers all questions which modesty prevents asking a male physician. Gives causes and symptoms of all diseases of the sex, with positive cure for each in plain language, written by ladies who have made these diseases a life study. A plain talk in delicate language which every woman, young and old, should read. It is recommended by many eminent lady physicians as a safe guide for the sex. Handsomely bound and illustrated. Sent postpaid for $1.00. Address THE HOUSEWIFE CO., Rochester, N. Y.

DR. FOOTE'S ORIGINAL METHODS OF HOME CURE! OLD EYES Made New without doctors, medicine or glasses. RUPTURE Cured without operation or uncomfortable truss. PHIMOSIS Cured without cutting; new, painless, safe, sure. NERVOUS Debility, etc.; causes and rational treatment. CHRONIC Diseases of all kinds—so-called "incurable." (Five pamphlets 10c each. Address M. HILL PUB. CO., 129 E. 28th st., N. Y.

SAMARITAN NEVER FAILS. NERVINE IS UNFAILING AND INFALLIBLE IN CURING Epileptic Fits, Spasm, Falling Sickness, Convulsions, St. Vitus Dance, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, Syphilis, Scrofula, and all Nervous and Blood Diseases. To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary Men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all whose sedentary employment causes Nervous Prostration, Irregularities of the blood, stomach, bowels or kidneys, or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulent, Samaritan Nervine is invaluable. Thousands proclaim it the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained a sinking system. $1.50, at Druggists. THE GREAT NERVE CONQUEROR. The DR. S. A. RICHMOND MEDICAL CO., Sole Proprietors, St. Joseph, Mo. For testimonials and circulars send stamp. (18) Lord, Stoudenburgh & Co., Agents, Chicago Il.

Indulgence and Excesses. Whether over eating or drinking are made harmless by using Hop Bitters freely, giving elegant appetite and enjoyment by using them before and removing all dullness, pains and distress afterwards, leaving the head clear, nerves steady, and all the feelings buoyant, elastic and more happy than before. The pleasing effects of a Christian or sumptuous dinner continuing days afterwards.

Eminent Testimony. N. Y. Witness Aug. 15, 1880. "I find that in addition to the pure spirits contained in their composition, they contain the extracts of hops and other well known and highly approved medicinal roots, leaves and tinctures in quantities sufficient to render the article what the makers claim it to be, to wit, a medicinal preparation and not a beverage—unfit and unsafe to be used except as a medicine. "From a careful analysis of their formula—which was attested under oath—I find that in every wine-glassful of Hop Bitters, the active medicinal properties aside from the distilled spirits are equal to a full dose for an adult, which fact in my opinion, subjects it to an internal revenue tax as a medicinal bitter." GREEN B. RAUM, U. S. Com. In Rev.

Hardened Liver. Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism. Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water. All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave. J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, '81.

Poverty and Suffering. "I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost, I know it." A WORKINGMAN.

TOBACCO HABIT CURED. $1, by Mail. ROBT F. SMITH & CO., Youngstown, O.

PENSIONS to Soldiers and Heirs. Send stamp for Circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

WATCH Free! 50 Satin Gloss Chromo Cards 10c. Latest designs. 10 pks. $1, and a Musical Watch free. Sample list 2c. W. F. AUSTIN, New Haven, Ct.

SILKS for CRAZY PATCHWORK in 50c and $1 packages. Elegant Varieties. Our 20 cent package of best Embroidery Silk, assorted colors, free with every $1 order. YALE SILK WORKS, New Haven, Conn.

SEED CORN NORTHERN GROWN, VERY EARLY. Also Flower Vegetable and Field Seeds. 44 New Varities of Potatoes. Order early. Catalogue Free. FRED. N. LANG, Baraboo, Wis.

30 DAYS' TRIAL. DR. DYE'S (BEFORE.) (AFTER.) ELECTRO-VOLTAIC BELT and other ELECTRIC APPLIANCES are sent on 30 Days' Trial TO MEN ONLY, YOUNG OR OLD, who are suffering from NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, REDUCED VITALITY, DEBILITY, and all diseases of a kindred nature, resulting from whatever causes. Speedy relief and complete restoration to Health, Vigor and Strength guaranteed. Send at once for Illustrated Pamphlet free. Address Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich.

THE DINGEE & CONARD CO'S BEAUTIFUL EVER-BLOOMING ROSES. The only establishment making a SPECIAL BUSINESS of ROSES. 60 LARGE HOUSES for ROSES alone. We GIVE AWAY, in Premiums and Extras, more ROSES than most establishments grow. Strong Pot Plants suitable for immediate bloom delivered safely, postpaid, to any post-office. 5 splendid varieties, your choice, all labeled, for $1; 12 for $2; 19 for $3; 26 for $4; 35 for $5; 75 for $10; 100 for $13. Our NEW GUIDE, a complete Treatise on the Rose, 70 pp., elegantly illustrated FREE. THE DINGEE & CONARD CO. Rose Growers, West Grove, Chester Co., Pa.

DR. SPINNEY'S NERVE TONIC. TRADE MARK. Nerve Tonic. A Positive Remedy for all forms of Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Spinal Affections, Chorea, Sympathetic Nervous Derangement of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, and all other Nervous Diseases. Price: $1.00 per bottle or 6 for $5.00. Sent by express on receipt of money. Send stamp for circular. Address, DR. SPINNEY & CO., 104 South Third St., Minneapolis, Minn. Also for sale by Druggists.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD, Positively cure SICK-HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill.—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla." "In my practice I use no other.—J. Dennison, M.D., DeWitt, Iowa." Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cts. in stamps. Valuable information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

BUY NORTHERN GROWN SEEDS. Produce by all odds the finest Flowers, Vegetables and crops. Send for new Catalogue; contains everything for Garden, House and Farm. It will pay you to get it. Largest stock of pure Farm Seeds in the West. Beautiful Plants and Roses by the 100,000. JOHN A. SALZER, La Crosse, Wis.

PREMIUMS TO SUBSCRIBERS OUR SUNNY SOUTH $1.00 PER YEAR FOR SEMI-MONTHLY 16 PAGES 48 COLUMNS. THE FOURTH GRAND DISTRIBUTION OF PREMIUMS among subscribers to "OUR SUNNY SOUTH" will take place MAY 30th, 1884. Every person who subscribes for the paper before that date, will receive a certificate in the distribution free, and every subscriber is guaranteed a premium. Among the many premiums to be distributed are $1000 cash | $500 cash | $250 cash. 160 ACRES OF LAND, ELEGANT $500 PIANO, ORGANS, WATCHES, HOUSEHOLD ARTICLES, BOOKS, NOVELTIES, ETC. Everything guaranteed satisfactory or money refunded. We desire to introduce our paper into 100,000 new homes this year. Our Company is chartered by the State of Texas, with a Capital of $25,000. Our Printing Establishment is the largest in the South. Our Company is endorsed by the entire Press and People of the South, as strictly reliable. We are the originators of the "NO BLANK" distribution plan, and have many imitators, whose extravagant offers are deceiving the people. Our offers are LIBERAL YET REASONABLE. OUR SUNNY SOUTH is published semi-monthly, devoted to the interests of the farm and fireside. Send one dollar, at once, for a year's subscription and a certificate in the May distribution. AGENTS WANTED. Send for full particulars. The first subscription received from each neighborhood will entitle the sender to full agent's outfit free. Address, SUNNY SOUTH CO., Brownwood, Texas. For a club of two subscribers and $2, we will send free a set of silver-plated spoons. For four subscribers and $4, we will send an extra copy of the paper for one year, and certificate, free. Our paper is the popular family journal of the South, and has already over 40,000 subscribers. It is no new enterprise, but has been established for eight years, and, by fair dealing and honest treatment, has won the confidence of the people. The Postmaster at Brownwood, Texas, says: "The SUNNY SOUTH CO., of this place, is strictly reliable and trustworthy, and no one need hesitate to send them money, or fear being defrauded."

LIST OF DISEASES ALWAYS CURABLE BY USING MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. OF HUMAN FLESH. Rheumatism, Burns and Scalds, Stings and Bites, Cuts and Bruises, Sprains & Stitches, Contracted Muscles, Stiff Joints, Backache, Eruptions, Frost Bites, [illegible] OF ANIMALS. Scratches, Sores and Galls, Spavin, Cracks, Screw Worm, Grub, Foot Rot, Hoof Ail, Lameness, Swinny, Founders, Sprains, Strains, Sore Feet, Stiffness, [illegible] THE BEST OF ALL LINIMENTS

CANCER. The experience in the treatment of Cancer with Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) would seem to warrant us in saying that it will cure this much dreaded scourge. Persons so afflicted are invited to correspond with us. I believe Swift's Specific has saved my life. I had virtually lost use of the upper part of my body and my arms from the poisonous effects of a large cancer on my neck, from which I had suffered for 20 years. S. S. S. has relieved me of all soreness, and the poison is being forced out of my system. I will soon be well. W. R. ROBISON, Davisboro, Ga. Two months ago my attention was called to the case of a woman afflicted with a cancer on her shoulder at least 5 inches in circumference, angry, painful, and giving the patient no rest day or night for 6 months. I obtained a supply of Swift's Specific for her. She has taken 5 bottles, and the ulcer is entirely healed up, only a very small scab remaining and her health is better than for 5 years past; seems to be perfectly cured. REV. JESSE H. CAMPBELL, Columbus, Ga. [illegible] THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga. N. Y. Office, 159 W. 23d St., bet. 6th & 7th Avs.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM. HEALS DISEASED LUNGS AND CURES COUGHS AND COLDS. [illegible]

WITHOUT ANY COURTING.

Peter Patterson was ill—at least he thought so, and depressed; he had headaches, and he hated the dusty streets, in which the summer heat burnt and the summer sun shone before the green leaves had draped the trees, and plotted geraniums which have come to be so blessedly popular in New York, lent their summer freshness.

"What shall I do doctor?" he said to the white-headed old physician. "You say nothing ails me, but I can tell you what my feelings are better than you can. I know I shall be down with something soon. I rode in a car with a half a dozen dirty children, the other day—going to the small pox hospital, I haven't a doubt—very red and nasty looking, all of them; and while I was buying something in a store down in Broadway the other day, a horrid old woman begged of me because her husband was sick with typhoid fever. No doubt I've caught both diseases and its the complication that puzzles you. couldn't relish my coffee this morning; left my milk toast untouched. Hateful life, that of a bachelor at a hotel. Oh dear me."

"Why don't you marry, then?" said the doctor.

"They need so much courting," said Mr. Patterson. "You spend six months or so, at least, dangling at a woman's apron strings. Qou must go to the theatre and opera if she is gay, and to church meeting if she is pious. At fifty a man likes his slippers and dtessing gown and chair of an evening. If it was just stepping over to the clergyman s'and getting married, put a ring on her finger and saying and nodding yes two or three times, why I wouldn't mind it you know."

"Ah, well, courting is the fun of it in my opinion," said the old doctor, but every one to his taste. And my advice to you is to get into the country."

"To another hotel and more mercenary waiters!" said Mr. Patterson.

"Well," said the doctor, "go to a nice private house, I know one—a motherly widow lady who cooks a dinner fit for a king. River before the house, woo d behind it, orchard to the left, kitchen garden to the right; no fever, no ague; no mosquitoes. Heavenly! I am going up there to-morrow and I'll see if she'll take you."

"Very well," said Mr. Patterson, "I think I'd try it."

"And you must drink plenty of milk, and eat plenty of nice home-made bread."

"Yes, I will," said Patterson, overjoyed at least at hearing something that sounded like a prescription. "And you would advise milk?"

"Quart of it every day," said the doctor.

"I'll take note of it," said Patterson, "and if I should be very ill she'll nurse me?"

"Splendidly," said the doctor, and went his way.

Mr. Patterson thought the matter over, and thought better of it every day, and when the little note informing him that the widow would be willing to "take him in and do for him," reached him, he had his trunk and portmanteau already packed, and was all ready to start that afternoon. As for the widow, the doctor had prepared her for her boarder's peculiarity thus:

"Nice fellow: social, plenty of money: thinks himself ill, but isn't; ought to be married; told him so, but he hates the idea of courting; marry off some day no doubt; 'Will you have me?' 'Yes.' Call in a clergyman. Over. Very peculiar old bachelor; but then old bachelors are peculiar generally."

The widow was what Yankees call an amazing smart woman. She had married at sixteen and had never failed to have washing over when other people were hanging out theirs. Her bread always rose, her cake was always good, and her butter was always sweet. At forty-five she had married off all her daughters, and was well to-do, buxom and happy.

Her son and his wife boarded with her, and she added to her plentiful savings by taking a summer boarder or two, if they happened to offer.

"Fifty and a bachelor," said Mrs. Muntle, looking in the glass. "Well, it seems a pity: but when elderly gentlemen marry, it is some hitytity girl that lead them a terrible life, and it's for the best."

Then she looked in the glass again, for the widow was but a woman after all.

Mr. Patterson came to the widow's and obeyed the doctoris prescription carefully. He ate bread and milk, robbed the orchards like a school-boy, and declared over the strawberry shortcake after a fashion that would have made his reputation at the bar. Then, too, Mrs. Muntle did not smile at his aches and pains, and insist that he must be perpetually well because he had a fresh complexion and dimples in his cheeks. She had savory herb teas and potions, which she produced when he complained of feeling miserable, and she had that blessing of hypochondaries, a homeophatic box in the house.

There were remedies in that box for everything; and it was pleasant to find that when there was a crawling sensation in your flesh, or a kind of uneasy feeling in your legs, there were daily little globules to be had just suited for symptoms; that to find yourself very angry about nothing indicated pulsatilla, and that even for unrequited love there was a medicine.

For two months and more Mr. Patterson boarded with Mrs. Muntle, and happier months he had never lived through. Then he went back to the city for a few weeks, returning in urgent need of more pellets from the medicine chest, and stayed until the last pink chrysanthemum was blooming on its withered branches. He had grown so fond of his little room, with its white curtains and fresh grass bleached linen, of the country good things, and of the cozy nursing of the buxom Mrs. Muntle that he could scracely bear the thought of parting with them altogether.

After all why could he not buy a house and try to get Mrs. Muntle to keep it for him? Perhaps she would. He would offer a high salary, and she would have plenty of servants. Then, indeed, he might have friends to dine with him, and be as happy as possible.

If only he could approach his hostess; showing her as he did so that he considered her his equal and a lady, and all that, as she certainly was—a little countryfied, of course, but a clergyman's daughter, and the widow of a country doctor.

After much consideration he finally mustered courage [illegible] and walked into the front parlor and sent the small servant to ask Mrs. Muntle to stop there a moment, if she pleased.

"Gracious" thought Mrs. Muntle, "What can he want?"

Then she blushed brightly, settled her necktie, took off her apron and walked demurely in.

"Be seated, ma'am," said Mr. Patterson. "Please to sit here. Allow me to sit near you, I have something to ask which may require consideration."

"Oh, dear, it's coming!" said Mrs. Muntle.

"I suppose you know I'm a man of considerable means, ma'am," said the old bachelor, "able to buy a nice house furnish it well and live in it comfortably!"

"So I've understood, Mr. Patterson," said the widow.

"And of course it's pleasanter to live that way than at a hotel," said Mr. Patterson.

"I should judge it might be," said Mrs. Muntle cautiously.

"You judge rightly," said Mr. Patterson, "but you know a bachelor must be in the hands of servants, if he keeps a house. A gentleman don't want that; he wants a lady to superintend things for him—some one of taste and refinement, and all that. Common people don't understand his feelings, and mercenary servants are a poor dependence."

"I know that," said Mrs. Muntle.

"You are almost as much alone as I, aren't you, Mrs. Muntle?" said Mr. Patterson, coaxingly.

"The doctor knew him. He's going to do it, just as he said he would if he ever did," said the lady to herself. Aloud she answered: "Well, sir, I am pretty free it is true. All my children are married."

"I know money would be no object to you," said Mr. Patterson. "You have enough. But if I were to tell you that I hated boarding houses, and wanted a home, I think you would have pity on me. I'll buy a beautiful house, and you shall have complete control of everything; only to make my strawberry shortcake for me all my life."

He paused and looked at the lady.

"That is delicately put," he thought, "Nor will you hire out for a housekeeper, I fancy."

"I ain't romantic, though," said Mrs Muntie; "but still, we ain't young, neither of us and it gets to be just that with the most sentimental after a while."

"Don't refuse me," pleaded Mr. Patterson.

"Well, Mr. Patterson, I won't," said Mrs. Muntle. "I'm my own mistress, and though I've never thought of a second marriage, why I think I'm warranted in making one. And no doubt I shall never repent, for I think you've a fine disposition, and I understand your ways and tastes."

Mr. Patterson listened. He saw what he had done; proposed and been accepted without having any idea what he was about.

He looked at Mrs. Muntle: she was vary nice and fresh and comely, and ten years his junier, at least if she was forty. He could not have done a better thing, and he would be married without any troublesome courting. So he put his arm around Mrs. Mutle's waist, and said:

"Thank you, my dear, I consider myself very fortunate."

He wrote to his good doctor in about a fortnight's time, to tell him that he had taken both his prescriptions, was a married man and intended to bring his bride home about Christmas.

Churchyard Poetry.

That the following, at Lillington, near Leamington, is genuine, there is no doubt; the lines are touchieg. They are in memory of a man named John Trees:

"Poorly lived,
And poorly died,
Poorly buried,
And no one cried."

Equally melancholy, though with a different kind of sadness, are the rhymes on John Hill; they come from a "churchyard at Manchester":

Here lies John Hill, a man of skill.
His age was five times ten,
He ne'er did good, nor ever would,
Had he lived as long again.

Very likely not, for if in half a century a man does no good he will hardly turn over a new leaf at fifty years of age. Is the following to be considered as an eulogium on the parson commemorated?—

"Provost Peter Perterson was provost of Dundee, Provost Peter Patterson here lies he,
Hallelujah, Hallelujee.

And what is the meaning of this singular inscription in Cusop churchyard, Herefordshire? Has it any meaning at at all?"

"If earth be all
Why o'er and o'er a beaten path
You walk and draw up nothing new,
Not so our martyred seraph did
When from the Verge of Wales he fled."

The martyred seraph was William Seward, of Badsey, Worcester, who died October 22, 1742; how a man could be a seraph, and how a seraph could be martyred are unexplained mysteries.

It is somewhat curious to find a person not only writing his own epitaph, but doing it in the following manner. Mr. Thompson speaks of himself as dead and buried; and yet he survived himself for the space of sixteen years. At Kirk Braddon, in the Isle of man we read:

"Here underlyeth the body of the Reverend Mr. Patrick Thompson,
Minister of God's Word forty years,
At present vicar of Kirk Braddon,
Aged 67. anno 1673.
Deceased ye 24th April, Anno 1689,'

This vicar apparently looked forward with calm equanimity to his death; "a calm despair" is indicated by these melancholy lines:

"At threescore winter's end I died,
A cheerless being, lone and sad,
The nuptial knot I never tied,
And wished my father never had."
—London Society.

A Negro's Prayer.

Bishop Haven presided over the Texas conference in 1878. One day he scored some of the colored ministers on a too feeble recognition of meum and tuum, and then called on a brother to pray, who responded as follows: "O, Lord, dou am honest, great an' holy; notting dat am unclean an' dishonest can tuch de. O, Lord, come an' teach all classes an' colors de lesson ob honesty; make um honest wid dare tongues, dare feet, dare hans an' dare deads. O, Lord, make um honest, inside an' out, in de dark an' in de light. O, Lord, sweet Babe of Bethlehem, come and bress our Bishop; front an' fight his ebry battle; send him threw dis world like a pigeon on de wings ob de eagle, an' when de race am run, an' de last battle am fought wid dat ole serpent, de debil, an' dar am no more for him to do in dis world, let him mount de chariot, an' hab a short ride home, an' den, Lord, on de plains ob glory, himself all covered wid glory, let him ground his arms near de throne [illegible] forebber an' [illegible]

A Fortunate Canadian.

There is a pleasing little anecdote in connection with the carnival of a Frenchman's getting "rich in a day," a fact almost unparalleled in the history of province of Quebec Frenchmen. Baptiste Laporte lives in a little story-and-a-half gray slate-colored house near the Bonsecom market, where he kept a small retail fur store. Here he has lived for the past fifty years on the hill just overlooking the old Bonsecour Church, the oldest sacred edifice in Canada, being built a hundred years ago. Baptiste was poor, for though his furs were always of the best quality and "the finest in the world his establishment was comparatively unknown and consequently little patronized.

Things went on pretty much the same for Baptiste for twenty-five years. He left with his dog, gun and snow shoes every fall, and returned home in the spring to his Marie, with his toboggan well packed with precious and valuable furs to be sold for the next season. He generally did not manage to sell more than half his stock out from year to year, but by an ingenious plan his wife managed to preserve these furs, so that when the time came for Baptiste to summon up all his enterprise and attract customers to his shop they were in as perfect order as if he had just stretched them on the little pine twigs after shooting the animals in the bush. Baptiste decided to remain home this winter to enjoy the carnival. He did not wish to take advantage of the opportunity to make money, like too many other tradespeople, but merely to enjoy himself. However, a happy thought struck him, and he advertised his furs in all the local papers.

It grew very cold a day or two after the opening of the carnival, and as an American gentleman said, "the mercury having got so high up in the glass during the first part of last week that it almost took two thermometers spliced together to gauge it, was now to be found down knocking the bottom out of the concern." This change persuaded the American visitors who had come here unprotected against the frost further than by a "plug" hat and a silk handkerchief to "go in for" furs and Baptiste's was soon found to be the cheapest place in the city. In two days his whole stock was sold with the the exception of half a dozen red fox skins and half as many silver fox skins, the latter bringing him in the pelt, $150 for the lot. Baptiste yesterday was a poor French Canadian furrier. Today he is, thanks to the carnivals, worth $50,000. He had several daughters, who were always employed evenings making up the furs he brought home.—Montreal Correspondent Buffalo Commercial.

A Slander on the Mormons.

Salt Lake Special: The Salt Lake Tribune of Sunday contained a long article purporting to be a stenographic report of a discourse delivered at Juab by Bishop West on the Sunday previous and an editorial indorsing and emphasizing the main features of the report, which were to the effect that the Bishop had received a revelation ordering the assassination of Gov. Murray and a general attack upon the Gentiles. On Wednesday the Deseret News contained a refutation of the story, showing that there is no such person in the Mormon Church as Bishop West; that there is no bishop at all at Juab, and that on the day when the sermon was alleged to have been delivered, in consequence of a washout on the Utah Central railway, so many persons from that small village were engaged in repairing the break that no meeting was held there at all. This morning the Tribune acknowleged that the reported address was bogus and claimed to have been imposed upon. Great indignation is expressed by Gentiles and Mormons alike over the publication. The Mormons charge that the article was concerted for use in the East by Gov. Murray, who started East a few days ago.

The Drain-tile Theory of the Ohio Floods.

A correspondent of the New York Evening Post lays special stress upon the agency of drain-tile in producing the Ohio floods. He says that more than 50,000 miles of drain-tile had been laid in the state since 1876." The fever has raged throughout Indiana and Ohio with equal violence, and though I have no official report of the work done there I feel confident I am safe in stating that in the three states more than 100,000 miles of the tile have been laid. Now let us consider the effects. The general surface of this whole region is so level that it abounds in swamps, sloughs and areas of low, wet land of greater or less extent. There is hardly a farm which has not more or less of such land, which heretofore has been useless, but which, when drained, has proved to be the most productive land on the farm. These areas consequently have been everywhere the first to be drained, to the immediate and manifest improvement of the productiveness of the farm, and equally of the health of its occupants. But, on the other hand, these areas have heretofore been the reservoirs into which the rains and melting snows of all the tributary surface have slowly found their way by infiltration; and after days and weeks, during which evaporation was constantly in progress, the surplus or overflow has reached the river. Now they have been provided with artificial substitutes for nature's slow methods, and the immediate discharge is secured of all these natural reservoirs through the drains, which carry off in a few hours an accession of waters that would otherwise have reached the river only by comparatively small installments, after precolating for weeks, or perhaps months, through sloughs and swamps, and losing a large portion by evaporation. This effect is perfectly obvious and undeniable; and, taking into account the almost incredible extent to which this work of drainage has been carried, is the result disproportionate to the cause?

The state auditor has received the return of tax settlements from Oct. 29, 1883, to March 31, 1884, from all counties except Clay, Jackson and Lincoln. The total amount of tax returns received is $147,421.47. Returns from the sale of state lands have been received from many of the counties making a total of $17,247.43.

Training a "Cub."

A Mississippi pilot never uses the feeble phrase, "I think;" he always says, "I know." He has cultivated his memory until it retains every trivial detail of twelve hundred miles of river. He must know it, in order to keep his steamer out of trouble, and he must so know it that nothing shall shake his confidence in his knowledge.

When a pilot's "cub," as his apprentice is called, has become so thoroughly acquainted with the river that he can be trusted to steer the boat alone, the pilot plays a friendly swindle upon him. His purpose is to test the cub's confidence in his own knowledge, and to train him to calmly look danger in the face.

Mark Twain tells, in his "Life on the Mississippi," how he was once thus trained by his pilot-boss, Mr. Bixby:

"I am going below a while," said Mr. Bixby. "I suppose you know the next crossing?"

"Know how to run it? Why, I can run it with my eyes shut."

"How much water is there in it?"

"Well that is an odd question. I couldn't get bottom there with a church steeple."

"You think so, do you?"

The very tone of the question shook my confidence. That was what Mr. Bixby was expecting. He left without saying anything more. I began to imagine all sorts of things.

Mr. Bixby, unknown to me, sent somebody down to the forecastle with some mysterious instructions to the leadsmen, another messenger was sent to whisper among the officers, and then Mr. Bixby went into hiding behind a smoke-stack where he could observe results.

Presently the captain stepped out on the hurricane deck; next the chief mate appeared, and then a clerk. Every moment or two a straggler was added to my audience; and before I got to the head of the island, I had fifteen or twenty people assembled down there under my nose.

I began to wonder what the trouble was. As I started across, the captain glanced aloft at me, and said, with a sham uneasiness in his voice,—

"Where is Bixby?"

"Gone below, sir."

But that did the business for me. My imagination began to construct dangers out of nothing. All my confidence in that crossing vanished.

I seized the belt-rope; dropped it, ashamed; seized it again; dropped it once more; clutched it tremblingly once again, and pulled it so feebly that I could hardly hear the stroke myself.

Captain and mate sang out instantly, and both together, "Starboard lead there! and quick about it!"

This was another shock. I began to climb the wheel like a squirrel; but I could hardly get the boat started to port before I would see new dangers on that side and away I would spin to the other, only to find perils accumulating to starboard, and be crazy to get to port again.

Then came the leadsman's sepulchral cry, "D-e-e-p four!"

Deep four in a bottomless crossing! The terror of it took my breath away.

"M-a-r-k three! . . . Mark three! . . . Quarter less three! . . . Half twain!"

This was frightful! I seized the bell-ropes and stopped the engines.

"Quarter twain! Quarter twain! Mark twain!"

I was helpless. I did not know what in the world to do.

"Quarter less twain! Nine and a half!"

We were drawing nine! My hands were in a nerveless flutter. I could not ring a bell intelligibly with them. I flew to the speaking-tube and shouted to the engineer,—

"O Ben, if you love me, back her! Quick, Ben! Oh, back the soul out of her!"

I heard the door of the pilot-house close gently. I looked around, and there stood Mr. Bixby, smiling a bland, sweet smile. Then the audience on the hurricane-deck sent up a thunder-gush of humiliating laughter.

I saw it all, and I felt meaner than the meanest man in human history. I set the boat in her marks, came ahead on the engines, and said,—

"It was a fine trick to play on me, wasn't it? I suppose I'll never hear the last of how I was ass enough to heave the lead at the head of 66."

"Well, I hope you won't, for I want you to learn something by that experience. "Didn't you know there was no bottom in that crossing?"

"Yes, sir, I did,"

"Very well, then. You shouldn't have allowed me or anybody else, to shake your confidence in that knowledge. Try to remember that. And another thing; when you get into a dangerous place, don't turn coward. That isn't going to help matters any."

It was a good enough lesson, but pretty hardly learned.

Watch Making in Switzerland.

Notwithstanding the immense number of watches made in other countries the Swiss watches still continue to be in demand. It is estimated that there are about 45,000 workmen engaged in this industry in Switzerland. In the competition with other countries they manage to hold their own very well, being largely aided by the belief that their watches are made by hand. It is a fact, however, that machinery is employed in the making of watches in Switzerland to a considerable extent; although the fact is kept on the background. In some cantons the manufacture of cheap imitation gold and silver watches has been recently started. A composition used in the manufacture of these imitation metals which is so highly explosive that a slight blow will cause a detonation of an alarming character. Excellent horological schools are established throughout the country, in which boys are taught the trade of watch-making in all its branches, by the most skillful workmen to be found.

A poor widow, of Bath, Me., was greatly surprised the other morning by the appearance of twenty men with axes and saws, who, without any ceremony, attacked her wood pile and sawed and split until the whole pile was reduced to wood size. The preacher, who came a little late, was chaffed by the honest men for his tardiness, and, lifting a good-sized stick on the saw-horse for him, he took off his coat and soon had the log reduced to the required size.

NOTES FOR THE FARM AND HOUSE.

For the Housewife.

To make a beautiful rug, cut the stair carpet known as Venetian into strips across the width, allowing nine threads of the hemp filling to each strip. Then ravel out three threads on each side leaving three threads. Sew together and weave as a rag carpet is done. The rug is a fine imitation of chene Turkish and wears admirably.

Smilax is giving place to ivy and to Japanese ferns in decoration. The ivy lasts better, and is a deeper green, and Japanese fern is more delicate. The new smilax, which looks like a marabout feather, is a popular novelty just now, and has been used extensively during the last month for decorative purposes at weddings and receptions.

A very pretty tidy is made of scarlet or any shade of felt; put strips of black velvet, and on these strips embroider little fans in bright and varied colors of silk. The bottom of this tidy is finished by pinking the felt; let the velvet strips run down to form a point, and put a tassel, mode of the different colored silks, on each point.

A becoming afternoon apron is made of one breadth of linen, a straight breadth, not gores at all; have the hem four inches deep, and above the hem have drawn work about an inch deep. Then, in scarlet, tiny Kate Greenaway figures should be embroidered in the pretty and delicate outline stitch. Or, if you choose, these figures may be put in the corners only, but it is a great deal prettier to have them go way across in a procession, all looking the one way, or over the shoulder; or you may divide the line and have them meet in the centre, that is, have part face one way and part another.

Bridal presents are sent from one to two weeks previous to the day of the marriage ceremony. They are always sent to the bride, and are most commonly some article of jewelry or plate, although there is no law in regard to this matter. The lady should acknowledge the receipt of the present immediately, with sincere, yet not too extravagant thanks. In sending a present in the manner described, enclose a short note expressing your pleasure in hearing of the coming event, and the hope that her married life may be a blissful one.

To trim tastefully the ends of a felt table scarf or a square cover, cut bands of velvet, two or even three inches wide, have them about five inches long, point each end, put these on lengthwise, and allow only space enough between for the fancy stitches around each piece of velvet. On the pointed ends of the bottom put tassels. The velvet bands may be all of one color or of different colors, but some order must be observed in their arrangement. The bands should be lined with some stiff material so that they will not wrinkle when they are sewed directly upon the cover.

A dark green cloth table cover, with a handsome border of leaves and flowers worked on it, is a great addition to my drawing-room, and the cost is just half what we are accustomed to give in the shops. Fine cloth two yards wide can be bought for $1.50 a yard. All we have to do is to get a broad running pattern traced on cloth, and when that is worked the table-cover will only require a suitable edging to make it ready for use. For working in cloth we must have a pattern going all the way round; the corner patterns are only suitable for light materials. Wool is greatly to be preferred to silk for a large table-cloth, for more reasons than one. It is quicker and pleasanter to work, and being more substantial and durable it stands out better and has a more striking effect. The kind of pattern, too, that really looks best for the purpose is only adapted for working in the soft, fleecy kind of art wools, which are of finer texture and more natural tints than others.

Farmer's Notes.

Professor W. A. Henry states that over half the students of the Wisconsin University are sons of farmers.

President Philo Parsons, of the Michigan State Society, declares that the present Commissioner of Agriculture "hasn't a shadow of right to speak for American farmers."

When Marshall P. Wilder plants peach trees he heads them down to two feet, instead of two four, as recommended by many others.

Thirty thousand three-pound cans of tomatoes were lately sold in Baltimore for the lowest price on record. The business is overdone, "they say."

A Canada correspondent advises readers of The London Agricultural Gazette "not to jump out of the frying-pan of English farming into the very hot fire of Northwestern ruination and bankruptcy."

Great mortality prevails among horses in different sections of Oregon. The disease prevalent appears to be blind staggers. A large percentage of cases result fatally. Over four hundred horses died recently of the disease in Clackamas and Van Hill counties.

We hear from several counties that the tree peddler is about "seeking whom he may devour." He boards at the best hotel, wears the shiniest of silk hats, the finest of kid gloves, and drives the best rig in town, and "fools money" pays the bills. In one locality these scamps swindled the people out of $12,000.

The latest remedy for the cabbage pest is smartweed (pepper weed), which is thoroughly dried, ground to powder and sprinkled over the plants.

A little ready cash will not wait long for profitable use. Better have money in your pocket than land unpaid for.

Except on heavy clay soils, the ground should not be plowed deeper than it can be fined; but always the deeper it is fined, the better.

Painting With Crude Petroleum.

Rural New Yorker.

When I purchased this place, about six years ago, only the front was painted, the sides and rear being whitewashed. The whitewash I had scraped off, and what a job! I then purchased a barrel of light petroleum, and gave the weather-boards a coat of it, as much as they would readily absorb. This filled the pores of the wood and hardened the surface in a remarkable manner. When the painter had put on one coat of paint, he was much surprised and said that had I not put on the petroleum he would have required at least 15 gallons more of linseed oil for the first coat; and, furthermore, the coat of petroleum and one of paint were as good as two coats of paint, if not better. A year or so afterwards, I had another coat of paint put on, and I have as good a job as could be made by any three coats I know of, and better than some, for neither the first nor second ever "rubbed off" in the slightest degree. I do not consider petroleum a "paint," but it serves the same purpose, as a preservative of wood by filing the pores and glazing the surface, so that any water which may fall upon it will stand upon the surface in globules until evaporated. There are two kinds of this oil, light and heavy. The former penetrates readily, and the latter, I believe, does not. This may be one cause of conflicting reports. I keep a barrel on hand all the time, and put it on unpainted wood-work of all tools. I have had a new picket (drassed) fence put up, and saturated the pickets with petroleum, and know it is all right till I am ready to paint it.—"UBER."

Useful Garden Gleanings.

President J. M. Smith, says the N. Y., Tribune, of the Wisconsin Horticultural Society, is one of the most intelligent and successful gardeners and fruit-growers of our acquaintance. He raises all the list of good things for family use and for market, with the result, in one case, of adding much to home happiness, and, in the other, of realizing more from forty-five acres in a single year than many an "average farmer" gets from seven times as large a surface in three times as many seasons. He read at various public meetings the past winter a report of some phases of his experience and observation during a quarter of a century, making a most valuable statement, some leading practical points of which we transcribe, in condensed form, for readers of the Tribune. First, as to the character and lay-out of the garden:

Select, if you can have a choice, a piece of light, loamy soil, with a little sand, if you can get it. A heavy clay soil will raise as large a crop, but it is not so early, and is much more expensive and difficult to work. Corn, beans, peppers, tomatoes, vines of all kinds, require a warm soil and will do their best in no other. A place for the wife and children's flowers should not be forgotten or neglected. In laying out a garden on a farm take plenty of room, and arrange the rows in such a manner that the greatest possible amount of work can be performed with the horse.

Now a few words in reference to time of planting:

"Peas and onions should be put in as early as the land is in good condition to work. If the ground freezes hard soon after they are sprouted it will not injure them. Parsnips, beets, carrots, radishes, turnips, cabbage and cauliflower, lettuce and salisfy will all bear a little frost after they come up, but not much.

The selection of seed will be puzzling and difficult in proportion to the desire one may have for testing the numerous new varieties which, like the poor, are always with us. Our authority has done a good deal of "lottery business" in this direction, and, he says, "drawn a marvellous number of blanks, some of them very annoying and expensive and only rarely a prize." So he puts faith now in the appended list, mostly of the old standard kinds:

Asparagus—Conover's Colossal. Beans—Bush German Dwarf Black Wax; pole, Lima. Beets—Egyptian for first Blood Turnip for fall and winter. Cabbage—First, Early Jersey Wakefield; fall and winter, Premium Flat Dutch. Carrots—Early Scarlet Horn, Cauliflower—Early Erfurt. Celery—Golden Dwarf. Cucumbers—White Spine. Lettuce—Curled Simpson and Boston Market. Musk-melons—White Japan and Hackensack. Parsnips—Common Dutch Hollow Crown. Peas—Extra Early Dan O'Rourke, American Wonder. Champion of England. Pepper—Large Bell and Butternosed. Radishes—French Breakfast and Covent Garden. Ruta Bagas—American Purple-top, improved. Squash—Scallop, American Turban. Hubbard. Sweet corn—Early Minnesota. Crosby's Early, Stowell's Evergreen. These, if planted at the same time, will give proper succession. Tomato—Trophy and Acme. Turnips—Flat Dutch. Watermelons—Mountain Sweet.

An evil under the sun is miscellaneous nomenclature. For instance:

"I have had early peas sent to me under different names and by different seedsmen and all planted on the same day, all cared for precisely alike, and all alike claiming to be remarkably early and prolific as well as excellent in quaity, and yet every one of them precisely like the old Extra Early Dan O'Rourke that I used to grow I do not know how many years ago. The American Wonder is the only one of the new varjeties that I have tried in many years that really, seems to be an acquisition to our list. It is a dwarf about second early, and with me a good bearer and of excellent quality. I mention this to show the farmer that as a rule it is better for him to rely upon the old standard list, until some grower with whom he is acquainted has fairly tested the new variety, and ascertained whether or not it is worthy of cultivation."

Among small fruits our author has tried to recommend only what will do well with fair cultivation in any good soil. Wilson is the strawberry—if you can only get it true to name—with No. 30 and Sharpless "for a few show berries," Donner' s Prolific as "a fair bearer of excellent quality," and Kentucky, admirable for prolonging the season:

"I am constantly trying those of the new varieties that seem to me most likely to do well, but almost invariably lose both time and money. I have some twelve or fifteen varieties of these now on trial, but I presume the result with nearly or quite all will be the same as with hundreds of others I have had during the last twenty-five years, namely, after two or three years of trouble and expense plough them under for manure."

In conclusion President Smith recalls a fact or two showing that "exercise of some good, common sense" is all that is needed to insure success. In twenty-five years he has failed but once to harvest a paying crop, even of strawberries, but during the same period potatoes have repeatedly proven unprofitable.

Cottage Cheese.

A kind of cheese recently coming into demand in all our chief towns and cities, says the Boston Journal of Chemistry, would soon have an immense consumption if there were an adequate supply. In some localities it is called "pot" or "cottage cheese;" in others "Dutch cheese," or "sour curds." It is simply the curd of sour milk drained from the whey, moulded into small fancy shapes, and eaten while fresh, or soon after. The manufacture is quite simple. The milk is allowed to become loppered, when it is generally heated, to facilitate separation of the whey. The curds are then gathered and salted, or otherwise to suit the taste, and pressed into small moulds or formed with the hand into balls or pats of suitable shape, when it is ready for the table. In cool weather, when the sour milk does not readily thicken, it may be put into a suitable vessel, set in hot water over the range, and stirred a few minutes until the whey begins to separate. It is then removed and treated as before described. It is usually made from skimmed milk; and fresh butter or sweet cream is often added to the curds while manipulating and pressing into form. This improves the quality and flavor for many.

The Rage for Crazy Quilts.

The particular species of fancy work which has lately possessed the minds and fingers of young women is that of "crazy quilts." Somebody has decreed that silk quilts must be made of odd pieces, not cut in regular blocks as our grandmothers made patchwork but basted on a cambric lining, helter-skelter, the edges turned in and worked over in brier-stitch or cut-stitch in floss. The colors of the patches and sewing silk are chosen hap-hazard; the "crazier" the effect of the work the better. Somebody made this decree, but the women went even further in carrying it out. Not content with crazily stitching the odd pieces of silk together, they now embroider every separate patch in floss, or they decorate it with painting, or they attach to it a flower cut from brocade, like an applique figure, and instead of using only brier-stitch and cut-stitch for the joining they employed every variety of fancy stitch, including all the conceits known as South Kensington and Point Russe. And these same ladies defend their practice by saying that crazy work affords ample room for economy, as it enables one to use every scrap of silk or vlevet, however small, and it exercises the taste and ingenuity, as it gives the widest field for the display of originality. So they have all taken the craze over crazy work. When they do not make quilts of it they make tidies, lambrequins, table-covers and borders for other quilts.

But, sooner or later, this fashion must die out. The test of beauty is of tenutility, and an expert needle woman must know that the floss raised above the surface of the quilt must wear out before the silk patches will. What then will become of the quilt, once the stitches have given way? Then the old-time patterns, already become fashionable again, will take on a new lease of favor. These were made by carefully cutting out the silk, basting them over pieces of stiff paper and overseaming them finely on the wrong side. Among the old patterns those now growing in popularity are the tea-box, consisting of three diamonds, forming a cube in perspective; the log-cabin, or state house steps, displaying graduated strips surrounding a central square, so as to form as it were, piles of logs or flights of steps, and the patty-pan, or group of seven hexagons, the whole effect of a quilt so made being that of a pavement of hexagonal tiles.

Poultry Raising.

The raising of poultry can be made a success, and those who do not make a success of it should not lay the blame at the barn-yard gates. I know of a poultry breeder who raised from 300 t 400 large, healthy fowls on a lot wit 100 feet frontage and 150 feet back This breeder is Mrs. R. J. Raynor, no of Fruitvale, Alabama, a woman w has raised more prize-winning Lan shans than all the breeders on the P cific Coast combined; not in her ow hands, but in the hands of other bree ers, and all were raised on a city lot Folsom street. I know of a neighb of mine who makes a comfortable livi from fowls and eggs. keeps from 300 to 500 fowls, and giv them care and attention, and plenty oyster shells, burned bones, etc. always gives his fowls a change of di feeding corn, bran, wheat and broo corn. He has a fine patch of alfa and a running stream of water. Abo twenty-five fowls are enough in house, say 8x10. I keep horses, c and poultry. I find poultry requi no more attention than any other stock, and, if given proper care and tention, pays well. But some pe think thus: "Well, I buy 500 hen can make a living without worki I'll buy a farm and put stock on it. won't have to work." This is all a take. Everything connected with fe ing requires care and attention to m a success of it.—Thomas Waite, in cific Rural Press.

"Sluming."

"Sluming," the new English fad, much to recommend it, though it m have a prettier sounding name and whose meaning does not seem to ir something in the nature of an insu the people who are visited. Ever Prince of Wales has been "slumi Most everybody knows what "slun is, for the rich and well-to-do to upon and help the very needy. danger is that the calling and hel may be so done as to offend the fe of those called up, but where that c avoided, and it ought not to be impo to avoid it, "sluming" is not fashionable craze. Besides rend immediate relief where relief is needed, it shows the society ladi gentlemen how their unfortunate creatures have to live, and thi knowledge which will tend to their hearts when appeals are ma them in behalf of the unfortunate "sluming" has gone out of styl should be said, however, that fas not hard to awaken to a practical est in the poor. That is not the al opinion but it is the truth, as consideration will convince you. ion seldom rests from helping the and there is scarcely a fashionabl who has not a list of people fo she regularly provides.—[Philad Progress.

The Rev. O. B. Forthingham cided to make Boston his hom after.

Sixty million pounds of co said to have been produced Lake Superior copper min year.

MY WIDOW.

Jones advised me not to marry her—he said she was too young and pretty.

Farnum advised me to be an old bachelor—told me a man past forty simply made a fool of himself by matrimony.

Tewksbery, a man who is notorious for never minding his own business, told me she had a love affair with Harry Birmingham before he went South.

Allen shook his head, and said Clara Myers might be very pretty, but he liked somebody maturer and settled. (N. B. He married his housekeeper the next week, and she is mature enough for Methusaleh himself.)

Everybody thought I was trying a dangerous experiment; but I didn't pretend to suit everybody, so I simply suited myself. I went quietly to church with Clara Myers, and married her one glorious January morning when the old St. Paul's was fringed with glittering icicles, and the brisk wind was freighted with the particles of flying snow, like a battallion of diamonds on a double quick. It was a crisp winter morning, but the keen air only made it all the more exhilarating, and just the day and occasion to make one's spirit exuberant and happy.

She was nineteen, and I was nine-and-thirty. She was as beautiful as a rose-bud; I was a rough old codger, sound at heart, but, like a winter apple, unpromising on the exterior.

In short, we were as unlike as May and November; and the good natured world shook its head, and said, "No good could come of such an unequal match." But she said she loved me, and I believed her. Nobody could look into Clara's blue eyes and not believe her, you see.

The next day I made a will and bequeathed all my property unconditionally to my wife.

"Are you sure you are doing a wise thing, Mr. Folliot?" said Mr. Mardyn, the lawyer, pushing his blue spectacles up on his forehead, until he looked like an old bald gnome, with a double pair of eyes. "You see she is very much younger than yourself, and—"

"Please be so kind as to mind your own business!" said I, brusquely.

"Don't be offended, Mardyn, but really people seem to suppose I am not able to attend to my own affairs."

"Just as you please," said Mardyn in a rage. "I am a tool in your hands."

"That's it exactly," said I. So I signed the will and went home to Clara.

"Oh, Paul! you must not die!" said Clara, with a scared look, when I told her what I had done. "Nobody ever loved me as truly as you have done, and I don't know what I should do if you were taken away."

"There was a young Birmingham, if all reports are true—" I mischievously began; but the curl on Clara's lip stopped me.

"A mere butterfly!" she sighed haughtily, "without either brains or principle. Paul! Paul! I have found a shelter in your true, loving heart, and I mean to nestle there always."

And then she cried—this foolhis soft hearted little wife of mine.

Jones and Tewksbery might have called this policy. Farnum would have said it was acting. But it was very pleasant, and I felt more than ever like a man who has found some precious jewel and wears it like an amulet on his breast.

So things went on until the firm of which I was managing partner needed to send some one to Calcutta to see after a turbaned scoundrel of an agent who had absconded with more money than we could well afford to lose. Morrison was old and feeble; Hewitt's wife lay very ill; so I was the one to go. I kissed Clara good-bye as cheerfully as I could, fully expecting to be back in three months oa so.

I had to follow the agent up into the mountains of India. I fell ill of one of those burning, climatic fevers in the bungalow of an old native priest, and the months flew by until it was more than a year before I found myself on the deck of the "Blue-eyed Mary," steaming into New York harbor.

And all this time Clara had not heard a word from me. I had written to her to prepare her for what seemed almost my rising from the dead; but I had afterwards found my letters in the pocket of the neglectful native servant who had undertaken to deliver the mail to the Calcutta office. "But it don't matter so much now," I thought: "she will be more [illegible]hted, poor little girl!" And then a [illegible] chill seemed to creep through all my veins, like November's winds suddenly breathing across a bed of flowers.

Clara had heard nothing of me for nearly fifteen months. What might have happened in that time? All that Tewksbery and Jones and Allen and all their prophetic ravens of my acquaintance had said, recurred to my mind like a burden of an uneasy dream. I had been counting the hours and the very minutes, until we could touch port; but now that my feet rang the pavement of my native city, I actually did not go home! I turned into a down-town restaurant, where I had wont to go in the days of my bachelorhood and slunk into that dark corner. The twilight was just falling, and I was sheltered by the partition. Hush! that was Tewksbery's voice—harsh and jarring as of old.

"Just what might have been expected," said Tewksbery. "Pretty and young widows don't go begging in this market!"

"Folliot might have known it!" growled old Farnum. "Poor Folliot! There are some good points about him, [illegible] Sad thing that, very sad thing?"

"We must all die," said Tewksbery [illegible]ly.

"Yes; but a fellow would naturally prefer dying in his bed to being carried off by an East India fever and burried in the jungles."

I shuddered. Had I come home to my own funeral as it were?

"And she is going to marry young Birmingham, after all!" added Farnum.

The paper dropped from my hand. "I could have told Folliot so when I found out what a confounded idiotic mistake he had made," said Tewksbery. "Gold has fallen again. Just my luck; I sold out to-day."

I waited to hear no more, but staggered out into the darkness with one idea throbbing through my dizzy brain—my wife was mine no longer.

[illegible] was questionable what Tewksbery said. [illegible] might have anticipated [illegible] she was too young, [illegible] a rough fellow as I. "My widow!"—what a curious sensation the words gave as I mentally pronounced them.

Under my own window, with the ruby red light shining through the wine-colored damask curtains, I stood there feeling as Rip Van Winkle might have felt in the play—like a dead man walking on the earth once more. Voices and lights were within. I opened the door softly and crept into the hall. The drawing-room door was ajar. Clara herself stood before the fire, with a frill of white crape on her auburn gold tresses—the awful sign of her widowhood. Directly opposite stood Harry Birmingham looking diabolically young and handsome in the soft light.

"Clara, Clara!" he cried "you are surely not in earnest. You will reconsider!"

"My answer is final," she replied. "The time might have once been when I had a childish liking for you Harry Birmingham. But that time has long since passed away. I gave my heart to the best and noblest man that ever breathed Paul Folliot, and in his grave it is buried. I loved him once: I shall love him on into eternity. I never was half worthy of him, but—

And Clara's voice was choked with sobs.

"My love! my darling! my own precious wife"

How I ever got into the room—how I managed to make Clara comprehend that I was my own living self and not a ghost arising from the shadow of sepulchre, I cannot tell to day. Neither can she. But I know that you Birmgingham somehow disappeared, and I was standing with Clara clasped to my breast, the happiest man that ever breathed God's blessed air.

For Jones, Tweksbery, Farum & Co. were all wrong; and, to use the words of the orthodox fairy stories slightly paraphrased, I and my widow, lived happy ever afterward."

Misused Words.

A writer in Macmillan's Magazine, anxious to preserve the "well of English unbefyled," calls attention to the wrong use of such words as "fain," "greet," "circumstance," "incident," "numerous" and witness."

"Fain" signifies "joyful" or "glad." Yet there are writers who strangely misuse this good old Saxon word. If any man has failed in an effort to get something, and is driven to put up with something else instead, these writers say that the defeated person was "fain" to accept the disagreeable alternative.

When we salute a person with some demonstration of personal feeling, such, for instance, as a smile, or a hearty shake of the hand, we greet him. Yet in the English of journalists an unpopular speaker at a caucus is said to have been "greeted" with a shower of mud, or with cries of "turn him out,"

"Circumstance is derived from a Latin word which means to stand around. In good old English the word is used to indicate the condition of things surrounding an event. But in modern English the word is frequently, though improperly used to signify a fact. A quarrel in the street is not "a circumstance," even though it is reported as such. It may, however, be explained, or excused, or accounted for, by circumstances.

An "incident" (from the Latin incidere, to fall upon) is something that happens upon another thing, though not necessarily connected with it. If for instance, a rainbow should break forth while a man was being murdered, that appearance would be an incident of the murder, but it would have no essential connection with it.

Should a fire burn a building to the ground, that would be a fact, though the morning papers might speak of it as an "incident." If, however, a woman should jump from the burning building, the reporter might properly describe that as an "incident" of the fire.

"Numerous" is often substituted for "many." He who uses the common phrase, "our numerous friends," would have it understood that he has "many friends," though to a precision he suggests that each friend is "numerous," which, to say the least, is an awkward idea. The word will always be used correctly if it is remembered that "numerous" is an adjective properly qualifying such nouns as "crowd," "family," "class," "crew," "assembly," "troops," "herd," "flock," etc.

The witness is he who knows from personal perception, and "to witness" means to testify. It is therefore improper to say that a person went "to witness" an exhibition of paintings, when we mean that he went "to see" it.

AN ANT'S BRAIN.

A Wonderful Piece of Physical Mechanism.

Well may Darwin speak of the brain of an ant as one of the most wondrous particles of matter in the world. We are apt to think that it is impossible for so minute a piece of matter to possess the necessary complexity required for the discharge of such elaborate functions. The microscope will no doubt show some details in the ant's brain, but these fall hopelessly short of revealing the refinement which the ant's brain must really have. The microscope is not adequate to show us the texture of the matter. It has been one of the great discoveries of modern times to enable us to form some numerical estimate of the exquisite delicacy of the fabric which we know as inert matter. Water, or air, or iron may be divided and subdivided, but the process cannot be carried on indefinitely. There is a well-defined limit. We are even able to make some approximation to the number of molecules in a given mass of matter. Thomson has estimated that the number of atoms in a cubic inch of air is to be expressed by the figure 3, followed by no fewer than twenty ciphers. The brain of the ant doubtless contains more atoms than an equal volume of air, but even if we suppose them to be the same, and if we take the size of an ant's brain to be a little globe one-thousandth of an inch in diameter, we are able to form some estimate of the number of atoms it must contain. The number is to be expressed by writing down six, and following it by eleven ciphers. We can imagine these atoms grouped in so many various ways that even the complexity of the ant's brain may be intelligible when we have so many units to deal with. An illustration will perhaps make the argument clearer. Take a million and a half of little black marks, put them in a certain order, and we have a wondrous result—Darwin's Descent of Man. This book merely consists of about 1,500,000 letters placed one after the other in a certain order. Whatever be the complexity of the ant's brain it is still hard to believe that it could not be fully described in 400,000 volumes, each as large as Darwin's work, Yet the number of molecules in the ant's brain is at least 400,000 times as great as that number of letters in the memorable volume in question.

Endurance of Human Friendship.

B A writer in the New York World recently had a talk with an old grave-digger, and drew from him some interesting observations upon the question as to who manifest the most grief when death enters the domestic circle and carries off the loved ones of the household. He remarked:

A mother who loses her first child is about as sad a sight you would care to see at the grave, and I am positive there is no grief equal to hers; next, the daughter over the loss of either of her parents, or the parents over the loss of their daughter; then the husband over the loss of his wife, and lastly the wife over the death of her husband. As for relatives any more distant than these, the grief is of short duration. Of course, there are exceptions to this rule, but I am speaking generally. I have seen lovers stand by the graves of their betrothed and weep with more earnestness and show the grief that filled their hearts to a much greater extent than did any parent. A young lady pledged in marriage to a gentleman will show the most uncontrollable sorrow, and will often swoon at the grave, but after marriage she is the first to get over it. I think a man's grief is more lasting. Let me show you. Here is a little three-year-old child's grave; see how neat it looks and how fresh the flowers are. They were placed there by a poor mother; now on this side is a husband's grave, On the slab it says he was but 26 years old. I dug that grave, and that cross of flowers was placed there on the day of the funeral, and the wife has not been here since. Now walk up this path a little way and I'll show you a wife's grave. But wait, see that young girl over near the big walk cleaning twigs off of that grave with the wooden cross? Her mother is buried there and has been for five years but every week, when the weather permits, she comes here to attend to it. Now, here's the wife's grave, and that neat little headstone and flowers were placed there by her husband. He's a poor brakeman on the railroad, and she has been dead for three years, but you drop in here any Sunday when he's off and you'll find him here, cutting the grass around it or doing something toward making it look neat, and paying what little tribute he can to her who must have been so dear to him.

Condensations.

The recent floods out west were very damaging to pianofortes. In one town the cost of repairing pianos was estimated at $10,000. Pianos have not as yet been manufactured that will float round two days without sustaining serious injury. Who can tell but that some ingenious Yankee will soon introduce a piano warranted in case of floods to remain under water a week without damage.

Sixteen leading railways in Great Britain earned during the last half of 1883 $3,747,780 more than in the last half of 1882, and this increase was almost equally divided between increased expenses and increased net revenue, the latter amounting to $1,816,390, or 2¼ per cent. But there was an increase of 2¼ per cent. in the miles run by trains—107,542,461 miles in the six months. The increase in traffic receipts was $1,938,010 from passengers, $849,405 from merchandise, and $1,148,980 from minerals, with a decrease in live-stock.

In order to raise money for a church aid society in New Haven an auction sale of old maids was gotten up by the the ladies. They disguised themselves and went on the block heavily veiled. The first ones put up brought good round prices, ranging from $10 to $14, but these figures could not be maintained. The last one was knocked down to a clever, well-to-do mechanic for the beggarly sum of 23 cents. When the veil was lifted she was found to be the handsomest, most intelligent and wealthiest girl of the crowd. The buyer said he was sorry it wasn't a sure enough sale. She said she was too. The absence of the minister was all that prevented a grand finale to the entertrinment.

Of the late Judge Lord, of Massachusetts, the Boston Post says: "His bluntness and sternness incurred for him the dislike of some, but it is safe to say that he enjoyed the respect of every one. He belonged to the old school of judiciary, and he was one of the ablest and most upright men that the present generation has known, even in that school. His name will be written high upon the roll of Massachusetts judges."

Alex F. Wotzka was released from the Todd county jail recently by order of Judge Collins. He had been confined since Jan 30th on an indictment for forgery. He has been acquitted of a charge of burglary and larceny. The forgery case is not substantiated by sufficient evidence, and it is believed that the case will be dismissed.

A Curious Incident.

A curious incident is related in regard to the recent death of Dr. Yandell in Louisville, Ky. On the day of his death he called on a physician, and, the subject of chloral being mentioned, he told his friend a case that had come under his notice. A patient suffered much from trouble with his heart, and while suffering severely summoned Dr. Yandell. Dr. Yandell administered a dose of chloral, which he assured his patient would relieve him. It did some good for a few moments, but then the patient fell back in his chair and died. It was, said Dr. Yandell in speaking of the case, too sudden for the chloral to have produced the death, and the man had simply died of angina pectoras, or paralysis of the heart. In describing this case to his friend Dr. Yandell imitated the actions of the dying man, falling back in his chair and throwing his arms about. A few hours later and under just the same circumstances he himself breathed his last.

The quantity of distilled spirits in the United States in October last was 115,849,235 gallons, of which the United States was taking care of 74,582,148 gallons until the owners could find it convenient to pay the tax on it. The amount of human misery, says the Nation, the murders, the fires, the suicides, the defalcations, the loss of property and health, the divorces, the family shame and sorrow stored up in this amount of liquor is simply incalculable.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Useful Household Hints.

HICCOUGHS.—Sit erect and inflate the lungs fully. Then, retaining the breath, bend forward slowly until the chest meets the knees. After slowly raising again to the erect posture exhale the breath. Repeat this process a second time, and the nerves will be found to have received an access of energy that will enable them to perform their natural functions.

Four brothers in Schenectady were lately sick at the same time with "filth fever"—commonly known as typhoid—and two died and were buried in one grave. The trouble all came of "drinking water from a well into which a cesspool drained."

An English doctor who has given much attention to the important subject celebrates milk with well-cooked oatmeal porridge, as the best possible food with which to raise children to robust men and women, and as of equal benefit to adult invalids, with perhaps bread or whole wheat as substitute for the meal. Dyspeptics especially often regain wonderful strength and "pick up flesh at a wonderful rapid rate" on this simple but perfect diet of Nature's own providing.

An excellent preparation for softening the hands is made of equal parts of lamb suet and of glycerine; melt them gently together, add a few drops of some strong perfume, and use after bathing; rub a little thoroughly into the skin.

Cases of poisoning by tinned provisions multiply. Lately a dozen persons in Glascow who ate of the same lot of canned mutton were taken sick, and one boy died in consequence, as a surgeon certified. Latest advices from Morristown, Tenn., announced the death, after excruciating suffering, and despito the use of every known antidote, of the three Guthrie children, who had canned black-berries for supper, and the mother was past help. The father did not taste the fruit and so "escaped with his life."

It is generally best to break an engagement by letter, as by this means one can express himself or herself more clearly, and give the true reasons for his or her course much better than in a personal interview. The letter should be accompanied by everything in the way of portraits, letters, or gifts received during the engagement. Such a letter should be acknowledged in a dignified manner, and no effort made to change the decision of the writer, unless there is good reason to believe that he or she is mistaken in his or her ideas.

There is nothing more convenient for house keepers than a compartment bag for worsteds, pieces of woolen and linen, crocheting, etc. It may be made of cashmere, poplin or plaid goods, and lined with cretonne, or the whole made of cretonne. A needle-book will be a convenient addition.

The bib apron is again popular. All sorts of goods are used in its manufacture, from lace to velvet. Exquisite ones are fashioned of white lace, and those of red velvet pleasingly relieve a black dress. Cehenille is a favorite material for these fancy dress protectors, which are three-quarters of a yard square and closely gathered at the waist.

INFLAMED EYELIDS.—B. L. T. says a bathing in hot salt water is very effective. P. V. V, writes: "A little fine table salt under eyelids inflamed from granulations will if not too badly diseased, cure them; in all cases will relieve. If from simple inflammation I have (and for twenty-five years not known a failure) used the white of an egg beaten with a tiny piece of alumn. When stiff spread on a piece of close lace and lay on the closed eyes. The oftener this is applied the quicker the relief." H. S. writes: "Two teaspoonfuls of pulverized borax, one spirits of camphor, one pint of water. If the eyelids are much inflamed add more water. The above is a harmless and very effectual remedy. It may be applied whenever the sufferer pleases."

Short Paragraphs for Farmers.

Mr. J. S. Kirkham cautions brother farmers against putting themselves "into the hands of the expert manufacturer of promissory notes."

Some Michigan people were lately victimized by an agent selling alleged "Holland bulbs of rare varieties," which proved to be good for nothing.

A New Jersey farmer writes to the New York Herald that he gave a dressing of salt (eight bushels to the acre) to land badly infested with white grubs, and for three years after raised good crops of corn, which was impossible previous to this application.

Cleanliness is godliness on the farm. Clean implements, clean harness, clean animals, clean fence corners, clean fields, clean garden, clean orchard, clean seeds, clean pasture, clean yards, clean stables, clean shelters, clean troughs, clean food, clean water, clean litter, clean sleeping quarters, clean granaries, and a clean conscience.

One of the best things that can be said of horticulture is that the pursuit of it leads to more correct views of what constitutes beauty. We cannot associate with beautiful flowers without acquiring correct taste and the heart is molded as well as the mind. The study of flowers is a rest in itself, no matter how hard we have to labor, and the labor is only recreation if we truly love flowers.

Sudden changes of food should always be avoided with young animals. It is the best plan to give them bran, or ground oats, mixed with one-fourth of linseed meal, and to make this food uniform throughout the entire Winter. They should be fed regularly, as two meals crowded into the stomach too close together are likely to produce disarrangement and scours.

The great weight required to be supported by the feet of draft horses renders these parts quite liable to many affections, which may, in a great measure be avoided by frequent judicious shoeing. The texture of the horn of the draft horse's foot is not, as a rule, so firm and resisting as we usually find in lighter breeds, but this deficiency is largely made up by increase in size, to which if we add proper shoeing, their feet should prove just as durable as, or even more durable than the feet of the roadster.

The Hon. C. M. Clay says that the Jerseys are the native cattle of Russia, and he could load a fleet with them at from $3 to $10 per head. If this is true there is true there is no use in the farmers of the Channel Islands allowing the supply to fall off. It is more than probable if we should import directly from Russia a little careful judgment would give us a stock of Jerseys that would be hardy, vigorous and able to "hoe their own row."

Prof. Knapp, president of the Iowa agricultural college, says that a broad distinction should be made between tile-draining and open-ditch draining. The open-ditch aids the rapid escape of the surface water, carrying with it all the elements of fertility. They mar the landscape, obstruct the labors of the husbandman, and fail to meet the demands of scientific drainage. Tile-drainage almost entirely prevents surface washing; the porus soil takes up the water like a great sponge, and passes it off through the drains. This is done slowly, giving ample time for its escape by the great natural channels. After a considerable fall of water it requires from ten to fourteen days for the drains to discharge the increase.

In feeding clear corn meal there is always a waste proportionate to the amount fed in a double sort of ratio. A close examination of the excrement will always show this. Other foods taken into the stomach with it help in its digestion. Bran should always be mixed with it. Without going into the chemistry of the matter, it may be sufficient to say that experience has taught me that on a ration of bran, corn meal and linseed meal, mixed in proportion of three, two and one respectively, cattle will grow faster than when fed the same measure of clear corn meal.

Transplanting Trees.

In this season for tree-planting it will be well to remember that the first requisite for good results is soundness—indicated by a fresh, white, moist like appearance of the roots when slightly scratched with the thumb-nail, like that of apple or potato flush by the bark being clean and entire, and the shoots plump and well ripened—plump terminal buds. Second, permit no exposure or drying of the roots until covered with the fine, clean, damp mould; drying is the commonest cause of death to trees, but they can also drown; the soil should have good natural or other drainage. Third, early planting is necessary to give time for the root wounds to callus, without which new roots cannot form. Moisture and some access of air are essential to this; soaking wetness is very detrimental. Fourth, the manner of planting is less important. A nurseryman sets a young plant in a hole, the root-points at least four or five inches down and the collar even with the surface; scrapes the mold in with his foot, and gives it a stamp to close it into contact with every part of the root; in half a minute he has done all that is essential. Fifth, the after-culture is especially important the first season. Let no other plant live to extend its roots into the soil that the young tree is to feed upon. Before the hot drouths of July and August, a liberal mulch spread widely over the surface in an excellent protection; and if no leaves come out to shade the stem, a loose wrapping of paper or straw to keep the parts moist and plump greatly aids the ascent of the sap from the root-points to the leaves. Take especial care of the leaves; let none be soiled or broken.—N. Y. Tribune.

Cultivation of Onions.

The onion trials of the last season at the New York experiment station were with thirty-four named varieties, which were planted in rows ten feet long and eleven and one-half inches apart, the seeds being covered one-half inch deep. Three rows of each variety were planted in order to note the difference upon yield of closeness in planting. In the first row the plants were thinned to three inches apart; in the second to two inches, and in the third to one inch apart. The earliest variety to mature its bulb was the Extra Early Red, in 116 days from planting; the latest, ten varieties, in 163 days. In nearly every case the yield was smallest in the first row, where the spaces were three inches, and largest in the third row, where the spaces were one inch, but in no case was the increased yield of the second and third rows in proportion to the increased number of plants. As a rule, the largest bulbs were in the first row. There seems to be a foundation for the opinion held by some onion growers that the bulbs develop better, offering fewer scallions where they are so close in the row as to crowd each other. The following experiment with onions is quite suggestive: The soil was thoroughly pulverized over a small plat of ground and on an adjoining plat of equal size the ground was packed as hard as possible by repeatedly pounding it with a heavy maul. The surface of both plats was then covered with finely pulverized soil to the depth of half an inch, and on June 3 three rows on each plat were planted with seed of the large red Wethersfield onion. Late planting was disadvantageous to the yield, but the three rows on the compact soil yielded nine pounds seven ounces of merchantable bulbs, while the three rows on the pulverized soil yielded but three pounds three ounces. The percentage of vegetation in the two plats was not noticeably different, although the vegetation was prompter on the compact soil.

To Cure a Babe of a Habit.

It is a fact that babies are not all alike by any means, and some are much more troublesome than others, about putting things into their mouths. An inquiring mother asks how this may be stopped. An instance that came under my observation may let light in upon this subject. The baby at fifteen months old had a perfect mania for putting everything into his mouth—chessmen, shoe-buttons, pennies, etc., and his mother was alarmed at the strength of the habit and set about remedying it. She took a little pepper box into the nursery one day and sprinkled a little black pepper over the things the baby was most likely to put into his mouth. He dropped them one after another, and she thought the victory was complete; but the next day he presented the spectacle of a burnt child who does not dread the fire, but after repeating the peppering for three consecutive days the habit of a life-time was overcome to a very great extent.

SHOPPING IN VENICE.

The Mental Exhilaration of Dealing With an Italian.

Indeed, I am fast coming to believe that an immense loss of human happiness is caused in our own country by our stupid and unintellectual system of having fixed prices for all articles. We go into a shop, pay what is asked and then go tamely away with our bundles. Any fool can do this: and what measurable benefit has insured to him from a transaction in the way of finer mental acuteness or an ampler or nobler command of the language of persuasion, amazement, vituperation, grief, despair; in fine, of the whole gamut of human passion? The story is told of a Damascus merchant, that a friend, on coming in and finding him in a condition of abject prostration, and supposing it must be caused by some domestic affliction, received for answer that it was worse than that. "By the tomb of the holy prophet! what do you think?" cried out the afflicted merchant; "why, but an hour ago there came into my shop an American traveler to buy a silver-mounted dagger, and the slave paid me the full price I asked the first time. What possible satisfaction can there be in doing business on such principles? I shall abandon trade if this is what the thing is coming to!" Now there was deep reason in the poor fellow's grief. The finest life of man lies in energy of intellect and fire of passion. When a bargain means a keen encounter of wits, and the buying and selling of a yard of ribbon stand for a splendid opportunity to overwhelm an antagonist with argument, refutal, ridicule, pathos, appeal to the whole Heavenly hierarchy, then at once does the pitiful business of barter swell to the dignity of the battle-field or of the contests of the forum. Starting with charging two or three times what you are willing finally to take, a grand range of defensive positions is secured, one after another of which may be abandoned after a hard fight, and still in the end a victory of twenty-five to fifty per cent. be won. Now an Italian would sooner give up business at once than sink to the dull and monotonous prose of what is called trade with us. He freely avows he derives far more pleasure from "selling a man" handsomely once than from having him for a regular customer for years in any such dull and stupid conditions. Once in a while indeed, he prints "Fixed Prices" on the window of his shop, but this is merely to indicate the point at which the battle is to begin. Too well he knows that he would soon lose every native customer if he were debarred the pleasure of beating him down, assaulting the character of his goods and courteously informing him that he is a thief and an assassin. For the excitement of the conflict is a mutual one and belongs to both seller and buyer. Very amusing has it been to me to watch the steady growth of a passion for this species of encounter in the young ladies of our party. Whenever they return home, with their cheeks and eyes unusually glowing and brilliant, I prepare myself for an animated narrative of a series of brilliant maneuvers. The yard of silk or pair of scissors bought shines, to them, like spurs or epaulets won on a battle-field, as they begin to unfold how the dealer started out with charging seven francs, and they rejoined with an offer of two; however, forthwith, he swore that the article cost him every penny of seven and he was only giving it away at that, and they laughed in his face and warned him against the perils of too profuse generosity; how then he pathetically demanded whether they wanted to reduce to starvation a poor but honest family, and they triumphantly replied that they had seen polenta quoted at only three cents a pound; how, finally, they knit their brows like fate and resolutely left the shop, only, after they had gone far enough to make him sure they meant it, to see him run after them and, with showers of compliments, agree to give the articles at their own prices.—[Special Correspondence Boston Herald.

Milk For Tea And Coffee.

That there is an appreciable difference between raw and boiled milk may be proved by taking equal quantities of each (the boiled sample having been allowed to cool down), adding them to equal quantities of the same infusion of coffee, then critically tasting the mixtures. The difference is sufficient to have long since established the practice among all skillful cooks of scrupulously using boiled milk for making cafe au lait. I have tried a similar experiment on tea, and find that in this case the cold milk is preferable. Why this should be, why boiled milk should be better for coffee and raw milk for tea, I cannot tell. If any of my readers have not done so already, let them try similar experiments with condensed milk, and I have no doubt that the verdict of the majority will be that it is passable with coffee, but very objectionable in tea. This is milk that has been very much cooked. The chief definable alteration effected by the boiling of milk is the coagulation of the small quantity of albumen which it contains. This rises as it becomes solidified, and forms a skin like scum on the surface, which may be lifted with a spoon and eaten, as it is perfectly wholesome and very nutritious.—Popular Science Monthly.

Of One Who Fell from High Estate.

Washington Letter in the Inter-Ocean.

The name of Ex-Senator Ferry, of Michigan, has been spoken of in connection with the vacant mission to St. Petersburg, but there is no probability of his appointment. A Washington lady, who has just returned from Europe and met him there, says that he was so much changed that she scarcely knew him, and did not recognize him until he spoke. The ex-Senator's appearance, she says, is quite distressing, and he required the most constant attention from his sister, who is the companion of his travels. He was then visiting one of German spas and thought the waters were doing him good. There is a story current here that the Senator has for several years been a victim of the morphine mania, and that his weakness is the result of an endeavor to cure himself of the use of the drug.

It has been estimated that the gold yield of Victoria in 1883 was 740,878 ounces, or 189,108 ounces less than in 1882.

THE NEW EL DORADO.

Something About the Gold Fields in Idaho.

Here I am in the snow, with the thermometer at twenty below this morning. Pack trains are moving right along toward the mines all the same, and more are coming in from the railroad every day. When men start for gold it matters very little how many other men advise them to wait. The nuggets brought out are tempting looking pieces of metal, whose glitter is well adapted to turn ones head from the usual way of plodding and to turn one's feet toward the mines. Of course it would be better for these men to wait awhile; and to wait here is not very expensive, compared to living up at the mines. At the hotel the charges are $2 a day, with something "knocked off" for long-time bargains; and there is about everything here that one need have in fact, the supplies are coming in and the stores are going up at a rate calculated to make this the outfitting point for those going into the mines this summer. The merchants, traders and hotel men have settled down to the expectation that there will be no less than 50,000 men here during the next six months, and the going back and forth of this number will make a city of this quiet spot down by the lake—where Gen. Sherman located the fort with much pride of selection.

The officers here at the fort—many of whom have been here ever since the fort was built—are as credulous as the miners. They seem to think that the rest of the world has been pretty much all prospected and prodded, and that they must rush in and get some gold out of the Cœur d'Alene mountains, if they ever expect to have that great fortune which has lured them on from hardship to disappointment through California, Nevada, Colorado and Montana. Some of them will "strike it," and many of them will not. One need not be a prophet to know this.

The new gold fields of Cœur d' Alene may be reached within forty miles by taking the Northern Pacific to Rathdrum, a town of some 500 population. Thence there is a direct road to Eagle City, the center of the mines, only forty miles distant.

Large numbers of men are going into the mines with the expectation of going to work at once upon their arrival. They are sure to be disappointed. There are thousands of men out of employment, and a good many on the verge of starvation. A man is foolish to go there at this time of year unless he has plenty to keep him until the mines are ready to be open up. I write this for the benefit of men who contemplete coming out to these mines. The proper time to start is about the 1st of April—and no sooner—and then you will be at least a couple of weeks too early. Everything is held at three times its value, and I would advise anyone from the States to come well provided with blankets and plenty of provisions.—Cœur d'Alene Correspondence Pioneer Press.

Death of a Beauty.

A St. Louis account of the death of Mrs. Paramore, nee Nellie Hazeltine, states that she gave birth to a son on St. Valentine's day. All unconscious of her impending fate, and over-confident in the strength which had been her's all through her life, the young mother communicated the news of the coming of her little son to a number of her intimate personal friends through cards bearing these words:

Compliments of
Mrs. Frederick Wallace Paramore and son,
Born St. Valentine's Day, 1884.

These cards were received by many of the friends to whom they were addressed within twenty-four hours after the event had occurred. The cards were in Mrs. Paramore's handwriting, and the effort in writing them in all probability brought on the fever which caused her death.

She made her debut in society on her seventeenth birthday at a party given in her honor by her mother. From the night of her debut she took a front rank as a beautiful girl, and soon had the name of being the belle of St. Louis. The great social successes of Nellie Hazeltine are too many and too well known to need recounting. In her twentieth year she visited the Eastern watering places, and on Dec. 2, 1881, she was married to Mr. F. W. Paramore, son of Col. J. W. Paramore, president of the Texas & St. Louis railway. The wedding was solemnized in Philadelphia by the bishop of that Episcopal diocese, and was a brilliant affair. From the date of her marriage she lived quietly with her husband, but indulged in many social entertainments, notably the historical encampment at the armory and at a dramatic performance of the McCullough club. She was quite successful as an amateur actress, her fine elocutionary training serving her.

There have been many differences of opinion on the subject of Mrs. Paramore's beauty. Photographers vied with each other in reproducing her face, while artists vainly endeavored to put her features on canvas. As a girl she was tall and graceful, her figure being marked by square shoulders, a small waist, and the large, free limbs of an English woman. Her features were Grecian. Her face was oval, and her eyes, which were a deep brown, were large and lustrous. Her hair was her chief glory, being of the hue of burnished bronze, a golden red, or what is more generally known as Titianesque. She was very intelligent and possessed many accomplishments. Miss Hazeltine became known nationally by a report that Samuel J. Tilden had sought her hand in marriage.

The Czar of Russia has been told by his physicians that a less secluded life is necessary to restore his nerves. He now devotes much time to social gayeties.

Sir Thomas Brassey, the English millionaire member of parliament, is to be made a Peer. It is not known whether it is because of his father's money or his [illegible] reputation.

A roll of bills amounting to $2,000 supposed to have been washed ashore from some wreck was picked up recently by a person living in Black Rock, Conn.

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Relative to the importance attached to the present cessation of the foreign demand for American exports, Jay Gould says: "It is, in my opinion, only a question of a short time when we will have very little wheat to export. Corn, however, is our great staple, and we have practically a monopoly. What the old world does not want in one shape we can give them in the shape of pork and beef."

Massachusetts has passed a law, that the school committee of every city and town shall purchase at the expense of such city or town text books and other school supplies used in the public schools, and text books and supplies shall be loaned to the pupils of the public schools free of charge, subject to such rules and regulations as to care and custody as the school committee may prescribe. Similar laws have been proposed in various states but Massachusetts, it is believed is the first to try the experiment under legislative sanction.

Bartholdi's collossal statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World," to be erected in New York harbor, was paid for by contributions from every town in France and it was expected that the pedestal would be paid by small contributions from all parts of the United States. The New York committee in charge of the matter has received $140,000, but all the subscriptions thus far have come from the east, and the bulk has been given in large amounts by wealthy men in New York city. The committee say that nothing has, as yet, been received from the west. The whole amount required for the foundation and pedestal is $250,000.

The riots in Cincinnati have furnished another text for the callow and inconsiderate scribblers of the daily press, who never tire of believing the evils attending trials by jury. The man Brener was charged with murder but convicted only of manslaughter, one of the most common things on criminal jurisprudence. Admitting that the jury in this case made a mistake, that is no reason for abolishing one of the most sacred rights of freemen. As well overturn the republic and start a monarchy in case a mistake is made in the election of a President. Abolish the right of trial by jury and all other monuments of freedom would soon follow.

A clergyman of California made a telling point the other day in a sermon on a sex in religion, that while there were two women to one man in the church at San Quentin the membership of the penitentiary was made up almost wholly of men. There were hardly any women there to speak of. The women preponderate in the churches and men in the penitentiaries. The point is a good one that while there are two women in the church to one man, there are forty men in the penitentiary to one woman. Where the population is about equally divided as to sexes women make a comparatively small figure in the criminal records.

Bold Bismarck is said to be at length alarmed for his personal safety. A cable dispatch says that he has ordered the postmasters throughout the empire not to receive any registered letters intended for him. The postmasters have no option about non-registered letters, but these the chancellor will hereafter refuse to receive from the Berlin postoffice, so that every communication that reaches him hereafter must come through the official channels and run the gauntlet of official inspection. Some of the papers suggest that he has at last become alarmed at the activity of the Socialists and is afraid of being blown up by mail. The chancellor says his only object is to be rid of the annoyance of the pretty insults which are constantly sent to him, generally in the form of registered letters.

That trade rivalry is at the bottom of foreign opposition to the "American hog," is in effect tacitly admitted on all sides; and now that the French and German parties injured by exportations of meat from this country have been joined by the corresponding business interests of England, it will be instructive to watch the manner in which the opposition there is managed and developed, as compared with the methods pursued on the continent. So far, there has been no outbreak of temper on the subject between the two Anglo-Saxon nations, and Minister Lowell's representations have been listened to with respect by the British public and parliament, although their tenor was similar to that of Minister Sargent's statements, which so stirred up the German government.

The power of social influence at Washington, in dictating appointments, and even in affecting legislation, has long been notorious. It has now gone so far that open confession of the fact, and even an attempt to vindicate it, has been made in Congress. A bill was up in the House the other day to relieve Mrs. Patterson, the widow of Captain Carlisle Patterson, of taxes for special improvements in Washington, as had been done before in the case of Mrs. Kate Chas. Sprague, and Representative Eldredge, in urging its passage, said that "from the high social standing of that lady, * * *, as well as a disposition to do exact justice," the committee had devoted especial attention to the matter. The Washington papers often show the effect of social influence, but The Star is to be credited with properly rating the Michigan Representative for urging a person's "high social standing" as a reason for legislation in her favor.

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington Gossip.

Mr. Wakefield presented the petition of citizens of the board of trade of Mankato, protesting against declaring New Ulm as the head of navigation of the Minnesota river.

J. G. Bigelow of Washington and G. N. Chandler of Harris City, Butler county, Pa., have been disbarred from practice before the interior department as pension attorneys.

Senator Mahone is lying seriously ill at Arlington hotel, Washington. His friends are very anxious. His physician insists upon quiet and rest, as essential to his restoration to health.

Miss Frankie Tankersley, daughter of Judge Tankersley of Washington, D. C., was thrown into hysteria on a Pennsylvania railroad train by the attentions of a finely dressed masher, whom the other passengers had finally to remove by force.

vership at Grand Forks back to the senate, and ask its confirmation at the next executive session. The charges filed by Walsh through his clerk, one Hill, against Anderson, since the letter of the commissioner of the general land office was read, were not considered by the committee.

Senator Edmunds has been annoyed at newspaper criticism of the fact that he used a government vessel to bring his wife and daughter from Nassau to Florida, in view of the fact that there was no passenger steamer, and that he had to pay the navy department all the extra expense involved.

A statement prepared at the general land office shows that the number of acres of public land patented to settlers under homestead laws for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1883, exceeded by 207,327 the number patented for the corresponding period of 1882. The receipts from cash sales, same period, exceeded those of 1882 by $1,438,314.

Gen. Washburn returned from New York, where he went to attend a meeting of the stockholders of the Chicago, St. Paul & Omaha Railroad company, held the 31st with reference to bringing a suit against Porter, Dows and Flower, to compel them to account for stock, which, it is alleged, was issued to them without any consideration.

The secretary of state received on Monday the following telegram from Minister Lowell: "I received from Sir Henry Ponsonby last evening a telegram in these words: 'The queen commands me to ask you to assure the president of the United States that her majesty is deeply touched by the expression of sympathy he has forwarded through you, and thanks him sincerely for his kind words of condolence.'"

A subcommittee of the house judiciary committee heard E. B. Wiegand, special examiner of the department of justice, on the charges against Judge Axtell of New Mexico. He read a report in the case which he had submitted to the attorney general, and in which he gave his opinion that while there was nothing against the integrity of Axtell, he was unfitted for the position of associate justice, because of his unjudicial methods.

Gen. Washburn has called upon the postmaster general again and had a very long and earnest discussion with him, with reference to shortening the time between the Atlantic seaboard and St. Paul and Minneapolis for the fast mails. The postmaster general finally assured Mr. Washburn that he would take the matter up and give it careful consideration, and do the very best he could to meet the wishes of the people of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Railroad Rumblings.

According to The Railroad Gazette, 334 miles of main track have so far been laid this year, against 521 in 1883, 1,180 in 1882, 541 in 1881 and 975 in 1880.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and St. Paul & Duluth roads have issued a joint freight tariff to apply on business between Chicago and Milwaukee or Racine and Duluth and Superior City.

The Railroad World says the Northern Pacific's new engine from the Portland locomotive works has a novelty in the Joy valve, the first ever used in this country. This valve, it says, does away entirely with eccentric links. It works from connecting rods and has a Butterfield ash pan.

A broad guage railroad is to be bulit from Des Moines to St. Joseph, Mo., 185 miles, this year, by a New York syndicate of R. G. Wilson & Co., and B. L. Harding of Des Moines, the latter being president of the company and Wilson and Co. builders and owners of the Diagonal from Des Moines to Waterloo.

Record of Casualties.

At East Saginaw, Mich., the Michigan Saw works were totally destroyed by fire with their contents, including $20,000 worth of new stock. Loss, $90,000 to $100,000; insurance, $44,500, distributed among twenty-four companies. The works will be rebuilt immediately.

Thomas Milton and a companion named Cassidy were struck by lightning Monday 31st, while driving home from Lincoln, Neb. Milton and one of the horses were killed and the buggy set on fire. Cassday was badly shocked, and was unable to remove the dead man's body from the burning buggy.

A night express from Toronto to Montreal ran of the track near Wales station. The engineer was killed and the fireman fatally injured; L. D. Swett, Springfield, Mass., collar bone fractured; J. Gilbert, Chicago, face and leg bruised; R. Cole, Montreal, arm bruised and back sprained; J. Christen, Montreal, hip cut; Edward Stephenson, St. John, N. B. leg bruised and hands cut; Four or five others were slightly hurt.

Personal Points.

Carrie Swain, the actress, was granted a divorce from her husband in St. Louis recently. He failed to appear, and the divorce was granted by default.

James Kink, eighty-five, the oldest New York policeman, is dead. In the Astor place riot he succeeded in effecting the escape of Macready, the actor, by disguising him.

Engineer George D. Melville, United States navy, is in Washington, in answer to a congressional subpoena to appear before the Jeannette expedition investigating committee.

Philip Rasgue, a Frenchman employed in the Southington (Conn.) silver-plate shop, has received papers which identify him as being a descendant of Napoleon I, and titles to an estate in France valued at $200,000.

The saddest feature of Gen. Mackenzie's case is the fact that he was to be married within a short time, when his mind failed him, his betrothed being a Mrs. Sharp, a love of his youthful days, who married and became a widow since her first acquaintance with the general.

Mrs. Anna Ottendorfer, wife of the editor of the New York Staats-Zeitung, is dead, after a very brief illness, while her husband was in Albany. Mrs. Ottendorfer was the widow of Editor Uhl when she married Mr. Ottendorfer, and added several million dollars to his already large fortune. She had just completed the great German hospital at a cost exceeding $300,000, which she presented to the hospital society.

The Criminal Calendar.

L. F. Ransdall, postmaster at New Castle, Ky., is a defaulter to the amount of $800. Ransdall has disappeared. The government agent is in possession of the office.

The two half-breeds, John and George Stevenson, convicted of the murder of John McCarthy, were hanged at Regina, capitol of the Northwest territories, under mounted police administration.

G. Weimers, alias Schubert, has been arrested at Houston, Tex., charged with embezzling $26,000 while treasurer of St. Claire county, Ill. It is alleged that he left his wife, but married another at Houston.

At Fairview, Ky., John W. Gibson, a young rough, walked into a grocery and fired two pistol balls into the heart of John McCoy, killing him instantly. No reason is assigned for the deed. Gibson escaped, but a party of citizens are in pursuit, and will lynch him if caught.

News comes from Glenville, Ritchie county, West Va. of the murder of Mrs. Eliza F. Richardson, a widow living on Cedar creek, in the extreme part of the county, by Jane Thompson, a notorious character, assisted by two other women at present unknown. The trouble grew out of a dispute between Mrs. Richardson and the Thompson over the ownership of an old hen.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

St. Louis' new postmaster, Rodney Wells, is in the office. [illegible]

Ninety saloonists were indicted in San Antonio, Tex., for keeping open Sundays.

O. A. Carpenter, the acquitted Zora Burns murderer, has returned to Lincoln, Ill., and will move to Massachusetts with his family.

In the Newark Methodist conference twenty of forty charges against Rev. Dr. Bristow were sustained, among them that of gross immorality.

The furniture of the St. Nicholas hotel, New York, is being sold at auction and the buildings will be torn down to give place to business. When the St. Nicholas was opened in 1853 it was the finest hotel in the world.

C. H. Holst of New Holstein failed a few days ago for $20,000, with assets estimated at $2,000. The creditors mostly reside in Chicago and Milwaukee. The failure has created great excitement in New Holstein, where so many people had their hard earned money deposited with Mr. Holst.

At a Methodist Episcopal conference in New York, Dr. Hunt of the Methodist book concern said: During the past four years the Methodist church had paid out $6,455,000 for religious publications, and $3,500,000 worth of literature had been shipped by the Methodist book concern. Ten years ago 923,000 copies of Methodist papers were disposed of in Sunday schools and to-day 2,134,000 copies are called for.

Delegates from different cities interested in forming a Northwestern racing circuit for the coming season assembled recently at the Nicollet house, Minneapolis, Minn. There were present S. P. Lovejoy, Fred Pillsbury and Harry F. Legg of Minneapolis, Isaac Staples of Stillwater, Mr. Devine of Eau Claire, Capt. J. H. Wood of Fergus Falls and H. Himmelman of Mankato. But little business was done owing to the few present, although it was said that assurances had been received from all towns heretofore mentioned in this connection, that they would join the circuit. Mr. Lovejoy, who acts at present as the secretary, says the dates for the different meetings will propably be: Oskaloosa, Mason City, Eau Claire and Stillwater the first, second, third and fourth weeks in June, respectively, and Minneapolis, Winona, Grand Forks and Fergus Falls the first, second, third and fourth weeks in July, respectively.

Nuggets of Foreign News.

The editor of a comic journal in Madrid has been sentenced to eight years' imprisonment for publishing an offensive caricature of King Alfonso.

Paul Frederich, brother of the grand duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, having been converted to the Catholic faith, has renounced his hereditary rights in favor of his younger brothers and their offspring. If his brothers' families become extinct the throne is to revert to the family of Paul Frederich, provided his successor becomes a Protestant.

Frightful Marine Disaster.

At ten o'clock on the 3d inst., in the dense fog that prevailed along the coast the Belgian steamer Daniel Steinmann, of the White Cross line, drove on a ledge of rocks called the Sisters, Sambro island, and then backed off and sank, in about fifty feet of water. It is known that nine people had been saved out of 130 who had sailed in her. The Steinmann left Antwerp on March 20, under Capt. Van Schoonhoven. She carried a cargo of telegraph wire and general merchandise. Her crew numbered thirty-nine men. She carried ninety-four steerage pasangers, all Germans, twenty of whom were to land at Halifax and the rest at New York. She was reported at Skalbounes point, near Antwerp, two days after sailing. The next heard of her was when the lightkeeper on Sambro island heard her whistle as she was going down. A few rockets were seen from the shore, but the storm prevented any one going to her rescue. Seven persons came ashore somehow in the night, and were safely landed through the surf.

They reported that some of the crew were clinging to the rigging, part of which was above water. During the night the weather continued too rough to permit any one to go to the assistance of the men on the wreck, although it was but two hundred yards away. At daylight a fisherman named Gilkie launched a flatboat and brought off Capt. Van Schoonhover and a boy who had been secured in the rigging by the captain. These were the only ones left on the rigging. It was not until after noon that word was received at Halifax that a disaster had occurred, and then it came by signal from the island. Two tugs were sent to the wreck but returned having been unable to get near it on account of the boisterous weather.

At the hour at which the disaster occurred, the passengers were all in their berths, and without warning met death beneath the water. The sufferings of those who escaped was terrible, and it was only after a hard struggle that they were able to reach the rock on which the light house stands.

Dynamite in Prison.

The recent sudden removal of convict Irish Invincibles from Irish to English prisons is attributed to the discovery of a conspiracy to destroy Mount Joy prison by the use of dynamite. The Invincibles in prison were engaged in clandestine correspondence with conspirators outside. Letters were found in James Mullett's cell which disclosed the plot. The prison wardens were to be bribed with money from O'Donovan Rossa's fund to convey an infernal machine into the prison. One letter intercepted contained an order for the murder of Patrick Delaney, one of the Phœnix park conspirators by throwing him over the balcony when he should leave the prison after mass. Delaney still remains at Mount Joy for safety. Many wardens have been dismissed. A Dublin correspondent denies upon the highest authority that there is any truth in the story.

Riot Remnants.

Gov. Hoadly, in a letter of thanks to sheriff Hawkins expressed approval of his conduct, but remarked that it was not proper to express an opinion in advance of the investigations which must be made. T. E. Campbell, leading lawyer for Berner, asks an investigation by Judge Matthews, on the ground that newspapers have charged that the jury was corruptingly influenced. The first sentencing of prisoners since the riot took place was in Judge Johnston's court. Belle Osborn (colored) convicted of shooting with intent to kill, received seven years. The only other case where the crime was homicide was John Murtah, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter. It appeared he struck the man with his fist, and the plea was accepted and a sentence of five years given.

An Insurance Fraud.

Lorenzo Dimick, formerly of the firm of Crosby & Dimick, and largely interested in marine insurance up to the first of the year, when the firm dissolved, has been arrested charged with diverting a large amount of insurance funds. Bail required is $80,000. The attorney for the Thames & Mersey Union of Philadelphia, and State of Pennsylvania insurance companies furnishes the following figures representing the amounts of premiums diverted to the Continental company, to which Dimick was the representative; Thames & Mersey Union, Philadelphia, $28,000; State of Pennsylvania, $7,000. Dimick's brother, Richard, was his book-keeper, and several transfers and alleged fraudulent entries were made by him. Dimick still is general manager of the inland marine department of the Continental company. As such officer, he received 20 per cent, and a contingent of 15 per cent on the profits of his department. The commission went to the firms credit contingent to his own. Gilman Hubbard, of the Continental, claim they have full confidence in Dimick. He has not secured $80,000 bail, and is under surveillance at his home, being unable to be moved.

Great Forest Fire.

For three days and nights the most destructive fires ever known, have been devastating the southern border of North Carolina, extending into six or seven counties. Vast forests of long leaf pine were attacked. These form the chief source of timber supply. High winds fanned the flames into fury. Hundreds of thousands of trees were burned. Some of the largest turpentine orchards in the state were ruined and many farm houses destroyed. A number of towns narrowly escaped destruction. At Manly, on the Raleigh & Augusta railroad, a number of houses were burned. Large stores of lumber and railroad sills on the line of the road were burned, and a dozen turpentine distilleries ruined. The country in great stretches is but a blackened wilderness. The extent of the disaster is not yet known or fully realized. Many families are homeless. The fire swept fifty miles in one direction, and thirty in another, few places, it is reported, escaping. The fire was caused by burning brush. High wind drove sparks into the turpentine woods. The fires extended far into South Carolina. On the line of the Charlotte, Columbia & Augusta railroad trains have been running through miles of fire. Two dwellings and eight or ten barns were burned in that district. So far as now known, no lives were lost.

BLOODY BUCKEYE RIOT.

Graphic Details of the Destruction Wrought in Cincinnati by the Infuriated Mob.

Twenty-Seven Lives Sacrificed and a Large Number Wounded—The Revised List.

The riot in Cincinnati, of which threatenings were heard on Friday, broke out in earnest on Saturday and a large number of lives were sacrificed and an immense amount of property, and all on account of a verdict of manslaughter against a man named Benner for the murder of William Kirk, who had confessed the crime.

On Friday night, an attack was made on the jail. The military were called out and fired on the mob from the windows. Among the wounded were James Green, dying; Walter Fay, dying; James Turk, mortally wounded; F. Zohner, wounded in thigh; Ed Eulleff, shot in leg; Jackson Todd, badly; Dr. Charles Muscroft, police-surgeon, slight wound. Finally the mob finding that Berner had been spirited away, dispersed. Benner was taken to the State Penitentiary at Columbus. His escape greatly incensed the people, and the rioters broke out afresh. The court house is in ruins, and all that is left of it is the great heavy walls and vaults, which are hoped to be fire proof, but which are not opened. All records of every kind are destroyed, not one, so far as is known, being left. What that entails is easier imagined than described. One of the most valuable law libraries in the world is gone. Taxes cannot be collected nor titles proved. The military came only after the court house was in flames, and Cincinnati has paid dearly, indeed, for their folly. Shortly after dusk a few scattering militia men, upon whom all seemed anxious to wreak revenge for the wreck of the early morn, appeared in the throng, intent upon joining their comrades in the court house. "Kill them, kill, kill!" was heard upon every side, while stones and missiles of every kind flew over and about them, crashing through the windows, battering down doors and causing other destruction. By a miracle those stragglers escaped, but their assailants, thus encouraged, pressed on the long line of police to whose protection the militia men owed their lives. The fusilade of stones continued, the windows of the treasurer's office were demolished and the rioting began in earnest.

The flames, gaining headway, created a draft through the building, and that increased their fury so that in a short time the lower story of the building looked like a huge furnace. About 10:30 o'clock the flames appeared through the floor of the auditor's office, and in a short time the whole office was ablaze. The flames were, of course fed by splendid fuel, the hundreds of volumes of records burning very rapidly.

The crowd surged back and forth on Court street west of Main, as a volley was fired by the militia. The court house square was packed with people, as was also the street up as far as Main. On Main street there were very few people after the first volley, where several were wounded and killed. Before the building was fired the release of the men arrested on Friday and imprisoned as leaders was demanded and refused. The crowd would therefore allow no one to approach the fire for the purpose of extinguishing it. An alarm was sent in, but when the engines arrived the firemen were advised to return to the houses, and they acted on the advice.

Capt. Devine and J. J. Desmond, captain of Company C, First regiment, attempted to drag a line of hose in the treasurer's office, and they perished in their efforts to reach the fire, after being warned. There was an explosion and a flash, and Capt. Desmond dropped dead, with the top of his head shot off. This was the signal for a regular fusilade. There was no further attempt to put out the flames until the arrival of the Fourteenth regiment, which formed in a squad facing the front, when one of the files opened fire, killing a by-stander on the sidewalk and getting a series of pistol shots in return. Col. Fred Heube, in charge of a Gatling gun, then turned at the crowd, and two or three persons were wounded, the regiment cleared the street in front of the court house.

All this while and all night there was fighting going on between the soldiers at the barricades before both the jail and court house and the mob. The latter party were mostly armed with pistols, some having guns. They would fire on the soldiers who would reply, and now and then in a volley they would drop a half dozen. The mob would howl and yell and charge forward only to be repulsed. Nobody ever secured such a connected view of them as to enable their number to be estimated, but counting spectators as all rioters, there must have been and not unlikely twice as many. They extended for squares in various directions.

AT LEAST TWENTY THOUSAND,

THE BLOODIEST STREET IN THE CITY

last Saturday night was South Court street. Here the militia charged on the crowd two or three different times. The first was made about 10:30 o'clock, when five men were shot, three of whom were killed. The next volley was fired from the north, and one man killed and a little boy mortally wounded. The third volley came from the east, and resulted in the killing of three men.

The remarks of the crowd were significant, and Tom Campbell counsel for Benner and the jury were dammed by everybody. Men swore by awful round oaths that if they could catch Tom Campbell and the jury they would hang them sky-high, and then hurl them to hell. Again and again was the attempt made to reach the jail yard gate from North Court street; wounded and dead were left each time. Persons shot all hours of the night. The most grit shown by any one way from the court house was by those on guard at Powell's gun store, it was attacked by a party who wanted to get ammunition, they tried to put coal oil over the front and set it on fire, but it was put out. Meantime those inside were showing fight, and from the second story fought them off, killing at least one, and it is thought three, in a window. On the other side of the street there are eight bullet holes within a radius of fifteen inches.

About 8 o'clock Sunday night a regiment from Columbus guarding the Court street approach was fired into by one of the mob from an alley between Main and Walnut, on Court. The troops answered the challenge by a few shots, which were followed by a volley and several shots from the Gatling stationed there. The number of injured at this hour cannot be ascertained. The firing was now continued at intervals in all directions. It was the purpose of the militia to clear the streets. One volley fired down Main street wounded, among others, Mr. Briggs Swift, a prominent pork packer, standing at the corner of Seventh and Main, three squares from the court house, in conversation with Henry Hanna, a Third street broker. He was struck and most seriously wounded, and was conveyed to his home in a carriage.

At 9:25 word was received at general headquarters that a large mob had broken into Music hall by breaking down the door, and was trying to man a cannon on exhibition in Power hall. Companies D and E, Sixth regiment, were sent to drive them away and succeeded without bloodshed, capturing the cannon and taking possession of the hall. There has been much feeling against the jury that tried Berner, and in some quarters against his attorneys. Our juror living in the city has left home. The attorneys have been quiet, and it is possible they might be roughly handled if good occasion offered. At the opening fire, about 8 p. m., four or five persons were killed and as many wounded, including, as reported, two women on Court street.

Several regiments of state troops were sent to Cincinnati, and these with the knowledge that several companies of regulars were near, quieted the mob. On Monday at 2 o'clock a. m., the police reported everybody going home, and the city was perfectly quiet. Among the men in jail for participating in the riot is "Peggy" Warren, a member of the last legislature of Ohio. He is said to have been among the most active in counselling robbing gun stores.

At 8 o'clock Fred Smalze, bartender at the Queen City Hotel, who had been among the crowd annoying the militia at the bridge over the canal on Main street, began to advance beyond the limit. A soldier warned him to stop. He refused, the soldier fired, and the man fell dead. The patrol wagon quickly came, and amid great excitement bore the body off to Habig's.

Passing to the north side of the court on Walnut street, a sickening scene was presented. Here apparently the wounded had taken shelter behind protecting buildings, or perhaps here the fatally wounded had crawled to die. Pool after pool of blood dyed the ground all along the curbstone. All along the street signs of blood were visible, and in a hallway three squares distant on Main street the floor was smeared where some unfortunate had crawled to dress his wounds or die.

The burning of the court house was wholly aimless and malicious, except one might find an excuse in the feeling that the crowd was angered at the place where failure to do justice has been so marked.

Benner has been resting quietly in prison all day. The gates had to be closed against the public for chapel, owing to the multitude of curious gazers that appeared. No violence is probable here. It is very quiet, but the night guard at the prison is small, and there has been some talk of easy access to him.

The list of the killed outright is as follows:

James Condon, No. 72, Hunt street, carriage blacksmith, leaves a wife and three children.

John Haverkamp, Central avenue, coal cart driver.

Fritz Havemayer, No. 25 Woodward, aged 41, hod carrier. Leaves a wife and five children.

Frank Hettersheimer, No. 512 Central avenue, employed in Tenbroeck's furniture factory. Support of his mother and stepfather.

Ben Fink, 401 Walnut street, shoemaker, supporting his mother and family.

John Saggler, 99 East Front street, married.

Joseph Besold, 1064 Vine street, cigar-maker, employed at Rauch's.

Mike O'Day, Sloo street, between Carr and Freeman, driver for James Sharredan, leaves a wife and mother.

Anton Fohler, 375 Clark street, near Harriet.

John Dickey, Concord street, support of his mother.

Frank Bergman, Budd and Harriet, driver.

Thomas A. Green, colored, son of Rev. E. W. Green, of Paris, Ky., coachman for Mr. Decamp on Avondale.

Anton Singer, 84 Cutter street, shoemaker.

John Goeble, 177 Spring street, bartender for Bussell on Race, between Fourth and Fifth.

Samuel Henan, 372 West Third street, employed at Sullivan's on Vine street, between Fourth and Fifth, died of heart disease during the excitement.

Jacob Metzer, 39 Buckeye street, stonecutter.

Fred Sleusser, Logan, Ohio, employed as bartender.

Four bodies unindentified are yet at Habig's.

At hospital, lying dead, are:

John J. Hennessy, Smith street, widower, no family; shot in abdomen.

Henry J. Pieser, residence unknown, shot in right breast.

Unknown man, shot in head.

Walter Fay, 22, carriage maker, 296 East Sixth street; shot through both thighs and scrotum.

Peter Roell, 25, brewer, Freeman avenue and Liberty, shot in left hand and right leg.

Conrad Breslau, Sycamore and Abigail shot through the body.

Capt. John Desmond, Lytle Grays, shot through head; sole support of widowed mother. A member of the law firm of Healy, Brannon & Desmond.

The list of the wounded is too long to print. It shows there was a good deal of wild and careless shooting. At last accounts all was quiet.

The Cause of the Cincinnati Riots.

Last Saturday night, after Judge Matthews had charged the immortal (and now thoroughly terrified) twelve before whom William Berner was tried for the murder of William Kirk, public sentiment was generally expressed, "At last we'll hang a murderer in Cincinnati." Both those versed in the law and those who could understand plain English were sure the murder could be nothing else than murder in the first degree, or that at furthermost, two or three of the jurors might cause a disagreement. The court had given them particularly to understand that their only business was to report upon the truth of the facts that had been presented, and that they had nothing to do with the law except to use it as a guide to their findings. At first they seem to have recognized their duty plainly, and discovered no way to any verdict except one of murder in the first degree; since they sent to the court for information, and asked if they could recommend the boy to mercy, despite their verdict. The court replied that they could. Monday, when the jury announced readiness to deliver a verdict, the court-room was packed with humanity, and difficulty was experienced in making a passage way for the entrance of jurors and officers. When the foreman announced that Berner was not guilty of murder in the first degree, but guilty of manslaughter (the mildest possible under the indictment) there arose a cry of surprise, mingled with expressions of disgust and anger, from the whole audience. Before a minute had passed the boy was taken through the judge's private room, down the back stairs, and through the tunnel leading over into the jail—thus cheating the noisy crowd out of a sight of him and probably out of an opportunity to do him bodily harm. The court asked the prisoner's counsel if they wished the jury polled to see if manslaughter was the verdict of each and every one of them. They said they had no such wish. The same thing was asked of the prosecutors. "No, sir," exclaimed Messrs. Pugh and Thomas in disgust; "we don't want any polling from that jury." It was not necessary to ask the court what he thought of the verdict. With an indignation that he shared with hundreds of others around him, he could not refrain from expressing himself in an undertone. "It's a d—d outrage!" he exclaimed, and without the customary thanks to the jury for their faithfulness in doing their duty, he simply said: "The jury is dismissed." The twelve men arose from their places with an irregular stagger, and got out of the court room amid great tumult. The prisoner's counsel also left, and went down the street. The prosecutors had welded so strong a chain of evidence that Berner's counsel, before the trial, offered to enter a plea of murder in the second degree, which would entail imprisonment for life. That Cincinnati was not wholly unprepared for the outburst which has followed is shown by published interviews with prominent citizens last Monday, President W. W. Peabody, of the board of trade, said, on 'change: "I think it disgraceful and disgusting beyond expression. The time has come when the people themselves will rid the county of the expense of trying murderers." A meeting of builders and contractors was broken up on reception of the news and there was but one opinion: "The sooner jails are destroyed, police disbanded and the the old time '49 California vigilance committee is inaugurated, the sooner there will be security for life and property." Precautionary measures were discussed by the sheriff and his deputies at the jail, before the verdict had been known an hour. The jurymen remained in the grand jury room for hours, awaiting opportunity to regain their homes secretly. They have disappeared from public ken, it seems, and would fare ill at the hands of the rioters. Their names are Samuel Edwards, John Wilsey, Francis Buck, Elwood Henrie, Michael McGuire, Louis Harmeyer, Henry Bohne, Samuel Merrill, Wesley Skidmore, Charles F. Dollahan, A. F. Shaw and L. A. Phillips.

ARMY CONCENTRATION.

Gen. Sheridan Summons Gen. A. A. Terry to Washington to Consult Upon the Affairs at Fort Snelling, Including the Building of New Barracks and the Quartering of a Large Number of Troops There.

Washington, Special Telegram, March 23.—"You have sent for Gen. Terry to come from St. Paul to Washington," said your correspondent to Gen. Sheridan, this afternoon.

"Yes," replied the general, "I wanted Terry to come down here and help me to secure an appropriation for a new barracks at Fort Snelling. He is a good talker, and understands the situation and the congressmen take a good deal of stock in what he says. I do not know any officer in the army who is more highly respected or more influential than Gen. Terry. We want $200,000 to build a new post. It will cost more to fix up the present barracks than to build new ones. We want a new and a nice post up on the higher ground above the old one. It will cost about $200,000, if the soldiers perform the labor, and will save all it costs in one year."

"How do you figure that out?"

"It is my policy to concentrate the army, as far as I can, in large and convenient posts. It costs a good deal less, and the railroad facilities are so good now all over the West, that we can send soldiers wherever they are wanted cheaper than we can sustain them in the outlying frontier posts. My policy is to concentrate them at convenient points where the railroad facilities are good. St. Paul is a very convenient location, and I want a big post there, with a regiment of cavalry and another of infantry—say, twelve or fifteen hundred men. They can go to Fort Keogh from St. Paul as quick and as easily as from the posts in Northern Montana, and at a great deal less expense to the government."

"How do you figure out that you can save enough in a year to build a new post?"

"In this way: Including the transportation of clothing, subsistence, forage, fuel, and quartermaster's supplies, with the expense of maintaining a post, it costs $3[illegible].73 per day to keep 100 infantry soldiers at Fort Snelling, and $61.80 to keep 100 cavalrymen at Fort Assinaboine, for example, it costs $52.08 a day to keep 100 infantrymen. The saving, then, in keeping the men at Snelling, is $20.85 per day for a hundred infantry, and $46.66 per day for the same number of cavalrymen. The saving in a year at Fort Snelling is $11,585.40 for infantry, and $22,557 for cavalrymen. It is an argument in favor of economy that nobody can get round, don't you see? Then take an estimate of 500 men. The saving to the government would be $57,500.75 in keeping that number of infantry at Fort Snelling a year and $112,785 in keeping 500 cavalrymen. Then take an estimate of a thousand men the savings would be $115,814.50 a year on infantry and $225,909 a year on cavalrymen. Suppose I put a regiment of 800 cavalry at Fort Snelling. It would save the cost of the post in a single year."

"What is the prospect of getting the appropriation?"

"I think it is good. If congress wants economy, I have given some arguments they can't get around."

Gen. Terry will leave St. Paul for this city on Monday or Tuesday.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

The trade dollar bill finally passed the House on Monday the 31st. It provides that—

Until Jan. 1, 1886, trade dollars shall be received at their face value by the United States, but shall not be again paid out or issued, and that the laws authorizing their coinage and issurance are hereby repealed.

The house committee on the judiciary reported favorably the bill to authorize the service of civil and criminal process issued by territorial courts within the military and Indian reservation, and the Yellowstone bark. It provides that—

The provisions of the law now in force relating to territorial courts shall be constituted so as to authorize the execution and service of any process on a criminal issued by any such courts, by the officer or person to whom the same may be addressed, within any military or Indian reservation, or within the Yellowstone park; provided that such reservation or park is situated within the exterior of the district over which said court has jurisdiction.

The bill reported to the house to amend the naturalization laws provides that

The child or grandchild of any alien who enlisted in the army or navy of the United States, and died in the service or was honorably discharged, shall be admitted to become a citizen of the United States on proof that he was under twenty-one years of age at the time of the death or discharge of his ancestor, and resided in the United States one year previous to his application.

The special house committee appointed to investigate the charges against Gen. H. V. Boynton, made by ex-Speaker Keifer, submitted the following: Resolved, That the charges against H. V. Boynton are not sustained by evidence, and there is no ground for further action by the house. The report is very severe on ex-Speaker Keifer, and is unanimous.

In the Senate, Senator Morgan presented a memorial from William Webster, an American citizen, praying the aid of congress to secure him in the right of ownership of 200,000 acres of land in New Zealand, which he claims he bought from native chiefs before the British government had any rights of possession in that country, but his right to which has not been respected.

In the Senate on Monday the chair announced that Gen. Grant, with a friend, was at the capitol; that the general had a right to admission to the floor of the senate, and if there were no objection, the courtesy of admission to the floor would be extended to his friend, also. There was no objection. The friend was Gen. Badeau.

A resolution was offered in the senate by Mr. Call and was referred to the committee on foreign relations requesting the president to make negotiations with the government of Spain for reference to an umpire to decide whether the treaty of 1818 had been fully carried into effect by the United States, and whether the United States government is bound in good faith to pay the full amounts awarded by the judicial tribunal to whom the same was referred, for losses sustained by officers of the United States acting under orders, in 1818 and 1810. The senate passed the bill to increase the efficiency of the general land office, also Mr. Mr. Morrill's bill for the improvement of coinage.

In the House Mr. Dorsheimer presented a memorial from bondholders of the Northern Pacific railroad company, praying to be heard before the committee on public lands on the bill declaring the forfeiture of the land granted, and asking congress to protect their interests. Referred. The house went into committee of the whole, with Mr. Wellborn in the chair, on the Indian appropriation bill.

The House spent several days, without a vote, on the Indian appropriation bill. The bill appropriates for the Chippewas, Pillagers and Lake Winnebagoshish bands, in the aggregate, $48,802. It appropriates in all for the Sioux of different tribes, including Santee Sioux of Nebraska, $1,646,300. This includes an appropriation of $1,225,000 for the subsistence of the Sioux for purposes of their civilization, as per agreement ratified by act of congress Feb. 28th, 1877; also, $10,000 for the support, civilization and education of the Minnewaukon band of Sioux in Minnesota. The bill also makes the following appropriations for the same purpose. For the Chippewas of Red Lake and Pembina tribe of Chippewas, $12,000; and for support of Chippewas on White Earth reservation, of this amount or so much thereof as may be necessary to be expended under the direction of the secretary of the interior in the care and support of the Otter Tail, Pillager, Pembina and Mississippi Chippewa Indians on the White Earth reservation in Minnesota to assist them in their agricultural operations, $6,000.

The episode of Gen. Grant's reception by the house on the 2d inst. is commented upon in public as one of the most remarkable events ever occurring in Washington. It seems that pending discussion upon the Indian appropriation bill Gen. Grant accompanied by Gen. Beale, hobbled on crutches to the house arriving about 4 o'clock. Not being entitled to the privilege of the floor, Gen. Beale went into the gallery, while Grant passed in quietly and took his seat on a sofa in the rear of the democratic side without his presence being discovered for some time. Democratic members clustered around him, along with them Mr. Randall, who introduced them, while Mr. Dorsheimer sat beside him chatting pleasantly. The Republicans being engaged in heated debate over Throckmorton's amendment to abolish Indian agents and appoint army officers in lieu, did not notice the disorder immediately, but ascertaining its cause, rushed over in a crowd to welcome the general. Appreciating the situation, and with that rare tact for which Mr. Randall is famous, he returned to his seat, being recognized by the chairman announced the presence of Gen. Grant in a few appropriate remarks and moved that the committee rise in order to allow the house to appropriately receive the man to whom the American people needed no introduction. This created a furore, and the motion being carried vociferously, Speaker Carlisle resumed the chair. Mr. Randall then moved a recess of fifteen minutes, which was unanimously carried, and Gen. Grant, hobbling on crutches, was escorted to the space in front of the speaker's desk, where the members were individually presented by Speaker Carlisle. Among those who heartily greeted the ex-general and ex-president were several maimed ex-confederates, among them Gen. Oakes, of Alabama, who lost his right arm in the front at Richmond. Gen. Oakes tapped his empty right sleeve significantly, as he presented his left hand, which Gen. Grant took in both of his and warmly pressed. The scene was dramatic in the extreme, and, although Gen. Grant bore up bravely under the ordeal and maintained the appearance of unruffled calmness, it was easily seen that he suppressed his emotion with great effort. The ovation was spontaneous, free from party feeling or past occurrences and victor and vanquished vied with each other in the depth of their greeting. After this outburst of appreciation of Gen. Grant's services, the transaction of further business became impossible, and the house adjourned without action on Throckmorton's proposition.

The House devoted several days to the Indian appropriation bill in committee of the whole. The committee adopted the clause making an appropriation of $10,000 for the support, civilization and education of the Medewaukanton band of Sioux Indians in Minnesota. The clause was inserted in the bill at the request of Mr. Strait, who went before the committee of appropriation for the purpose. These Indians are opposed to remaining at the agencies, where they would receive their share of annuities, but prefer to live where they are now and are doing the best they can to support themselves. Some of them have a little land and are disposed to help themselves. The appropiation for their civilization and education was recommended by the Indian department. Other clauses, making the regular appropriations for the Indian in the northwest were passed by the committee.

A petition was presented to the house by Mr. Wakefield from the Edgerton post of the G. A. R. in Minnesota urging the passage of the bill granting a pension to Samuel Cook.

Mr. Strait has prepared the report of the house committee on public lands on Mr. Raymond's bill for the relief of William F. Steele of Steele, Dak. The bill gives Mr. Steele an opportunity to pay for 320 acres of land located by him through mistake.

A petition was presented to the senate by Mr. McMillan from George Wallace Hall, for a bounty under the law of July 28, 1866. He was barred by the limitation of 1880, and asks for a special act giving him the bounty. Mr. Nelson presented a similar petition in the house. Mr. McMillan also presented the petition adopted by the Mankato board of trade, asking for an appropriation for the improvement of the navigation of the Minnesota river.

A bill introduced in the senate by Mr. McPherson to amend the patent laws, provides—It shall be a misdemeanor for any person to sell any article or process claimed and described in any unexpired letters patent without the lawful authority of the patentee or his legal representatives, or at or before the sale of any such article or process to falsely represent to a purchaser that there is no unexpired patent covering or claimed to cover said article or process.

In the Senate, Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, presented a joint resolution of the general assembly of Iowa, urging that in view of the rapid absorption of public lands fit for settlement, congress may take immediate steps to recover unearned portions of lands granted railroads.

The Indian appropriation bill was passed April 4 by the house early in the session. The most important amendment to the bill was that abolishing the office of Indian inspector and authorizing the secretary of war to detail officers of the rank of captain to perform this service.

The house committee on postoffices and post roads voted 8 to 2 to adopt the following: Resolved, That it is the sense of this committee that it is inexpedient for the government either to construct a postal telegraph or purchase any existing line of telegraph. Messrs. Bingham and Peelle voted in the negative, and Messrs. Money, Reese, Ward, Cosgrove, Riggs, Rogers, Jones of Texas, and Wakefield in the affirmative. The bill authorizing the postmaster general to contract with the Postal Telegraph company, or other companies, will be considered on Tuesday next.

Senator Vest reported a bill favorably from the committee on territories to authorize the appointment of a commission by the president to run and mark the boundary lines between certain portions of the Indian Territory and Texas, in connection with a similar commission to be appointed by the state of Texas.

Mr. Cook presented the house through the petition box a paper signed by about fifty citizens of Avery, Iowa, which can hardly be termed a petition, since it opens with the words: "We, the undersigned sovereign citizens, hereby command you, our servant, demanding the passage of a bill to construct a double track steel railway from New York to San Francisco," and declaring that not another dollar should be lent national banks or squandered in canals.

The president sent to the senate the following nominations: Commodore Clark H Wells, rear admiral; Thomas H. Reeves of Missouri, agent of Indian at Quapaw agency, Indian Territory. Postmasters—E. S. Minor, Necedah, Wis.; Fred J. Bartels, Peshtigo, Wis.; James A. Foote, Anoka, Minn.; Warren Potter, Aitkin, Minn.; Max Miller, Jackson, Or.

Mr. Nelson presented to the house the resolution of the Clay county (Minn.) Farmers' alliance asking for the passage of the Morrison tariff bill.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

The Ohio penitentiary cleared $4,000 during March.

The Turtle mountain opening put 415,000 new acres on the market.

At Salt Lake City London Bank of Utah was attached for $50,000.

John Parrott, a pioneer California banker, is dead at San Francisco.

The Cincinnati trades assembly thanked the cowardly Fourth regiment.

Sing Sing prisoners earned $10,763 in March, making a net profit of $5,019.

Deaths in the first quarter of 1884, in New York, 8,050; last year, first three months, 8,561.

Smith and Mathews sold one-half of the Homestake mine at Cook City, Mont., for $38,000 to Eastern capitalists.

William Renner, a jeweler in the Astor house New York, was robbed of $10,000 worth of diamonds by Joseph Rosenbaum, a clerk.

Twelve moonshiners were brought into Louisville by United States deputy Marshal Campbell. They are part of a gang of twenty-one, captured in a raid which officers have just completed. In some cases the officers had considerable trouble in getting the culprits to submit to arrest, and in one or two cases shots were exchanged with the moonshiners. One of the gang was a robust, fine-looking girl of nineteen, named Tina Baker, whose father escaped. She was armed with a rifle, and was dressed in a skirt, and wore a man's slouch hat.

The steamer Rebecca Everingham (Capt. George Whitesides) was burned to the water's edge at Fitzgerald Landing, on the Chattanoochee river, forty miles below. The fire originated in the stern of the steamer, it is thought from an electric lamp spark. The passengers were saved, and escaped in their night clothes. Following is a list of the lost: Mrs. Aven, Cuthbert, Ga. Miss Simpson, Fort Gaines, La. Julia Anderson, chambermaid. Richard Coleman, pantryman. Adolph Thomas, fireman. A. Stephens and Randolph Singer, deck hands. Bob Griffeth, stevedore.

The most destructive fire that London has known for years broke out on the 3d inst, on Paternoster row, against which the entire fire department of the city failed to make any headway for over four hours. The fire originated in the printing house of Pardon & Hones, Lovell's court. Thence it spread to the famous old "Dolly's chop houses." The house of Fandel Phillips & Sons, importers of toys and French goods, in Newgate street, the large book-bindery of Smith Brother, Ivy lane, and the music publishing house of B. Williams, Paternoster row, were completely destroyed. The damage is as great as that caused by the Wood street fire. The favorable direction of the wind saved St. Paul cathedral. The loss is £250,000; fully insured.

A Duel in the Dark.

A terrible shooting affray occurred over a game of cards at Cole's Creek, Columbia county, Pa., the 30th. Charles Davis, Charles Mills, James Royer and Henry Williams were playing poker. Gradually the amount grew larger, and at last reached $500 a side. Davis and Mills were playing against Williams and Royner. At the conclusion of the game Williams reached for the stakes, but Royner claimed he had seen Davis cheat, and a scramble was made for the money. Revolvers were drawn and the bar-room was emptied of the small crowd of spectators which had witnessed the game. A promiscuous firing followed, in which the lights were extinguished. The firing lasted several minutes, and the crowd outside waited with bated breath for it to cease. Finally there was silence inside. The crowd surged in and found all four lying on the floor apparently dead. Davis and Mills each had four bullet holes in their bodies. Royer and Williams were covered with blood and unconscious. It was found that Royer was shot twice in the right leg and once in the thigh. His skull bears the appearance of being fractured. Williams received three bullet wounds in his body, and is undoubtedly fatally wounded. Mills and Davis died Monday. The wildest excitement exists. All kinds of rumors were afloat, and the death of Royer and Williams was announced, but afterward denied. The last accounts are to the effect that Royer and Williams will recover, although badly injured. All four were considered highly respected citizens, and the fact of their being shot Sunday night in a gambling quarrel has shown how strong the gaming fever raged. Royer's wife is reported to have lost her reason over the sad affair.

Terrible Cyclone and Great Loss of Life.

About 5 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon, on the Fort Wayne, Cincinnati and Louisville railroad, a heavy black cloud came driving from the west and another from the north. The two clouds met at the house of Lewis Cochran, two miles from Oakville, Indiana, lifted it bodily from its floor and foundations, and tearing it into kindling wood. A minute later it struck Oakville, carrying death and destruction in its track. Of thirty houses in Oakville all but three were torn to atoms. Four persons were killed outright in Oakville, and the fifth died this morning, while James Sanders, two miles west, was also killed, making six killed and a large number wounded.

The following were among the killed and injured:

Mrs. Anna Dearmond, widow aged fifty.

Susan Hyles, aged fifteen. When discovered she was in an almost nude condition, her clothing having been literally torn from her person.

A babe of C. C. Johnson, found in a field 150 yards from where the house stood, with head crushed.

A baby of Charles Brown was injured.

Turner Johnson, twelve years, blown twenty yards, skull crushed; will probably die.

Nancy Myers, sixty years old, arm broken.

John Huffman and wife, both badly bruised in head and otherwise injured.

Jeff Hoover, engineer at a saw-mill, leg broken in two places, injured internally and will probably die.

Jeff Miller, hip dislocated.

Mrs. Miller, badly bruised.

Fred Goldstock, of Shelbyville, three ribs broken.

Widow Miller, a bad cut on shoulder.

On the farm of James Sanders, four miles east of Middletown, his barn and house were completely destroyed. Sanders who is a merchant in Middletown, but who was out of his place at the time, and had taken refuge in a barn, was instantly killed. At the town of Murray a family of eight persons had their house blown to splinters, and the father, William Lines, was killed outright. The others escaped uninjured. W. Frank, a painter, four miles west of Oakville, while out on his farm, was caught by the storm and instantly killed.

The cyclone passed through Columbus, O., to Pittsburg Pa., doing a great deal of damage. At Greenville, Ohio, it was particularly severe.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican County Convention for Polk County, Minnesota, will be held at the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said county, on Tuesday April 22d, A. D. 1884, at 1:30 p. m., for the purpose of electing four delegates to attend the Republican State Convention, to be held at the city of St. Paul, Minn., on the first day of May A. D. 1884, and also for the purpose of electing nine delegates to attend the Congressional Convention to be held at Fergus Falls, Minn., on the 23d day of April 1884, and also the District Convention, to be held at the Opera House in the City of Moorhead on the 24th day of April 1884.

The Congressional Convention to be held at Fergus Falls on the 23d inst. is called for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for member of Congress for the Fifth Congressional District of Minnesota. The District Convention to be held at the Opera House, in the City of Moorhead on the 24th instant, is called for the purpose of selecting two delegates to represent this Congressional District in the next National Republican Convention.

The several townships and wards are entitled to the number of delegates set opposite their names as follows, to-wit:

Angus,	1	Black River,	1
Andover,	2	Bray	1
Bygland,	1	City of Crookston,
Brislet,	1	1st ward,	2
Belgeum,	1	2d ward,	2
Crookston,	1	3d ward	1
Euclid,	3	4th ward,	2
Emardville,	1	Fairfax,	1
Farley,	1	Fanny,	1
Fisher,	2	Gervais,	1
Garden,	2	Garfield,	2
Godfrey,	2	Grove Park,	1
Grand Forks,	2	Gentilly,	1
Huntsville,	2	Hammond,	1
Hubbard,	2	Higdem,	2
Kertsonville,	1	Keystone,	1
Louisville,	2	Liberty,	1
Lake Pleasant,	1	Lambert,	1
Lowell,	2	Nesbit,	1
North,	1	Northland,	1
Onstead,	1	Polk Centre,	1
Rosebud,	2	Reis,	2
Riverfalls,	2	Keeme,	1
Rocksbury,	2	Red Lake Falls,	1
Red Lake Falls Village	2	Russia,	1
Sletten,	1	Sanders,	1
Sandsville,	1	Sullivan,	2
Tabor,	1	Tynsid,	1
Tilden,	1	Terrebonne,	1
Vineland,	2	Woodside,	2

All townships organized since the last general election are allowed one delegate each subject, however, to the approval of the convention.

A full representation from each township is requested.

By order of the Committee.

P. J. McGuinn, Chairman.

Dated at Crookston, April 8th 1884.

The Bloody Fifth.

Fergus Falls, April 8th—The Fifth district republican committee are in session here. Lieutenant Governer Gilman, Paul C. Sletten J. H. Van Dyke, G. W. Boyington, A. Barte, L. K. Aaker are conferring with local politicians. Important action is expected with the probability of a call for a congressional nominating committee to meet in Moorhead. The call of the Kindred party also provides for congressional as well as delegate convention.

LATER REPORTS FROM CHARLEY GILMAN.

The Nelson committee had a meeting here to-day which was attended by nearly all the members. The meeting was held at the Grand hotel. All the prominent republicans of the city were present The committee decided to call a district convention at Fergus Falls April 23, for the purpose of nominating a congressman. The same apportionment was made as for the Moorhead convention. The action of the committee was quite a surprise to the Kindred men as they had announced that the convention would not be held until late in the season. It will either force Mr. Kindred to run or back down. It is regarded as the shrewdest move in the whole fight and must be met with decision by the Kindred committee or they will lose all hope of success. Charley Gilman is the author of the move and he is certain that it will work satisfactorily. As to whom would be the delegates to Chicago was not discussed, but all seemed favorable to H. G. Page of this place, who will be one of the leading candidates in the convention.—[Fargo Argus.

Early Potatoes.

A correspondent of the Gardeners' Monthly gives this as a good method of getting potatoes early: Some years ago I conceived the idea of planting my potatoes with shoots to them. Probably the sprouts suggested the idea, at any rate I carried out the plan, and have been so well pleased with it I have followed it out for three years. A few weeks before planting time I select my seed potatoes, and set them in a warm place to sprout. By the time my ground is ready the shoots are about three inches in length. The potatoes are handled carefully so as not to break the growth, and cut up in suitable size, as in the ordinary way. One strong shoot is left to each piece. The sets must be put into the ground carefully, of course, or the shoot will be broken off. As growth commences at once, the green tops show in a few days. There is easily a saving of two weeks time at the start Those who have rather a low ground which cannot be worked very early in spring, as I have, will find this method will enable them to compete with their neighbors on higher ground. with success. By July 10th, I was using fine Beauty of Hebrons (an excellent early sort by the way,) planted April 25th. They were then not fully ripe, though he yellow tint in the leaves were getting quite perceptible. Generally the tops are dead at this date, but an unusually fine potato season kept them growing ater this year.

hat our exchanges say about the double-header in the Fifth.

Moorhead News: The committee epresenting the Republican party nachinery in the exercise of its powers as called a convention, to choose elegates to the Chicago convention, a basis of representation being the ggregate vote cast for both Nelson nd Kindred in 1882. This seems to be sufficient recognition of Kindred. at his so-called district committee as not consulted in regard to the convention should be a cause for Kindred sulk or to declare war on the Reublican party of the Fifth District is reposterous. There should be no indred committee. If there is one d the regular committee had conlted them or recognized them in y official manner it would have been outrage, and would have made pectable a bolting faction. They just right in not recognizing any h committee.

ergus Falls Journal: According to Sunday's Pioneer Press, Kindred's henchmen, Holmes, Sleeper and others, have taken the war path, claiming to not be satisfied with the action of the Gilman committee which has called the Moorhead convention. It is hard to imagine what more they could ask than is allowed in the Moorhead call, in which the Kindred counties are allowed delegates on all their votes, including the frauds of Itasca and Brainerd, as well as all the Democratic votes they beat Barnum out of.

Glyndon News: The logical effect of persistence in this Detroit program would be to deprive "Kindred" counties of 1882 of their due representation at Moorhead, at St. Paul, and at Chicago. It is in the nature of party self-disfranchisement; it is cutting off the nose to spite the face.

Moorhead News: If Mr. Kindred was not advised of the action to be taken, we shall expect to see him forthwith condemn it, as, if he entertains the smallest hope of ever being honored by a marjority vote in this district, he can never accomplish his ambition by any such factional, narrow-minded, strife-producing policy as that developed by his reputed friends at Detroit.

Fergus Falls Journal: The Kindred committee of the Fifth district had a meeting at Detroit yesterday, and after ventilating their grievances in each other's ears, proceeded to issue a call for a convention at Moorhead on the same day as the regular Republican convention. This is a piece of political tomfoolery that has had no equal since the Kindred campaign of 1882. It is doubtless a piece of pure bluff, and should be treated accordingly. If they want to nominate a candidate for congress in April to stand the racket until November, well and good let them.

The Imperial Tree Bean is attracting very much attention among agriculturists. It is a remarkable producer, and in quality excels the far-famed white navy. The Minneapolis Farmer's Tribune, among the many other excellent things it is doing to promote good husbandry in the Northwest, is giving away to its readers packages of the seed of the Tree Bean. Our readers will be interested in seeing the Tribune's liberal offer. Send for sample copy.

From the Pioneer Press.

The Kindred committee has gone too far in calling a separate convention and directing the election of delegates in every county, to antagonize the work and the decisions of the regular Republican organization in the Fifth district. The place and date fixed for the convention, being the same as that already announced by the regular committee, seem to hold out a faint show of hope that compromise will be sought; but how delusive is that hope is evident on the slightest inspection. After the excitement of a contest in every county and the heat which will be thus engendered, the two opposing assemblies will be in no mood for harmony, and a perpetuation of the old feud is the only event that can naturally follow. In this situation, the duty of every Republican of the district is clear. The doctrine that a party split must be kept up forever is pernicious and contemptible. The fact that all reasonable men deprecated the ignoring of the Kindred committee does not give that body a semblance of legality or authority. Conference was advocated only as a matter of courtesy and harmony; as a politic move, not one which there was any right to demand Sometimes there must be a decision rendered between opposing candidates in the same party, and that decision was given in the Fifth district at the last congressional election, by a tremendous majority. The occurrence of such contests is not uncommon. But, as Mr. Washburn has pointed out in the case of the old First district in this state, no one dreams that the rival organizations are to be forever maintained. There is but one possible Republican organization in the Fifth district to-day. Those who choose to attach themselves to the personal fortunes of Mr. Kindred, and from the nucleus of a national Kindred party can follow that hopeful calling if they choose. But in so doing they will be in no sense of the term, Republicans, and rather forfeit any claim they have upon the party regard than acquire a new one. The only sensible or possible course for these men was to work with the regular organization and accomplish what they might as integral parts of it. As a separ e faction they have no claims which anybody will need to recognize. It is by no means too late for such Republicans as chose to vote for Mr. Kindred to correct the mistakes of their leaders. If they desire to have voice or weight in the organization, they must disregard the command for a perpetual squabble in which they alone will be the losers, and unite under the call of the Gilman committee to send delegates to its convention. The Kindred committee had an admirable chance to show themselves truly desirous of harmony, and to remove the bad impression which the last reckless campaign created. They have deliberately thrown it away, and there is absolutely no reason why the mass of voters hitherto attached to that cause should hesitate to put themselves right by returning to act with the regular organization. The idea that there can be two organizations of a party in the same district, after the issue between them has been settled by a popular election, is silly and impossible. If the so-called Kindred faction had any definite hopes or purposes for the future, it has finally sacrificed them by its late absurdity. It has now no claim upon any Republican, no matter for whom he may have voted a year and a half ago. Every loyal member of the party will act with the party's duly authorized and only representatives in the direction of national affairs, which is now the sole issue presented.

The Imperial Prolific Bean.

Promises to revolutionize this branch of the vegetable kingdom. The Minneapolis Tribune Company gives a package of those seeds, together with a choice selection of other varieties ($1 worth in all), for one new yearly subscription to the Farmers' Tribune. Send for sample copy.

Sweep, Ho!

If you want your chimney cleaned in a scientific manner, call on August [illegible]. He knows how it is done.

G. A. R.

The comrades who are to be charter members of the G. A. R. post in Crookston, are requested to meet in Fortier's Hall on Wednesday, the 16th inst. at 2 o'clock p. m. to be mustered in by A. A. G., H. A. Norton. Bring your discharges or proper evidence of their existence.

By order Committee.

The Farmers' Tribune is the cheapest and best paper published. Send for sample, and if you like it subscribe for it. Tribune Company, Minneapolis.

Parents and Guardians of Independent School District No 1, are requested to meet with the School Board on Thursday evening Aprial 17th at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of promoting the general government of our public school.

By request of school board.

For Sale.

Four new milch cows two years old, three fourth Durham, for sale on reasonable terms, by Chris. Hanson.

[50-51]

For Sale On Time.

One Buckeye Seeder. One Buchanan wagon complete, both in good condition.

John Knuppe.
R. R. Land Office.

Notice to Contractors.

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to Wednesday noon, April 30th 1884 for the ditching and grading of all the roads in the Town of Tabor, being town 159 range 48, in all seventy-two miles of road; bids to be made at price per yard of grade; the whole to be completed to the satisfaction of the town board in two years from the date of agreement.

SPECIFICATIONS.

Road-bed to be 18 feet wide.

Beermes six feet wide each.

Ditches, eight feet wide on top.

Depth of grade, two feet.

Width of grade twelve feet on top.

Grade to be made level.

Payment for the work to be made in town bonds running from five to six years drawing ten per cent interest. Bonds to be issued for one-half the work as soon as one-half the work is completed and the balance as soon as the whole is satisfactorily finished. Security will be required for the faithful fulfillment of the work in a sum equal to the amount of contract.

The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids. Address all bids, plainly marked "Tenders for grading" to Frank Cornouack, town clerk Angus, Polk Co., Minn.

Samuel Huggard, Chairman of Board.
John Mikkelecky,
James Kotek.

Subscribe for the Minneapolis Farmers' Tribune and you will get, not only the best news and agricultural paper published in the interest of the Northwestern Farmer, but a package of choice flower and garden seeds worth at any store $1. Send to Tribune Company, Minneapolis, for sample copy.

For Sale.

Horses, oats, cordwood, fence posts and potatoes for sale at the farm of Jacob Stambaugh on the Sand Hill River 7 miles east of Beltramistation. Parties wishing to purchase any of the aforementioned property will do well to call,

[46-tf]

For Sale.

A fine farm of 480 acres, 270 acres under cultivation. Good house, barn and well, teams, and machinery to run it. On account of ill health will be sold at a big sacrifice for cash. For further particulars address Journal office.

Young people's meeting held in the Baptist Chappel every Sunday evening from quarter after six to quarter after seven. Meeting dismissed in time to get to other church services. All the young people cordially invited.

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

John McLean, Atty at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Seed Wheat.

I have 1500 bushels of pure Scotch Fife wheat for sale. Call on or address,

Frank Bivins,
[45-tf] Crookston, Minn.

So far, Crookston has fortunately escaped the ravages of that dreaded monster the Fire Fiend, but we know not at what hour he may appear in our midst. The only way to meet this terrible foe is by good, reliable Insurance. Look over our Million List of staunch, fire-tested companies and make your selection before you have cause to regret a loss.

Hartford	$8,761,279
German American, N.Y	3,084,936
German, Freeport, Ill,	1,[illegible]
Niagara,	1,887,487
Liverpool London, Globe	4,777,[illegible]
Fireman's Fund, California,	1,169,817
National, of Hartford,	1,704,[illegible]
N. Y. Alliance,	1,097,[illegible]
Phoenix, of Hartford	[illegible]
Union, California,	1,[illegible]
British America,	1,[illegible]
North British	1,[illegible]

We also represent the Travelers Life and Accident Insurance Co., of Hartford.

I. M. [illegible]
[illegible] Agency.

[illegible]

Ready for grain in the spring 100 acres on Section 12 Township 149 Range 46 and 320 acres on Section 11 Township 148 Range 46. Both tracts have a good house and barn. Apply Peter Cornelius Crookston Minn.

[illegible]

Lost.

A clerk's day book somewhere between Bigham & Olafson's store and Austin Larson's residence on Ash Street opposite the Catholic church; finder will confer a great favor by returning the same to Austin Larson at the store.

[49-50]

THE
* * * * * * * * * * * * * *
RED STAR
* * * * * * * * * * * * * *
GROCERY
NOW OPEN
In the Building adjoining the Canada House,
Broadway, Cor. Fletcher Ave.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A FRESH STOCK OF GENERAL GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

I will make a specialty of Canned Goods.

I will also introduce a Japan Tea cheaper than ever before offered in Crookston.

Your patronage is kindly solicited and a visit to the Red Star Grocery will convince any one of the LOW PRICES.

Goods will be delivered throughout the city free of charge.

Terms Strictly Cash.

Remember the place, Sign of the Red Star Grocery, Broadway, cor. Fletcher Avenue, Crookston, Minn.

E. LePAGE.

Bigham & Olafson
Successors to Juve & Bergland.
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
Main Street, Crookston,
Have on hand, and are constantly receiving, full lines of
DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS
In fact everything usually found in First-Class General Store.
Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at
LOW PRICES
GIVE US CALL

DENTISTRY.
J. M. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial teeth from one to an entire set, inserted. Gold, silver or artificial filling [illegible]. Regulating children's teeth a specialty. All work warranted.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office on Main Street, one door south of [illegible]. Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

COMMERCIAL HOUSE.
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Having leased this new and commodious hotel we are now prepared to supply the needs of the traveling public in first-class style. Our house is entirely new and newly furnished; we have had a long experience in the hotel business and hope to be able to meet the wants of [illegible] We would [illegible] share of the public patronage. [illegible]

NEW
DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD
DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my New Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of fresh
DRUGS, MEDICINES,
PAINTS, OILS,
and YANKEE NOTIONS

'Tis no longer necessary to go 40 or 50 miles for anything in this line as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see!

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls, by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co. Minn.

Dr. A. Nelson.

Intelligence Office
AND
LAUNDRY
Now open and ready for business. All Laundry work at reduced rates. Lace curtains and kid gloves cleaned equal to new. Girls desiring good places, or parties desiring good, competent help should leave their name and address at this office. M. [illegible],
Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

THE KIMBALL ORGANS
Have attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior. They contain every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce. These excellent
ORGANS
are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty of finish, perfect construction, making them the
MOST ATTRACTIVE,
ORNAMENTAL AND DESIRABLE
ORGANS
For Homes, Schools, Churches, Lodges, Societies, Etc.
ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
Unequalled Facilities, Skilled Workmen, Best Material, and aim to Excel combined, make this THE POPULAR ORGAN. Every Organ Warranted for Five Years.
INSTRUCTION BOOKS AND PIANO STOOLS.
Catalogue and Price Lists, on application, FREE. Address
C. J. KOPS, Crookston, Minn.
GENERAL AGENT W. W. KIMBALL CO.

This space is reserved for I. M. Underhill, General Insurance and Real Estate Agent.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
AND Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all Principal Points in
RED RIVER VALLEY,
NORTHERN MINNESOTA,
NORTHERN DAKOTA
AND TO
DEVIL'S LAKE AND TURTLE MOUNTAIN DISTRICTS,
CONTAINING OVER
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land Department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that Department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country, giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE to any address, by

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Emigration Commissioner.
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y, St. Paul, Minn.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL!
Fred. Anderson Proprietor,
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
The Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars on hand.

DR. P. THOEN.
Physician and Surgeon.
—OFFICE—
On Sampson's Addition and in Mr. Christensen' Drug Store

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., April 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 15th, 1884, viz: JOHN BAUMANN, H'd No. 6635, for the sw¼ S. 4, T. 147, 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. K. Gallikson, K. Gallicksen, T. Steenerson and B. Hafterson all of Edna, Polk Co., Minn.

[49-2] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., April 2d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 13th, 1884, viz: JEREMIAH GRIFFIN, H'd No. 2857, for the ne¼ S. 26, T. 151, n, R. 46 w. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Sullivan, Jerry Donohue, Timothy Donahue and Thomas Casey, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[49-3] JOHN CROMB, Register.

GRAND
GIFT ENTERPRISE
AT THE STORE OF
HACK & GALLASCH
Secure one or more Tickets and you will be happy.
ALL
DRY GOODS, WINTER GOODS,
BOOTS, SHOES, CAPS, GLOVES,
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
AT BOTTOM PRICES.
Call in and we will try to please you and tell you all about the
GIFT ENTERPRISE.
CROOKSTON

THE
RED LAKE FALLS
FLOURING
MILL
Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do Custom Work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & OLBENTSON,
PROPRIETORS,
RED LAKE FALLS, POLK CO., MINN.
JOHN M. IVES. D. E. DARTEBEAD.

LIVERY FEED
AND
SALE STABLES
Two doors north of U. S. Land Office
Main St., Crookston, Minn.
T. H. BJOIN, Proprietor
Work horses, buggy horses, saddle horses, mules and oxen bought and sold, and traded
For a stylish rig, by day or night, call at Bjoin's Livery Stable.

P. A. DUFOUR,
ATTORNEY & COUNSELOR AT LAW
MAIN STREET,
CROOKSTON - MINN

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL
WATCHMAKERS
AND DEALERS IN WATCHES,
CLOCKS
AND JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET,
Crookston, - - Minn.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.
H. B. MONTGOMERY, St. Paul, Minn. President.
M. R. BROWN, Crookston, Minn. Vice President
J. KELSO, Bellevue, Iowa. Second Vice President
W. M. ROSS. Crookston, Minn. Cashier
CASH CAPITAL, $33,000.
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.
Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
W. M. ROSS, Cashier

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.
PAID IN CAPITAL, - - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - - 1,400
MONEY TO LOAN on Long or Short Time on Approved Security.
INTEREST ON TIME DEPOSITS. Faithful Attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier

MERCHANTS HOTEL
J. E. MTTON, Prep.,
WAHPETON, - - - - D. T.

CROOKSTON TONSORIAL PARLORS
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
Shaving, Hair Dressing, and all work in my line promptly attended to in the latest styles of the art. Give me a trial. PROF. THOMPSON.

NURSERIES!
Tree Claim Stock.
I DESIRE to inform my customers and others that I shall make a GREAT REDUCTION from former prices on Forest Trees and Seeds
FOR TREE CLAIMS
I have good thrifty two-year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of
SMALL FRUITS,
such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty, Transcendent and Hislop Crab apple trees.
The firm of Haseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the Old Nursery Grounds
in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.
Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.
ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.
F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minnesota.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University, Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec. Late of Michigan University, U. S.
[illegible] Crookston Minn.

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 10.

R. R. TIME TABLE.

CROORSTON.

—GOING NORTH.—

	ARRIVE.	DEPART.
No 1 Passenger,	10:45 p. m.	11:55 p. m.
" 19 freight.	1:30 a. m.	2:30 a. m.
" 15 "	4:00 p. m.

—GOING SOUTH.—

	ARRIVE.	DEPART.
No. 2 Passenger,	4:00 a. m.	4:10 a. m.
" 15 Freight,		5:25 a. m
" 13 "	1:15 p. m.
" 21 "	6:30 a. m.
"x4 "	6:15 p. m.
" "		4:30 p m.

Grand Forks and Devils Lake.

No. 46 Mixed	4:45 p. m.	9:15 a. m.

St. Hilaire Branch.

Mixed trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10 a. m.; returning at 3 p. m.

Republican District Convention.

A Republican District Convention for the Fifth Congressional District of Minnesota will be held at the Opera house in Moorhead, Clay County, at 12 o'clock m. on the 24th day of April, 1884, for the purpose of choosing two delegates to the Republican National Convention at Chicago. The basis of representation will be one delegate for each organized county in the district, and one for each additional 300 Republican voters or major portion thereof as determined by the vote cast for Knute Nelson and C. F. Kindred for Congress in 1882. The following is the apportionment:

Aitkin,	2	Lake	1
Becker,	5	Mille Lacs,	2
Beltrami,	1	Morrison.	4
Big Stone,	3	Marshall,	8
Benton,	2	Norman,	5
Carleton,	3	Otter Tail,	13
Cooke,	1	Pope,	3
Cass.	2	Polk,	9
Clay,	6	Stearns.	9
Crow Wing,	9	Stevens,	4
Douglas,	7	St. Louis,	7
Grant,	4	Todd,	4
Hubbard,	1	Traverse,	5
Itaska,	3	Wadena,	8
Kittson,	3	Wilkin,	3
Total,			180

The attention of Republican county committees is called to the following resolution:

RESOLVED, That in case any county has no county committee, or having one, said committee shall fail to issue a call before the 15th day of April, for a convention pursuant to the call, the chairman of this committee shall appoint a committee of three Republicans to take action looking to the proper calling and holding of a county convencion in such county or counties.

By order of the district committee.

GEO. W. BOYINGTON, Secretary. C. A. GILMAN, Chairman.

'ROUND HOME.

Mr. Stevens was in the city last Monday.

Charlie Seeley is getting ready for a fourth of July celebration.

Barber and Bob did take the dog with them on their hunting trip.

People are beginning to catch fish out of the river below the dam.

We understand that Dick Hussey says that the ice goes under the dam.

H. Fisk a well known attorney from Ada were in the city last Saturday.

Cowing Bros are improving their store front by giving it a coat of paint.

Just arrived at Paul Bataglia's a large stock of new goods; furniture of all kinds.

Harry Burns had a frightful time in a cyclone; if you dont believe it look on his head.

The Pennock Ditcher and Grader sold by Moser & Mœckel is the best in the market.

Several representatives from the Thirteen Townships were in the city last Saturday.

We notice that the different grocerymen have received fresh onions, raddishes and lettuce.

Turnip seed took a tumble up at Markham's the other day by the looks of the sidewalk.

We dont hear any more complaints from the mill men about not having enough water to run full time.

If you want a nice bedroom set Paul Bataglia's furniture store is the place to secure it at bed rock prices.

Chas Robbacke formally in business in this city, now of St. Hilaire, registered at the Linton House on Monday.

Paul Bataglia has bought the patent right of a new spring bed the same will be manufactured hereafter in this city.

Several charges of Dynamite were used last week to break the ice above and below the dam. It was effectual.

The commercial House was filled with guests over Sunday. Crookston is getting to be a great resort for ye weary traveling man.

Our snow storm of last Sunday and Monday did not amount to very much, and we dont think that it bothered the farmers any. A good many are seeding in this vicinity.

Ducks are beginning to light on the prairie in large flocks, and sportsman in our city are beginning to get their guns in readiness for the spring sport.

Bob Netzer's high water boots are too short on one end.

The calico party given by the Knights and Ladies of Honor last Friday evening at Ericssen's Hall was largely attended. Every body had a good time. Music was discoursed by the Italian Band. Harry Burns prompted.

The boys in this city have engaged both the bands to welcome John Hack on his return from Red Wing. He started for that city last Wednesday morning; rumor says that John will bring the lady back with him this trip.

Colored eggs will be in order about Sunday next.

W. D. Bailey has returned from Duluth, where he has been located for some months back.

Geo Crocker returned from St. Hilaire last Saturday evening where he has been rusticating for several days.

Paul Bataglia has got the largest and best assorted lot of furniture ever brought to this city which he will sell at a very low figuer.

A large amount of merchandise was unloaded and delivered to the different merchants of this city last Monday; business seems to be improving all the time.

Dunk Morris and Will Sargent went out hunting one day this week, was out all day and finally succeeded in slaughtering one poor little duck. For a narrative and particulars go to Dunk Morris.

E. O Flanders who lives about two miles from this city noticed fire in his granary about 11 o'clock in the forenoon on Thursday last; he, being alone at the time the fire got such a start that the granary and contents was completely destroyed. The granary was a new one built at the cost of about $1000, and contained all of his seed grain, about 6,400 bushels of oats, all of his seed wheat the exact quantity not known but must have been considerable as he farms a large tract of land. The granary was not insured but we understand that the grain was insured for a small amount something like $400, which is a mere nothing compared to the loss. He thinks that the fire came from sparks from the chimney of his house.

We hear from pretty good authority that the Opera House and skating rink that has been talked so much about is a sure thing. We are very glad to note this fact for Crookston is one of the best show towns in the Northwest and a good Opera House will certainly draw the best companies to this city and with a roller skating rink in connection will be one of the best paying institutions in the city. This Opera House question has been agitated for some time in this place and every body will be glad to know that arrangements are being made as fast as possible and that we will have a good Opera House in the near future. As yet we have not heard of the exact location but we hope that we may be able to give particulars in full in our next issue.

Will Davis rejoices and is making considerable noise about having caught the first fish of the season now of course we dont know any thing about it but a good responsible party told us that Will had been standing on the ice, fish pole in hand anxiously waiting for a nibble so long that his boots were frozen to the ice—when some boys came along with a net and caught several fish and laid on the ice near where Will was located and while they were going the other way and getting ready to make another haul Will smiled and slyly put one of the fish on his hook dropped it into the water loosened his feet and prepared to draw the fish in. When the right time came he gave the pole a great jerk, and threw the fish safely onto the ice, wound up his line and started for home rejoicing; still nobody can deny the fact that Will is a good fisherman.

The Orriginal Crookston Cornet Band.

This band will give a grand ball on Easter Monday eve., at Ericssens Hall. On Monday afternoon they will have a street parade and the people of this city may look forward for some extra good music on this occasion. The members of this band are leaving nothing undone that can be done to make this the social event of the season. The program for this occasion will vary considerably from any we have had here as yet. A good string band will be in attendance and besides this there will be a number of round dances with select music by the full band a grand time is anticipated. Tickets $1.00. All are cordially invited.

Wanted to Exchange.

Fifteen acres in city lots, near Chicago, worth $1,000 per acre, for good farming lands in the Red River Valley, or property in Crookston or Grand Forks. The most beautiful place in the west, located on the lake shore; splendid improvements; the best society, schools and churches; has a Ladies Seminary and a University; twenty trains to Chicago every day; low fares. This property is bound to increase in price as Chicago grows. Will sell in parcels of one acre each or more. Inquire of the Editor of this paper. [48 1]

DITCHING

AND ROAD GRADING

MADE EASY.

The Pennock Ditcher and Grader can be bought for one-fifth the cost of the New Era Grader, and it will do the work better than any machine heretofore brought into the market. Will sell the machine on its merits. No work, no pay. Apply to

MOSER & MŒCKEL,

[48-3m] Gen'l Northwestern Agents.

Wanted.

An experienced office salesman for handling machinery. Must understand bookkeeping. Address Steenerson Bros. Crookston, Minn. [49-2]

MONEY! $100,000 To Loan.

LAND! 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY AND IT WILL BE SOLD

Law and Insurance, Collections Made,

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,

PALMER & BOND.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY

IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City

FREE OF CHARGE

FARMERS!

When you want the best Machine Oil go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Salt by the barrel, go to D. BUCHANAN'S

If you want Flour and Bran, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Pork, Lard or Salt Fish go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Teas, Coffees, Syrups, or anything in the Grocery line, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

Or if you want to Sell your Butter and Eggs, go to

D. BUCHANAN'S

on Broadway, between 2d and Robert Streets.

STEWART & LAWRENCE,

Dealers in

Pine Lumber.--Pine Lumber.

Windows, Doors, Mouldings, Building Paper, &c.

YARD ON OAK STREET. NORTH OF BROWN'S LIVERY STABLES.

A. Allen,

AGENT

FOR THE

HOWE

SCALE

COMPANY.

Deep Wells!

R. W. RANNEY

IS NOW PREPARED

TO GO TO CHINA

OR THEREABOUTS

AFTER A

FLOWING

WELL

IF NECESSARY.

☞ He will contract by the day or job at living rates. If you want a good flowing well, address

R. W. RANNEY,

[6-48] Glyndon Clay Co. Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, - Minn.

McKINNON BROS.

MANUFACTURERS OF

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES, WAGONS, CUTTERS, SLEDS, &C., &C., &C.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN

FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Johnson Bros. Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and the Plano Harvester and Binder, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, in fact we have everything in Machinery, from a wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine. Extras for all machines, always on hand.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY

The Dennet or Beloit

HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY,

And the Van Brunt & Davis

SEEDER COMPANY,

Are Represented

BY

STEENERSON BROS.,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

IVES & HATLESTAD,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

Collection and Land Office Business made Specialty.

Money secured for final proofs on short notice

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.

GRADUATE McGILL UNIVERSITY, MONTREAL.

Licensed College Physician and Surgeon, Quebec.

Office over Medical Hall.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homœopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Rooms corner Main Street and Fletcher Avenue, over Elken Bros. Hardware Store.

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

FURNITURE STORE.

OAK STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

BATAGLIA & KNACK, PROPRIETORS

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bed steads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings and Picture Frames. Repairing done to order. Goods of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

TOM MORRIS,

—THE—

CITY

JEWELER

REPRESENTS THE

CELEBRATED

Rockford Quick Train

WATCH

THE ONLY

Railroad

Watch

IN EXISTENCE.

NEW BROADWAY

Meat Market.

JEROME BROS., Proprietors.

Fresh and Salt Meats

OF ALL KINDS,

VEGETABLES

in their season. All goods delivered if requested.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, we shall at once put up from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice and be prepared to supply the trade for 1884. Wishing you all

—A HAPPY NEW YEAR!—

we are, yours respectfully.

E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

THE NEW

Livery, Feed

AND SALE

STABLES

Cor. Main and Fourth streets,

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA

TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

Good turnouts at all times at reasonable prices.

Good Hearse and a Careful Driv when needed.

E. D. SCHRADER

LIVERY.

Feed and Sale Stab

Best Turnouts in the city. Singl Double Rigs, with or without dri or Saddle horses always ready at a ments notice by day or night. If want a

NOBBY TURNOU

—CALL AT THE—

RED BARN

E. D. SCHRADE

Cor. Main and Third Streets, Crook

Fortier's Plac

Corner Broadway and Robert

EVERYTHING NE

NEAT AND NOBBY.

Billiard, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, and Cigars. The purest High Proof W Wholesale Prices.

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DR

M. M. VanDy

PHYSICIAN & SURGEO

COR. MAIN AND SECOND STRE

Will attend to all profession promptly.

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT L

AND DEALER IN

REAL ESTATE

Office Over Merchants' Ban

JOHN LEO, S. STEE

LEO & STEENERSO

ATTORNEYS AT

Room 2, U.S. Land Office Buil

CROOKSTON

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS----$1.50 per Annum.

VOL. VII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA. THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1884. NO. 51

Polk County Journal

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar Fifty Cents, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum sent to any address.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

Space.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 year
½ Inch...	50	1 00	1 25	1 50	$3 00	4 50	6 00
1 Inch.....	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 Inches..	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 20	9 50	15 00
3 Inches..	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 20	20 00
4 Inches.	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 70	10 00	18 00	25 00
5 Inches..	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ Column	3 50	4 50	15 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ Column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 Column	8 00	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class Matter

Republican District Convention.

A Republican District Convention for the Fifth Congressional District of Minnesota will be held at the Opera house in Moorhead, Clay County, at 12 o'clock m. on the 24th day of April, 1884, for the purpose of choosing two delegates to the Republican National Convention at Chicago. The basis of representation will be one delegate for each organized county in the district, and one for each additional 500 Republican voters or major portion thereof as determined by the vote cast for Knute Nelson and C. F. Kindred for Congress in 1882. The following is the apportionment:

Aitkin,	2	Lake	[illegible]
Becker,	5	Mille Lacs,	[illegible]
Beltrami,	1	Morrison,	[illegible]
Big Stone,	3	Marshall,	[illegible]
Benton,	2	Norman,	3
Carleton,	5	Otter Tail,	15
Cooke,	1	Pope,	[illegible]
Cass,	2	Polk,	[illegible]
Clay,	6	Stearns,	4
Crow Wing,	9	Stevens,	[illegible]
Douglas,	7	St. Louis,	[illegible]
Grant,	4	Todd,	2
Hubbard,	1	Traverse,	4
Itasca,	3	Wadena,	3
Kittson,	3	Wilkin,	[illegible]
Total,			130

The attention of Republican county committees is called to the following resolution:

RESOLVED, That in case any county has no county committee, or having one, said committee shall fail to issue a call before the 15th day of April, for a convention pursuant to the call, the chairman of this committee shall appoint a committee of three Republicans to take action looking to the proper calling and holding of a county convention in such county or counties.

By order of the district committee.

GEO. W. BOVINGTON, Secretary. C. A. GILMAN, Chairman.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican County Convention for Polk County, Minnesota, will be held at the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said county, on Tuesday April 22d, A. D. 1884, at 1:30 p. m., for the purpose of the purpose of electing four delegates to attend the Republican State Convention, to be held at the city of St. Paul, Minn., on the first day of May A. D. [illegible], and also for the purpose of electing nine delegates to attend the Congressional Convention be held at Fergus Falls, Minn., on the 23d day April 1884, and also the District Convention be held at the Opera House in the City of Moorhead on the 24th day of April 1884.

The Congressional Convention to be held at Fergus Falls on the 23d inst. is called for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate member of Congress for the Fifth Congressional District of Minnesota. The District Convention to be held at the Opera House, in the city of Moorhead on the 24th instant, is called the purpose of selecting two delegates to represent this Congressional District in the national Republican Convention.

The several townships and wards are entitled the number of delegates set opposite their names as follows, to-wit:

...us,	1	Black River,	1
...dove,	2	Bray	1
...gland,	1	City of Crookston,
...alet,	1	1st ward,	2
...gents,	1	2d ward,	2
...kston,	1	3d ward,	1
...llid,	2	4th ward,	2
...ardville,	1	Fairfax,	1
...ley,	1	Fanny,	1
...ber,	2	Gervais,	1
...den,	2	Garfield,	2
...ffrey,	2	Grove Park,	1
...nd Forks,	1	Gentilly,	1
...ntville,	2	Hammond,	1
...hard,	3	Higdem,	2
...senville,	1	Keystone,	1
...leville,	2	Liberty,	1
...Pleasant,	1	Lambert,	1
...vail,	2	Nesbit,	1
...rth,	1	Northland,	1
...tead,	1	Polk Centre,	1
...ebud,	2	Reis,	2
...rfalls,	2	Roome,	1
...sburg,	2	Red Lake Falls,	1
Lake Falls Village	2	Russia,	1
...tten,	1	Sanders,	1
...sville,	1	Sullivan,	2
...r,	1	Tynsid,	1
...an,	1	Terrebonne,	1
...land,	2	Woodside,	2

All townships organized since the last general election are allowed one delegate each subject, however, to the approval of the convention, full representation from each township is requested.

By order of the Committee.

F. J. McGWINN, Chairman.

Dated at Crookston, April 9th 1884.

(1) An humble boy with a shining pail went gladly singing adown the dale, to where the cow with the brindle tail on clover her palate did regale. (2) An humble bee did gaily sail far over the soft and shadowy vale, to where the boy with the shining pail was milking the cow with the brindle tail. (2) The bee sat down on the cow's left ear; her heels flew up thro' the atmosphere; and through the leaves of a chestnut tree the boy soared into eternity.—

The following is taken from the autograph album of a Chicago girl: I stood on the ocean's briny shore, and with a fragile reed I wrote upon the sand, 'I love thee!' A wave rolled in and blotted out that fair impression. Frail reed! Cruel wave. Treacherous sand! No more I'll trust the [illegible] with hand. I'll pluck from Norway's [illegible] tallest pine, dip its top in the crater of Vesuvius, and on the high burnished heavens I'll write 'I [illegible] thee!' and I'd like to see any [illegible] wash that out.—Ex.

Unfortunate, if True.

Grand Forks Herald.

There are indications in various items published by the Minneapolis Journal that the Monopolists hope to kill the Nelson Pine Land bill which is of such signal import to the Northwest, and these flunkies of the money power are already jubilating. The Journal of Wednesday says at one place:

"Congressman Nelson was recognized yesterday on the floor of the house and attempted to secure a suspension of the rules to bring up his Red Lake pine land bill. The motion failed to get the requisite two thirds majority, which puts Mr. Nelson's bill at the foot of the calendar, and precludes the possibility of its passage at this session."

We do not so understand the rules of the House. That a bill should lose its place on the calendar because the House refused to take it up and pass it out of its order, would be a legislative monstrosity. The only legitimate effect is to make it bide its turn, and it is said that it stands in a good place on the regular orders and will certainly be considered and should inevitably pass. It is a bill in the interest of the Northwest at large and especially so to the large district which Nelson represents as well as to Dakota. Another item in the same paper exposes the "milk in the cocoa nut," as follows:

"There is at least one man in Minnesota who will thank Congressman Blount of Georgia for attacking Nelson's Red Lake pine land bill, and thereby forcing it to go to the foot of the calendar. The man refered to is T. B. Walker, of Minneapolis, who owns a large saw mil on the Red Lake River."

This simply gives away Mr. T. B. Walker and the monopolists who have thus far been playing an "open an shut" game, to hoodwink the people of the Northwest. The fiery Blount referred to, presented in his attack, the substance of the monopolists' tearful pity for the poor Indians and it was as void of fact as the said Blount's head is of rational brain. The Journal thus makes itself the defender of the lumber monopoly which is only less in its grinding exortion than the Miller's association. While the one robs the Northwest of its daily bread the other would steal away the shacks from the prairies at night and re-sell them at $40 a thousand feet, if they did not fear the affects of natural justice from the settlers. The opposition generated at Minneapolis, to congressman Nelson for his sturdy, honest and straight foward course in representing the true interests of the Northwest, should be the best vindication of him. One way to test the real position of a man is to see who are against him. When the monopoly swine and the corrupters of public morals with cash, are arranged against a man, it is pretty evident that he is the right sort of a man, for the people. In this connection, it is significant that the Journal is daily boasting the irregular, unrepresentative discarded bribers' segment of the capitalist personal cotreie in the Fifth district, which is making a guerrilla war on the regular republican organization. Let the good citizens of the Fifth district, over the Red River, bear this in mind.

Farmers' Address.

The committee appointed by the farmers convention at St. Paul, to issue an address to the farmers of Minnesota, report as folows:

When, in the history of a great nation guaranteeing to all classes of its citizens, equal rights in the possession of property, life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, it becomes necessary for one class, comprising the great majority, to put forth organized effort to relieve themselves from unlawful encroachments and oppressive burdens imposed by another class, comprising the few, duty and due regard for the opinions of their fellow citizens require that the causes which render organized resistance necessary, should be made known.

To that end, the farmers of Minnesota and Dakota, assembled in convention in the city of St. Paul, Minnesota on the 18th, 19th, and 20th days of March, 1884, with forty-six counties represented, though the undersigned committee, address our fellow citizens of the Northwest.

During the past few years, the few who control and operate corporate monopolies, have accumulated immense fortunes by unlawful and oppressive burdens imposed upon the industries of the many. Kings of monopoly have secured favorable legislation through bribery of legislatures, a subsidized public press and unlawfully usurped powers, until the industries of agriculture, the trades and commerce are made to contribute their legitimate profits to corporate monopolies, beyond reason or justice. These abuses have grown until they have assumed the form of burdens so grossly unjust and and intolerable that our fellow citizens of the new Northwest have been forced to assemble in local, county [illegible] purpose of devising means for the redress of grievances and the protection of constitutional rights garanteed to American citizenship. Railroads, endowed by charter, with extraordinary privileges, constructed for public good and duly compensated, have been and are being used as a means of outrageous oppression by illegal assessment of unreasonable freight rates charged for the transportation of the products and commodities of agricultural and other legitimate industries of our country. Roads traversing the great cereal districts of Minnesota and Dakota, are especially censurable for imposing exorbitant and oppressive freight rates.

The officers of one of the said roads, in answer to specific requests made by a committee appointed by a convention of the people of North Dakota, claimed to have made liberal concessions in the interest of the people. Of the three specific concessions claimed to have been granted, two are without foundation in fact, viz: The granting of the privilege to construct elevators of 15,000 bushels capacity, and secondly claiming that the road had reduced freight rates during last year 10 per cent less than the previous year. In the first place, the road unlawfully usurped control over elevators by establishing the present system, and therefore had no power to do otherwise than abandon usurped control thereof. In relation to this matter Gen. J. B. Baker, commissioner of railroads for the State of Minnesota, says:

"At the time of the proposed issuance of the rule, (that is the regulating of the capacity of elevators), this office protested against it, and in the light of experience, still more strongly declares its opposition to this regulation, as being unlawful, unequal in its operation and against public policy." "In our last report, with the approval of the attorney general, we pointed out the illegality of the rule. The railway in question, however promulgated the order, in defiance of the commissioner and of the law, and this regulation is now practically enforced by all the lines in the state." In demonstration of how legislatures are corrupted and honest, equal and just legislation is defeated, he further says: "If it be said that the recent legislature took no action in this very matter brought before them by the commissioner, he has only to say with the mercy of charity, that he will not discuss the causes of the suppression of such legislation."

In the second place, concerning the claimed reduction of 10 per cent on freights, by a reclassification of freight rates, weighs and local rates, an average increase was made as claimed instead of a reduction. Instead of the operating expenses of this said road being 60 to 75 per cent. greater than any other road operated in the northwest, the sworn statements of the officers of the road, as published by the commissioner of railroads, shows that their operating expenses are that much less than some other roads, and much less than any other road operated in the northwest. As to their promise of through transportation of wheat and so called further reduction of freight rates, these are questions and promises for future action to demonstrate their good faith.

Of the past and present conduct of these railroads, we can only say of them that, their exorbitant charges on products, lumber, fuel, machinery and merchandise have resulted in extraordinary and unreasonable profits, which amounts to this, that, for every dollar paid to these corporations, forty to over fifty-two cents goes into their treasury as profit. Though the usurped unlawful control of elevator capacity by railroads, rich elevator companies have secured absolute control of the wheat by driving independent purchasers from the agricultural districts. These elevator companies are a part of the Minneapolis Millers' association, and through these usurped powers by railroads and the latter corporations, gigantic monopolies have been created with power to control the wheat market of the whole northwest. These monopolies have exercised these usurped powers and other dark practices to and extent, which for the year 1883, has resulted in corporate greed absorbing several millions of dollars on the wheat crop of Minnesota and Dakota, which should have gone to the producers as their legitimate profits.

These are the greater evils of which our producers complain, but there are others which are oppressive and unreasonable. In the markets, the farmer finds adulterations and imitations of butter which centralized capital has forced upon it, and he must enter into ruinous competition with these counterfeit products. His good butter is forced to compete with oleomargarine, lard butter, compounds of worm and filth. Glucose is being largely used in the adulteration of sugar and syrups until it is difficult to find a pure article in the markets, and this to the great injury of health and to the detriment of producers who are strenuously striving in the cultivation of sugar cane and beets to supply the demands of our country with sugar and syrups. The [illegible] diet to the injury of health and detriment of legitimate industries are practiced without restraint or fear.

Actual settlers in the state of Minnesota and in Dakota, are being taxed for the improvement of untaxed railroad lands lavishly granted by state and national governments. Railroad corporations have been and are now conspiring to restrict or absorb river and lake navigation petitioned for by the people of Minnesota and Dakota, for the independent transportation of their products to other than the centralized markets controlled by these and other monopolies. Lumber rings and monopolies have heretofore secured absolute control of the pine lands sold by the government, and are now conspiring to defeat a measure before the National Congress intended to give the inhabitants of our prairie cheaper lumber for the construction of more comfortable habitations. Through these abuses arbitrary assessments and unlawful impositions the producer is deprived of his legitimate profit of his labor; his habitation is not what it should be, his family is stinted and deprived of the necessary comforts of life, his children in many cases imperfectly clad and educated, and in many sections the farmer's indebtedness is accumulating while the kings and associates in monopoly live in luxury which corporate greed has wrenched from the legitimate industries of our country.

Reports of county delegations to the St. Paul convention show that farmers and business men of Minnesota and Dakota, recognize the importance of, and necessity for thorough organization, in the interest of self-preservation.

In the thorough, systematic organization of farmers, trades and co-industries of the country, rests their only hope of securing equal and just legislation for the protection of their several industries against the encroachments, tyranny and unlawful usurpations of monopolies, which threaten them with serfdom and slavery. With the producers of our country thoroughly banded together, standing shoulder to shoulder in their demand for equitable laws and their faithful execution, the result must be a grand victory over tyranny and wrong. The principles which underlie the platform adopted by this convention, are principles which commend themselves to an honest public. They are principles of equity and right for the government of all industries in their several relations. No man should receive the support or vote of any person engaged in agriculture, the trades or commerce, who will not first pledge his unqualified support and adherence to the principles of our platform. Neither should any person receive the support of these industries, for any office, who is not thoroughly and unqualifiedly identified with our interests. Any person who accepts and travels on the free pass of any railroad or transportation company while holding public office or position, places himself under obligations to such corporations in such manner as to render independent action for the public good impossible, and should not be trusted as our representatives.

Farmers we call upon you to organize, attend your party caucuses, send true men to your county and state conventions who will see to it that true men, uncorrupted and incorruptable, are nominated, and then see to it that they are elected. The producers of this country comprise 70 per cent. of the voters of the country, and if they do not elect proper men to office, the fault rests with them.

You should associate yourselves with agricultural associations, not alone for present needs, but for the future elevation and prosperity of your industries.

"The Grange, or Patrons of Husbandry." "The Farmers' Alliance," and "The Northwestern Agricultural and Commercial Association," are organizations now in existence throughout Minnesota and Dakota, and they are commended as worthy of your support.

In conclusion, we call your attention to the fact that you have rights and privileges as well as responsibilities. Demand and secure them, using the ballot box as the responsible, propelling and controlling power of American citizenship.

W. T. COLLINS,
A. M. BURDICK,
J. J. FURLONG,
Committee on address.

COMMERCIAL HOUSE.

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor.

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having leased this new and commodious hotel we are now prepared to supply the needs of the traveling public in first-class style. Our house is entirely new and newly furnished; we have had a long experience in the hotel business and hope to be able to meet the wants of our patrons. [illegible]

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP.

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor.

Corner Oak and Third Sts. Crookston Minn

Is ready for the Spring Trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double [illegible]

New York Store!

NEW

SPRING

DRY GOODS!

We have received an immense assortment of the latest styles of goods in every department, and are now offering special reduced rates in

Hamburg Embroideries,
Cottons,
Tickings,
Toweling,
Towels,
Table Linen,
Table Napkins,
Quilts,
Sheetings, &c., &c., &c.

A Full line of Ladies' Fine Boots and Shoes in different styles and prices.

Two cases of Men's Hats just opened. Inspection Invited.

Proud & McDonald.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

TO THE

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

CHOICE LOST

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in

BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Pure Drugs,

Reliable Medicines,

LOWEST LIVING PRICES,

AT

Medical Hall,

CROOKSTON,

Beecher & George, Prop's.

TOM MORRIS,

THE

CITY

JEWELER

REPRESENTS THE

CELEBRATED

Rockford Quick Train

WATCH

THE ONLY

Railroad

Watch

IN EXISTENCE.

NEW BROADWAY

Meat Market.

JEROME BROS., Proprietors.

Fresh and Salt Meats

OF ALL KINDS,

VEGETABLES

in their season. All goods delivered if requested.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, we shall at once put up from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice and be prepared to supply the trade for 1884. Wishing you all

—A HAPPY NEW YEAR!—

we are, yours respectfully.

E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING NEW,

NEAT AND NOBBY.

Billiard, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at Wholesale Prices.

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT

M. M. VanDyke,

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.

COR. MAIN AND SECOND STREETS

Will attend to all professional call promptly.

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,

AND DEALER IN

REAL ESTATE,

Office Over Merchants' Bank.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON

NEW

DRUG STORE

IN GARFIELD

DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my New Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examing my stock of fresh

DRUGS, MEDICINES,

PAINTS, OILS,

and YANKEE NOTIONS

'Tis no longer necessary to go 40 or 50 miles for anything in this line as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see!

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls, by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co. Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 17.

Crookston Markets.

Wheat, No. 1 per bushel		76.
" No 2 " "		72.
Oats, " "		[illegible]
Barley, " "		[illegible]
Potatoes, " "		35.
Hay, per ton		5 00.
Beef Sides	per lb.	13.
Corn Beef	"	12½
Roast Beef	"	18.
Roast Veal	"	18.
Roast Pork	"	18.
Beef Steak	"	20.
Pork Steak	"	20.
Mutton Chops	"	20.
Veal Chops	"	20.
Boiling Meat	"	12½
Salt Pork	"	14.
Pork Sausage	"	25.
Bologna Sausage	"	20.
Sugar Cured Hams	"	16.
Lard	"	18.

'ROUND HOME.

Mr. E. K. Overland was up from Garfield on Friday.

M. LeFevere is fixing up his popular resort in fine shape.

The Leap Year party was well attended and a grand success.

Kistenmacher will follow suit and brace up his establishment a bit.

Johnny O'Brien has caught the spirit of the age and is slicking up.

H. S. Leech reports that he had 175 acres sowed to wheat on April 9th.

Moser & Mœckel still have a few of those Pennock Ditchers and Graders.

Eleven pounds refined white sugar for one dollar, at the Red Star Grocery [51-tf]

The Pennock Ditcher and Grader is the best in the market. Moser & Mœckel, General Northwestern agents.

Robert Houston has bought a thorough-bred Jersey bull, but whatever "Bob" paid for the critter no feller can find out.

The river is falling again, and in fact is getting so low that it is altogether likely that the ice will not move but will melt where it is.

John Watts has returned from Ann Arbor where he has been located this last winter at the law school, in that city finishing up his law course.

New stock of Fancy Groceries, and Provisions at a bargain for cash. Call at the Red Star Grocery and see for yourself. [51-tf]

We see that Joe Netzer is taking down the sign from his building on Main Street. We hear that there is to be a hotel started there in a very short time.

Mr. Damon Dodge, of Liberty was in on Friday, to report seeding well advanced down that way. He has seeded a considerable as have several of his neighbors.

Ducks and geese are quite plentiful in these parts, but all the boys that go out shooting come back home disgusted and say they dont care to shoot them because they are so poor. They do fly high as we ourself can testify.

The Leap Year party, at Ericsson's Hall, last Friday evening was pretty well attended, there being about twenty-five couple present. Music was discoursed by the Crookston String Band. It was a very enjoyable affair.

Rentfrow's Jolly Pathfinders are billed for Saturday evening April 26th, at Ericsson's Hall. This company caused a great sensation when here before and will doubtless draw a full house. Tickets at Morris Bros. Jewelry Store at the popular prices.

Daniel Kelley a former resident of this city, but now residing at Thirteen Townships, was in the city last Tuesday. He says that seeding in that vicinity has been going on for several days. Dan. is putting up a good building there and is going to open a hotel and general store.

Mr. W. H. Smith, of Storm Lake, Iowa, sojourned at mine host Norton's excellent hostelry last week, while looking about the city and country. He says Crookston is the finest city he has seen in the Northwest. He went to Devil's Lake country on Monday morning and intends to stop and look about for farming lands on his return. It is quite probable that he may conclude to invest here.

Easter services were held in most of the churches on Sunday evening. At the Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. C. E. Page, preached a powerful sermon which was listened to with earnest attention by a large audience. The choir, Fred Durand, Fred Reynolds, R. Herrick, Mr. Wile and H. D. Pinkerton sang appropriate pieces in a very pleasing manner. We are informed that they will assist in the morning service next Sunday, and will sing as a quartette in the evening.

The Jolly Pathfinders gave a very entertaining exhibition at the Opera House last evening to a delighted audience. There is no particular plot to the play, and its merit consists in the excellence of the specialties rendered by the different members of the company. Miss Maria Jasper appears in four characters and sustains each with a versatility that it is almost miraculous. Mr. F. W. Stillman in his two different characters, of Theophilus Crywell, a child, and Uncle Hiram, an old man, made a special hit in both, while Mr. J. N. Rentfrow in the role of Claude, the ebony servant of the Pathfinders, convulsed the audience with his comic blunders. "Oh! What a Picnic" brought down the house again and again. The other members of the company [illegible]

Seeding has been pretty generally commenced.

Marshorn & Nobles are painting their store front.

C. C. Utzinger is putting in a new front to his sample room.

Quite a number of representatives from Euclid were in the city last Wednesday.

The river is up, but the prices at the new Red Star grocery store still continue low.

E. D. Childs commenced sowing wheat on Section 3, Fairfax, on Monday, April 14th.

The store room under the Land Office is being fitted up and will probably be occupied soon.

Teas and Coffees, best Brands in the city for the least money, at the Red Star Grocery. [51-tf]

W. G. Mitchel, formerly of the St. Vincent Herald, was in the city chatting with friends on Friday of last week.

Subject of sermon by Rev. E. Page at the Congregational church next Sunday evening: "How shall Crookston be saved?"

Dennis Kelley, in from the 13 towns reports that farmers around Maple Lake were sowing wheat all last week. He says they are getting nearly done now.

Mr. Bergland and others attended the funeral of John O. Juve, in Clay Co. last Saturday. There was a very large attendance, forty-five wagons forming the procession.

The merry music of the hammer is heard all day long on the new Opera house, and very soon we shall have a large and commodious structure, something this city has long needed.

Chas Vance and Jack Confair started for Bismarck this morning. If they do not find employment there to suit they propose to take a trip down the Missouri about 200 miles.

It begins to look like old times. Geo. B. Bohon was in the city on Wednesday night and if he was not looking after the Kindred fences we do not know what he was after.

M. LeFevre says he has the best of goods on tap every day in the week till 11 p. m. sharp, at ten cents a nip, but if you must have a night cap on Sunday it will cost you $14 and costs—until further notice.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings has just received a large stock of Spring and Summer Millinery Goods and guarantee to sell at prices 25 per cent lower than the same goods can be purchased at any other place in the Northwest. [51-tf]

The new Star grocery house on Broadway has started in in good shape. LaPage keeps the choicest goods and it dont take all a man can make during the week to buy his groceries for over Sunday. Seven dozen eggs for $1, and other things in proportion. Ponder on that and weep!

Mr. S. V. Landt, a prominent lawyer of Tipton, Iowa, was in our city, on Sunday and Monday. He is very enthusiastic over the prospects of this country and thinks that a system of diversified farming would pay large dividends. He comes from a great stock country and may decide to bring some stock here with a view to stock raising.

Moser & Mœckel are doing a big business in the new Pennock Grader. Every town that did not secure a grader last year should send a representative to view the Pennock as these machines are said to do their work as well as any grader in existence and their cost is trifling compared to some. Call and examine them before you decide to use the old fashioned scraper on your roads this year and you will never regret it.

A. Yvernault went up to St. Hilaire on Tuesday and reports business looking up very encouragingly. The farmers thereabouts are commencing to sow their wheat and will soon be at it generally. The new boat that is to run to the Red Lake is completed and awaiting her machinery which is daily expected. Mr. Y. thinks St. Hilaire will have a good quiet healthy boom this coming summer.

The new municipal powers that be, are starting in in good shape. The police are instructed to see that all saloons are closed at 11 p. m. and that they are all hermitically sealed on Sunday. On Monday last two saloon keepers were pulled and mulcted in a smart fine and costs. The boys say it is all right if every body has to come down but they say it furnishes lots of Sunday business for the Carman bus.

To have good roads in this county it is only necessary to grade them up high leaving good ditches on both sides. Some towns have been fooling away a great deal of time and labor with teams and scrapers, patching up a few rods of road here and there and only succeeding in showing how miserably bad their roads are anyhow, when if they would invest in a grader or two they could do as much in one season as they now do in twenty and get good roads. Go see the Pennock.

We took a drive out into Fairfax on Monday, over the new graded roads and if any one has any doubts about that system they should travel over those roads once. The roads are all [illegible] and dry except a few places and those are [illegible]

Charlie Seely has put a new awning on the bow of the Exchange.

A cricket club in this city will now be in order for this season. Boys, take notice.

The law firm of Ives & Hattlestad has been dissolved. Mr. Ives will continue in the same office.

Easter services were held in the different churches last Sunday. The churches were beautifully decorated with flowers.

Charlie Vance, who started to go on the Walker drive last week has returned, as on account of low water nothing can be done at present on the drive.

Ole Bang has just received another carload of the celebrated Michel's La Crosse bottled beer. This beer is said to be better than ever by the best judges. Call early as it is going rapidly.

We notice that the boys are out every afternoon playing base ball. We will in all probability have an excellent base ball club in this city this season. The The material is certainly here and if the boys only get interested the club will be gotten up.

As our reporter was navigating Broadway he was accosted by W. O. Wilson who, with a grin on his countenance about a mile long inquired if we ever smoked? Upon being assured in the affirmative he remarked: "It is a bonnie wee lassie, born on Monday, mother and daughter doing well!"

The G. A. R. boys intend to procure uniforms and will be prepared to make it lively for the natives in the line of parades, balls and amusements of all kinds. They will doubtless go into camp some time during the summer for a while. Should all the old soldiers in the county join, Polk County would have the boss Post.

Our reporter says a certain party took the bus for Carman on Sunday last (the front and back doors in this city being hermetically sealed) and on his return went to church. Becoming tired he went out, and in attempting to navigate the sidewalk fell off into the mud. He did not get hurt as the mud was very soft.

We understand that a number of our citizens are going to take a trip to the land of gold on a kind of an exploring expedition and to find out for themselves if there is any truth in the various reports from that region. We hope the boys will strike it rich, if they go.

The opera house now building has opened the way for us to get up a club for the purpose of practicing gymnastics. This kind of a club has been talked of in this city, but heretofore we have had no hall large enough, but as soon as the opera house is completed there will be no excuse. We have in our city one of the best athletes in the State, one who has taught this branch for years, and in a conversation with him to-day on the subject he gave us to understand that he would be more than willing to join us. A meeting will be called before long and then we shall be able to give particulars in full.

Ground was broken and the foundation laid for the new opera house on Monday. The structure will be 120x40 with 20 foot posts, parquette and gallery. Opera chairs will be placed in the parquette which can be removed leaving the boss place for a skating rink. Oh mother may I go there to skate? Why, cert, my darling daughter! But linger, shivering on the brink, and don't go near the—slaughter! For if you 'tempt the magic curve, while on the rollers gliding, you'll get the set-back you deserve and find yourself back-sliding!

Pilgrim.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

Log Sale.

The log sale last Thursday, in front of the Court House in this city, by sheriff Zwickey, was as follows:

Number of feet sold 3,280,000; 15 lots of logs in all. Some on the Clear Water, some on Red Lake River, and some on Wild Rice River. W. J. Darling, of St. Hilaire, bought 2 lots, both on Sand Brook, a little stream that empties into the Red Lake River about five miles from its source. He paid $7.25 per thousand for one lot and $7.50 for the other. T. J. Datling, of Red Lake Falls, bought 8 lots on Red Lake River for which he paid $4.50 to $600 per thousand. He bought in all about 1,000,000 feet. Simon Ray bought the lot on Wild Rice River, in all about 300,000 feet. T. B. Walker of Crookston bought the balance, all on the Clearwater River and tributaries about 1,600,000 feet, at from $4 to $5 per thousand. The whole amount of logs sold brought $16,491.97, the price received per thousand averaged $5.02. The Indians were not satisfied with the price received and say that they will not get out any more that way. The bids have got to be sent to Washington, D. C. and approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and the parties who bid, will not know whether they can have the logs or not until they receive returns from there.

Republican Ward Caucuses.

The different wards of the City of Crookston will hold Republican Ward Caucuses on Friday evening April 18th, 1884, at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of electing delegates to the Republican County Convention, to be held in the City of Crookston on the 22d day of April, 1884, and for the purpose of electing Republican ward committees as follows:

1st ward, 2 delegates, City hall.

2d ward, 2 delegates, [illegible] M. Underhill's [illegible]

[illegible]

MONEY! $100,000 To Loan.

LAND! 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY AND IT WILL BE SOLD

Law and Insurance, Collections Made,

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,

PALMER & BOND

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY

IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City

FREE OF CHARGE

Col. George Post, G. A. R.

The old soldiers met at Fortier's Hall on Wednesday afternoon and were mustered in by Capt. A. E. Hammond. The comrades are:

- Benjamin F. Zarracher, Co. H. 29th Pa. Vols.
- Wm. F. Zwickey, Co E. 11th Minn. Vols.
- Deles Jacobus, Co. I, 48th Wis. Vols.
- Wm. H. Topping, Co. K, 40th Ohio Vols.
- Wallace H. Jennings, Co. K, 1st Wis. Vols.
- Thos. A. Harris, Co. I, 1st Minn. Vols.
- Isaac U. Jennings, Co K, 1st Wis. Vols.
- Albert M. Childs, Co. F, 30 Wis. Vols.
- George H. Holt, Co. K, 13th Minn. Vols.
- Albert N. Hopkins, 2d Mich. Vols., Reg. Band.
- Chas. Homan, Co. E. 39th N. Y. Vols.
- Peter Jerome, Co. E, 4th Minn. "
- Virgil D Carruth, Co. D, 146th N. Y. Vols.
- Chas. M. Jefferson, Co. I, 21st Iowa Vols.
- Wm. R. Dunn, Co. I, 1st Pa. Cav.
- Jacob Meyers, ——
- Cyrus M. Jenks. Co. B, 6th Minn. Vols.
- John O. Milne, Co. I, 1st " "
- Chas. Truax, Co. K, 3d Vt. "
- Milton B. Hayes, Co. B. 5th Wis. "
- Wm. Kertson, Co. E, 11th Minn. "
- Ellery O Davis, Co. G, 85th Ind. "
- Harvey E. Cooke, 1st N. Y. Vet. Cav.
- John McLean, Co. H. 2d Ohio Vols.
- Lewis B. Tooley, Co. C, 35th N. Y. "
- Kelsey D, Chase, Co. K, 2d Minn "
- Geo. W. Peake, Co. K 132 Ill. "
- Jas. E. Greenhalgh, Co. K, 12th Wis. Vols.
- Chas. W. Dipple, Co. A, 1st Wis. Vols.
- Jos. Netzer, Co. J, 8th Minn. "
- Wm. Kistenmacher, Co. F, 3d Minn. Vols.
- Chas. A. Chiniquy, Co. K. 147th Ill. Vols.

The above were duly mustered in as charter members and the following officers elected:

Commander—W. H. Topping.

Senior Vice Commander—Wm. F. Zwickey.

Junior Vice Commander—T. A. Harris.

Surgeon—L. B. Tooley.

Chaplain—A. M. Childs.

Quarter Master—K. D. Chase.

Officer of the Day—Capt. B. F. Zarracher.

Officer of the Guard—W. R. Dunn.

Adjutant—W. H. Jennings.

Sergeant Major—V. D. Carruth.

The Post was named in honor of Col. George, who was a Minnesota veteran. At the evening session the following comrades were mustered in:

Major Chas. Mix, Sewall P. Norton, Dr. Barnes, John Kivel and A. W. Dawley.

Before the exercises the Post indulged in a bit of a parade about the streets with fife and drum. The start that Col. George Post has augurs well for its success. Thirty-eight members are already enrolled and there are more than double that number in the county who will doubtless enlist at an early day. For the present the Post will meet once a week on Thursday evenings. A hall has not been secured but doubtless will be ere another meeting.

[illegible]

Jeppe Paa Bjerget.

The above play, which is said to have been written nearly 250 years ago, was placed upon the boards on Saturday evening last by a traveling Norwegian Company. Mr. Nelson, as Jeppe, illustrated the trials and tribulations of a peasant who would get drunk on every occasion, much to the worry and vexation of his good wife, and kept the audience in an uproar over his exhibitions, acting his part with fine affect. As he confined himself strictly to the Norwegian language our reporter was as highly edified and interested in his words as though some one had fired Webster's Dictionary at him bodily. The following is the CAST OF CHARACTERS.

Jeppe Paa Bjerget	Mr. Nilsen
Mille Hans Hustru	Miss Wangen
Baron Nilus	Mr. Borgen
Sekretaren	Mr. Borgen
Kammertjener	Mr. Wangen
Erik Lakei	Mr. Nestoss
Niderfogden	Mr. Nestoss
Niderfogdens Kone	Mr. Knudson
Jacob Skomager	Mr. Schach
1st Doctor	Mr. Knudson
2d Doctor	Mr. Schach
Dommeren	Mr. Borgen
1st Advocate	Mr. Schach
2d Advocate	Mr. Knudson
Magnus	Mr. Knudson

The Jolly Pathfinders Are Jolly Indeed

It is well that the Jolly Pathfinders have only a two night engagement with us, as it would be impossible for any Fargo audience to survive after more than two evenings' laughter, such are the cute actions and funny sayings of the jolliest of all commedy companies produce. To describe just how they get there, would be doing them injustice, as only those who attend can know just how chuck full of fun and mischief those funny individuals are. If ever the dish of genuine fun was relieved of its cream, the Jolly Pathfinders are certainly the latter, and mighty rich cream they are too. They serve up another dish of this everlasting, tickling, side splitting, funny diet to night, and if you want a meal that will satisfy your appetite for fun, do not fail to attend.—Fargo Post.

Sale of State Lands.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, LAND OFFICE,
St. Paul, April 9th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that W. W. Braden will offer at public sale at the office of the County Auditor, in Crookston, on Friday, May 23, 1884, at ten o'clock a. m., on the terms prescribed by law, the school lands in Polk County that have been appraised and are unsold, or that have been sold and forfeited by reason of failure to pay interest for two or more years.

Lists of the lands to be offered may be seen at the Auditor's office for ten days prior to the sale.

W. W. BRADEN,
Commissioner of State Land Office.

[51-4]

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office for the week ending April 12th, 1884. Persons calling for any of these lettler will please say "advertised."

Anderson, Christine
Anderson, Hanna
Beaubline, Cyrille
[illegible], Samuel [illegible], Joseph
Bergaler, [illegible]
Christiansen, Christine
Cole, [illegible]
Dolling, Mrs Helma
Davis, O F
Erikson, Miss Ellen
Fuller, S L
Gakkestad, Miss Ane
Gendreau, W J
Greeland, Mrs M
Hansen, Miss Emma
[illegible]
[illegible]

Knudsson, Oline
Larable, Palemon
Landry, J F
Martinson, Miss Mary
McClure, Miss Sarah
McDonald, James C—2
Patterson, Cal
Patterson, Augustav
Renaud, Calix
Ross, John
Sallberg, A
[illegible], Henry
Scofield, Jas
Skauvold, Merit K
Smith, John M
Thurison, Rev
Thompson, Miss Mary
[illegible]

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

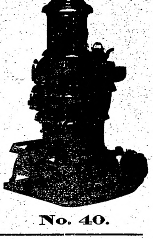
EIKEN BROS.,

DEALERS IN

Hardware, Tinware, Stoves and Shelfware.

We keep Full and Complete Stock of Goods in our Line, and invite the patronage of all.

COR MAIN ST. AND FLETCHER AVE., CROOKSTON.



JEROME'S

ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river. and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,

DEALERS IN GENERAL MERCHANDIS

CARMAN,

Carry a full line of everything u ually found in a General Store, and sell at reasonable prices.

GIVE US A TRIAI

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

Hardware, Tinwar

BAR IRON, STEEL,

BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIE

BUILDING PAPER,

&c., &c. Also Agent

For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

CROOKSTON CITY BAKERY!

EARNEST MILLER, Proprietor.

(SUCCESSORS TO THE PLUMB BROTHERS.)

Takes advantage of the occasion to say that he will keep a full line goods that are usually found in a

FIRST-CLASS BAKERY,

And that the citizens of Polk County will find none but the best at his of business. A fine line of

CIGARS AND TOBACCO, NUTS, FRUITS,

CANDIES, PIES, CAKES,

AND EVERY THING TO FILL OUT A HUNGRY

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Bound For The Frozen North.

The only man among the officers and crew of the steamer Bear, which is to be the advance ship of the Greely relief expedition, who has had any practical experience in the far north is Lieut. John C. Colwell. Lieut. Colwell was one of the search party who sailed to the relief of Greely on the steamer Proteus in 1883. He is now engaged in superintending the work on the Bear. In a recent interview with a Brooklyn reporter, he said:

"This will undoubtedly be the best equipped expedition that has ever sailed to the Arctics, and I have no doubt that it will accomplish its purpose. Had three ships sailed on the last expedition there would have been no necessity for the present one. As it was, just as soon as we lost the Proteus there was nothing left for us to do except to turn around and make our way back."

"Are you like Chief engineer Melville, an Arctic enthusiast?"

"No, I am not." The trip at best is far from enjoyable, and I should never have gone again had I not been very ambitious. If the truth were told, I think every officer who accompanies the Greeley expedition does so for a desire of fame and glory.

"Did you experience much inconvenience from the cold during your last trip?"

"I did not. I was there, you know, during the summer, and I found the weather no colder than the winter is here. We had some fine days, when the weather was almost spring-like. After the Proteus was crushed in the ice off Cape Sabine, I passed 39 days in the open air, travelling 900 miles in a small open boat."

"What nationality of men did you find made the best sailors in an expedition of this kind?"

"The native Americans. They have the most grit and backbone, and can stand the cold better than any of the others."

"How do you like the steamer Bear?"

"I am very much pleased with her, and I think that she is a strong, serviceable vessel. Of course it would be better if her engines were not in the centre of the ship, but we are trying to remedy this defect by strengthening her in every possible way."

"Of how many men will the crew consist?"

"As the relieving vessels may be detained for one or more winters in the ice, the compliment of each ship will be reduced to a minimum, in order to give each man abundant air space. The crew will consist only of useful men, fitted for the vigorous service before them. The officers and crew of the Bear will be one commanding officer, three line officers, one medical officer, one engineer officer, one ice master four petty officers, ten seamen, one machinist, one boiler maker, one blacksmith, one carpenter's mate, three firemen, one captain of hold and yeomen, one ship's cook, one officers' steward and two Esquimaux or men to drive dogs and hunt, aggregating in all 34 persons."

"Has the route to be followed by the bear been determined on as yet?"

"Not definitely, but the general programme will be about as follows: We will proceed to St. John's, N. F., and thence to Upernavik, thence to Littleton's island, communicating with the natives at and north of Cape York. On the way north the coast will be examined from Cape York to Cape Ohisen on the east side, and from Cape Isabella to Cape Sabine on the west. Cairns will probably be erected containing notices of the movements and intentions of the relief expedition at Conical rock, Wolstenholme island, Cary islands, Hakluyt island, Cape Isabella and Cape Sabine."

Effect of Merriment.

The man who is able "to set the table in a roar" will make even his enemies [illegible] him, for there is nothing that so [illegible] burns up personal hostility as a [illegible] of merriment. Ex-Senator Gwin, [illegible] California, tells the following anecdote of Wm. H. Seward, which illustrates his lubricating power at the dinner table.

When Seward came into the senate, [illegible] entered there. It was about the [illegible] 1850. He was re-elected, and so [illegible] I. He was very much disliked in [illegible] senate, when I found him there, as [illegible] Abolitionist.

[illegible] Seward said to me one day, "Mr. [illegible] I want you to invite me to dinner at your house with most of your [illegible] southern senators."

[illegible] said, "Seward, I'm afraid they won't [illegible]."

"Oh yes," said he, "they will if you [illegible] them. When we get at your table I will manage them. He was a wonderfully cheerful little fellow, and it was [illegible] that class of invitations that I could [illegible] shake off

[illegible] went to Butler, of South Carolina, [illegible] said, "I want you to come to my [illegible] to dinner, and Seward is going to [illegible] there too."

[illegible] they came, and it is wonderful to see [illegible] that little fellow managed that table. I never saw his equal at a dinner-[illegible]

[illegible] could tell tales that would make [illegible] body howl with laughter, and a [illegible] many of them were about himself. [illegible] would reflect on himself. In point [illegible], Seward was a wonderful man, [illegible] as a table companion and a stu-[illegible]

Bits of Fun.

[illegible] respectfully but earnestly suggest that the 50,000,000 of American [illegible] who are in the habit of passing [illegible] "resolutions" on the death of everybody [illegible] everybody, send them hereafter to [illegible] Bismark, whose post-office address [illegible] in.

[illegible] exchange says: "The colored [illegible] of Washington, N. J., are sure [illegible] Satin is attending their revival." [illegible] is nothing very remarkable [illegible] that. Revivals in this neighborhood are not only attended by Satin, [illegible], Velvet, Surah, and other [illegible] may be found there.—Norristown Herald.

[illegible] weapon of defence—Dumley was [illegible] at the supper table a narrow [illegible] once had from the attack of [illegible] ryman. "And had you nothing [illegible] yourself with," asked Mrs. [illegible] the landlady, very much in-[illegible] a pistol or any weapon of de-[illegible] "Not a thing," replied Dum-[illegible] [illegible] a five-dollar [illegible] these biscuits just at that [illegible] [illegible] I have been insult-[illegible] ed, sir. My blood boils when I think of it." Smith—"But in what way?" "You know my name was on the jury last week?" "Yes." "Well, I went there and was put on the jury at once." "Nothing remarkable about that." "Yes, but you forgot; not a single lawyer on either side objected to me. Could anything be more insulting?" "What! Not objected to You?" "Of course. They must have taken me for a natural-born numbskull, or they wouldn't have been so willing."—Philadelphia Call.

New Anecdotes of Washington.

The biographer of a well-known Pennsylvanian, recently published, gives one or two anecdotes of Washington which have never been in print before. They throw a new light on his character, and show him to have been more human, if less perfect, than the model man portrayed by Weems.

His friend and neighbor painted the Father of his Country as so absolutely faultless as to be tedious. The volume which we quote gives him the credit of being once, at least, in a just rage.

A respectable mechanic of Philadelphia who reached a venerable age, told the author that he was employed to make some alterations in President Washington's house. One day a pretty servant-girl, passing down the stairs, gave a scream of terror. One of the officers coming out of the drawing-room had attempted to kiss her.

The President was in his own room; he ran out in his shirt-sleeves, half shaved. He was extremely angry, and gave the man a kick which hurried him down the stairs, calling out, "Lear, turn that fellow out! I'll have no man in my house who insults a woman!"

There are preserved in Philadelphia several private accounts of the last time Washington appeared in public in that city, which show the devouted loyalty of affection with which he was regarded by the people. It was on the occasion of Adam's inauguration, which took place in the old State House.

After the ceremony was over the new president, followed by Vice-President Jefferson, went out in state to present himself to the people who were massed outside. They were received with applause.

But when Washington in his citizen's dress appeared behind them a dead silence fell on the vast crowd. They knew he was leaving them forever. He passed down the street, and they followed him as one man, leaving Adams and Jefferson unnoticed.

Down Chestnut Street to Fourth the great mass followed as silent as if at a funeral. When he came to the Indian Queen hotel he went up on the step and turned in the doorway to look at them.

"Then there burst forth," says the chronicler, "a great inarticulate sob, a cry that rent the air. The tears rolled down his cheeks. He raised his hand slowly, with a gesture of farewell and benediction. The door closed on him and they saw him no more."

The crowd dispersed in absolute silence, and the town was plunged in gloom as though every man mourned for one dead.—Youth's Companion.

Platform Women.

The mental and moral condition which the modern platform woman herself exhibits is the surest proof of mischief which public speaking is working by her agency on the community at large—the gradual hardening of the countenance and of the external manner and address, indicating too surely the real repression going on within of much that is lovable and admirable in a woman. No repose, outwardly or mentally, is to be found in her society, she produces a strong impression of unnaturalness, and of living in antagonism with the world around her; an unfortunate frame of mind which has to be frostered, since her position is not yet, thank Heaven, by any means an assured one, and must be struggled for and pursued under protest from a large section of both sexes. Who does not know the shudder with which a sensitive, highly wrought, fastidious man or woman speaks of those whose persons are continually before the world, whose names are bandied about, whose principles are discussed in half the drawing-rooms of London? "That dreadful woman" is the mildest term applied to them. Even the harder-natured part of the cummunity receives shocks from its public-speaking-sisters occasionally with a shrug of the shoulders, and makes jokes at their expense. And the meaning of it all is that the women who take up a personally prominent position in the world are distasteful to the good sense and refined feeling of the majority, and, therefore, that female influence in the world is degenerating. Their power may be increasing, (but that I take leave still to doubt,) but in their proper sphere a small, it may be only a home circle, their once all-powerful influence is waning. Would not true width of intellect, true largeness of heart and soul, be shown by submitting to live in what seems a small space—by seeking to influence what appear to be few men and women to bring up a few children faithfully—by realizing that a narrow sphere does not imply narrow sympathy—that in fact "the growing good of the world is partly dependent on historic acts, and that things are not so ill with you and me as they might have been is half owing to the number who lived faithfully a hidden life and rest in unvisited tombs?—Margaret Lonsdale, in the Nineteenth Century.

Plantation Philosophy.—Dar ain' nuthin' much sadder dan de acks ob a coward what is tryin' ter make folks think dat he is a fighter. Nuthin pleases a ole nigger 'oman so much as fur a pusson ter tell her dat de remedies what she has ricommended hab he'ped him. I'se looked eroun' ober dis lan' a heap, an' ef I'se eber foun' any use fur de grasshopper I doan know it, but den I doan know dat de grasshopper hab eber foun' any use fur me.—Arkansaw Traveller.

A Boston man has been granted a patent on machine for cutting the coupons off bonds. Every newspaper office will need one, sooner or later. We have had our shears sharpened, and will be able to worry along without the contrivance for another year at least. Perhaps two years.—Norristown Herald.

"Give Me Back My Dog," [illegible] [illegible]

SLAUGHTERED A MARSHAL.

Hank Lewis, the Mitchell, Dak., Saloonist and Desperado, Resisting Arrest, Murders City Marshal Pierce.

Mitchell, Dak., special Telegram, April 9.—A cold-blooded and unprovoked murder was committed at Hank Lewis' saloon at 3 o'clock this morning, the victim being Capt. J. T. Pierce, city marshal, and the murderer being Hank Lewis, the saloonkeeper. A city ordinance requires all saloons to close at a designated hour, and Lewis announced that he would break the law with impunity, and bidding defiance to arrest, and threatening to shed the blood of the officer who should arrest him. Lewis' saloon was open at three o'clock and officer Eller, of the night police, ordered him to close, but he refused, saying he was going to murder the policeman who undertook his arrest. Eller undertook to arrest Lewis, and would have succeeded had it not been for the interference of outsiders. Knowing Lewis' desperate character and his defiance of law, strengthened by his success hitherto in avoiding punishment for his crimes, Officer Eller sought reinforcements in City Marshal Pierce and some citizens. Capt. Pierce went to the saloon and spoke to Lewis: "Lewis, what is the matter? Why won't you close the saloon and obey the laws?" Lewis replied, "I'll fix you," supplemented with vile oaths. Capt. Pierce then stepped into the saloon, and told Lewis that if he would not obey the law he would have to arrest him. At the same moment Lewis stepped back and picked up a shot-gun. Capt. Pierce told him to put down the gun, but Lewis, as quick as thought, with steady nerve, levelled the weapon deliberately at Capt. Pierce's head and fired, striking Pierce on the right side of the head and partially blowing his brains out. Capt. Pierce fell backwards, and with convulsions and terrible groans, expired in a pool of his own blood. Officer Eller and citizens overpowered Lewis before he could use his revolver and handcuffed him. There were a number of low women in the back part of the saloon, and after the murder they added to the horror of the scene by demoniac screams. Lewis was marched off to the jail and secured behind the bars. At an early hour this morning the news of the murder was generally spread throughout the city, and citizens began to flock to the scene, and loud cries of "Lynch the murderer!" "Hang him to a lamp-post!" went up from the crowd; but the officers were prompt in quelling any effort in that direction and better judgement soon prevailed for a time.

murder. Lewis is one of the worst characters that ever came to the territory. He has always been successful in avoiding punishment, but there now seems to be no barrier between him and justice. Later in the afternoon strong threats of lynching were made, and extra precautions were taken to guard the prisoner.

Capt. Pierce formerly lived at Manchester, Iowa, where he was engaged in the creamery business, but removed to this city about two years ago and had acted as city marshal for about a year, giving the best of satisfaction. He served in the war of the rebellion, and was prominently connected with the Grand Army of the Republic. He was married, but leaves no children.

Department of Dakota Roster.

According to the latest roster, there are now serving in the department of Dakota, Gen. Alfred H. Terry commanding, the following regiments:

Cavalry—Second and Seventh regiments, twenty-four troops.

Infantry—Third, Fifth, Eleventh, Fifteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Twenty-fifth regiments; seventy companies.

Artillery—Light Battery F, Fourth regiment.

Allowing seventy men to each cavalry troop, seventy-five to the light battery, and fifty men to each infantry company, the total strength of enlisted men and non-commissioned officers would be 4,255. The allowance to troops and companies is large enough to include the regimental bands and members of the non-commissioned staff. If each regiment had its full complement of officers present for duty there would be, in the department—exclusive of the officers attached to department headquarters—95 second lieutenants, 114 first lieutenants, 95 captains, 13 majors, 9 lieutenant colonels and 9 colonels—335 in all. Each cavalry regiment has 14 first and 13 second lieutenants, and each infantry regiment 12 firsts and 10 seconds. A cavalry regiment has three majors and an infantry regiment one. The extra first are the regimental staff officers—adjutants and quartermasters. Each battery has one second and two first lieutenants. If all the commissioned and non-commissioned officers and enlisted men were on duty, therefore, the department could show a total strength of 4,590—a far larger number than any other department could muster.

Gen. Terry promulgates a decision by Lieut. Gen. Sheridan, that there is no regulation which prohibits an army officer, while on leave of absence, from visiting Canada or Mexico.

Summer Passenger Rates to the East.

The local committee (passenger department) of the east-bound trunk line pool, has issued a joint differential passenger tariff on limited first-class tickets between Chicago and New York, and Boston and intermediate points, rates between Chicago and New York, by the various routes, as follows:

By the Lake Shore and New York Central, Michigan Central and New York Central or Fort Wayne and Pennsylvania Central, $20. By the Baltimore & Ohio or Niagara Falls Short Line and Niagara Central, Niagara Falls Short Line and Erie, Niagara Falls Short Line and West Shore, Atlantic and Erie, Grand Trunk and Erie, Grand Trunk and West Shore, Michigan Central and Erie, Michigan Central and West Shore, Lake Shore and Erie, Lake Shore and West Shore or Erie and Chicago, $18.50. Rates from Chicago to Boston range from $20.50 to $22.

DEATH SUPERSTITIONS.

Howling Dogs and Other Signs of Dissolution.

"I think people are getting to be better educated, and, as a consequence, are less superstitious than they used to be," said Patrick Drake, the undertaker, in talking about the matter. "I've heard a lot of these things in my time—I ought to, I've laid away nearly 6,000 people—but I never remember them. Of course you've heard that the howling of a dog is a sure sign of death; that seems to be generally believed in. The guttering of a candle is another. To bring a dead body into a house means that some of the people who live there will shortly die; if a corpse after death is not laid out straight some people also believe that another death will also follow. There are a great many more of these things but I never charge my memory with them. It is now only in the lower and ignorant class that you find people who believe in them, and it is growing harder to find them every year. Waking among the lower Irish is also less common. The most superstitious races are the Scotch and Irish, the Germans and English somewhat, and the Americans least of all."

"No, sir, I don't think anything about it, but I know that some of these signs are a sure forerunner of death," said George W. Latimer. "I can't explain why it is that a dog howls when a person is dying, but I guess there must be something in the air which tells him of it, and makes him feel it. If we were to study these things it might often save us much trouble. What do you think of this? A gentleman one Wednesday night sitting in his parlor, his wife perfectly well, singing and playing on the piano with a lady friend. Suddenly, it flashed across the gentleman's mind that if his wife were to die a hat rack in the hall would have to be moved before the coffin could be taken out of the house. The idea just flashed across his mind and then went away as suddenly as it came, and he thought no more about it. On Friday his wife was dead, and as they took the coffin out of the house and he saw the hat rack being moved, the thought that came to him Wednesday suddenly returned. You [illegible]

The Government Crop Report.

April returns to the department of agriculture makes the winter wheat area about 27,600,000 acres. The present area is greater than that of the census year by more than 2,000,000 acres. The greatest increase is in the Pacific coast and in the Southern states. The condition of wheat averages 95, an increase of about 1,500,000 acres on the Pacific coast and nearly 750,000 acres in the Southern states. There is a small increase in the Middle states and a slight decrease in the Ohio basin. The condition of wheat averages 95, 100 representing a full stand, unimpaired vitality and medium growth. In April, 1883, the average was 80; and 85 in April, 1881. The April average of the large crop of 1883 was 104. In Michigan, New York and Connecticut fields were protected with snow on the 1st of April, in some places a foot in depth. The subsequent condition will depend on the weather of April. No serious winter killing is reported, except in Alabama on low and wet areas. Some injury is reported through out the entire breadth. The superior condition of drilled wheat is attested, almost without exception. The area sown is nearly the same as last year, the average being 99. The condition averages 97. The report also gives a statement of farm animals, estimated losses of the past year, and estimated proportion of high grade animals and money value improvement by breeding in several states.

Lively Court Scene in California.

The court room, at San Francisco during the trial of the Sharon divorce case on Wednesday, the 9th, was a scene of great commotion. Mrs Shawan, witness for the defense, was on the stand. Judge Tyler, attorney for Miss Hill, was subjecting her to a severe cross-examination. He said he proposed to show that the witness had dined in disreputable places and visited an assignation house with strange men. Mrs. Shawan manifested intense excitement and hurriedly put her hand in her pocket as if to draw a revolver, but was checked by counsel for the defense, who implored her to keep cool. During the excitement which prevailed McCune Shawan, a man about twenty-two years of age, and son of the witness, approached Judge Tyler, but was stopped by the latter's son, who threatened to shoot him down if he attempted to draw a pistol. Judge Sullivan ordered the witness and her son removed from the court, and immediately after declared a recess. At the opening of the afternoon session the judge refused to hear further testimony in the case until assured that no one in the court room was armed, and would require a certificate of the policeman at the entrance door to that effect.

Why Endure It.

Distress and anguish why endure
When there is found a perfect cure,
That stops Rheumatic aches and pain
And gives the sufferer ease again!

Rheumatism and Neuralgia are truly most painful and often dangerous troubles, and are very common to this climate, yet none need suffer who have access to Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It is specific for all inflammatory action and pain cannot withstand its external and internal use. It combines the vital principles of electricity with the most soothing and healing vegetable oils, selected for their marvelous power over pain. It is equally good for internal use in Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Colic, Cramp, Dysentery and all painful affections. As a household ready relief for accidents and injuries, for lameness, stiff cords, pain in the back, sprains, bruises, burns and frost-bites it has no equal. Keep it ready for handy use, and get none but the genuine as there are cheap and worthless counterfeits. Buy only the 50 cent or $1.00 bottles.

A Baltimore mother, supposing she was dying, gave her baby to her nurse and told her to take it to an asylum until after her death. The nurse pocketed the child's board money and left it on the asylum doorstep. The mother has recovered, but cannot indentify her baby among a hundred other waifs.

Lammot Dupont, who was killed on Saturday by the explosion at Thompson's Point, Pa., was worth $13,000,000. He had a controlling interest in the manufacture of nearly all the high explosives that were made in the United States and Canada east of the Rocky mountains.

Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters create a healthy appetite. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES will relieve Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Consumptive and Throat diseases. They are used always with good success.

I have taken Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) for rheumatism, and found perfect relief. It is the best tonic and Blood Remedy known to science. D. P. Hill, Attorney at law, Atlanta, Ga.

$10,000 would not purchase from me what Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) has effected in my case. It has cured me of Malarial Rheumatism. Archie Thomas, Springfield, Penn.

Leaves the Throat in Good Condition.

DEAR SIR:—I received a bottle of your White Wine of Tar Syrup, and was much benefited by its use. My throat seems to be in better condition than for years, and I can recommend it to others. Please send me another bottle.

Yours Truly,
De Soto, Mo. REV. H. SCHULSTER.

Cured Clergyman.

Rev. L. S. Coulton, of Circleville, Kansas, says: Dr. Warner, Your White Wine of Tar Syrup has been in my family and found to be all and even more than you claim for it. It is a speedy cure for all throat and lung diseases.

Cyrus Field of Ottawa, Ill., has received $3,100 pension arrears for twenty-two years.

Well's May Apple (Liver) Pills, 10c.
"ROUGH ON DENTIST" Tooth Powder, 15c.
The "Rough on Tooth" Powder, elegant 15c.

I have suffered from catarrh to such an extent that I had to bandage my head to quiet the pain. I was advised by Mr. Brown, of Ithaca, to try Ely's Cream Balm. When suffering with catarrh or cold in the head I have never found its equal.—C. A. COOPER, Danby, N. Y. (Apply with finger. Price 50 cents.)

I have used Ely's Cream Balm for dry catarrh (to which every eastern person is subject who comes to live in a high altitude.) It has proved a cure in my case.—B. F. M. WEEKS, Denver, Col. (Easy to use. Price 50 cents.)

What is beautiful? Why, Carboline, a deodorized extract of petroleum. Delightfully perfumed, and will not soil the finest linen fabric—a perfect toilet preparation and absolutely makes the hair grow on bald heads.

One-half of Mandalay, capital of Burmah, a city of 90,000 people has been burned.

"Rough on Rats," clears out Rats, Mice. 15c.
Mother Swan's Worm Syrup, tasteless. 25c.
"Rough on Coughs" Troches, 15c; liquid 50c.

Piles! Piles! Piles!

Sure cure for Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. Single box has cured worst chronic case of twenty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying William's Indian Pile ointment. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching (praticularly after getting warm in bed). Prepared only for piles and itching for the private parts. Noyes Bros. & Cutler, St Paul. Wholesale Agents.

Military men in the department of Dakota number 4,255.

Consumption.

is a disease we all dread. It often carries its victim to an untimely grave. How important, then, for those who cherish life and health to prevent that disease in its early stages. Every Cold or Cough should be treated with Allen's Lung Balsam. There is no better remedy.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is a certain cure for that very obnoxious disease.

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms; also as a preventive against Fever and Ague, and other intermittent Fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphorated Elixir of Calisaya," made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all Druggists, is the best tonic; and for patients recovering from Fever [illegible]

Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator, vegetable [illegible]

The Frazer Axle Grease is the Standard Axle Grease of the world. Use it and try your horses[illegible]

NOTICE.

The Following Statements are Published for the Benefit of the Public—Read and Reflect.

"I consider that I owe my life to Warner's Safe Cure. F. B. RANDOLPH, Jersey City, N. J. 203 Jewett Ave.

"I have used eight bottles of Warner's Safe Cure, and honestly believe it saved my life.

A. F. CARLISLE, Editor Clarion.
Carlyle, Pa., Feb. 2d.

"I was given up by my physicians to die with "dropsy, but Warner's Safe Cure restored me."

D. E. McCARTHY,
Virginia, Nev. Chronicle.

"Three bottles of Warner's Safe Cure cured me of severe burning pain in the kidneys, especially at night."

Lodi, Cal. J. M. MUNDELL.

"Five bottles of Warner's Safe Cure cured me of a very severe case of kidney complaint". F. B. SEMPLE, Denver, Col. Clerk American House.

"Warner's Safe Cure saved my wife's life when the best doctors and mineral springs of the country did her no good."

Winsted, Conn. J. B. WOODRUFF.

"I had enlargement of the heart, which was pronounced incurable, and I was often thought to be dying, but Warner's Safe Cure and Safe Pills restored me to health." LAFAYETTE WALLINGFORD.
East Rochester, N. H.

"Owing to the high temperature of the room in which I worked I contracted a terrible cold that produced serious kidney disorder. Warner's Safe Cure restored me to health."

Exeter, N. H. JAMES BRUCE.

"Warner's Safe Cure has saved my boy's life. Doctors pronounced his the worst case of Bright's Disease they ever saw." E. B. BUCK, Editor Macoupin County Enquirer.
Carlinville, Ills., March 1st.

"I was treated by Doctors Agnew and Webster, of New York, who pronounced me afflicted with Bright's disease. I was bloated exceedingly, but Warner's Safe Cure, I verily believe, saved my life."

GEO. STEVENS,
South Norwalk, Conn.

"I had kidney disorders, indigestion, rheumatism and lumbago for three years. I grew worse and felt as though a hundred pound weight was dragging down my liver and kidneys. Warner's Safe Cure has fully restored me."

C. B. DE NOVELLES.
Albany, N. Y. 640 Broadway.

"Previous to a year ago I was severely afflicted with kidney difficulty. My back ached, my urine was "sudsy," and I was in a bad way. I had tried various remedies, but only with temporary relief, until I began the use of Warner's Safe Cure, three bottles of which with the Safe Pills, effectually cured me, and I have not had an attack since."

HENRY HOEHM,
Cleveland, O. Captain of police.

"For years I have had excruciating pains in the small of my back and was not able to raise from bed or be in a sitting posture. The doctors claimed that I was suffering from spinal disease, and I never expected to leave my bed again. Though having no hope of recovery, Warner's Safe Cure was recomended to me, which I commenced taking, and eight bottles have made a permanent cure. MRS. CHRISTJAHN.
No. 28 Thirteenth street.
Chicago, Feb. 26th,

About two years ago I resorted to the use of Warner's Safe Cure, taking in all thirty-two bottles for kidney and uniary affections, and it has proved a complete success, and radically cured the pain in my back. A lady of this county, a confirmed invalid for three years past, with what the doctors here said was internal cancer, beyond all skill and hope in the doctors' opinion, has been raised almost from the dead by the use of nine bottles of this excellent medicine.

J. H. HUDSON.
Altoona, Pa., Feb. 27th.

Cattle Wanted.

Parties having cattle for sale of any class, please address, giving grade, numbers, age and price. John C. Abbott, Box 2250, Denver, Col.

Jay-Eye-See is very well and expected to cut off another second.

"Buchu-paiba," Great Kidney and Urinary Cure. $1
"Rough on Corns," for Corns, Warts, Bunions. 15c
Wells' Health Renewer cures Dyspepsia, Impotence

ST. JACOBS OIL

TRADE
MARK
20

THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle. Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

CATARRH

ELY'S
CREAM BALM
CURES
COLD IN HEAD
CATARRH
ROSE-COLD
HAY-FEVER
DEAFNESS
HEADACHE
PRICE 50 CENTS
ELY BROS.
OWEGO N.Y.
U.S.A.
EASY TO USE

ELY'S CREAM BALM

Causes no Pain. Gives Relief at Once. Thorough Treatment will Cure. Not a Liquid or Snuff. Apply with Finger. Give it a Trial. 50 cents at Druggists.

HAY-FEVER

60 cents by mail registered. Send for circular. ELY BROTHERS, Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

PATENTS. Send stamp for our New Book on Patents. L. BINGHAM, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

Send Stamp for our circular. How I manage poultry, $750, $1,500, $1,500 a year. How to make poultry houses. How to make an Incubator costing less than $5. How to build cheap poultry houses. Preserve eggs. Cure Cholera; Make Hens Lay; General Management, etc. 1000 things for the people [illegible] Breeder of Plymouth Rock fowls and Poland-China swine.

DEERE & CO. MINNEAPOLIS

JOHN DEERE MOLINE, ILL. BREAKING STUBBLE Gang Sulky PLOW
Cultivators, Harrows
BUGGIES, WAGONS, SEEDERS, MOWERS,
FARM MACHINERY.
Send for Prices, Circulars and Farmer's Diary.

"I owe my Restoration to Health and Beauty to the CUTICURA REMEDIES."

Testimonial of a Boston lady.

DISFIGURING Humors, Humiliating Eruptions, Itching Tortures, Scrofula, Salt Rheum and Infantile Humors, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and thus removes the cause.

CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure, and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers. Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents; Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON, MASS.

The Most Popular Medicine Extant.

Allen's Lung Balsam!

A REMEDY THAT WILL CURE

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, CROUP,

All Diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Pulmonary Organs.

THE LUNG BALSAM Has cured Consumption when other remedies and physicians have failed to effect a cure.

THE LUNG BALSAM Contains no Opium in any form.

THE LUNG BALSAM Is strictly pure and harmless to the most delicate person.

THE LUNG BALSAM Is recommended by Physicians, Ministers and Nurses.

THE LUNG BALSAM For Croup is a safe and sure Remedy. Mothers, try it.

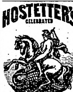
THE LUNG BALSAM Should be used at the first manifestations of a Cold or Cough.

THE LUNG BALSAM As an Expectorant has no equal.

CAUTION.—Be not deceived. Call for ALLEN'S Lung Balsam, and take no other. Directions accompany each bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO. Limited, Cincinnati, O.
PROPRIETORS.
SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE DEALERS.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED



STOMACH BITTERS

The kidneys act as purifiers of the blood, and when their functions are interfered with through weakness, they need toning. They become healthily active by the use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, when falling short of relief from other sources. This superb stimulating tonic also prevents and arrests fever and ague, constipation, livercomplaint, dyspepsia, rheumatism and other ailments. Use it with regularity. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

MAKE YOUR OWN INK.

Send for receipts for making Black, Red, Violet, Yellow, Green and Gold Inks. Price 5c. each, or all for 25c. This is no humbug. Try it. Agents wanted for other goods. Address SMITH & PRATT, Middletown, Conn.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.

DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

SKIN HUMOR

My baby six months old broke out with some kind of skin humor, and after being treated five months by my family physician, was given up to die. The druggist recommended Swift's Specific, and the effect was as gratifying as it was miraculous. My child soon got well, all traces of the disease is gone, and he is as fat as a pig. J. J. Kirkland.
Minden, Rusk County, Texas.

I have suffered for many years from ulcers on my legs. Often very large and painful, during which time I used almost everything to effect a cure, but in vain. I took Swift's Specific by advice of a friend, and in a short time was cured sound and well.

Edwin J. Miller, Beaumont, Texas.

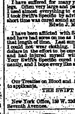
I have been afflicted with Scrofula for twelve years and have had sores on me as large as a man's hand for that length of time. Last summer I was so bad off that I could not wear clothing. I had spent hundreds of dollars in the effort to be cured, but all to no purpose, and had injured myself with Mercury and Potash. Your Swift's Specific cured me promptly and permanently, and I hope every like sufferer will take it.

R. L. High.
Lakonl, Ark.

Our Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

New York Office, 159 W. 23d St., between Sixth and Seventh Avenues.



Nerve Tonic.

A Positive Remedy for all forms of Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Spinal Affections, Chorea, Sympathetic Nervous Derangement of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys and all other Nervous Diseases. Price: $1.00 per bottle or 6 for $5.00. Sent by express on receipt of money. Send stamp for circular. Address, DR. SPINNEY & CO., 207 South Third St., Minneapolis, Minn. Also for sale by Druggists.

An Open Secret.

The fact is well understood that the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT is by far the best external known for man or beast. The reason why becomes an "open secret" when we explain that "Mustang" penetrates skin, flesh and muscle to the very bone, removing all disease and soreness. No other liniment does this, hence none other is so largely used or does such worlds of good.

PENSIONS to Soldiers and Heirs. Send stamp for Circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

WHY NOT! Write and get the best chance to make money easy. Bran new idea. J. E. BICKNELL & CO., Brockton, Mass.

WATCH Free! 50 Satin Gloss Chromo Cards 10c. Latest designs, 10 pks. $1, and a Musical Watch free. Sample album 25c. W. F. AUSTIN, New Haven, Ct.

AGENTS WANTED for the best and fastest selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publishing Co., Chicago, Ill.

SILKS for CRAZY PATCHWORK in 50c and $1 packages. Elegant Varieties. Our 20 cent package of best Embroidery Silk, assorted colors, free with every $1 order. YALE SILK WORKS, New Haven, Conn.

MONEY made by soliciting pictures to copy. Agents wanted everywhere. Catalogue sent free. Mention this paper, and address at once

E. P. GEROULD & CO., Concord, N. H.

DAIRY GOODS Send for new catalogue & price list to E. R. STRONG, manufacturer of Dairy Goods of every description, Fort Atkinson, Wis.

LANG'S LIVE SEEDS. NORTHERN GROWN, THOROUGHLY TESTED. Flower Vegetable and Field. 20,000 Catalogues free. Send names of your friends. FRED. N. LANG, Baraboo, Wis.

Easy to use. A certain cure. Not expensive. Three months' treatment in one package. Good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Dizziness, Hay Fever, &c. Fifty cents. By all Druggists, or by mail.

E. T. HAZELTINE, Warren, Pa.

$200 GIVEN AWAY

To every lady who sends at once the names and address of TEN MARRIED LADIES and 50 cents (postal note or 1 cent stamps,) we will send The Housewife, the LADIES' FAVORITE $1.00 Domestic Monthly, one entire year free. Also handsome book with full instructions for making over 100 kinds of Candy and other SWEET THINGS, and tell you how to make $10, $15, $25, $50, or $100 by FEW HOURS WORK at home. NO CANVASSING. Bona fide chance. Must send now. Address THE HOUSEWIFE CO., ROCHESTER, N. Y.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. It costs you nothing for a trial, and I will cure you.

Address Dr. H. G. ROOT, 183 Pearl St., New York.

LIFE LOANS AT 4 PER CENT.

Principal need never be paid so long as interest is kept up.

No security required except for interest, and then only personal. These loans are for poor or men of moderate means, in amounts of $100. $500 FOR LIFE. Send four cents for particulars. W. Roberts, Manager, 185 W. 5th St. Cincinnati, O.

U.S. STANDARD. JONES OF BINGHAMTON

5 TON WAGON SCALES,

Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box,

$60 and

JONES he pays the freight—for free Price List mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, Binghamton, N. Y.

O The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year: 216 pages, 8½x11¼ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—7 cents. Let us hear from you.

Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

SAMARITAN NEVER FAILS. NERVINE

THE GREAT NERVE CONQUEROR.

A SPECIFIC FOR

EPILEPSY, SPASMS,
CONVULSIONS, FALLING SICKNESS,
ST. VITUS DANCE, ALCHOHOLISM,
OPIUM EATING, SYPHILLIS,
SCROFULA, KINGS EVIL,
UGLY BLOOD DISEASES, DYSPEPSIA, NERVOUSNESS, SICK HEADACHE,
RHEUMATISM, NERVOUS WEAKNESS, NERVOUS PROSTRATION,
BRAIN WORRY, BLOOD SORES, BILIOUSNESS, COSTIVENESS,
KIDNEY TROUBLES AND IRREGULARITIES.

$1.50 per bottle.

For testimonials and circulars send stamp.
The Dr. S. A. Richmond Med. Co., Props.,
St. Joseph, Mo. (11)
Correspondence freely answered by Physicians.
Sold by all Druggists.
Lord, Stoutenbrugh & Co., Agents, Chicago Ill

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM.

HEALS DISEASED LUNGS AND CURES COUGHS AND COLDS.

Made only by Dr. FRANK POWELL, Medicine Chief of the Winnebago Indians. LA CROSSE, WIS. Sold by all Druggists

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS

MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD.

Positively cure SICK HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill.—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla." "In my practice I use no other.—J. Dennison, M.D., DeWitt, Iowa." Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cts. in stamps. Valuable information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

AS ITHERS SEE US.

BY ROSE TERRY COOKE.

"I don't know about it!" said a shrewd faced man, leaning over the counter of a country store and addressing a person who was evidently a clergyman, though his worn clothes and shabby hat showed that he was of the class denominated "poor ministers."

"You see, Mister Knight, he is one of them happy creturs who know they're all right always; I've found it isn't any use to deal with such folks against their grain. He's no thought but what it's just as right for him to smoke up half his month's wages, and let his children want for food and his wife want clothes fit to go to meetin' as 'tis for you to preach."

"Perhaps you are right, Deacon Peck," said Mr. Knight sadly.

"There are some people the Lord only can awaken to a sense of need and duty. If they could see themselves as He sees them they would be startled enough."

"It would do most as well, I guess, if they could 'see themselves as ithers see em,' as that Scotch feller said," replied the deacon.

"Really, Mr. Peck, that is nonsense," said a grim dry voice behind the minister; a voice proceeding from the lips of Artemus Hough, an elderly man, with the long, hard face, half shut supercilious eyes, stiff, high nose, narrow head and harsh mouth drawn down at the corners with sanctimonious contempt, which we see in pictures of old Cromwell's counsellors and fuglemen. "The idea that a person of average mind and education and a professing Christian does not understand himself better than outsiders can is truly absurd," and Mr. Hough's gray whiskers seemed to bristle with indignation, and his white hair stand up more like a shoe brush than ever, as he perked up his long chin and strode out of the door.

"I'm half of his mind, too," said Joe Packer, the village lawyer, a stout, good looking young man of twenty-eight, whose handsome face and broad shoulders, twinkling blue and gray eyes and full lips betrayed a man who loved his ease and his pleasure, and enjoyed mightily the good things of this life; a man who would have a hard fight with the world, the flesh and the devil, if he felt like fighting them, And there were times when he did, for he was a member of Mr. Knight's church, and taught a Bible class of young men, and was earnest in good works—spasmodically. Every little while he had an attack of courage, resolve, and strong intent to live up to the Bible, and he would run well till something came in his way, which he was too easy and lazy to fight, and then he "let it slide," to use his favorite phrase. He considered himself a pretty good fellow, not censorious or hard on other people, a fairly good Christian example, an acute lawyer, a first-rate Sunday-School teacher, and a general gain of some importance to Stamford.

"I don't always agree with Mr. Hough," he said, rising from the arm chair where he was smoking a pipe, and stretching his muscular arms out as if to try their easy strength, "but it does not seem reasonable that a man should understand himself better than people who only see the outer demonstrations of his personality."

"And yet our Lord said. 'By their works shall ye know them,'" said Mr. Knight, gently.

Artemus Hough walked home across the street, swelling his inward self-importance; if his thoughts had been spoken out they would have run in this wise: "As if anyone in Stamford could disapprove of me, except the sinful and evil. A man as orthodox as I am, o-strict life and conversation, a church goer, a protester against lax modern thought and practice, a virtuous, upright, devout person, family prayers always and a blesing every meal, a leader in prayer-meeting and a conscentious Sabbath school teacher. I should like to know what any person of brains could see in me that I don't see myself!"

Suddenly in that, lightning-flash way peculiar to Scripture texts, the words glittered across his mind, "These things ought ye to have done and not to leave the others undone." "Odd!" he thought, "why should that text come into my head?" but there the thought ended; his armor of self-complacency was proof even against this divine arrow, and all undisturbed he opened the door of his house and found his wife, a fair, pale, sad-faced woman, just making the tea.

She turned her frightened blue eyes at him as he entered.

"Tea's just ready!" she said, in an apprehensive tone, casting a furtive glance at the table.

He also looked that way, and his face hardened.

"Baked apples, and cake, too! Eliza, replace that loaf in the locker. I can not have such extravagance. We shall come to poverty if you are so reckless.

"Mrs. Goodenough sent it in, Mr. Hough," timidly answered his wife, "and she said it ought to be eat right away; it's feather cake, and ain't good after a day."

"Well, well! that alters the matter some, but set away the backed apples. Cake and bread and butter is plenty, plenty; think of the starving heathen."

What good her baked apples did or would or could do to the famished millions of India had never been quite clear to Mrs. Hough, but she was too well subdued to ask questions. Artemus Hough believed in his headship in the family, as Nero believed in his headship of the empire, only Artemus never relaxed his so far as to fiddle under any circumstances. The frugal supper over, Mr. H. worked in the garden as long as he could see, came in and held family prayers in the twilight, repeating a psalm instead of reading, and went straight to bed to save lamp-light, while his wife stole into the shed on some pretence of getting kindlings for morning, and sat down upon the door-step for a little peace and refreshment from the cool night air and the shining march of the stars across the moonless, purple summer heavens. She felt so safe, so rested, at this lonely hour, that she was almost happy.

But Artemus went to sleep at once. Neither teeming brain nor uneasy conscience awakened him. It was one of his boasts that he slept the sleep of the "righteous" always. To-night though, he grew rather restless. Perhaps the unusual cake disturbed his digestion. He began to hear in [illegible] him busy whispers. He thought as [illegible] ions crystalized into shape, that he was going about the streets of Stamford as usual, but nobody seemed to notice or even recognize him. Then the whispers became audible, he heard a man's voice say: "Well, there's old Hough! if ever there was a glum old hypocrite goin' its he. He's tighter'n a barrel hoop; never gives a cent for any public object; and they do say, half starves Mis' Hough to boot. I tell you I don't take no stock in him. Talk's easy; profession is smooth enough, but I go for practice above preachin."

"He is mighty small; that's a fact; but I don't mind that so much," put in another voice, "as I do his underhanded ways. Let him get a grudge against anybody, I don't care who 'tis, and he'll undermine and plot and sneak around just like a mole to do 'em harm and trip 'em up, and if he's found out he'll make some darned excuse about it's bein' for the good of religion, and people should be showed up."

Artemus Hough swelled with anger, but, alas! the dumbness of dreams held him. He could not speak.

"Well," said a third speaker, "I do no' as I care so much about them things as I do about the way he acts to Mis' Hough; I do despise a man that'll browbeat a woman who can't get away from him, and she's afraid as death of him; ye can see it every time they go anywhere. He's a real tyrant by natur', and I take it that ain't jest what the Bible means, to be did by them that takes it for the rewl of life, or says they do."

Artemus felt drops of cold sweat coming out on his face. He was not afraid, but he was furious, and he could not wither these accusers with his cruel eye and bitter tongue as he could his trembling wife or his luckless debtors.

Still another took up the scathing word. "My thing ag'inst him is thet he a'n't square on the deal. You buy a bushel of potatoes of him and they jest even fill the measure, not one atop on't an' apples the same, besides being poor at that, come to look at the bottom. He don't keep nigh so strict to weights and measures as he does to Calvin's five pints or decrees'n predestination; seems as though if he did folks would like him better, an' he'd do more credit to his profession."

"My friends," put in a familiar voice—Lawyer Packer's rich, lazy tones; Artemus knows them well—"aren't you rather hard on the old fellow? I don't deny he's mean and hard, and perhaps cruel; it's so easy to be cruel to a woman who can't strike back, and I don't deny that he professes more than he practices, but, after all, isn't that the way he's made up? You can't make cheese out of chalk if you want to, but I suppose chalk is of some use."

"Good to set up for landmarks so't folks won't drive where 'tis," and a laugh echoed the last speaker.

Artemus groaned and woke. His wife stood by his side.

"Had a nightmare, haven't you?" she said, for his groans had scared her from her rest on the step.

"Go to bed, can't you?" he said, after the domestic tiger fashion. Artemus had seen himself as others saw him; but as yet without result.

Oddly enough, Joe Packer had a like experience that night, but not in sleep. He sat late by the window of his office, instead of going home to bed, for the night was hot and close, and his little room at the tavern musty and torrid with the glare of a long day's sun. His lamp was out, to avoid insect visitors, and his last smoke over, but he was too lazy to move, and through the closed blind came a delicious waft of scented night air; presently a couple of loungers stopped and leaned against the fence.

"Hot as mustard, ain't it?" said one to the other.

"Awful! You don't catch me going home to Mother King's bunks to-night. Can't we stretch on the grass som'ers?"

"Inside here I guess is as good as anywhere. Grass is clean and short."

"Who lives here?"

"Nobody. It's Joe Packer's office, 'n he'; off home or to some girl's house long ago."

So the two leaped the low rail and lay down on the cool earth.

"Joe Packer's a great fellow!" the last speaker went on; "he's the greatest to talk I ever see, but he never carries nothin' through. You'd oughter hear my boy tell about how he fussed an' buzzed about that Bible class of his'n; they'd got to be jest so punctual, and jest so prepared, and for a while 'twas whewtybang, but he got tired on't after a spell, and now he's skerce ever on time, an' most always says: 'Well, I hope you've all studied up, I haven't had any time this week, I'm sorry to say.' Gracious grievous! they know well enough he's be'n off on an excursion with Lyddy Smith, or a sleigh ride with Marana Adams, or a fishin' to the mill pond, or on a hoss trot to Manville. They laaf in their sleeves, I tell ye. Boys ain't fools."

"Shouldn't think he was just the feller to lecter 'em on habits and such like; he smokes all day, Iv'e heered, and studies by fits; bound to have a good time if things cracks."

"He's accommodatin. I dont say but what he's real clever, but he's lazy as molasses: might be s'thin ef he had any grit."

"Sweet on the parson's gal, ain't he?"

"Bless you, he's sweet on 'em all! I'd bet my head there ain't ten girls in Stamford but what he's made love to, as they call it, and ha'n't an idee of marsyin' any one on 'em.

"I'd like to see him tryin' it on with one of mine, ef I had 'em growed up."

"He's too cute for that, Jake. He picks 'em out where there an't no fathers nor no big brothers to stan' up to him, and the girls is fools, anyway. They don't know a fraud like that fellow when they see him."

Joe Packer set his teeth; he would have liked to pick that man from the grass and knock him down again. This was his first impulse, but the coward maker, conscience, unbent his arm, and his angry face softened; here he saw himself with other men's eyes; a futile fellow, self-indulgent, lazy, cowardly, bent on selfish pleasures rather than the good of his fellows. Was it true? He was honest to a certain extent, and conscience opened his sight. But to see himself with alien eyes was unpleasant to a degree, all the more, that he could not but acknowledge the truth of the aspect they showed him. [illegible] He listened no more; the seed had been sown this night—once on rocky ground, once by the roadside. Will the Lord of the harvest find any increase therefrom? Who shall say?

Alfred Smith, of Newport, has presented to the Channing Church in that city, as a memorial to his wife, the estate No. 20 Kay street, to be used as a parsonage. It is worth about $25,000.

Books in the Home.

"I would urge," says Ruskin, "upon every young man at the beginning of his due and wise provision for his household, to obtain as soon as he can by the strictest economy, a restricted, serviceable, and steadily—however slowly—increasing series of books for use through life." This excellent advice, which is given in the preface to the little book, "Sesame and Lillies," if followed out, would do what we sometimes call missionary work, says a writer in the New York Evening Post. Who can doubt if it were made a rule when the household just assumes form and consists of but two members, who usually think alike, for a time at least, that it would become a habit, and in counting over the necessary expenses so much a year would be put aside for books as a matter of course, and to the lasting benefit of all the future inmates of the home? It may not occur to the young man and woman who found the home that the greatest safeguard of it will prove to be the tastes they have in common, over which time has no power, and to love the same books, to approve of the same author, and to take a delight in his work will form a bond not easily broken. Of course it may be possible for a man and woman to read Shakspeare and to enjoy him and still to quarrel, but it is not very likely that they will do so, for all the likeness of mind which leads them to enjoy him are links in the chain that binds them. The associations that are connected with home books are never readily forgotten or overlooked, and sons and daughters have been led away from temptation by these "cold but sure friends," the books that mother prized or that mother loved. However the mistress of the house may regard her duties to those employed by her, she cannot very well put out of sight the fact that, if her servants read anything worth reading, it must be provided by her. For this reason I advocate having two or three shelves in the dining-room. On these should be placed not only the cook book and the literature of the kitchen, but some other good books and papers; let it be understood that these may be taken and read at any time. It is just possible that some of these, like the Bibles in the cars, may not be used, but it is not probable. If any one fears that a taste for reading will interfere with a legitimate performance of duties, I would like to cite to her the case of a woman whom I know who reads Carlyle, and quotes Burns, and is also an accomplished cook, and one of the most conscientious diggers-out-of-corners ever employed as a maid of all work. A judicious selection of cook-books is an actual inspiration to a girl, and a perusal of them will lead to that intelligent interest in work which makes it pleasurable.

Truth from the Lime Kiln Club.

Trustee Pulback then offered the following resolution:

"Resolved, Dat when a pusson has bin tried in due form, convicted by an honest jury an' sentenced to prison by a Judge in whom de people have confidence, de criminal should stay dar' untill his sentence has expired."

Giveadam Jones moved that the roll be called upon the vote, and this being done Shindig Watkins was the only name marked as opposing the resolution.

"Dis resolushun kivers a subject of deepest interest to de people at large," said Brother Gardener when the vote had been pronounced. "A robber or embezzeler or defaulter or thief or even murderer kin sit down wid a piece of chalk in one han' an' a shingle in de odder an' make clus figures on dis matter. De murderer strikes his victim an' makes a break. De papers howl, de detectives rush an' de public talk of lynchin'. If he am not picked up right away dar' am a fusilade agin' de officers. When he am caught dar' am great anxiety to push him to trial. When he am tried an' convicted dar' am a heap of sweet talk 'bout de majesty of de law. He gits, say, fifteen y'ars in prison. He orter have bin sent fur life, but it was shown dat he was drunk, or his grandfadder was insane, or his great-grandmudder had allus acted a lettle queer. Befo' a y'ar has passed away somebody begins to pity. In de course of two or free y'ars de prosecutin' attorney begins to relent. A petishun am drawn up an' de jury finds dey was mistaken, de judge diskivers dat he sentenced de wrong man, an' de Gub'ner am asked to exercise de pardonin' power to restore a perfeckly innercent man to society?"—Detroit Free Press.

Industry as a Matter of Race.

From the London Spectator.

We suppose there are indolent Chinese, but the immense majority of that vast people have an unequaled power of work; care nothing about hours, and so long as they are paid, will go on with a dogged, steady persistence in toil for 16 hours a day such as no European can rival. No English shipcarpenter will like a Chinese, no laundress will wash as many clothes, and a Chinese compositor would very soon be expelled for over toil by an English "chapel" of the trade. The Chinese peasants and boatmen work all day, and every day; and, in fact, but for untiring industry, the closely packed masses of China could not be sustained as they are by artificial irrigation. Of the brown races the Arabs generally prefer abstemiousness carried to a starving point to continuous labor; but the most numerous brown people, the Indian, labor unrelaxingly for 77 hours a week. They are often called lazy by unobservant Europeans, because they enjoy the cool of the evening; but they go to work before 4 in the morning and work on till 8, and only eat once during sunlight, the second meal being taken after dark. They take, too, no weekly holiday. The result, in fact, proves their industry. They keep up a system of agriculture singularly toilsome, because it involves irrigation, raise often three crops and always two in the year, and have covered India with grand cities which they built for themselves. As they feel their climate, though less than Europeans do, their labor is severe, and we should say deliberately, after the observation of years, that their industrial fault was, when laboring for themselves, a disposition to do too much on insufficient food. They wear themselves out too early. They know this themselves, and have a tendency to refuse overtime and reject pay for it, which is often most annoying. Of course, the savage brown races will not work continuously, but neither will the savage white ones, e. g., the mean whites of the southern states, but then both will make incredible exertions by fits and starts, as, for example, in hunting, or rowing very long distances.

Poor Mackenzie's Romance.

It is probably known to but few, says a San Antonia letter of the 20th inst., that Gen. Mackenzie was to have married within a few months when his mind failed him. His betrothed is a Mrs. Sharp of San Antonia, a lady to whom he was devotedly attached. Some of his friends think that the emotions in view of this prospective happiness were too much for the soldier, and when the whole story is told there is a probability about this theory. Years ago Mackenzie was stationed here for a time and lived in the family of Mrs. Tunstall, who is the mother of Mrs. Sharp. The young girl, just maturing into womanhood, was a great favorite with the young officer, and there grew up between them a warm friendship, amounting to a passion on the part of the then lieutenant, his friends say. The lady was of fine family; Mackenzie had his stars to win. They drifted apart, Miss Tunstall becoming Mrs. Sharp, and the excitement of border warfare helped relieve the tension on the rising officer's heart strings. A few months ago Mackenzie came back here, no longer a subordinate, but to take General Ord's place. Frontier fighting was a thing of the past, and before the officer was the last half of a lifetime of garrison quiet and ease.

He came here to find Mrs. Sharp a widow, and the old feeling revived with increased strength, It was not long before Mackenzie learned that his ardent passion was returned, The course of courtship ran smooth and even as the cement promenade around the parade ground. The day had been set for the nuptials. But the cup of happiness was too full. The strain on heart and mind had been a severe one through all the lonely years and the camp hardships. The relief and the rebound were too much. His friends say the general seemed to let go all restraint with the sudden change in his fortunes. Stronger grew the delirium and the excesses until all became alarmed, and finally the last incident made plain that the asylum claimed "Poor Mackenzie,"

Great Salt Lake.

A gentleman who has been lately sailing on the "Dead Sea of America" thus describes it: "Soon we were on our way toward the hazy western shore. As we passed along the sea-gulls circled around us or flotaed on the water, their white plumage shining in the sunlight. Every now and then a hawk-moth would flit by or alight on the boat; dragon-flys would stop long enough to gaze at us curiously and then spin off toward the distant islands. Occasionally a 17-year-old locust would hum past as if to mock at us for ever daring to believe that this is the 'Dead Sea of America.' As the bow plowed through the water millions of small diptera (flies) would rise from the water where they were resting, and cover the bow of the boat till quarts of them could be collected. Wherever we went we observed the same thing. The water of the lake is their home, and they are as much at home on water as a skipper is on an Eastern pond. In some places where it is calm these flies darken the water for miles. Here (not on the beach) they lay their eggs; here they hatch, and here the larvæ live by the million till ready for the pupa state, when they attach themselves to the sea-weed (floating everywhere in the water) and remain till they emerge as perfect flies. The larvæ doubtless prey upon the strange little shrimps that live in the water. There are infinite numbers of these, as there is scarcely a place in the lake where a bucket of water can be dipped without taking up from twenty to 500 of them. It is strange that people should call this a 'dead sea,' for, though the number of species does not exceed ten or fifteen, there is no lake, fresh or salt, in the world that contains half as many living things as Great Salt Lake."

Magnificent Distances in Texas.

From the Greenville, (Texas) Banner.

The distance from Dallam county, in the Texas Pan Handle to Brownsville, at the mouth of the Rio Grande, is 800 miles; but we can better realize how far it is by saying that it is nearer from Dallam county, Tex., to St. Paul, Minn., or to Bismarck, D. T., or to Helena, M. T., or to Salt Lake City, Utah, than it is from Dallam county to Brownsville, Tex. It is also nearer from Brownsville to Guatamala in Central America, than from Brownsville to Dallam county. Again, it is nearer from Liscomb county, Tex., to St. Louis, than from the same county to Galveston. And even Chicago and Cincinnati are nearer to Texas than Dallam county is to Brownsville. It is further from Texarkana to El Paso than from Texarkana to West Virginia, old Virginia of North Carolina. Suppose a gentleman should start from Savannah, Ga., on the Atlantic, to look at a track of land at El Paso. After traveling three days and nights on a passenger train he might arrive at Orange, Tex. Of course when he put his foot on Texas soil he would begin to look around to see how he liked the country, by way of deciding whether he would buy the El Paso land or not. But if told that he was not half way from Havanna to El Paso, he might turn back discouraged, but such would be the fact. Again, Texas wants deep water at Galveston. But it is nearer from El Paso, Tex., to the deep harbor of San Diego, Cal., than from El Paso to Galveston. In fact, more than 1,000 miles of the Pacific coast, extending from Los Angeles, Cal., to Mazatlan, Mexico, is nearer El Paso than any part of the Texas gulf coast.

The Buffalo Commercial Advertiser says it has the authority of an educated and accomplished violinist for the assertion that the popular belief that the manufacture of superior violins is a "lost art" is a sheer delusion. No better violins are made, or ever were made than the best of instruments now manufactured in this country. The collectors and relic-mongers put fabulous prices on a Stradivarius because it is a curio and not because of its instrinsic merit as a violin or of its superiority in anything but age, to the finest modern instruments. No trained and competent judge of violins in this country ever thinks of importing an instrument from Europe or would give a straw more for a genuine Stradivarius, so far as use is concerned, than for a first rate instrument of home manufacture.

Some Condensations.

If among the long winter's accumulations about your premises there should happen to be some filthy lucre, you have a chance to invest it in suburban real estate. This kind of property seems to be fast advancing in price.

"Into the lilt of love's blithe measure there crept a curious jar and halt," sings Ella Wheeler. It appears that Ella's pa, too, comes down to the gate sometimes in his largest pair of boots.

Tony circles in New York are terribly shocked at the appearance of the cards announcing the marriage of a lady, who has been a widow less than a year, to a young man 20 years her junior. It is a love match.

Two Boston society girls are credited with taking the veil, having both found the world hollow in falling in love with the same actor, who turns out to be an already married man.

A new and formidable fighting ship has been built in England for the government of Brazil. She is named the Riachuelo, and is a steel-armored turret ship, 305 feet long, having a displacement of 6,700 tons. She has fifty-eight water-tight compartments and a belt of steel armor eleven inches in thickness.

There are two unhappy persons when castor oil is going down. One is the man who has bought it at a higher fig. u.e. and the other is the small boy who is taking a tablespoonful of it.

The Irish population of the earth is as follows: At home, 7,500,000; in England, 2,500,000; in Scotland, 2,000,000; in Canada, 2,000,000; in Australia, 1,000,000; in America, 12,500,000; elsewhere, 5,000,000. A total in round numbers of 32,500,000.

"I have heard," says London Truth, "of golden, of silver, and even of iron weddings, but a diamond wedding has hitherto been unknown known to me. In order to justify the celebration of such an event it seems that the husband and wife must have successfully endured the bonds of matrimony for no less a period than sixty years. At Campbelltown, in Scotland, last week, ex-Baile Greenlees and his wife celebrated such a wedding day, the husband being eighty-eight and the wife eighty-three years of age."

A facetious gentleman who has suffered thinks the modern recipe for a party is the following: "Take all the ladies and gentlemen you can get, put them into a room with a small fire and stew them well; have ready a piano, a handful of prints and drawings, and throw them in from time to time; as the mixture thickens, sweeten with politeness and season with wit, if you have any, if not, flattery will do as well and is very cheap; when all have stewed for an hour add ices, jellies, cakes, lemonades and wines."—The Beacon.

The vapor of tobacco juice has been tested in France, with great success, as an insect destroyer in hot-houses. Instead of burning or smoking the tobacco, it is soaked or boiled, the juice is then placed over a chafing dish, a fire or the flame of an ordinary lamp, and deposited in the greenhouse or conservatory. Delicate plants which are very sensative to smoke are not injured by this vapor, and it leaves no offensive atmosphere, while it effectually disposes of thrips, scales, insects and slugs. One quart of tobacco juice vaporized in a house containing 350 cubic feet is an ample amount.

Gen. Gordon's forthcoming theological work does not, it is said, propound any new views. The writer reminds us of the time of the Puritans, when the love of parallelism between the Old and New Testaments was at its height, when the soldiers of Cromwell prayed aloud to be delivered from the old Adam. For every incident connected with the fall of man, Gen. Gordon traces in the New Testament not only a counter balancing remedy to enable the fallen to recover the lost ground, but an identity of the means of recovery with the cause of the original transgression. Thus he recognizes in the act of partaking of the sacramental elements the meet and fitting remedy against sin introduced into the world by the act of eating the fruit of the tree of life.

Jay Gould's Great Fortune.

Jay Gould has an income equal to a small fortune every day. The New York Journal "sizes him up" as follows: In round numbers the permanent investment stocks appearing on Mr. Gould's schedule were 380,000 shares of Western Union telegraph, 110,000 shares of Missouri Pacific, 140,000 shares of Wabash common and 90,000 shares of the preferred, 50,000 shares of Kansas and Texas, 40,000 shares of Texas Pacific and 70,000 shares of Erie. There were a large number of small lots of various stocks, apparently only incidentally held. Besides his railroad shares Mr. Gould holds five and a half millions of Wabash general bonds. At yesterday's prices the value of these securities is $49,495,000. Western Union and Missouri Pacific pay dividends; the other stocks do not. The bonds also bear interest. Between them they yield him $4,140,000 a year. His interest in the Union Trust company and his loans are profitable to him. The World building, nominally owned by the Western Union company, was built with his money. In real estate, loans and mortgages he has $5,000,000, and $3,000,000 more in floating investments. His two residences represent another $1,000,000 and his yatch $300,000. His wealth, as nearly as he can figure it, is $58,795,413, and his income $4,640,011. Thus his fortune earns him $12,888.88 every day and $8.95 each minute.

A strange dish, but one that has found favor with the epicure himself (he in no case being told how it is made) is called bacon short-cake. Make a crust just as you do for the biscuit served with fricassed chicken; roll it out in one large cake to be baked in a long tin; cut little slashes in the dough, and through these slip slices of bacon in. The bacon should be cut in thin slices or strips about five inches long, and not half that width. Have these slices about three inches apart. Bake the same as any short-cake, and serve hot. As an entree, with game, this is considered especially appetizing.

Angels' Food.—To a layer of peeled orange, sliced, add a layer of white sugar; then a layer of freshly grated cocoanut, and keep adding layers in the order named until the quantity desired is prepared.

NOTES FOR THE FARM AND HOUSE.

Agricultural Items.

The Scottish Farmers' Alliance is a vigorous organization, with membership of over 7,000.

Maury, in Tennessee, is the banner County of the United States for mules. Its annual shipment is from 7,000 to 8,000.

To remove rust from tools, first scour them with emery moistened with sulphuric acid diluted with six volumes of water; rinse dry, and finish with oil and emery flour.

The man who is dependent upon Nature's methods for his crops, cannot afford to be ignorant of Nature's laws.

Kind words and a gentle patting on the head will go much further in taming a timid heifer, than a score of milk-stools.

You will soon need all the work the horses are able to perform. See to it now that they have the best of care and a little extra feed.

If you would succeed in horticulture you must be observant, unsleepingly vigilant, always ready to go where needed; to go quickly and have a ready hand to assist soils, trees or attendants—and always carry a sharp pruning knife in your pocket.

An early Spring pig kept growing and fattening on pasture (mostly Red Clover) during the Summer and early Fall, and then rapidly fattened on grain for two months, is the most profitable hog.

Every farmer owes to his brother farmers a knowledge of each event that occurs to him, in his business, that would be of interest to them.—[Farmer's Review.

If as much money were spent in developing the walking gait of our horses as is devoted to bring out their trotting, pacing and running qualities, the real value of our horses would soon be very materially enhanced.—[National Stockman.

Mules are much more economical than horses for farm work. They eat one half less, will do as much work and live a half longer. With this data do your own figuring.—[Farm Journal.

Testing Seed Corn.

Thinking farmers will lose no time in securing a supply of good seed nor will they trust to appearanee, nor to any man's word; but will carefully test it for themselves, and thus be sure it will germinate. This testing of seed is not at all a difficult undertaking; to be doubly sure three tests should be made for one dip with a large spoon carelessly, 100 kernels out of the pile; for the second, select 100 of the best, and, for the third, 100 of the poorest you can find.

Take for each lot any convenient dish, and fill it nearly full of clean sand, and pour in water till it rises to within a quarter of an inch of the top of the sand; on the sand place the 100 kernels of corn, and over these place any convenient cloth to retain moisture and exclude light. Place the dish near the stove so as to secure a temperature of 80 degrees, and not over 110 degrees. In two days, and every day thereafter, examine by carefully lifting the cloth. Every kernel that has sprouted should be removed and counted; in this way you can tell what per cent. of each grade will grow. If not over 75 per cent. of the best kernels germinate, the seed should be rejected, but in any case you will know how much to allow for worthless seed at planting time.—Rural New Yorker.

Winter Feeding of Cattle.

The daily allowance of hay to each cow should be about 25 pounds, the quantity varying somewhat with the size of the animal. It is well to bear in mind, when laying in the winter supply that early-cut hay is by far the most nutritious, as the early cutting saves, in a nutritious form, material which later on becomes woody fiber.

The value of roots as Winter food is so widely acknowledged that little need be said in support of their use. Their nutritive qualities are considerable, and their vegetable constitution retains their distinctive natural moisture, while the large bulk which may be grown on a given area at a comparatively small cost, recommends them to every reasoning man. A crop of 600 bushels of mangelwurzels amd 800 bushels of rutabagas was raised upon one acre of good land at a total cost of only $55. Fifty pounds of roots and 20 pounds of hay constitute a good daily feed for milking cows of average size. More hay should be added if the cattle will consume it, or its equivalent should be given in straw or corn-stalks, boiled if practicable. Add to this ration two quarts of corn-meal, and almost the excellence of a Summer pasture is attained. If the further addition of the two quarts of cotten-seed meal is made, as recommended in the case of pasturing, the results will closely approach the maximum, and will prove a sufficient reason for persevering in this diet. The value of variety in food should not be forgotten. Carrots and parsnips, oats and other grains may profitably form an occasional change.

Farm Uses of Crude Petroleum.

Crude petroleum is a wonderful preservative of wood, but it is in no sense a paint, and should have no pigment whatever mixed with it. It has none of this drying properties of linseed oil, and will never harden upon a surface. On the contrary, it will penetrate where water cannot, filling the pores of wood and completely excluding wet. There is nothing equal to it as a first application to buildings or fences, especially when rough and weather-beaten. I have so applied it, leaving it a few weeks to the action of the air and hot sun, then covering with lead and linseed oil. The wood-work of my farming tools is kept full of it. Applied hot to wagon felloes from time to time, the tires will never loosen. For years I have used it in a multitude of ways, and a barrel of light crude petroleum I should not like to be without. Almost any city has a refinery where it may be produced, and it costs me, per 50-gallon barrel, freight and all, about $5. But if you get any, get understanding with it, and don't try to make a paint of it. Don't grease your harness with it, and don't use it to kindle your fires.

One Kind of Home Influence.

It is a part of every woman's duty to dress neatly and becomingly at home. Whatever outside duties woman may be called upon to perform, she is the centre of the home circle. On her depends largely the attractiveness of the home, and no woman has a right to dim its brightness or lessen her power by being careless concerning her personal appearance.

It may seem like a bold assertion, but it is none the less true that a woman who is always neatly dressed is able to exercise a greater influence for good than one who is the reverse.

The well-dressed woman is more attractive to the eye, and the eye is one of the main avenues to the heart.

Other things being equal her influence is more potent than her neighbors, whose reputation of dressing "just as it happens" at home in some definable way casts a shade over whatever virtues she may possess. A woman neatly dressed is ready for emergencies. The chance caller and the unexpected guest finds her ready to receive them. But perhaps the greatest necessity for looking well at home exists in the home itself. To the members of our own family circle we owe our first duty. A tidy well-arranged home is very inviting to a tired man and the charm is heightened if she who presides over the home is neat and tidy also. And perhaps some who are ever studying the subject of how to keep the boys at home evenings would find the problem half solved if they gave a proper amount of attention to home dress.

The woman who is both mistress and servant, as very many housekeepers are, is constantly met by the temptation to neglect her own adornment and sacrifice her own tastes and wishes to the numberless demands upon her time and strength. Of course to a busy woman every moment is precious, yet a few spent in freshening the toilet will scarcely be missed and somehow one feels rested, and the work goes easier for it.

The habit of dressing neatly at home like all other habits, is strengthened by practice, and if a girl is early taught that neatness in dress is one of the cardinal virtues, she will practice it almost unconsciously.

It should be a part of a girl's home training—not only the duty but the method. Let the child understand that it is to please others rather than to win admiration for herself and it will but help to make her thoughtful.

This is a subject which concerns us all, and if we give the matter the thought which it deserves we shall see its importance more clearly.

If we hold up the mirror of theory in which to view our practice no doubt many of us will find imperfections which need only be seen to be remedied, So we shall be helped thereby, our homes made brighter, and our families happier.

Things Good to Eat.

Ivory may be restored to its former whiteness by cleaning in burnt pumice-stone and water, and then placing it under glasses in the sun's rays.

Seed Cake.—Beat to a cream one cup of butter and two cups of sugar. Add three tablespoonfuls of sweet milk, a little salt, and vanilla or lemon, to the taste, with two tablespoonfuls of caraway seeds. Stir in flour in which a teaspoonful of baking powder has been sifted, and make the cake stiff enough to roll. Roll out thin, cut in round cakes, and bake in a moderate oven. This rule makes about seventy-five cakes.

Finger biscuit, otherwise called lady fingers, are made by beating the yelks of four eggs with half a cup of sugar to a froth. Beat the whites very stiff and dry, and stir in lightly, adding three-quarters of a cup of lightest sifted flour, Drop from a paper horn or pastry bag on a sheet of glazed letter paper and bake, or rather dry in a slow oven for fifteen minutes. Creamery flour instead of plain makes a rich biscuit, an requires a hotter oven.

A dainty way to make chocolate is set an earthen pot into a kettle of boi ing water; in this place a quart of mil and cream mixed. Stir into this whe it is hot a paste made by mixing thr heaping tablespoonfuls of grated choc late with a little cold milk. Let t boil for two or three minutes, and ser very hot. If the chocolate is sweeten it is better not to add sugar, but each one add it at the table if it is n sweet enough, but if the unsweeten chocolate is used, two desert spoonfu may be put in while it is cookin
Cream is the greatest possible additi

This recipe is from those furnished a fashionable cooking class in Pr idence: Select a given number many as may be desired upon occasi of thin-skinned, juicy oranges, rem
the peel, lay the orange upon its side, cut (crosswise) into very thin sl using a thin, sharp knife, and wit entirely seperating the slices from orange, which will then spread o somewhat in the form of a sea sh sprinkle over it fine granulated su more or less according to taste; lay ly chopped or pounded ice over whole, and let it stand about five utes and serve. Eaten just before br fast, the dish possesses a peculiar icacy and flavor as an appetizer.

Marriage Among Convicts.

From the London St. James' Gazette.

A party of 50 women are this w leaving Bordeaux for New Caled under peculiar circumstances.
are, in fact, women sentenced lengthened term of imprisoment grave offenses, who have elected to the French penal colony, where will each find a husband in one o
"convicts of the first class"—tha those convicts who have by their behavior entitled themselves to a ernment grant of land and obtaine mission to marry. An inspectre prisons recently made the round central female prisons and lected the 50 inmates—all of described as young and looking—who are now going abr make a fresh start in the world.
out they will be housed in a reli establishment at Noumea, manag a community of sisters, where ba convicts of the privileged class w permitted to visit them, and as of a marriage is arranged the coloni ernment will provide the bride trosseau and set the couple up in keeping in a small way. It was Napoleon, who, when he was m for Algeria and the colonies, intr this system of convict marriage has given excellent results thus

LOVE'S TRANSFIGURATION.

O strange sweet loveliness! O tender grace,
That in the light of passion's day-spring threw Soft splendor on a fair familiar face
Changing it, yet unchanged and old, yet new!
Perfect the portrait in my heart, and true,
Which traced the smile about that flower-like mouth,
And those gray eyes with just a doubt of blue,
Yet darkened with the passion of the South,
And the white arch of thoughtful forehead, crowned
With meeting waves of hair;—but still I found
Some undreamt light of tenderness that fell
From the new dawn, and made more fair to see
What was so fair, that now no song can tell
How lovely seemed thy heart-lit face to me.
—Chamber's Journal.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Tested Cooking Recipes.

To Cook Potatoes.—Take five or six raw potatoes and cut into pieces as large as snap beans, then mince one medium sized onion very fine, and cook both onion and potatoes in the frying-pan with as little beef drippings as will brown the potatoes lightly, and keep them from burning. Just before they are done, grate any kind of hard cheese over them, season with salt and pepper, cover and cook until done. Cold boiled, or baked potatoes may be used, but the raw potatoes are the nicest.

Coffee cake.—Nicely made coffee one cup, brown sugar one-and-one-half cup; butter, one cup; molases, one cup; raisins, or English currants, one pound; flour, five cups; soda, one large teaspoonful, dissolved in the coffee; cinnamon, cloves and allspice of each one-half teaspoonful; one-half nutmeg. Mix and bake in a moderate oven. "Excellent!" so says my husband.

Cream Cake.—Sugar, one cup; good, rich cream one cup; two eggs; soda, one teaspoonful; flour, two cups; salt one small teaspoonful.

Indian Pudding—To Bake. Sweet milk, one quart; butter, one ounce; four eggs, well beaten; one teacup of Indian meal; raisins, one-half pound; sugar, one-fourth pound. Scald the milk, and stir in the meal while boiling. Then let it stand until blood-warm and stir all well together, and bake about three-quarters of an hour. Eaten plain or with pudding sauce. This is good and healthy.

Farming Paragraphs.

Nearly level culture, hand-hoeing, slightly hilling but once, and keeping the cultivator running, was recommended at the recent Waterbury, Conn., meeting as the best for potatoes. It was said that the second hilling induced a second growth of roots higher up on the plant which produced small tubers. If this is not done the additional growth will make large potatoes.

If seeds are to be kept over a year they should be placed in cool location and exposed to the light and air. Keeping them in darkness weaknes vitality, perhaps from a tendency to grow which darkness incites, but unaccompained by moisture enough to put forth leaf and root.

Don't forget the dust bath. This is made by nailing together four boards in the form of a square. No bottom is needed. Place in a sunny corner and fill with fine dry loam or road dust, with an extra barrel to use when needed. There is nothing equal to a good dust bath to keep the hens free from lice. If they are very lousy a bushel of wood ashes may be added to the bath.

It is estimated that there are 15,000,000 horses in this country, and in order to keep up the supply 1,000,000 must be bred annually. The importation in large numbers, of late, of Percheron and Clydesdale horses has in-reased the average size and capacity of ur stock of horses, and further im-rovement will necessarily follow.

A writer in the Ohio Farmer says hat he is not an old wheat raiser, but as not lived these last few years to no urpose, and thinks he has struck the ynote of success in raising wheat in a orough fitting of the soil before sow- the seed, and he is convinced that poor piece of land dragged, rolled and en refitted until the ground is as mel- as an "ash heap" will produce a better ld of wheat than a rich piece of land orly plowed, half dragged, and the d scattered among the lumps and ds, and a portion of it without cover- or any chance to germinate and ob- n ahold.

The Savoy Cabbage.

he cauliflower, the most delicious of varieties of the cabbage, is of too ch uncertainty to be recommended the farm garden. But the Savoy bages, says the American Agricultur- "are almost as tender as the cauli-wer, have a distinct flavor, and a mar-y consistence of their own, which e prefer to cauliflower. These be- as easily raised as the common cab-, are within the reach of all. Those have cultivated Savoy cabbages no advice; to those who not, we say, by all means the Savoys. The English authors orks on gardening regard them as different that they class them by selves, under Savoys, and not g the cabbages. When we first them there was but one kind, 'the y" now that there are a dozen or Savoys, including early and late . Perhaps the 'Improved Amer-Savoy' will be best for those who savoys for the first time. After- they will be glad to test the early te kinds. The seeds are to be and the plants treated exactly as of the ordinary cabbages."

Fruits as Food and Medicine.

Wilson M. D., in Southern World.

all the fruits with which we are d the peach is the most delicious gestible. There is nothing more able, wholesome and medicinal ood ripe peaches. They should e, but not over-ripe and half-rot-und of this kind they may make a either meal or be eaten between but it is better to make them the regular meals. It is a mis-dea that no fruit should be eaten kfast. It would be far better if ople would eat less bacon and at breakfast and more fruit. In ning there is no acrid state of etions, and nothing is so well ted to correct this as cooling sub-uch as peaches, apples, etc. ost of us have been taught that fruit before breakfast is highly . How the idea originated now, but it is certainly a great contrary to both reason and facts.

The apple is one of the best of fruits. Baked or stewed apples will generally agree with the most delicate stomach, and are an excellent medicine in many cases of sickness. Green or half-ripe apples stewed and sweetened are pleasant to the taste, nourishing, cooling and laxative, far superior in many cases to the abominable doses of salts and oil usually given in fever and other diseases. Raw apples and dried apples stewed are better for constipation than most liver pills.

Oranges are very acceptable to most stomachs, having all the advantages of the acid alluded to, but the juice alone should be taken, rejecting the pulp.

The same may be said of lemons, pomegranates, and all that class. Lemonade is the best drink in fevers, and when thickened with sugar is better than sirup of squills and other nauseous drugs in many cases of cough.

Tomatoes act on the liver and bowels, and are much more pleasant and safe than blue mass and "liver regulators." The juice should be used alone, rejecting the skins.

The small-seeded fruits, such as blackberries, figs, raspberries and strowberries, may be classed among the best foods and medicines. The sugar in them is nutritious; the acid is cooling and purifying, and the seeds are laxative. We would be much the gainers if we would look more to our gardens and orchards for our medicines and less to our drug stores. To cure fever or act on the kidneys no febrifuge or diuretic is superior to watermelons, which may, with very few exceptions, be taken in sickness and in health in almost unlimited quantities, not only without injury, but with positive benefit. But in using them the water or juice should be taken excluding the pulp; and the melon should be fresh and ripe, but not over-ripe and stale.

Period of Gestation of Farm Animals.

What is the average period of gestation of farm animals?

Ans.—The period of gestation varies considerably in case of each class of domestic animals, but the mean is about as follows; mare, 347 days; ass, 12 months; cow, 285 days; ewe, 154 days; sow, 115 days; goat, 116 days; dog, 62 or 63 days; cat, 50 days; rabbit, 30 days; guinea-pig, 21 days; turkey, 26 to 30 days; guinea-hen, 25 to 26 days; pea-hen, 28 to 30 days; ducks, 25 to 30 days; geese, 27 ot 33 days; hens, 19 to 24 days—or an average of 21 days; pigeons, 16 to 20 days; canary birds 13 to 14 days. Cold weather or an east wind will lengthen the time a day or two more in the case of birds, while warm weather and an attentive sitter will shorten it. The small breeds of all animals require less time than the large breeds. The period of gestation of a mare may be extended or diminished as much as five or six weeks; while that of cows has varied from 220 to 313 days.

Ornamentation for Walls and Table.

A beautiful table cloth for a small table can be made of crimson cloth, trimmed with a wreath of leaves in cloth, bits of flannel sewed on with silk, and old artificial flowers, cut, steamed and retouched with color, sewed on with the leaves.

Hanging baskets have gone out of favor because of the untidy drip from them, and low-standing jardinieres, tastefully filled, are better liked, since to look into a plant is the only way to appreciate its loveliness. In filling a jardiniere bulbs may be buried in the soil, which will give us later a truss of hyacinth, a crocus or a dainty snowdrop.

Ladies who admire beautiful boquets of grass will appreciate the following recipe: Take one and one-half pounds of rock alum, pour on three pints of boiling water; when quite cool put into a wide-mouthed vessel, hang in your grasses, a few at a time. Do not let them get too heavy, or the stems will not support them. You may again heat alum and add more grasses. By adding a little coloring matter it will give a pleasing variety.

Broad slips of brocade or Genoa velvet are cut to suit the tops of tables mantelpieces and pianos, and edged with fringe cunningly woven in "old" tints to harmonize.

A pretty fan for a wall is made by gilding a large palm leaf fan and decorating it with a ribbon bow.

Among the popular flowers to be introduced this season is a golden-colored carnation named "Buttercup." It is exceedingly scarce, and will only be seen in the most costly places. Orchids will be used to a greater extent than heretofore for decoration, from the fact that they are in more general cultivation than formerly. They are extremely rich and fanciful when placed near mirrors, where their curious and often grotesque shapes are reflected. Last week the butterfly orchid was, at a wedding reception in New York city, so disposed about a chandelier that these dainty flowers, on their frail trembling stems, seemed to dance about the lights like living insects. The new foliage plants, asparagus plumosa, a climber, with leaves of a fern-like texture and charming grace, will find its way into decorations where choice plants are required.

Benefit of Early Planting.

Peas may be sown as soon as the frost is out of the ground. It is cheaper in the beginning, as well as in the end, to buy the early cabbage plants, and those grown in cold frames may be put out as soon as the soil feels warm to the hand. A little mulch of warm manure around each one of a dozen or two of early cabbage plants, and some shelter—if only a newspaper pegged down over each plant—will protect them from a frosty night. A mulching of manure and some covering of straw will force asparagus ahead fully two or three weeks of the main crop, and a row or two can be easily covered in this way. It is quite possible to get two successive crops of vegetables and small fruits by protecting in this way a sufficient number of plants to afford an early supply. A liberal mulching of warm manure will start the growth very quickly, or at least will force a rapid growth after it has started naturally. As the garden is the most valuable part of the farm it is proper that a warm, sheltered place should be selected for it and that the ground should be very rich. Any one can grow vegetables and fruits, but some forethought, provision, and skill are necessary to grow early and good ones, and the pleasure of having fine vegetables and an early supply of them is worth far more than the thought—the labor is the same—that is requisite to secure them. The garden should now be put in order—and planted as far as may be—before the farm work is begun or it will be apt to be neglected. And why should not the husbandman—the farm husband—take this burden upon himself instead of casting it upon the farm wife, whose domestic duties are sufficiently engrossing without this addition to them.—New York Times.

Coal Tar for Boots.

Let one who has tried it well strongly advise farmers and all others who have to tramp through wet soil in the miry months of spring to give their boot soles a good painting with common gas tar; two or three coats will soon be absorbed where the leather has been pared. It has the same effect as on a pavement or a roof—it repels moisture, keeping the leather dry and durable as a pine-knot. More than twenty years ago I soaked the very thin but good soles of a pair of morroco boots with gas tar. After ten years the soles were still quite sound and firm as horn, but the tops were shredded away, for the boots were the easiest and pleasantest shoe-covering I had and so were much used for smooth walking. The edges of the soles and the seam connecting the uppers should be coated. I never tried it on the uppers. It would reduce their pliancy. The oder of the tar disappears after a few hours' use of the shoes on the naked ground. Another important use of coal-tar is for destroying other odors, in which it does special and remarkable service. Pans used in earth closets, and soil-pipes and sewer connections should be coated with it. Urinal slabs and floors, too, and where a tin or iron vessel is used in shops, etc., for similar purpose, a dip into gas tar, when dried on, will show a wonderfully permanent purification.—Probatum.

Skobeleff.

He had a "delicate, handsome face," a fair beard, blue eyes, dark hair. He looked like an Apollo as he rode into battle "on a white horse, and dressed in a white coat," (a practice which won him among the Turks the title of Akh Pasha, or the "White General,") "looking as though he had come dressed for a ball. 'Is not a battle the soldier's ball?' he asked some one. "Now, at last, I feel happy." He was described as "fighting like an ensign." The answer given was, "Yes, but he does not hide himself like a general." He was always in the thickest of the rain of bullets and shrapnel, cheering on his men, and showing the way to the enemy's batteries. But though he was careless of himself, he was always careful of his men. His division was always the best provided with fur coats, with soup, tea, and "corn brandy." He refused to have anything to do with the Commissariat Department, and made each of his regiments do its own commissariat. Some one suggested that the commanding officers might embezzle. His answer was: "If my men get as much bread and meat and tea and brandy as they want, if the inhabitants of the district are satisfied, let them embezzle; what do I care?" After the famous passage of the Balkans, in which Skobeleff and his division played the first part, when they passed in review before the Grand Duke "in splendid condition, while the other divisions looked pale and starved," the Grand Duke exclaimed: "What red-faced fellows! One can see they are well filled. Thank God that some at least do not look like corpses!" Flogging and cuffing appear to prevail still in the Russian army. Skobeleff would have none of it in his division. He told one of his favorite Colonels, who was beating a soldier, that if he found him doing it again he should dismiss him. After Plevna one of his men was ordered by his Colonel to be flogged. The man appealed to Skobeleff, confessed his crime, and asked for a court-martial. Skobeleff told him a court-martial would condemn him to death. His answer was: "We are all in God's hands' Every day of our lives we are under fire here. I don't mind being shot, but if I am to be disgraced, your excellency I shall commit suicide."—The Spectator.

Gowns for Judges on the Bench.

The New York Court of Appeals has followed the example of the justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, and the members of the Court will hereafter wear a silk gown when on the bench. The highest judicial tribunal of Pennsylvania will, it is reported, in a short time also adopt this custom, and it is likely to spread into other States. Judge Bryan, of the United States District Court for South Carolina, wore the gown for a long period, but he gave it up a year or two since, because United States Circuit Judge Bond, who was frequently on the bench with him, would not put on one. Of late, however, the propriety of adopting gowns as the judicial costume has been agitated among the United States Circuit Judges, and it is understood that Judge Bond is now not disinclined to favor it. Chief Justice Waite of the Supreme Court of the United States has been approached on the subject by some of the Circuit Judges with a request for an official expression in regard to it, but the Chief Justice, while undoubtedly favoring the proposition, said it was not in his province to make any suggestions on a matter which rested entirely with the personal views of the Circuit Judges as to expediency and propriety.—Baltimore Sun.

Funny Fancies.

"You say the lady wears a glass eye?" "Yes." "And false hair?" "Yes." And false teeth?" "Yes." And has a false figure." "Yes." "But her tongue?" "Ah—that is her own."

"Who is that lovely girl?" exclaimed the witty Lord Norbury, in company with his friend Grant. "Miss Glass," replied the learned counsel "Glass," reiterated the facetious judge, "I should often be intoxicated could I place such a glass to my lips."

Lillie Devereux Blake says that Joseph E. McDonald, of Indiana, is the man to whom women owe most. McDonald must be in the millinery business, then.—Lowell Citizen.

A Philadelphia confectioner has two big cards in his window. On one is inscribed "Girls Wanted," and the other "Taffy." He evidently knows how to capture the girls.

Dore Sketching for Marwood.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

It is well known that great as was Dore's reputation in France, it was immeasurably greater in England, where his smallest works pere eagerly sought after, and his larger pictures were permanently exhibited. He was therefor naturally very fond of England, and frequently visited London for lengthened periods, occupying always the same rooms at the Langham hotel. One morning, in the year 1876, one of the waiters informed him that a stranger was waiting to see him. He would not give his name, but begged to assure the painter that he would not regret granting the desired interview. Dore thereupon ordered his visitor to be shown in, when a small gentleman, with somewhat disordered hair, a bristly mustache, greenish eyes, and a face wonderfully like that of a cat, bowed himself into the room. "Sir," he began, "I am a great admirer of your talent, and I am very desirous of obtaining from you a drawing representing me in the act of performing my official duties. I only ask for a few strokes of your pencil, and I am willing to pay you £50 for them." "With great pleasure," replied the artist; "whom may I have the pleasure of addressing?" The other answered, with an air of conscious pride, "I am Mr. Marwood, her Majesty's hangman." Dore's first movement was one of scarcely concealed disgust; but his curiosity to follow the matter further got the upper hand, and he assured his strange visitor that he was at his disposal. "In that case," replied Marwood, "come and see me to-morrow I am going to hang Henry Wainwright, the man who cut a woman in pieces at Whitechapel, and whose condemnation you probably read in the papers." A meeting was arranged for the following morning, and with a hearty shake of the hands they separated. Dore was punctual to his appointment, and when all was over returned vividly impressed by the terrible spectacle he had witnessed. He hastened to transfer the scene to paper while the impression was still in his memory, and set to work to sketch, with all his well-known nerve and power, the prison-yard, in the pale light of early morning, with the fatal shed, within which was perceived the cord and running noose awaiting its victim. From a side door the grim procession was seen approaching; at its head Marwood, drawn up to the full height of his diminutive stature, his eyes lighted up by an almost satanic glare, and carrying a number of straps; behind him, a warder with the cap used to conceal the distorted features of the unhappy man at the last moment. Then, supported by the clergyman, followed the condemned man, deathly pale, with drawn and haggard features, walking mechanically to his doom. In the background were the high walls of the prison, throwing their dark shadows on the ground. The entire scene, in fact, was portrayed with a vivid reality impossible to describe. Marwood, on coming for his sketch the next day, was delighted beyond measure with the artist's work, and promptly drew out from his pocket the stipulated price. Dore, however, would not accept any money from him, and begged him to forward the amount to the French Hospital.

Gladstone off Duty.

Olive Logan, in Philadelphia Times.

I do not mean to say that Mr. Gladstone looks like a young man. He bears his years grandly, but there is no effort made to shirk them by foppery or adventitious aid. Half covered by a lap-robe of black fur, England's large-limbed ruler leaned back in a low victoria, his earnest eyes peering out at the passers, as though he read in the face of each his verdict on the Eastern policy of the government. What a responsibility rests on the shoulders of this intellectual giant! As he said, in substance, in his great speech, the guidance of an empire of 300,000,000 of souls is occupation enough without the supervention of extraneous work arising from disturbances in barbarious lands; and yet that work is put upon him. I could not help thinking that the royal family possess in Mr. Gladstone a first-class manager of their business house, when, after passing the Premier's carriage, I came upon that of the Princess of Wales, whose placid features are unruffled by a single cloud of anxiety. The dainty little woman, clad in tight-fitting apparel of black; a sable boa encircling her tiny throat, was nursing a lap-dog as she drove and toying with its silky ears. With her were her three daughters, all dressed alike in costumes of cherry-colored serge, quaint caps of the same material perched above their streaming golden locks. These good people drive without out-riders, military escort, equeries or any paraphernalia of the kind. Their equipage is elegant and their horseflesh very fine, but not more so than many others one sees in the park.

Story of "Chinese" Gordon.

An old British army pensioner relates this story of General "Chinese" Gordon: On the first day on which fire was opened at Sebastopol from the twenty-one gun battery, the sand-bags forming one of the embrasures caught fire from the flash of a too closely mounted gun. A corporal and a sapper of the engineers were told off to repair the damage. The corporal ordered the sapper to mount the embrasure, and proposed to hand up the fresh bags to him. They were under heavy fire at the time, and the sapper, with some want of discipline, certainly, demurred to this arrangement, and suggested that the corporal should get up, and that he (the sapper) would go on with the handing up business. There was a bit of a wrangle over it. Gordon, who was passing inquired into the matter, and quietly telling the corporal, "Never order a man to do what you are afraid to do yourself," got up on a pile of bags himself and said, "Come up here, both of you," and then ordered the men who were working the gun to hand the bags up. The storm of bullets swept over Gordon and the two men, but his charmed life seemed to protect the trio. He finished his work and came down as coolly as he had mounted, but the lesson was never forgotten, and there's a fine ring about the words, "Never order a man to do a thing you are afraid to do yourself."

The Vassar girls' Roman hero—Marius.

Visiting Portland.

Among the wits of the olden time was Seba Smith,—Major Jack Downing. He thus describes his first journey to Portland, Me., and his call upon the editor:

In the fall of the year 1829 I took it into my head I'd go to Portland. I had heard a good deal about Portland, what a fine place it was, and how the folks got rich there proper fast; and that fall there was a couple of new papers come up to our place from there, called the Portland Courier and Family Reader, and they told a good many queer kind of things about Portland, and one thing and another; and all at once it popped into my head, and I up and told father, and says,—

"I am going to Portland, whether or no; and I'll see what this world is made of yet."

Father stared a little at first, and said he was afraid I would get lost; but when he seen I was bent upon it, he gave it up, and he stepped to his chist and opened the till and took out a dollar, and gave it to me; and says he,—

"Jack, this is all I can do for you; but go and lead an honest life, and I believe I shall hear good of you yet."

He turned and walked across the room, but I could see the tears start into his eyes. And mother sat down and had a hearty crying spell.

This made me feel rather bad for a minit or too, and I almost had a mind to give it up; and then again father's dream came into my mind, and I mustered up courage and declared I'd go. So I tackled up the old horse, and packed in a load of axe-handles and a few notions, and mother fried me some doughnuts and put 'em into a box, along with some cheese and sausages, and ropped me up another shirt, for I told her I didn't know how long I should be gone. And after I got rigged out, I went round and bid all the neighbors good-bye, and jumped in and drove off for Portland.

Aunt Sally had been married two or three years before and moved to Portland; and I inquired round till I found out where she lived, and went there, and put the old horse up and eat some supper and went to bed.

And the next morning I got up and started right off to see the editor of the Portland Courier, for I know by what I had seen in his paper that he was just the man to tell me which way to steer. And when I come to see him, I knew I was right; for as soon as I told him my name and what I wanted, he took me by the hand as kind as if he had been a brother, and says he,— "Mister," says he, I'll do anything I can to assist you. You have come to a good town; Portland is a healthy, thriving place, and any man with a proper degree of enterprise may do well here. But," says he, "stranger," and he looked mighty kind of knowing, says he, "if you want to make out to your mind, you must do as the steamboats do."

"Well," say I, "how do they do?" for I didn't know what a steamboat was any more than the man in the moon.

"Why," says he, "they go ahead."

London Dancing.

What a wild scamper is the last new valse, says a London letter. The various couples dash and tear through it, and, after two or three rounds, come to a breathless stop, scarlet and gasping for breath. There are but few who can dance a quick valse with true grace, and those few do not always succeed in finding congenial partners. The consequence is a scene of wild confusion that, to an unitiated onlooker, must savor of bedlam. A few couples still practice the "chandelier crawl," circling slowly round and round beneath a group of lights with languid rhythm, and getting heartily detested by the rushing couples in whose way they get. Apropos of the French word, I may mention that it is now highly unfashionable in London to speak or write the word in its English form, "waltz." The cotillion reigns, especially in the houses of those hostesses who like to find themselves some modicum of fame by the beauty and costliness of their cotillion gifts. Such a height has this sort of an advertisement of one's wealth and generosity now reached, that an unwritten law has come in force in the best circles, by which it is enacted that only flowers may be given in the cotillion, and that costly gifts shall come under the category of "vulgar show." In the same way, it is now considered the best style to be married in the morning, as the nouveaux riches always make it a point to be wedded by special license, which is the only mode of having the ceremony performed in the afternoon.

"Catch the Colt"

Some one, commenting on the shrewdness of the Friends and the temperance of the Jews, says, "A soft Quaker would be as great a curiosity as a dissipated Hebrew." Perhaps the cause of this shrewdness may be found in the fact that young Quakers are trained to observe and reflect. An incident will illustrate this fact:

A thief stole a mare which had a colt. Mounted on her back he was galloped away, followed by the colt and the villagers, crying, "Stop, thief!"

As they passed a tan-yard, a Quaker-apprentice called out, "Catch the colt."

The colt was caught.

As the quick wit of the young Friend had divined, the mare, missing her foal, stopped. In spite of the kicks and blows administered by the alarmed thief, she would not move a step. The thief was caught. That young Friend had eyes which saw and a brain which reflected on what the eyes reported to it.

One of the finest old tales of the Scottish Border is founded on an incident like this.

Prince Albert's Thrift.

The reluctance of the late Prince Albert to disburse money was only equaled by his eagerness to obtain it, according to the London Truth. It is not generally known that he held the nominal post now filled by Count Gleichen for many years, and, although in receipt of an annual allowance of £30,000 he regularly drew his salary of £1,200 as governor of Windsor Castle down to the very last hour of his life. The value of his estate has never yet transpired, nor have the provisions of the prince's will ever been made public. It is not easy to understand why Queen Victoria should have made such a profound mystery of the matter, but it is a fact that the most stringent precautions were taken, and have been continued, to keep everything connected with the prince's property and its disposition a dead secret.

WOMAN'S SPHERE.

Why Judge Ludlow Refused Mrs. Kilgore Admission to the Bar.

Judge Ludlow, of Philadelphia, in refusing Mrs. Kilgore admission to the bar, took occasion to say: "It may be admitted at once that no inherent reason exists why a woman, married or single, may not engage in any business which a man may lawfully follow. It ought, however, to be remembered that the Creator of the universe, for a reason which any reasonable being ought to consider self-evident, made a distinction between the sexes, and saw fit, in the propagation of the species, to protect the physically weaker sex by laws as inflexible as other and general laws governing the universe, and to place under the protection of the male sex the female, simply because, as a general and universal law, applicable to all created living organisms the female requires protection. Of exceptional cases we do not speak, but of general laws, by which alone we must determine principles of universal application. Again, experience, if it proves anything, establishes the fact that, while a dividing line cannot be accurately drawn between duties chiefly pertaining to the male and female, the laws of God or for those who deny his existence, the laws of nature distinctly point to the female for the performance of these duties—to my mind of the highest and noblest nature which may be performed by her—if not in private, at least from public glare and public exposure. These duties are so various and many that it is needless tn enumerate them. I am opposed to the admission of this lady who is a married woman of unquestionable character and ability, first, because no law or custom sanctions, but on the contrary, contemporaneous exposition and universal practice condemn it; second, to grant this motion would be, in the present condition of the law, an act of judicial legislation, and therefore of judicial usurpation; third, because in this instance the applicant, being a married woman, cannot enter into those contracts without ability to make what she cannot legally practice as an attorney of the courts; fourth, because the question is one peculiarly the subject of legislation, and therefore must be solved by legislative and not by judicial authority."

A Pensioned Mule.

A mule, belonging to the army has been "pensioned" and laid aside from service, under circumstances which are creditable to the kind-heartedness of several officers. The circumstances are disclosed in the following narrative:

Lieut. W. A. Kobbe, of the Third Artillery, who is stationed at Mount Vernon barracks, Ala., reported to the war department that there was at that post a white mule named Mexique, which has been for many years in the service of the United States, but which at last has been ordered sold.

The officers of the post, Lieut. Kobbe said, desired permission to purchase the animal and keep and care for it at their own expense.

Maj. F. L. Guenther, of the Second Artillery, to whom the petition was referred, reported that the mule in question was originally left at Key West barracks in 1848 by a portion of the army returning from Mexico at the close of the war. He added:

During the time that I served at Key West—from 1875 to 1880—the mule did not miss a day's work from any cause. He is very old, and has been worn out by his long service in the Quartermaster's department.

If there is any way of providing for him, I should be glad to have it done, as the expense to the Government would be little or nothing.

The petition went through the regular channels until it reached Quartermaster-General Holabird, who endorsed it as follows:

To promote the sentiment of kindness toward animals that are so intimately associated with man, it is recommended in this special case that this mule be kept in the department, and left to the care of those whose kindly feelings are so deeply enlisted in its behalf.

Gen. Sherman submitted the case to the Secretary of War with the following report:

I have seen the mule; and whether true or false, the soldiers believe it was left at Big Spring, where Mount Vernon barracks now are, at the time Gen. Jackson's army camped there, about 1819-20.

Tradition says it was once a sorrell, but now it is white from age.

The Quartermaster's Department will be chargeable with ingratitude if that mule is sold, or the care or maintenance of it thrown off the charitable officers of the post.

I advise that it be kept in the department, fed and maintained till death. I think the mule was at Fort Morgan, Mobile Point, when I was there in 1842.

The Secretary of War thereupon made the following order:

Let this mule be kept and well cared for as long as he lives.

One of the Pap Merrill Stories.

A couple of senators was swapping yarns the other day, when one of them related the following of "Pap" Merrill, of the Milwaukee road. He was going over the road one day, and while the train was standing at a station, he was moving about taking general observations. The car wheel tester was busily moving from wheel to wheel, giving each a quick tap with a hammer to test their soundness. Mr. Merrill watched him a few moments, and said, "Here, Mike, let me show you how to do that." The fellow did not look up from his work, but kept pounding away. Mr. Merrill repeated his request several times until the fellow had reached the end of the train, when he cast a most indignant glance at Merrill and went over to the other side, where a train man asked him why he did not let "the old man" take the hammer. "Is that Mr. Merrill, did ye say?" said Mike. "Faith and I'll go and spake with him." Approaching the general manager very reverently, Mike made a most humble apology for being so disrespectful. "Indade, sir," said he, "I didn't know who you were at all, at all, sir, and if I should stop to pay attention to every d—n fool that comes along, I wouldn't have time to attend to me business."—Des Moines Register.

Two patient cribbage players in Boston have played 23,000 games, and at latest accounts one was only one game ahead of the other.

A BRIDE IN RED.

Interesting Description of a Mohammedan Chinese Wedding.

From the Worcester (Mass.) Spy.

The following description of a Mohammedan Chinese wedding is taken from a family letter recently received by Mr. Charles M. Howe, of this city, from his daughter, Mrs. Grace L. Roberts, missionary at Kalgan, North China:

Kalgan, Dec. 19, 1883.

* * * Last week we attended a Mohammedan Chinese wedding, the first ever attended by foreigners, I think. Miss Garretson and Miss Dr. Murdock were also there. The wedding was on Wednesday. On Monday our teacher (the bridegroom to be) came over and brought the invitations to us, and promised to send a cart for us Wednesday noon. Then the question arose, What should we send them for presents? We thought and talked the matter over, and finally decided to send tw handkerchiefs, some stereoscopic views, one or two of my large views of the Profile House, and Universal History in Chinese by Mr. Sheffield. We sent them over early Wednesday morning, and prepared ourselves for the wedding. At about 10.30 the cart came, and we went; they live only a short distance from here. We found Dr. Murdock and Miss Garretson already there. We seated ourselves, and they immediately brought on some food; this the children enjoyed immensely, much more than we did. We were at this time in the room of the bridal party, but were told that in a few minutes we would be invited to another room. This was soon done. We were then informed that the next thing would be the arrival of the bride. We had to wait a long time, but were very pleasantly entertained by the wife of Miss Garretson's teacher, a brother of our teacher. At last the bride came, and we were hurried into a retired corner where we could see her enter. She was dressed throughout in red, with gilt figures, the clothes being bound quite tightly about her. She had on a brass (?) hat, from which was suspended a litte red veil, covering her face. She was supported by two women, one on each side, and taken directly to their room. She no sooner reached the inner door than men and children jumped forward and smashed in the paper window to see her. They said that was a Kalgan custom, not Mohammedan. Then the women shut the inner wooden shutters, while they should reattire the bride. The veil was removed, her wedding clothes were put on and her hair covered with ornaments. Then the shutters were opened and we were taken in to see her. She is supposed not to understand anything that is said on her wedding day, but must stand or sit with cast-down eyes all day long to be gazed at. We then came home to return in the evening. At five o'clock we went over again. We were presently taken to a retired room, where we could see everything that went on. After a little, our teacher, beautifully dressed, came in and paid his respects to the Mohammedan priests, six in number, to each one separately. Then he and the priests began chanting, one after another, in Arabia. Just as the last one finished chanting they grabbed some walnuts from the table, and pelted him with them; and one of the family pulled and tugged at him, but he was immovable. The nuts were thrown at him to drive Satan away. The boys sprang for the walnuts. Then he, with the priests in unison, murmured a silent prayer (?) rubbed the hands down the body, beginning at the head. He paid his respects again and disappeared. We saw very little of him during the day. Before this we had seen the marriage certificate written out in Arabic on red paper. We were again seated on the k'ang, and our feast was brought in, consisting of twenty-five kinds of courses. It is almost impossible for me to eat Chinese food, but most of this was really very nice. You know the Mohammedans do not eat swine flesh, so we had only beef and chicken for meats, but they were prepared in various ways, by one course I mean one fowl, from which all were helped. We ate and talked, went to look at the bride once more, and started for home at about 8.30 o'clock, escorted by two servants, carrying two large red lanterns. After this the teacher (bridegroom) was allowed for the first time to see his bride. She had come a distance of over 300 miles to marry him; she was very pretty, and only about 16 years old, while he was over 30. She had been in the city several days, only a few doors from his house, but none of his family were allowed to see her. The Mohammedans are very neat, especially those who are well to-do. We are going to try to get up a little feast for them as soon as convenient.

Old Riots Recalled.

The Cincinnati riots may recall Sir Walter Scott's description of the lynching of Captain John Porteous by the people of Edinburgh for ordering his soldiers to fire upon them. But a much closer parallel is to be found in the great riot which the half-crazy Lord George Gordon headed in London itself in 1780, as described by Dickens in "Barnaby Rudge." During four whole days the city wore the aspect of a stormed town, thirty-six fires being seen raging at one time. The prison at Newgate, then just built, was burned to the ground, and its 300 prisoners let loose to swell the furious mob that held every street. Three other jails, several public buildings and seventy-nine private houses were demolished and the destruction of property was enormous. Lord Mansfield's town house was sacked, and his splendid library (including the finest collection of rare manuscripts in all England) wantonly consumed. At length, on the fourth evening, the Guards were ordered out, and a regular battle ensued between them and the mob close to the Bank of England itself, which the rioters had unsuccessfully attempted to storm and plunder. The close fire of the troops, followed by a charge with fixed bayonets, soon brought the fight to an end, though not without heavy loss on both sides. Many scores of the rioters were shot or bayoneted, almost an equal number captured and subsequently hanged, and Lord George Gordon himself, as the chief author of the outbreak, was sentenced to imprisonment for life.

Carpenter, just acquitted of the murder of Zora Burns, mortgaged his real estate for $13,000 to get money to defend himself.

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA.

A French savan has found that hydrophobia can be prevented by innoculation with a modified virus, and hence we may expect an era of vaccination to set in—but a better way is to kill the dogs.

There are hundreds of women clerks and accountants in this country, some holding positions of great trust, and it is said that no one has yet heard of one of them being guilty of embezzlement or defalcataon. There are several thousand woman employed by the goverment but not one has ever proved unfaithful to her trust. Many have been discharged for incapacity and for other reasons, but never one for dishonesty.

The scientific officers of the United States Signal Service at Washington have been making close observations of late in order to satisfy themselves as to the theory that disturbances in the sun cause unusual atmospheric disturbances on the earth. Their conclusion is that so-called sun-spots have very little if any connection witn our great windstorms. They give it as their opinion that these terrific storms are caused by a collision of warm and cold currents of air, especially in the springtime, following the advance of the warm weather northward.

The country will soon be deluged with congressional speeches. This occurs every presidential year, and as usually the case, the more new men there are in the house the more speeches will be printed. Not one in ten are ever delivered, but the orators get leave to print and then put their speeches in the record, commencing "Mr., Dusenberry than addressed the house as follows," with "applause," "continued applause," "cheers," and similar parenthetical words run in through the text. The practice has been severly ridiculed but without apparent effect, for this year the nuisance is more aggressive than ever before.

The supreme court of Pennsylvania has rendered a decision to the effect that minority stockholders in a corporation have a right to inspect the books and papers of the organization at reasonable times for legitimate purposes, and that such right may be enforced by mandamus. There can be no doubt about the injustice of such a decision, and the frequent exercise of the right in question by minority stockholders would have a wholesome general effect. Too often the holders of the majority of stock in a corporation manage its property and affairs without any regard to the interests or wishes of the minority, and frequently to their serious disadvantage.

Since the Cincinnati riot, one of the branches of the Ohio Legislature has passed a law repealing the exemption of those belonging to military companies from jury duties in important criminal cases; reduced the criminal's right to peremptory challenges of the jury from twenty-three to six, and raised those of the prosecution from two to four. The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette urges two more—the relief of the Supreme Court from the revision and reversion of verdicts; and the reduction of the time between a murderer's sentence and his execution from 100 to thirty days. The Legislature had already passed a law prohibiting his intelligence from disbaring a man from jury duty; so that, altogether, it will be observed that the news from Cincinnati has reached Columbus.

Connecticut as well as New York is beginning to suffer from the wholesale destruction of forests, and the decrease of the volume of its streams is already marked enough to arouse alarm. The matter has been brought before the legislature, and it is proposed to have the state Board of Agriculture make a thorough investigation and report next year, not only as to the best action for the state to take, but also as to the possibility of securing concurrent action by Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont for the protection of forests near the sources of the Connecticut and other rivers. The destruction of the forests about the headwaters of the Connecticut has already diminished the volume of that stream, and its future navigation below Hartford is threatened, as is the navigation of the Hudson below Troy.

Grain freights from Chicago to the seaboard are at the lowest point ever known. The fifteen-cent rate per hundred pounds is for the time being the regular one, the twelve-and-a-half-cent rate is reported, and is not received with incredulity. These rates barely pay the cost of hauling, and leave nothing of interest charges or the lowest conceivable returns for capital actual invested. This is said to be in accordance with the predictions of twelve years ago. As suggested with much force, that the stock watering and apparent monopoly could be remedied by the building of certain lines of state railways, which, though likely to be a burden to the state, would justify their cost by the fact that they would fix the maximum rates beyond which the corporate companies would not be able to go. The forty millions of "water" injected into the so-called capital of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad was the indirect, if not the direct, source from which sprang the West Shore Railroad, and that road with all its [illegible] is to-day the most important [illegible] with which an [illegible] direction has to deal [illegible]

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington Gossip.

A site has been selected at Washington for the statue of Chief Justice Marshall which will unveiled in May.

The president has signed the commission of David S. Stanley, to be brigadier general, and it has been forwarded to him.

The postmaster general has ordered the Minneapolis and Millband, Dak., mail route to be extended to Aberdeen, Dak., and to be known as the Minneapolis and Aberdeen route.

The secretary of state has decided not to give any more letters of introduction to citizens visiting foreign countries, as the practice has become burdensome and expensive to the consuls.

The secretary of the treasury will, in a few days, render a decision on the application to permit Canadians to ship goods through the United States without executing a bond at the port of entry.

The secretary of the interior has decided that the affidavits required of a homestead applicant under section 2,294, revised statutes, may be made before judges of probate in Dakota, and such officers under the territorial code, ex-officer, clerks of their own courts.

The house committee on railways and canals agreed to report favorably the Hennepin canal bill, which was introduced at the beginning of the session by Mr. Cannon of Illinois. It approves the route surveyed by secretary of war, from Hennepin to Rock Island, and designated in Benyuard's report as the Rock Island route, together with the branch canal, or feeder, from Rock river to the Hennepin canal.

Gen. Terry is attending to some business at the war department, and is waiting for the return of Gen. Sheridan, who has gone down to Fortress Monroe to inspect the artillery school there. Upon Sheridan's return they will present to congress the necessity and economy of building a new post at Fort Snelling and consentrating a large body of troops there, as described in these dispatches some days ago.

A pleasant wedding occurred last Wednesday evening at the residence of C. A. Maxwell, chief of the land division, Indian office, the contracting parties being Adolph B. Carson of Chicago, a brother of Mrs. Maxwell, and Miss Helen S. Kemon. The presents were numerous and hamlsome. The couple took the train for an extended tour to the Northwest, and will locate at Frankfort, Dak., where Mr. Carson has gone into business.

The Osage Indian delegation, called upon Secretary Teller and presented a formal request to be considered hereafter as a civilized tribe. They want to be included in all the laws with the five civilized tribes, making six civilized tribes, as they explain it. The secretary told them he would so recommend to the present congress, but they must in that case act like civilized tribes—farm, raise stock, send their children to school.

Postoffices established: Dakota—Flora, Charles Mix county; Holman, Osceola county. Postoffice site changed—Idylwilde, Turner county. Postmasters commissioned—Presidential offices, George A. Sylsby, Mitchell, Dak.; W. J. Brown, Emmetsburg, Iowa; Joseph E. Grawe, Nashua, Iowa; J. Whart, Traer, Iowa; John M. Jones, Cheyenne, Wyo.; fourth-class offices, James E. Marcum, Helmville, Mont.; new office, J. G. Porter, John, Boone county, Iowa.

Railroad Rumblings.

The Crookston, Grand Forks & Lake Superior directors, at a recent meeting, decided to issue $100,000 worth of stock, and throw it on the market at 50 cents on the dollar.

The report that an agreement had been made between the Burlington and St. Paul by which each will suspend for two years construction into each other's territory is not generally believed.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the La Crosse, Iowa & Southwestern, has been called for Charles City, Iowa, May 6. A board of directors is to be elected, and other business of importance transacted.

John W. Cary of Milwaukee, attorney of the Milwaukee & St. Paul road, is in Washington looking after the bill granting that road the right of way through the Sioux reservation and other legislation affecting the road.

O. H. Smith, formerly agent for the Northern Pacific at Belknap, has been arrested, charged with embezzlement. He is said to have been short $1,000 in his accounts with the express company, and about $200 with the railroad company.

The new railroad construction in the northwest will be less than last year, and probably will not reach more than 1,800 miles, as follows:

	Miles.
Northern Pacific	300
Manitoba	293
Omaha	16
Rock Island system	300
Northwestern	120
Wisconsin Central	100
Burlington	390
St. Paul & Northern Pacific	10
Duluth & Iron Range	60
Minneapolis, Sault Ste. Marie & Atlantic	100
St. Paul Eastern Grand Trunk	50
Fargo Southern	50
Dakota & Great Southern	100
Total	1,889

Record of Cassualties.

At Northampton, mass., the Elisha Graves house, over 200 years old, was burned recently.

A blast in the Calumet and Hecla mine in the Lake Superior copper district, killed Thomas Tremberth and blinded Nicholas Johns. Tremberth leaves a family and eight children.

Personal Points.

Mrs. Fremont is writing a book of reminiscences.

The death of Jean Baptist Dumas is announced.

Henry Hitchcock, of Galesburg, Ill., has left Knox college $100,000.

Gen. George Dietaler, formerly a member of the famous Stubbs company, during the free state war in Kansas, was thrown from a buggy at Tucson, Ariz., and killed.

Maj. C. J. Dickey, Twenty-second infantry, U. S. A., now stationed at Santa Fe, N. Mex., was married at Indianapolis, Ind., Thursday the 10th, to Miss L. Davidson, granddaughter of the late Gov. Noah Noble.

Dr. McCosh, president of Princeton college, has started on a Western trip. He will be present at the banquet of the Cincinnati Alumni association at Columbus on the 8th, at the banquet of the Chicago alumni on the 10th, and will be in Omaha on the 13th to form an Omaha Alumni association.

A few days ago Col. Broadhead, paymaster in the army at San Antonio, Tex., died suddenly in Boston of pneumonia, where he had been taken for treatment for insanity. His clerk, John Treadwell, who accompanied him, then returned to Washington on the 8th to settle the paymaster's accounts, and on Wednesday, before he had been there twenty-four hours, Mr. Treadwell was not seen again after registering at the National, and yesterday morning the clerk of the hotel sent up the servant to ascertain whether or not he was in his room. The servant reported that he thought the man was dead. Mr. Hoff, the clerk, found the dead body of Mr. Treadwall lying across the bed, almost entirely unclothed. He had a wife living at Frederick Md. An autopsy was made by Dr. Hartigan, who decided death was caused by pneumonia.

The Criminal Calendar.

Joseph Edwards, connected with one of the wealthiest families of Houghton, Mich., committed suicide.

A new trial has been refused in the case of Andrew J. Korner, Indianapolis, convicted of wife murder, and the prisoner was sentenced to be hanged June 27.

Shep Tucker, a noted Pennsylvania thief, who during his life stole over 400 horses, and who knew the works of Shakespeare, Milton, Homer and Byron by heart, has gone to his reward.

Lewis Tracy, a saloon keeper of Hartford, Conn., in a fit of playfulness, aimed a pistol at the heart of George Ethier, a French Canadian. The weapon was exploded and Ethier fell dead. Tracy "did not know it was loaded."

An attempt was made recently to destroy, with dynamite, the magazine of Fort George, a few miles from Inverness. The marauders escaped in boats, but not before a sentry bayonet ed one of them.

Mike Berry, a Texarkana [illegible], was shot and killed by Deputy Sheriff J. F. Clark. Berry frequently threatened to kill Clark on sight. When they met Clark opened fire. Several shots were fired by both sides, when Berry fell [illegible]

[illegible] and Charles O'Hara were arrested in Cincinnati, one on charge of contempt of court, and the other for [illegible] Both were strikers on the Cincinnati Northern division of the Toledo, Cin[illegible]

The prisoners confined in the county jail at Des Moines, succeeded in cutting through the outer wall, about three feet in thickness, and fifteen of them made their escape, three of them remaining within. None of them have been recaptured. The names of those who escaped are: John Lay, Fred Doud, Andrew Mulhollan, George Knight, Dan Smith, William Calbert, Ed Kelly, Thomas Lalley, James Quan, Thomas White, Mike and Elijah Walters, William Howard and Ed Ryan. They were assisted by parties on the outside. Most of them were serving short jail sentences.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

Bradstreet's reports trade livelier in Northwestern cities than elsewhere.

Fifty poor New York gamins were given homes around Vandalia, Ill., this week.

The Monmouth, Ill., bank failure is worse than supposed. Depositors, mostly poor people, will lose $150,000.

Rev. L. M. Ferris, pastor of the Baptist church at Tivoli, N. Y., is in trouble because he engaged to marry four girls at the same time.

The union printers in Texas have issued a circular advising printers not to come to the state, as efforts are bring made by the daily papers to reduce the price of composition.

The National Bank of the Republic, of New York City, of which John J. Knox will accept the presidency when the committee on banking and currency makes its report on the Boston case.

Daniel Hawn, aged eighty-four, died at Huntington, Pa. He had been insane sixty years, and in all that time had been kept in a room in a house where five brothers, all unmarried, lived.

A surprise has been occasioned in Boston by the passage of a dividend by the Calumet & Hecla Cooper company. The company has paid dividends continuously for about seventeen years, and has distributed more than $20,000,000 in cash to its stockholders. Its present capital is 100,000 shares of the par value of $25, upon which less than $12 per share has been paid up. At $250 per share—a recent price—the property was selling for $25,000,000.

The annual distribution of annuity goods at Lac Court Oreille reservation has just been made to 1,000 Indians there. The Indians of this reservation have been extensively engaged in logging during the past winter and have banked about $180,000 worth of logs. As a result of their labor they are well fed and clothed some of them having realized from $2,000 to $3,000 net from the disposal of their timber. All have been at work.

As it was known that Gen. Grant would not preside at the Confederate home in Cooper Union New York, owing to disability, the large hall was not crowded, as it otherwise would have been. Fully 1,500 persons were present, however, and enthusiastic for the success of the movement. Corporal Tanner of Brooklyn presided, and the exercises began by a band playing "Dixie". Many letters of regret were read. Gen. Hancock sent assurances of his very best wishes and efforts for success. Gen. Preston promised his support. Dr. Talmadge also sent a letter of sympathy with the movement in lieu of his presence. Gen. J. B. Gordon made the speech of the evening.

Nuggets of Foreign News.

The duke of Buccleugh and Queensbury is dying in London. He was born in 1806.

The Paris Monde, a clerical newspaper, says five French missionaries and thirty catechists have been massacred at Thanhoa Tonquin.

Steson & Sons, owners of the Theater Royal, Middleborough, England, have failed. Liabilities estimated at from £100,000 to £250,000. They have large trading stores at various towns in the North of England.

Patrick N. Fitzgerald, who was arrested in London on Thursday, the 10th, and imprisoned on a charge of being implicated in the west of Ireland murders' offered to turn informer. He claims to have been an associate of P. J. Sheridan, and to be able to implicate him in the work of the Irish invincibles, and claims also to have belonged to the gang of invincibles which was led by the informer James Carey, and to be possessed of a full history of the doings of all the Irish secret societies. The government detectives express belief in the truth of Fitzgerald's pretentions, and affect to regard his capture as one of the most important made since the Phoenix park assassinations.

The English minister has a dispatch from Gen. Gordon, bearing date of March 30. It says that on March 25 Gen. Gordon disarmed 250 bashi-bazouks who had mutinied. On the following day he shelled the rebel camps on the Blue Nile, killing forty of the enemy. On March 27 the rebels fired upon Khartoum from a village opposite. They were soon forced to evacuate, losing fifty-nine men in the engagement. Bashi-bazouks occupied the village, and held it until March 30, when the rebels returned in force and drove them out, but then retired themselves. The White Nile district is quiet. The Khartoum market is well supplied. El Mahdi sent the rebels six guns. Gen. Gordon estimates that the rebels about Khartoum number fully 2,000.

The Emperer William, it is reported on good authority, has entered into a state of pronounced dotage. He is at present suffering greatly from the insomnia that set in during the congestive chill which prostrated him last Tuesday the 8th, and which kept the attending physicians desperately engaged at his bedside all that night. It is on the programme that the emperer shall go to Darmstadt next Tuesday; that Queen Victoria shall arrive there the following Thuraday, and that a state meeting between the two shall take place on Monday, the 21st. There is great anxiety both in London and in Germany to have this meeting take place, and there can be little doubt that William will keep his appointment if alive and the doctors dare not allow him to go, no matter what may be the consequence to his health.

A Temporary Injunction Obtained.

Elias F. Drake and Amherst H. Wilder, as trustees of the Sioux City & St. Paul land grant, in the district court at Sioux City obtained a temporary injunction against Buren R. Sherman, governor of Iowa, restraining him from conveying the uncertified land of the company to the general government in accordance with the act of the legislature at its recent session. It is understood the case will be transferred from the district to the federal court.

The Wisconsin Central.

The Wisconsin Central will confine itself to building its St. Paul extension from Chippewa Falls, a distance of nearly one hundred miles. The line will cross the St. Croix about three miles north of Stillwater, and the Omaha's tracks at New Richmond. It will cross the Duluth road four miles this side of Stillwater, and again at Lake Phalen, from which point it may use the track of that road to reach St. Paul. If such an arrangement is not made the Wisconsin Central will build its own line to the northeastern section of the city, where a junction will be made with the proposed line of the St. Paul & Northern Pacific, and the two roads enter St. Paul over the same track.

Favorably Reported.

The house committee on commerce directed that a favorable report be made on the bill authorizing the Chippewa Falls & Western Railway company to construct a bridge over the St. Croix river. A similar report was directed on the bill authorizing the Winona Alma & Northern Railway company to construct bridges across the Wisconsin, Chippewas and St. Croix rivers in Wisconsin, and also on the bills authorizing the Chicago, St. Paul & St. Louis Railroad company to construct bridges across the Mississippi river in Wisconsin, and between Minnesota and Wisconsin.

A Washington Clerk Out of a Job.

Washington Special:—Quite a sensation was created in the treasury department Friday morning by a lively set to between one of the clerks and an outsider. Between 9 and 10 o'clock a stranger asked for John T. Cramer, and was directed to the fourth auditor's office. He proceeded there and called Cramer into the corridor. With but two or three preliminary remarks the stranger knocked Cramer down, kicked him, and handeled him pretty roughly generally, scattering blood all around. He was prevented from doing further damage by a messenger. The watchman was called, and the man was arrested. He gave his name as John R. Risdon, grocer, and stated that Cramer had used his influence to obtain a position on the extra force in the internal revenue bureau for his sister-in-law, that Cramer then addressed letters to the lady, asking her to meet him at night. These were shown to Risdon, who proceeded to take summary vengeance in the manner described. He said his sister-in-law did not want to see Cramer, but he did. He was released. Risdon returned to the treasury department at noon and laid before Secretary Folger the letters referred to. The secretary immediately wrote a letter to the fourth auditor, ordering Cramer's dismissal from the department.

Political Notes and News.

Congressman York is the leading Republican candidate for governor of North Carolina.

A state Greenback convention will be held at Lyon Mass., the last week in April.

The Delaware county (Pa.) Republican convention instructed for Blaine and Lincoln.

All reports from ex-Speaker Kiefer's district are to the effect that he cannot be re-elected.

Mercer (Pa.) Democratic county convention elected Randall delegates to the state convention.

Col. F. Middleton succeeds Maj. Gen. Luard as general in command of militia in Canada.

John Sherman says the tariff and Southern questions will be the vital issues of the Presidential canvass.

Robert A. Smith has been appointed as the Minnesota member of the Democratic congressional committee.

Judge Pulling, upon whom the fight was made in the Oshkosh, Wis., circuit, was re-elected by 2,000 majority.

The complete vote for governor of Rhode Island is: Bourne (Rep.), 15,903; Segar (Dem.), 9,599; scattering, 15.

Special Counsel Kerr, of the star route prosecutions, is still receiving $50 per diem from the department of justice.

Republican conventions in Armstrong, Warren and Greene counties, Pa., elected Blaine delegates to the state convention.

Justice Harlan and Speaker Carlisle, before the Springer committee, testified that the reputation in Kentucky of Gov. Murray, of Utah, was excellent.

Of eighty-seven New Jersey legislators, a majority are for Blaine, ten for Logan and three for Edmunds. A canvas of the state shows a similar preference.

At the city election of Mandan, Dak., Frank J. Mead was elected to the mayoralty by a majority of forty-two, over Warren Carpenter, Jr.; 475 votes were cast.

The fact that the New York Independents have practically endorsed the ticket of Edmunds and Lincoln has caused a good deal of comment among the politicians in Washington.

Chairman Cooper, of the Pennsylvania Republican state central committee, has issued a circular declaring Blaine can be elected without New York, and is the only candidate who can be.

Of sixty chairmen of Democratic county conventions in pensylvania, fifty declare for Randall and the others for "Tilden or Randall" except Greene county, which declares for Hancock.

Washington Special—The members of the house are preparing to flood the country with political speeches, and have authorized the doorkeeper to employ assistance in the folding room.

At Madison, Wis., the municipal election resulted in the success of the Democratic ticket throughout. Owing to a heavy rain the vote was light. B. J. Stevens' majority for mayor was 825.

At Milwaukee, Wis., the city election resulted in favor of the Republican ticket and high license. Emil Wallber, Republican candidate, was elected over Dixon, Democrat, by a majority of 3,038.

The Council Bluffs Nonpareil publishes an editorial strongly urging the Iowa delegation to present the name of the Hon. W. B. Allison to the Chicago Republican convention as its nominee for president.

It is reported that Arthur will have the support of Virginia delegates. Simon Cameron says: Tilden is not too old to run. He is feeble, perhaps, but not too old. Mr. Tilden is an able and an acute man."

The Baltimore American announces that a meeting of prominent Democrats from all over the country will meet in that city the last of April to propose a reconciliation of present differences in the party.

Samuel Hyslop, was elected mayor of Hudson, Wis.; G. N. Richmond was chosen mayor at Appleton; W. A. Roosevelt, mayor of La Crosse; W. H. Davis, mayor of Eau Claire; George H. Seeley mayor of Menomonie.

The Republican convention of the Eighteenth Congressional district of Pennsylvania elected Blaine delegates to the state convention. Credentials were not given delegates till they had signed a written pledge to support Blaine.

The Boston Advertiser has canvassed the state and says the returns only tend to confirm the statement at first made that Massachusetts Republicans are unquestionably in favor of the nomination at Chicago of Edmunds and Lincoln.

The Republican convention of the twenty-third congressional district of Pennsylvania elected Hon. Thomas M. Bayne and E. M. Byers delegates to the national Republican convention. The delegates are instructed to support Blaine.

The son of Senator-Elect Payne of Ohio telegraphed Congressman Paige of that State, that the statement printed to the effect that his father would not accept the Democratic nomination for the presidency was a "pure fabrication."

Senator Conkling has written a letter saying: "I am wholly out of political movements and affairs, and wholly absorbed in professional work which taxes all my energies. Apart from preference, it is impossible for me to participate in or be drawn into discussion at this time."

Gen. Simon Cameron of Pennsylvania refuses to be interviewed on politics, but says he does not believe that the Southern men of either party have any favorite for president. For himself, he does not care who is made president, so long, of course, as the Republican nominee is elected.

A call has been issued by the Republican congressional committee of the second Minnesota district for a convention to be held in Mankato April 24, to elect two delegates and their alternates to the national convention. The basis of representation for the counties comprising the district, is one delegate for every two hundred votes, or major fraction thereof, cast for Gov. Hubbard in 1883.

J. D. Ensign, an old resident was elected Mayor of Duluth, Minn.; G. W. Stienke, Mayor of St. Peter, Minn.; William Jones, Mayor of Mankato, Minn.; Mayor Page was re-elected Mayor of Fergus Falls; George M. Palmer (rep.) Mayor of Mankato; Andrew Raidson, President of Wilmar; C. L. Lowell, (dem.) Mayor of Faribault; W. P. Dinon, President of Bird Island; T. F. Strait, Mayor of Shakopee.

The 22d republican district convention at Pittsburg, resulted in a split and the election of two sets of delegates. The Blaine men organized, and elected Jacob F. Slagle and Joseph N. Weeks delegates. The others elected C. L. Magee and William Flynn. Both sets of delegates will go to Chicago and demand recognition. Magee and Flynn are understood to be for Arthur.

The poet Whittier writes, in answer to an inquiry about his presidential preference: "For myself I would support Edmunds or Blaine if nominated. There is another New England man who seems to me to posses character, qualifications and elements of popularity in an eminent degree—Senator Hawley of Connecticut."

The Nelson and Kindred committees in the Fifth Minnesota district have issued calls for separate conventions to be held at Moorehead, Clay county, April 24, to choose two delegates to the republican national convention in Chicago. The basis of representation will be one delegate for each organized county in the district, and one for each additional 300 Republican voters or major portion thereof, as determined by the vote cast for Knute Nelson and C. F. Kindred for congress in 1883.

The members of the Republican committee of the Fourth Congressional district of Minnesota, met at Nicollet house, Minneapolis and decided by an unanimous vote to call the delegate convention at St. Paul at noon on Tuesday, the 29th day of April. The counties in the district will be allowed delegates in number as follows: Hennepin, 17; Wright, 7; Chicago, 4; Anoka, 3; Pine, 1; Ramsey, 15; Washington, 7; Isanti, 2; Kanabec, 1; Sherburne, 1; total 58. It was decided to call the congressional convention at Minneapolis at 12 o'clock on Wednesday, the 28th day of May. The representation in the latter convention was based on one delegate for every 300 of the average state vote, the same as at the delegate convention.

Hon. Micheal Doran, chairman of the Minnesota state central Democratic committee, has issued the following call: A delegate convention of Democrats and all citizens of Minnesota who believe in the policy of a reduction of the present war tariff to a standard of justice alike to the producers, consumers, manufacturers, and corporate powers of the country is hereby called to meet in the city of St. Paul Thursday, the 29th day of May, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of nominating four delegates at large and four alternates, and two delegates and two alternates from each congressional district to the Democratic national convention, to be held in Chicago, July 8, 1884, to nominate candidates for the offices of president and vice president of the United States, and also to nominate a Democratic electoral ticket for the State of Minnesota. The basis of representation to such convention is one delegate for each organized county of the state and one delegate for each 250 votes, or major fraction thereof, cast at the state election in 1883 for Hon. A. Bierman, Democratic candidate for governor.

AN ADDRESS TO FARMERS.

Put Forth by the Committee Appointed at the Farmers' Convention, recently held in St. Paul.

The committee appointed by the farmers' convention, held in St. Paul March 18, 19 and 20, have issued an address, which, after relating the evils of and oppressive burdens imposed by corporations and monopolies, says: "Kings of monopolies have secured favorable legislation through bribery of legislatures, a subsidized public press and unlawfully usurped powers, until the industries of agriculture, the trades and commerce are made to contribute their legitimate profits to corporate monopolies, beyond reason or justice. Railroads, endowed by charter, with extraordinary privileges constructed for public good and duly compensated, have been and are being used as a means of outrageous oppression by illegal assessment of unreasonable freight rates charged for the transportation of the products and commodities of agriculture and other legitimate industries of our country. Roads traversing the great cereal districts of Minnesota and Dakota are especially censurable for exposing exorbitant and oppressive freight rates. The officers of one of the said roads, in answer to specific requests made by a committee appointed by a convention of North Dakota, claim to have made liberal concessions in the interest of the people. Of the three specific concessions claimed to have been granted, two are without foundation in fact, viz.; The granting of the privilege to construct elevators of 15,000 bushels capacity; and secondly, claiming that the road had reduced freight rates during last year 10 per cent. less than the previous year. In the first place, the roads unlawfully usurped control over elevators by establishing the present system, and therefore had no power to do otherwise than abandon usurped control thereof. In the second place, concerning the claimed reduction of 10 per cent. on freights by a reclassification of freight rates, weights and local rates, an average increase was made as claimed, instead of a reduction. Of the past and present conduct of these railroads, we can only say of them that their exorbitant charges on products, lumber, fuel, machinery and merchandise have resulted in extraordinary and unreasonable profits, which amounts to this, that, for every dollar paid to these corporations, 40 to 52 cents goes into their treasury as profit. Through the usurped, unlawful control of elevator capacity by railroads, rich elevator companies have secured absolute control of the wheat by driving independent purchasers from the agricultural districts. These elevator companies as a part of the Minneapolis Millers' association, and through these usurped powers by railroads and the latter corporations, gigantic monopolies have been created with power to control the wheat market of the whole Northwest. These monopolies have exercised these usurped powers and other dark practices to an extent, which, for the year 1883, has resulted in corporate greed absorbing several millions of dollars on the wheat crop of Minnesota and Dakota, which should have gone to the producers as their legitimate profits. These are the greatest evils of which our producers complain, but there are others which are oppressive and unreasonable. In the markets, the farmer finds adulterations and imitations of butter which centralized capital has forced upon it, and he must enter into ruinous competition with these counterfeit products. Actual settlers in the State of Minnesota and in Dakota, are being taxed for the improvement of untaxed railroad lands lavishly granted by state and national governments. Railroad corporations have been and are now conspiring to restrict or obsorb river and lake navigation petitioned for by the people of Minnesota and Dakota, for the independent transportation of their products to other than the centralized markets controlled by these and other monopolies. Lumber rings and monopolies have heretofore secured absolute control of the pine lands sold by the government, and are now conspiring to defeat a measure before the national congress intended to give the inhabitants of our prairies cheaper lumber for the construction of more comfortable habitations. In the thorough, systematic organization of farmers, trades and co-industries of the country, rests their only hope for securing equal and just legislation for the production of their several industries against the encroachments, tyranny and unlawful usurpation of monopolies which threaten them with serfdom and slavery. With the producers of our country thoroughly banded together, standing shoulder to shoulder in their demand for equitable laws and their faithful execution, the result must be a grand victory over tyranny and wrong. No man should receive the support or vote of any person engaged in agriculture, the trades or commerce, who will not first pledge his unqualified support and adherence to the principles of our platform. Neither should any person receive the support of these industries, for any office, who is not thoroughly and unqualifiedly identified with our interests. Any person who accepts and travels on the free pass of any railroad or transportation company while holding public office or position, places himself under obligations to such corporations in such manner as to render independent action for the public good impossible, and should not be trusted as our representatives. Farmers, we call upon you to organize, attend your party caucuses, send true men to your county and state conventions who will see to it that true men, uncorrupted and incorruptible, are nominated, and then see to it that they are elected.

The Steamship Wreck off Nova Scotia.

Captain Scronhonen of the steamer D. Steinman, wrecked at Sambro, N. S., gives the following particulars: The steamer had fine weather on the passage, with the exception of the last two days, which were very foggy, it being impossible to get any reckoning, and he thinks he must have over-run his time. At 10 p. m. the 3d inst., he saw a light ahead, which he first took for the Chebucto light, the fog making it appear about five miles off; but it could not have been more than one. He discovered, as he neared the light, that it was Sambro, and before he had time to reverse the engines, he was among the ledges northeast of the island. The steamer struck twice, and began filling fast. He then tried to run her ashore, but she sank in a few minutes. As soon as the ship struck the captain ordered the passengers all on deck, but they were all swept overborrd and drowned by the heavy seas which swept over her. Two passengers and five of the crew got into a boat, and managed to reach shore. The captain, who was at his post on the bridge when she went down threw off his boots and coat and took to the forward rigging, but she sank faster than he could climb, so he was obliged to let himself float, and after considerable trouble caught the top gallant yard, and clung there with one of the passengers, who also managed to keep himself afloat until 5 a. m. Friday, when a boat put off from the island and rescued them. The surviving passengers and seaman of the ill-fated steamer are: Henry Schoonhoven, Antwerp, captain; Eugene Nickola, Matford, Luxenburg; Locco Nicolla Vincengo Salano, Italy; John Mederman, Echenhofen; Ober Bayen, Otto Kranz, Wittchendorf, near Schwartzburg; Frank Florentine, Disseri, Antwerp; Fritz Nick, Stratsund, Prussia. The number of passengers drowned was 90, and the crew 33; saved, passengers 8, crew 6.

Important Supreme Court Decision.

A question of considerable interest to travelers returning from abroad—namely, what constitutes "wearing apparel in actual use," which by law is exempted from duty—has been decided by the supreme court of the United States. William Astor, plaintiff in error, a citizen of the United States, arrived home from a visit to Europe in the end of September with his family by vessel, and brought with him wearing apparel brought there for his and their use, to be worn here during the season then approaching; not excessive in quantity for persons of their means, habits and station in life, and their ordinary outfit for a winter. A part of the articles had not been worn and duties were exacted on all these articles. This court holds—

Under section 2505, revised statutes, exempting from duty "wearing apparel in actual use and other personal effects not merchandise," the proper rule to be applied was to exempt from duty such articles as fulfilled the following conditions:

First—Wearing apparel owned by a passenger, and in condition to be worn at once without further manufacture.

Second—Brought with him as a passenger, and intended for the use or wear of himself or his family who accompanied him as passengers, and not for sale or purchase, or imported for other persons or to be given away.

Third—Suitable for the season of the year which was immediately approaching at the time of his arrival.

Fourth—Not exceeding in quantity, quality, or value, what the passenger was in the habit of ordinarily providing for himself and his family at that time, and keeping on hand for his wants in view of their means, habits and station in life, even though such articles had not been actually worn.

The judgement of the circuit court is reversed, and the case remanded with instructions to award a new trial.

Clark's paper mills at Marseilles, Ill., were burned. Loss, $80,000; fully insured.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY

The senate passed a bill making it a felony for a person to falsely or fraudulently assume or pretend to be an officer or employe acting under the authority of the United States or any department thereof. The bill has passed the house.

The House has passed the agricultural appropriation bill. One item gives $25. One for seeds, etc.

Mr. Nelson of Minnesota, on Tuesday, moved a suspension of the rules in order to take up his bill to open to settlement the Red Lake Indian reservation and made his maiden speech in the house. Mr. Washburn favored the bill. He thought it was a step in the right direction. He had introduced a bill which went farther, but the committee had chosen to report Mr. Nelson's bill, and he thought it ought to pass. Mr. Blount of Ga., violently attacked the bill, and the motion requiring a two-thirds majority, was lost—yeas 97, nays 71. The bill, however, is not defeated, but will be in better shape when it is taken up in the house in the regular way.

The senate has passed a bill to divide up the reservations and give the lands to the Indians in severally, in 160 acre tracts, the residue to be sold by the government and the proceeds used for educational and other purposes. The bill also makes the Indians subject to the civil and criminal laws of the community in which they live, and makes them citizens except so far as the right of sufferage is concerned. The passage of this bill will break up tribal relations and give the Indians a chance to take care of themselves without being entirely dependent upon the government. The adults will have to work for a living as white people do, and the children will be given an education in the rudimentary branches and the industrial arts.

The senate has passed a bill requiring that governors of all the territories, except the Indian Territory, shall be residents of those territories for at least two years next proceding the date of their appointment. The bill was passed after a lively discussion.

The following executive business was transacted by the senate on Thursday. Nominations: Thomas Were Fox, consul of the United States at Plymouth, Eng.; William W. Rockhill, Maryland, second secretary of legation, China. Postmaster, John J. Burns, Sprague, Wash. Confirmations: Postmasters, E. S. Miner, Necedah, Wis.; James A. Foote, Anoka, Minn.; Warren Potter, Aitkin, Minn.; F. J. Bartels, Peshtigo, Wis.; Henry Keerl, Mason City, Iowa; Frank E. Barber, Jr. Rock Rapids, Iowa.

The following bill in relation to courts and judicial proceedings in the territories has passed the senate. The act provides: The supreme court of every territory shall consist of a chief justice and three associate justices, any three of whom shall constitute a quorum; and they shall hold their office for four years, and until their successors are appointed and qualified. They shall hold a term annually at the seat of government of the territory for which they are respectively appointed; provided, however, that no justice shall act as a member of the supreme court in any action or proceeding brought to such court by writ of error, bills of exceptions, or appeal from decision, judgement of decree rendered by him as judge of a district court. Every territory shall be divided into four judicial district, and a district court shall be held in each district of the territory by one of the justices of the supreme court at such time and place as may be prescribed by law; and each judge, after assignment, shall reside in the district to which he is assigned.

Senator Hill, from the committee on postoffices and post roads, reported favorably the original bill to establish a postal telegraph system. Mr. Hill remarked that the committee were unanimous as to the first clauses of the bill, which relate to doing the work by contracts with the existing companies. The contract system remains the most prominent feature of the bill, and is not widely different from the scheme of the postal telegraph company, except that it empowers the postmaster general to receive bids from any telegraph company for contracts. The provisions relating to the establishment of a government system, pure and simple, in the event that no satisfactory contract with established companies is secured are a combination of the features of the Hill and Edmunds bill.

The long contest over the appointment of McCoy to the Aberdeen, Dak., land office was finally settled by his confirmation by the senate on the 10th. Mr. McCoy, who is there, says he has had this fight on his hand for three years, and he is very glad it is over. He regards the result as a complete vindication.

At the opening of the senate, Wednesday, the 9th, the chaplain prayed to just one senator beside the presiding officer, and that was Mr. Harris of Tennessee. Possibly he may have felt more than his fellows the need of the ministrations of their spiritual adviser, but whether this be true or not, it is a fact that he was the only senator present. Half a dozen came in during the next five minutes, but it was some time before a quorum was present.

In the House, Wednesday a resolution was introduced instructing the committee on commerce to investigate alleged evils attending the transportation of cattle. After a long struggle the house voted, instead of considering the Oregon Central land grant bill, which was in the order of unfinished business, to go into committee on public building bills. The house considered the bills for the erection of buildings at Keokuk, Iowa, and Waco, Tex., and a bitter personal controversy was waged between Messrs. Mills of Texas and Buckner of Missouri, Democratic members. No final action was taken, and the house took a recess until this morning.

Bills have been reported to the senate as follows: By Mr. Vest, from the committee on commerce, favorably, a bill to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi at St. Louis. By Mr. Miller (Cal.), foreign relations, an original amendment to the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill, to take the place of the bill referred to that committee intended to provide for the appointment of a special commissioner to visit the principal South American countries for the purpose of collecting information looking to the extention of our trade in that direction. By Mr. Wilson, postoffices and post roads, an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill referred to that committee, intended to provide for the settlement of postmasters' salaries, under the act of March 3, 1883. Senate adjourned to Monday.

On Thursday the 10th, in the house the committee on laws relating to the election of president and vice president reported a substitute for the senate bill. A bill amending the statutes regarding the immediate transportation of dutiable goods was reported. The remainder of the day was devoted to bills for the erection of public buildings at various points, and numerous controversies arose, causing much confusion. The house adjourned, having sat all day in continuation of Wednesday's session.

Mr. Raymond presented to the house April 10th the petition of many citizens of Dakota urging the passage of his bill in relation to the homestead law.

A petition signed by about 1,200 members of the Andersonville Survivors' association, asking that the soldiers confined in rebel prisons during the late war be pensioned, was received in the house recently. The autographs were neatly bound in book form, and attracted a good deal of attention.

Representative Warner has reported from the committee on pension, bounty and back pay, the bill providing:

Every person specified in the pension laws who served for a period of six months or more, who has an honorable discharge and is not receiving a pension, or a greater pension than that provided by the bill, and who is now disabled by reason or wound, injury or disease, which there is reason to believe originated in the service, shall be entitled to receive a pension during the continuance of the disability at a rate proportionate to the degree thereof. Dependent parties shall only be required to show by competent evidence that they are without other present means of support than their own manual labor, or contributions of others not legally bound for their support.

The speaker of the house laid before the house a message from the president submitting a special estimate from the chief of ordnance for a permanent annual appropriation of $10,500,000 to provide necessary armament for seacoast fortifications. The president says: "In presenting this estimate I do not think it necessary to enumerate considerations which make it of the highest importance that there shall be no unnecessary delay in entering upon work which must be commensurate with the public interest to be effective, and which will take much time." The message was referred.

In the House, Mr. Ellis, from the committee on appropriations, reported back the senate bill authorizing the secretary of the navy to offer a reward of $25,000 for rescuing or ascertaining the fate of the Greely expedition. After a brief debate the bill passed.

In the house, Mr. Hopkins, as a privileged matter, called up the resolution declaring that the charges against Gen. H. V. Boynton are not sustained by the evidence, and that there is no ground for any action by the house. He stated that the committee reporting the resolution did not desire to debate it. Mr. Keifer, author of the charges, was present, but did not see fit to make a speech, and the resolution was adopted without opposition.

NEWS OF THE STATE.

Charles Carpenter of Minneapolis, stopping in Chicago, a night or two ago he was assaulted by a levee tough and pugilist, who robbed him of a valuable gold watch and chain and about $50. The robber was arrested and the watch will probably be recovered.

A Winonian has been victimized out of $500 by a sharper, who renewed an old down east acquaintanceship and induced the Winonian to endorse three drafts, aggregating the above amount, then skipped the town.

Spencer Knapp of Rochester, left for Europe on Monday, for the purpose of purchasing Holstein cattle and Norman horses for importation to this country. The stock which he imported last season has all been sold.

Rev. W. C. Rice has resinged his position as editor of the Rochester (Olmsted Co.,) Post, and will remove with his family to Zumbrota, where he is in charge of the Congregational church.

John West is the new chief of police in Minneapolis.

A citizen of Maiden Rock writes that Lee Hammond, supposed to have been foully dealt with, did not disappear from that place, as he was seen afterward at Lake City.

Senator C. D. Gilfillan left Liverpool April 6, and will be in New York on the 13th or 14th. He is expected in St. Paul April 18.

Mrs. Quinn, of Elgin had a needle taken from her knee the other day, and Monday, the 7th, her eighteen-months-old child had one removed from its back. She had carried hers twenty-five years.

A Red Lake Indian is in the six-days' walk in New York.

George C. Bugbee of Minneapolis died at the Arkansas Hot Springs.

Since the 1st of November the secretary of the state board of immigration has distributed 50,000 of the board's German pamphlets. The immigration from Bohemia and Germany this year promises to be unusually large.

Winona is excited by alleged election frauds, which was intensified by the arrest on criminal proceedings of F. W. Becker, L. Roth and George Dotterwich, the three judges, and Heinrich Steiglitz and August Gernhart, clerks of election in the fourth ward. The warrant for the arrest of the judges charges that they, after the opening of the polls and before the closing of the same, fraudulently put into the ballot box fraudulent ballots to the number of 350. The warrant for the arrest of the clerks charged that they were guilty of fraud, corruption and misbehavior as such clerks by making fraudulent tally or poll lists of the persons voting at the election in the Fourth ward. All of these parties were arrested and arraigned before Justice Story, and they asked for an adjournment of the examination for one week, which was granted. The judges were held to bail in $1,000 each, and the clerks in $500 each.

Gov. Hubbard and the state board of lunacy commissioners returned from their trip of inspection to the insane hospital at St. Peter. The governor said that the hospital was in excellent form, and proved a model institution in every way. There are now about 650 inmates. A ward not attached to the main building is in process of construction, and will be completed in two or three weeks. This will accommodate about 200 extra inmates. The governor said that the board had no suggestions to make, and were well satisfied with their inspection.

A. F. Nordin, state commissioner of statistics, has issued a circular to assessors, requesting them to collect their town statistics with great care, in order to show accurately the resources of each county. A failure so to do, it is set fourth, redounds to the great disadvantage of the neglected county.

A young girl named Mary Gross alias Mary Jackson, confesses that sh set herself on fire at St. Paul Sunda night, the 6th, while in a crazed stat Some months ago she met a railroa man named Joseph Petler, who pron ised, and she is sure, would have ma ried her. About three months ago h seduced her, and she is now with chil Petler was employed on the Manitol road, and at Fargo, six weeks ago, h was crushed to pieces by his train an died. Since then she became aware her condition, and, having no frien wished to die.

A prairie fire at Milford burned stable owned by J. C. Rudolph of Ne Ulm and about twenty tons of hay b longing to Mr. C. Spelbrink.

Articles incorporating the Minneapolis Fire and Marine Insurance compa were filled with the register of deeds the 7th. The date of commenceme named is May 1, 1884, and the period continuance thirty years. The capit stock is $300,000, and is all to be p up before the 15th of June, 1884.

Isadore Plumadore was discharg from arrest for burning the steam f ryboat Minnie V. at Duluth. His w was held with bail, the evidence be strong against her.

Two woodchoppers at Eagle La fought over a girl, and one had a fin bit off.

The Southern Minnesota Fair asso has decided to hold the next annual hibition at Rochester Sept. 1 to inclusive.

Judge Simons of St. Paul filed decree in the case of Elizabeth Brun vs. Theodore Brunner, granting a divo on the ground of cruelty and drunk ness. He also filed a decree in the of Lena Sloan vs. William R. Sl granting a divorce on the grounds cruel treatment and giving the plai the custody of the children.

Mr. Mathews, who is to have ch of the West End driving park, ha rived at Red Wing with a fine stri flyers, among which are Bay B Black Wing and Lina, all owned by S. Van Vliet of Lake City; Little R owned by J. B. Kirch, Winona; R Parvin, owned by James Martin of City. Some of these horses have a cord as low as 2:28½.

Anton Boxrude and Miss M Adams were married at the hous Judge Charles McClure, Red W Wednesday evening, by Rev. Wi McKinly, of the Methodist ch They were the recipients of a nu of valuable presents. The Hu guards, of which Mr. Boxrude is a ber, escorted the pair to the depot they took the train for the east.

Brother A. Dewey formerly of the Fisher Bulletin, makes the following comment on Polk County's delegation to the Farmers Convention at St. Paul. Bro. D. talks like an eastern tenderfoot—just as though he did not know that every man he names is farming extensively. He says:

"One of the comic features of the Farmer's convention at St. Paul was Polk, a County that contains 200,000 acres of cultivated land. It was represented by farmer Paul Sletten, of the United States land office at Crookston, farmer H. Steenerson, senator and lawyer Crookston, Bro. Cooke, who farms the JOURNAL newspaper, Capt. Jennings, who farms a hotel These distinguished political farmers seem to have had a little missionary work to do at the State meeting of farmers. It was an endorsement by the convention for a plan of getting possession of Red Lake Indian pine, that it might be placed where it would do the most good. This endorsement the innocent South county farmers cheerfully gave to the tillers of the soil from Polk. Having got the endorsement the Polk agriculturist tapped his brother Polk County delegates under their chins, folded their tents and silently returned to their farms."

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, U. S., }
Washington, D. C., April 14, 1884. }

Hon. P. C. Sletten, Crookston, Minn:

DEAR SIR: Yesterday being suspension day, I brought up the Red Lake bill and tried to pass it under the suspension of the rules. On such a motion but fifteen minutes for debate is given to each side. I got a good fair majority, but not a two-thirds vote, and so failed. The vote was 97 to 71. This, however, does not kill the bill, but leaves it in its place on the calendar, just as it was before the motion. Mr. Washburn acted fairly and voted for my bill. On the third Monday of this month the Chairman of our Indian Committee will move to get a day set for bills for our committee. If this prevails I shall have a good show. I am now satisfied that if I can only get the bill up for consideration I shall be able to pass it with a good fair majority. To-day several members who did not vote have told me the next time my bill is up they will vote for it, and on the whole I feel quite hopeful and much encouraged.

Yours truly,

KNUTE NELSON.

TO ASSESSORS.

Your attention is hereby respectfully called to the great importance attached to the careful collection of the statistics of our State.

In the first place, it gives the State her proper standing amongst other States of the Union, by showing her products, resources and wealth.

In the second place, it will tend to increase our population and wealth by encouraging immigration from abroad and thus bring to our State many who otherwise would not come here to locate.

To further this end, assessors, whose duty it is made by law, should with great care collect the statistics of their different towns, in order that the resources of each county can be accurately shown. Heretofore some counties have, through negligence of assessors, made a very poor showing as compared with other counties, although no poorer in soil nor in skill in husbandry, but only because of the carelessness of those to whom it was intrusted to collect the facts required. Such counties, as has been appreciably illustrated, have lost their share of the population and money which have come into the State and been transferred to other counties that have made a better showing. No county can afford this. It not only affects the office of the Commissioner of Statistics, but the Bureau of Immigration are often accused of partiality when the true reason is that the assessors have not used sufficient care in collecting the statistics, and for that reason only the Commissioner's Reports have been defective.

Each assessor should carefully read, "The Instructions to Assessors" and "The Laws Governing the Collection of Statistics," which will be found upon the back of the assessor's statement blank.

I sincerely hope that the Commissioner's Report on Statistics for the year 1884 will, by the assistance of the officers whose duty it is made by law to assist him, by furnishing the required information, be more accurate and show our industries more fully than has ever been done before.

Yours Respectfully,

A. F. NORDIN,
Commissioner of Statistics.

Notice to Contractors.

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to Wednesday noon, April 30th 1884 for the ditching and grading of all the roads in the Town of Tabor, being town 153 range 48, in all seventy-two miles of road; bids to be made at price per yard of grade; the whole to be completed to the satisfaction of the town board in two years from the date of agreement.

SPECIFICATIONS.

Road-bed to be 18 feet wide.
Beermes six feet wide each.
Ditches, eight feet wide on top.
Depth of grade, two feet.
Width of grade twelve feet on top.
Grade to be made level.

Payment for the work to be made in town bonds running from five to six years drawing ten per cent interest. Bonds to be issued for one-half the work as soon as one-half the work is completed and the balance as soon as the whole is satisfactorily finished. Security will be required for the faithful fulfillment of the work in a sum equal to the amount of contract.

The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids. Address all bids, plainly marked "Tenders for grading" Frank Cernousek, town clerk Angus, Polk Co., Minn.

SAMUEL HUGGARD, Chairman of Board
[illegible] MIKKELSEN,
[illegible] KOTER.

Lost.

On or about March 20th, somewhere between Kittson and Beltrami, an account book containing one note made by Hans Olat in favor of Nels Long or bearer, for the sum of fifty dollars, due on or about August 31st, 1884, with interest at 10 per cent. All persons are hereby notified not to negotiate for said note as payment has been stopped.

[51-1] NELS LONG.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries and purpose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining Trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence one block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most respectfully,

[33-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

For Sale.

Four new milch cows two years old, three fourth Durham, for sale on reasonable terms, by Chris. Hanson.

[50-51]

For Sale On Time.

One Buckeye Seeder. One Buchanan wagon complete, both in good condition.

JOHN KNUPPE,
R. R. Land Office.

Subscribe for the Minneapolis Farmers' Tribune and you will get, not only the best news and agricultural paper published in the interest of the Northwestern Farmer, but a package of choice flower and garden seeds worth at any store $1. Send to Tribune Company, Minneapolis, for sample copy.

For Sale.

Horses, oats, cordwood, fence posts and potatoes for sale at the farm of Jacob Steinbaugh on the Sand Hill River 7 miles east of Beltrami station. Parties wishing to purchase any of the aforementioned property will do well to call,

[46-tf]

For Sale.

A fine farm of 459 acres, 270 acres under cultivation. Good house, barn and well, teams, and machinery to run it. On account of ill health will be sold at a big sacrifice for cash. For further particulars address JOURNAL office.

Young people's meeting held in the Baptist Chappel every Sunday evening from quarter after six to quarter after seven. Meeting dismissed in time to get to other church services. All the young people cordially invited.

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN McLEAN, Atty at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Seed Wheat.

I have 1500 bushels of pure Scotch Fife wheat for sale. Call on or address,

FRANK BIVINS,
[45-tf] Crookston, Minn.

So far, Crookston has fortunately escaped the ravages of that dreaded monster the Fire Fiend, but we know not at what hour he may appear in our midst. The only way to meet this terrible foe is by good, reliable Insurance. Look over our Million List of staunch, fire-tested companies and make your selection before you have cause to regret a loss.

Hartford	$3,701,379
German American, N. Y	3,094,030
German, Freeport, Ill.	1,028,467
Niagara,	1,357,457
Liverpool London, Globe	4,777,529
Fireman's Fund, California,	1,162,617
National, of Hartford.	1,764,882
N. Y. Alliance,	1,627,010
Phoenix, of Hartford	2,624,683
Union, California,	1,20,936
British America,	1,343,931
North British	1,938,650

We also represent the Travelers Life and Accident Insurance Co., of Hartford.

I. M. UNDERHILL
Insurance Agency

To Rent.

Ready for grain in the spring 100 acres on Section 12 Township 149 Range 46 and 280 acres on Section 11 Township 148 Range 45. Both tracts have a good house and barn. Apply Peter Cornelius, Crookston, Minn.

[38-tf]

The Imperial Prolific Bean.

Promises to revolutionize this branch of the vegetable kingdom. The Minneapolis Tribune Company gives a package of those seeds, together with a choice selection of other varieties ($1. worth in all), for one new yearly subscription to the Farmers' Tribune. Send for sample copy.

Sweep, Ho!

If you want your chimney cleaned in a scientific manner call on August Koeppe. He knows how it is done.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from three to five years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Main street, opposite U. S. Land Office.

[illegible] H. STEENERSON.

To Rent.

For three years; a fine farm with plenty of wood and water handy; good house and stables. No money required as rent can be paid in improvements on the farm. A rare opportunity for some industrious men. Address JOURNAL office.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax, is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing,

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn

MARRIED.

HOOGN—KNUDSON.—In this city Tuesday April 15th, 1884, by G. W. Lewis, [illegible] Peder J. Hoogn to Miss Mari Knudson.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William J. Hurst and Elizabeth Hurst, his wife, mortgagors, to John W. Klepper, mortgagee, bearing date the 25th day of September A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of September A. D. 1882, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 293, and whereas the said mortgage, and the debt thereby secured was by the said John W. Klepper duly assigned to J. D. Marshall by his deed of assignment in writing, dated March 29th 1884, which assignment was duly recorded in said registry aforesaid on the 3d day of April 1884, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "R" of mortgages on page 65, and whereas, there is claimed to be due and there is due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of two hundred and eleven and 10-100 dollars, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lot No. nine (9,) of Block No. six (6,) in the Townsite of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof and filed in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, in the State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 31st day of May A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock a. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 15th, A. D. 1884.

J. D. MARSHALL,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

SAMUEL PORTER,
Attorney for Assignee, Atwater, Minn.
[51-5]

[First publication April 17th, 1884.]

Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 36-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Samuel C. Cooke and Ida M. K. Cooke his wife, to the New England Mortgage Security Company, bearing date the sixteenth day of January A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 19th, day of January A. D. 1882, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book "G" of mortgages, on pages 55, 56 and 57, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one note for six hundred dollars, bearing even date with said mortgage, and due January 16th 1887, with interest thereon from date until paid at the rate of seven per cent per annum, payable annually on the first day of January in each year according to the terms of said promissory note of the said Samuel C. Cooke and Ida M. K. Cooke, with coupons attached, it being further stipulated in said note, that if the makers thereof should fail to pay any of said interest when due, such interest should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from the time it becomes due, and said mortgage should stand security therefor. Default having been made in the payment of the interest due January 1st 1884, and the interest now due on said interest, the said mortgagee therefore elected, that all of said sums described in said note, should be immediately due and payable according to the provisions of said note, and of the mortgage securing the same, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter, of Section twelve (12,) Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 3d day of June A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 16th A. D. 1884.

THE NEW ENGLAND MORTGAGE SECURITY COMPANY, Mortgagee.
J. P. DASH & FISK & PHELPS,
Attorneys for Mortgagee. [51-5]

First publication April 17th, 1884.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-six and 15-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Theophile Malette and Elizabeth L. Malette his wife, to the New England Mortgage Security Company, bearing date the 22d day of December A. D. 1881, and duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 23d day of December A. D. 1881, at 3:30 o'clock p. m., in book "E" of mortgages, on pages 623, 624, 625 and 626, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one note for five hundred and one dollars ($501.) bearing even date with said mortgage and due the 22d of December 1886, with interest thereon from date until paid, at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable annually on the first day of January in each year, according to the terms of said promissory note of the said Theophile Malette and Elizabeth L. Malette, with coupons attached, it being further stipulated in said note that if the maker thereof should fail to pay any of said interest when due, such interest should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent. from the time it becomes due, and said mortgage should stand security therefor. Default having been made in the payment of the interest due January, 1st 1884, and the interest now due on said interest, the said mortgagee therefore elected, that all of said sums described in said note, should be immediately due and payable according to the provisions of said note, and of the mortgage securing the same, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter of the northwest quarter and the north half of the northeast quarter, of Section twenty (20,) and the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter, of Section twenty-one (21,) all in Township one hundred and fifty (150,) Range forty-two (42) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 3d day of June A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 15th A. D. 1884.

THE NEW ENGLAND MORTGAGE SECURITY COMPANY,
Mortgagee.
J. P. DASH & FISK & PHELPS,
Attorneys for Mortgagee. [51-5]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
County of Polk. } ss. In Probate Court

In the matter of the estate of Peter Anderson, deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of Martha Anderson, of Polk County, Minnesota, representing, among other things, that Peter Anderson late of Polk County, Minnesota, on the fourth day of April A. D. 1884, at the Township of Fisher, in said county, died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Edwin E Lommen, granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before the Judge of this Court, on Saturday the tenth day of May A. D. 1884, at 3 o'clock p. m., at the Probate Court office, in the City of Crookston, in said County.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at the City of Crookston, in said County.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., the 15th day of April A. D. 1884.

By the Court,
ROBERT J. MONTAGUE,
[51-3] Judge of Probate.

LEO & STEENERSON,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 2, U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON MINN

THE RED STAR
GROCERY
NOW OPEN

In the Building adjoining the Canada House,

Broadway, Cor. Fletcher Ave.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A FRESH STOCK OF GENERAL GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

I will make a specialty of Canned Goods.

I will also introduce a Japan Tea cheaper than ever before offered in Crookston.

Your patronage is kindly solicited and a visit to the Red Star Grocery will convince any one of the LOW PRICES.

Goods will be delivered throughout the city free of charge.

Terms Strictly Cash.

Remember the place, Sign of the Red Star Grocery, Broadway, cor. Fletcher Avenue, Crookston, Minn.

E. LePAGE.

Bigham & Olafson

Successors to Juve & Bergland.
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
Main Street, Crookston,

Have on hand, and are constantly receiving, full lines of

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS

In fact everything usually found in First-Class General Store,

Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at
LOW PRICES
A GIVE US CALL

GRAND
GIFT ENTERPRISE
AT THE STORE OF
HACK & GALLASCH

Secure one or more Tickets and you will be happy.

ALL

DRY GOODS, WINTER GOODS,
BOOTS, SHOES, CAPS, GLOVES,
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,

AT BOTTOM PRICES.

Call in and we will try to please you and tell you all about the

GIFT ENTERPRISE.
CROOKSTON

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
AND Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the

Park Region of Minnesota,

To all Principal Points in

RED RIVER VALLEY,
NORTHERN MINNESOTA,
NORTHERN DAKOTA

AND TO

DEVIL'S LAKE AND TURTLE MOUNTAIN DISTRICTS,

CONTAINING OVER
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land Department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that Department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country, giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE to any address, by

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner.

C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. Ry, St. Paul, Minn.

DR. P. THOEN.
Physician and Surgeon.
OFFICE
On Sampson's Addition and in Mr. Christiansen' Drug Store.

THE KIMBALL ORGANS

Have attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior. They contain every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce. These excellent

ORGANS

are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty of finish, perfect construction, making them the

MOST ATTRACTIVE,
ORNAMENTAL AND DESIRABLE
ORGANS
For Homes, Schools, Churches,
Lodges, Societies, Etc.

ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,

Unequalled Facilities, Skilled Workmen, Best Material, and aim to Excel combined, make this THE POPULAR ORGAN. Every Organ Warranted for Five Years.

INSTRUCTION BOOKS AND PIANO STOOLS.

Catalogue and Price Lists, on application, FREE. Address

C. J. KOPS, Crookston, Minn.

GENERAL AGENT W. W. KIMBALL CO.

This space is reserved for I. M. Underhill, General Insurance and Real Estate Agent.

FARMERS!

When you want the best Machine Oil go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Salt by the barrel, go to D. BUCHANAN'S

If you want Flour and Bran, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Pork, Lard or Salt Fish go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

If you want Teas, Coffees, Syrups, or anything in the Grocery line, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.

Or if you want to Sell your Butter and Eggs, go to

D. BUCHANAN'S

on Broadway, between 2d and Robert Streets.

STEWART & LAWRENCE,
Dealers in
Pine Lumber.--Pine Lumber.
Windows, Doors, Mouldings, Building Paper, &c.
YARD ON OAK STREET, NORTH OF BROWN'S LIVERY STABLE.

THE
RED LAKE FALLS
FLOURING
MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do Custom Work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & OLBENTSON,
PROPRIETORS,
RED LAKE FALLS, POLK CO., MINN.
—JOHN H. IVES.— —D. E. MARTDEAD.—

LIVERY FEED
AND
SALE STABLES
Two doors north of U. S. Land Office
Main St., Crookston, Minn.
T. H. BIOIN, Proprietor

Work horses, buggy horses, saddle horses, mules and oxen bought and sold, and traded

For a stylish rig, by day or night, call at Bioin's Livery Stable.

P. A. BUFOUR,
ATTORNEY & COUNSELOR AT LAW
MAIN STREET,
CROOKSTON - - MINN

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL
WATCHMAKERS
AND DEALERS IN WATCHES,
CLOCKS
AND JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET,
Crookston, - - Minn.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY, President.
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN, Vice President
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO, Second Vice President
Bellevue, Iowa.
W. M. ROSS, Cashier
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $33,000.
SURPLUS, $16,533.32.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

W. M. ROSS, Cashier

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL,	$100,000
SURPLUS,	1,400

MONEY TO LOAN on Long or Short Time on Approved Security.

INTEREST ON TIME DEPOSITS. Faithful Attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE President.
E. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier

MERCHANTS HOTEL
J. E. MTTON, Prop.,
WAHPETON, - - - D. T.
[47-m6]

CROOKSTON TONSORIAL PARLORS
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

Shaving, Hair Dressing, and all work in my line promptly attended to in the latest style of the art. Give me a trial. PROF. THOMPSON.

NURSERIES!

Tree Claim Stock.

I DESIRE to inform my customers and others that I shall make a GREAT REDUCTION from former prices on Forest Trees and Seeds

FOR TREE CLAIMS

I have good thrifty two-year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty, Transcendent and Hislop Crab apple trees.

The firm of Haseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

Old Nursery Grounds

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

All Communications Promptly Answered.

F. T. HASELTINE,

Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minnesota.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL!
Fred Anderson Proprietor,
MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN

The Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars on hand.

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 17.

R. R. TIME TABLE.

CROOKSTON.

—GOING NORTH.—

	ARRIVE.	DEPART.
No. 1 Passenger,	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
" 13 Freight,	1:20 a. m.	2:30 a. m.
" 15 "	4:00 p. m.

—GOING SOUTH.—

	ARRIVE.	DEPART.
No. 2 Passenger,	4:00 a. m.	4:10 a. m.
" 14 Freight,		5:25 a. m.
" 18 "	1:15 p. m.
" 20 "	6:20 a. m.
" 24 "	6:15 p. m.
" "		4:30 p. m.

Grand Forks and Devils Lake.

No. 45 Mixed	4:45 p. m.	9:15 a. m.

St. Hilaire Branch.

Mixed trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10 a. m.; returning at 3 p. m.

'ROUND HOME.

For a nobby hat go to H. & G.

For bread, buns and cakes of all kinds, call at the store of Hack & Gallasch.

McKinnon Bros. are now agents for the J. I. Case threshing machine in this vicinity.

John Nicholson is going to herd cattle this summer; his pen and stable is on Seventh Street, Crookston. [51-52*]

The Vienna bakery has been enlarged and bread, cakes etc., are more plentiful than ever, at Hack & Gallasch's general store.

H. & G. have just received a complete line of boots and shoes and slippers; be sure and look at their stock before buying elsewhere; prices very low.

A brakeman on the train coming from Grand Forks, got his hand badly mashed coupling cars at Fisher. He was brought to this city, and his hand dressed.

The ball given on Easter Monday evening, at Ericsson's hall, by the original C. C. B. was one of the social events of the season. There was about forty couple in attendance and everybody had a good time. It was a financial success, and the band are well satisfied. Their music on the street in the afternoon was excellent and was appreciated by all who heard it.

Last Tuesday morning we noticed the drayman unloading a number of boxes in front of Morris Bros. Palace jewelry store; we also noticed, in passing, that the aforesaid boxes were directed to Tom Morris & Son, we immediately hastened to find Tom, to find out if there was really a change in the firm, and upon asking him he instantly relieved our mind by saying that it was merely a mistake made by the man who directed the boxes. The boxes were opened and we found that Morris Bros. had just received the finest lot of clocks of all kinds, and clock brackets ever brought to this city.

Wanted to Exchange.

Fifteen acres in city lots, near Chicago, worth $1,000 per acre, for good farming lands in the Red River Valley, or property in Crookston or Grand Forks. The most beautiful place in the west, located on the lake shore; splendid improvements; the best society, schools and churches; has a Ladies Seminary and a University; twenty trains to Chicago every day; low fares. This property is bound to increase in price as Chicago grows. Will sell in parcels of one acre each or more. Inquire of the Editor of this paper. [48 1]

Notice of Annual Election of the Crookston Agricultural Association.

To the Stock holders of the Crookston Agricultural Association:

There will be held an Annual meeting of the stock holders of the Crookston Agricultural Association, on Tuesday the 6th day of May 1884, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, at the City Hall, in Crookston, Minnesota for the purpose of electing a board of five directors and President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Dated Crookston, Apr. 8, 1884.

S. L. DOBSON,
President.

JOHN McLEAN,
Secretary. [50-1]

DITCHING

AND ROAD GRADING

MADE EASY.

The Pennock Ditcher and Grader can be bought for one-fifth the cost of the New Era Grader, and it will do the work better than any machine heretofore brought into the market. Will sell the machine on its merits. No work, no pay. Apply to

MOSER & MOECKEL,
[46-8m] Gen'l Northwestern Agents.

The Imperial Tree Bean is attracting very much attention among agriculturists. It is a remarkable producer, and in quality excels the far-famed white navy. The Minneapolis Farmer's Tribune, among the many other excellent things it is doing to promote good husbandry in the Northwest, is giving away to its readers packages of the seed of the Tree Bean. Our readers will be interested in seeing the Tribune's liberal offer. Send for sample copy.

CITY TREASURER'S REPORT.

CROOKSTON, April 8, 1884.

To the Hon. Mayor and Council of the City of Crookston, Minn.:

GENTLEMEN:

I herewith submit to you a statement showing the receipts and disbursements of the City Treasury during the fiscal year ending April 1, 1884.

By looking my report over carefully, you will notice that there is a credit to all the funds except the general fund. All the current expenses and interest on bonds issued by the city are paid out of said fund, and the orders issued exceed the receipts, consequently orders now to be issued cannot be paid until the fund is replenished.

We have now drawn out of other funds $1508.86 to pay gen'l fund orders. There is now in the Treasury $2055 68 on which the city saves 10 per cent interest, as the interest on city orders ceases when they are advertised for payment. All orders are advertised as soon as there is money in the Treasury to pay them, and the amount in the Treasury is held against orders advertised March and July, 1883, and March 11, 1884.

Respectfully,

A. G. GALLASCH,
City Treasurer.

	Received.	Paid out.	Bal.
General Fund.	$37482 01	$39340 87
Special street,	8 00	17 60	$ 7 58
Oak Street,	2476 91	1092 75	1083 08
Houston Avenue,	822 75	126 75	945 49
Robert Street,	236 77	308 71	160 89
Second Street,	874 03	881 91	88 08
Fifth Street,	12 74		12 74
Sixth Street,	128 19		128 19
First Street,	45 75		45 75
Pine Street,	2 18		2 18
Sheridan Street,	12 00		12 00
Main Street,	3047 21	2631 08	1998 54
Fourth Street,	83 13	126 05	90 72
Third Street,	391 45		473 13
Loring Street,		25 68	42 24
Cemetery Street,			381 45
Seventh Street,	120 88		144 13
Alley, Blk 17,	19 67		145 53
Alley, Blk 16,	113 79		118 79
Ash Street, 2d to 3d	390 21		890 21
Ash Street, 2d to Houston Ave.,	599 33		509 88
Ash St., 4th to 8th		55 56
Alley, Blk 6	63 08		86 05
Specific and	2089 86	1815 14	802 86
Water Works	42 50		42 50
Fletcher Avenue,	238 04	137 39	238 90

Amt recd from apr 1883 to 1884,	$39291 01
On hand Apr '83,	4073 26
	$43364 27
Total Amt paid out,		$37508 59
Total to the credit of the different funds,		$7519 60

RECEIPTS FROM VARIOUS SOURCES,

Liquor Licenses	$4838 56
Pool and Billiard Tables	333 50
Auctioneers Licenses,	200 00
Dog Licenses	78 08
Dray Licenses	65 00
Shows and Peddlers	140 00
Hall Rent	7 00
Recd from the Co. Treas., etc.	17814 50
do proceeds city bonds	16087 43
Total Amt Received	$39291 01
Amt pd out as per statement		$37508 59
Bal on hand Apr 1, 1884,		5855 68
Total to the credit of the different funds,	$7519 60
Deduct amt drawn out for Gen'l Fund,		1508 86
Deduct amt drawn out for Ash Street, 4th to 8th,		55 56
Deposited in 1st Nat. Bank,		3872 24
Deposited in Merchants' Nat. Bank,		2011 89
Cash on hand,		171 55
	$7519 60	$7519 60

CITY RECORDER'S REPORT.

To the Honorable the Mayor and City Council of the City of Crookston, Minnesota:

Gentlemen:

I respectfully submit the following financial Statement of the City of Crookston, on the 1st day of April, 1884:

Registered orders unpaid,	$10913 16
Bonded indebtedness,	50000 00
Total debt on City,	$60913 16

The City Bonds are classified as Bridge Bonds, Water Works Bonds and Funding Bonds.

The Bridge Bonds were issued Nov. 7th, 1879, mature Nov. 7th, 1889, draw 10 per cent. interest, payable annually, and amount to $1,000.

The Water Work Bonds were issued June 1st, 1882, mature June 1st, 1912, bear 7 per cent, annual interest and amount to $33,000.

The Funding bonds were issued May 1st, 1883, mature May 1st, 1903, draw 7 per cent interest, and amount to $16,000.

There have been issued during the year orders on the General Fund amounting to $17,700.42, classified as follows:

Justice fees	$159 75
Elections	168 00
Assessor	138 00
City Attorney	700 00
Street Commissioner's wages	586 00
Marshall's wages	1170 75
City Engineer's wages	476 00
City Recorder's salary	425 05
Rodmen for City Engineer	23 50
Men on streets, wages	1201 64
Pump Engineers	1127 75
Fire Department	1389 55
Engine House and Lockup	833 74
Pump House and Water Mains	442 26
Fuel	833 08
Printing	265 48
Physician's salaries	56 45
Board of prisoners and paupers	54 53
Blacksmithing	187 61
Team work on streets	663 24
Lumber	1419 03
Merchandise	490 93
N W Band	75 00
Interest on bonds	2481 32
Grading, by gen'l fund	1548 05
Miscellaneous expenses	617 21
	$17700 43

Referring to the above table I would say that the item of city attorney includes two years salary. That of Fire Department includes payment for a hose cart, 500 feet of hose, besides smaller purchases, and the wages of Chief Engineer.

That of engine house and lock-up is for painting, repairs and purchases, as is also that of pump house and water mains.

Printing includes advertising and printing bonds, with the official printing.

Grading by gen'l fund is for cemetery road, road near Lee & Herrick's mill, work at Lake View and 5th street.

Miscellaneous expenses is for rent of lot for Round House, land taken for street purposes, Rochester sufferers and various small items not properly coming under any of the other heads.

Street orders have been issued during the year as follows:

Hunter St, Houston Ave to Spendley	$583 50
do Spendley to Cowing	882 20
Cowing St, Houston Ave to Cromb	541 00
do, Cromb to Houston	231 01
Pine and D Sts, 6th to Sheridan	181 80
Sheridan, B and Grant sts, D to A	174 96
Fourth St, Oak to Elm	597 04
Ash Street, south of Houston Ave	158 40
Elm St, 4th to Central Av	872 10
Ash St. 4th to 8th	425 00
Front and C, 7th to Sheridan	178 00
Fifth st, Oak to Elm	286 00
Total street orders	$4601 91
Sidewalk orders issued	4956 51
Crossings	867 30

The above street orders have been issued for grading alone during 1883, as were the crossing orders for crossings built during the same time.

These orders are payable out of the street fund of each street, and are therefore purely local. The sidewalk orders were issued for sidewalks built during 1883. They are paid by a specific tax levied on each lot in front of which the walk is laid.

The City Charter provides that the Recorder "shall annually report to the Council an estimate of the expenses of the city government for the current year and the revenue necessary to be raised therefor."

As such estimate I would report the sum of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000) for the year upon which we have just entered. The books of the City Treasurer show the receipts on account of the General Fund to be $11,804 66, from licenses, fines and taxes. The receipts will no doubt exceed this sum for the current year. Assuming them to be $12,000 (which will be a safe figure) will leave a deficiency of $3,000.00 to be provided for, either by increased taxation or an increase of licenses. I would recommend that a sinking fund be created by ordinance to provide for the payment of the principal of our city bonds when it becomes due, and that an annual tax levy be made to pay the interest on said bonds.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., this 8th day of April, 1884.

W. D. HURLBUT,
City Recorder.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON,
Graduate [illegible]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Christopher C. Dillon and Ella Dillon, his wife, mortgagors, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the state of Minnesota, on the twenty-seventh day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "1" of mortgages, on pages 539 and 540, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $51 25-100, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-two (22) in Township one hundred and forty-eight (148) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.

E. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th 1884. [49 3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Zebedee Lucia, mortgagor, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 10th day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the seventeenth day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "1" of mortgages, on pages 499 to 501 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $60.73, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the east half (e½) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of section two (2) in Township one hundred and fifty-three (153) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.

E. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th, 1884. [49 3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Moses Blair, mortgagor to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 3d day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the fourth day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "1" of mortgages, on pages 487 and 488 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $38 70-100, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and lots one (1) two (2) of Section seven (7) in Township one hundred and fifty one (151) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and fifty-two 97 (152 97) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.

E. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Francis Feeney, mortgagor, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 5th day of July A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the sixth day of July A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 518, 519, 520, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $18 90 and there is yet to become due $42, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section (4) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.

E. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th 1884. [49 3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Joseph Valle and Zoe Valle, his wife, mortgagors, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the seventh day of July, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 560 to 562 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $40.90, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 17th day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-three (23) in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY,
Mortgagee.

E. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th, 1884. [49-3]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-five and 85-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Clarence C. Dodge (an unmarried man), to the American Freehold Land Mortgage Company, of London, (Limited,) bearing date the 2nd day of September A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of October A. D. 1882, at 1:15 o'clock p. m., in book "1" of mortgages, on pages 266, 267, 268 and 269, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one note of five hundred and one dollars, bearing even date with said mortgage, and due September 23d 1887, with interest thereon from date, until paid, at the rate of seven per cent per annum, payable annually on the first day of January in each year according to the terms of said promissory note of the said Clarence C. Dodge, with coupons attached, it being further stipulated in said note that if the maker thereof should fail to pay any of said interest when due, such interest should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum from the time it become due, and said mortgage should stand security therefor. Default having been made in the payment of the interest due January 1st 1884; and the interest now due on said interest the said mortgagee thereupon elected that all of said sums described in said note should be immediately due and payable according to the provisions of said note and of the mortgage securing the same and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section thirty-two (32) Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the nineteenth day of May A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 2d A. D 1884.

THE AMERICAN FREEHOLD LAND MORTGAGE COMPANY OF LONDON (LIMITED.)
Mortgagee.

J. P. DASH, FISK & PHELPS,
Attorneys for Mortgagee. [50-3]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 65-100 which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henry L. Gaylord and Laura M. Gaylord, his wife, to the American Freehold Land Mortgage Co., (limited) bearing date the 1st day of October A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of October A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "1" of mortgages, on pages 269, 270, 271 and 272, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one note of six hundred dollars bearing even date with said mortgage and due October 2d 1887 with interest thereon from date, until paid at the rate of seven per cent. per annum payable annually on the first day of January in each year according to the terms of said promissory note of the said Henry L. Gaylord and Laura M. Gaylord, with coupons attached. It being further stipulated in said note that if the maker thereof should fail to pay any of said interest when due, such interest should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum from the time it became due and said mortgage should stand security therefor. Default having been made in the payment of the interest due January 1st 1884, and the interest now due on said interest the said mortgagee thereupon elected that all of said sums described in said note should be immediately due and payable according to the provisions of said note and of the mortgage securing the same, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-four (34) Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the nineteenth day of May A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 2d A. D. 1884.

THE AMERICAN FREEHOLD LAND MORTGAGE COMPANY OF LONDON (LIMITED,)
Mortgagee.

J. P. DASH, FISK & PHELPS,
Attorneys for Mortgagee. [50-1]

Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of five hundred and seventy-six and 23-100 dollars ($576.23) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John Ralston and Hannah Ralston, his wife, to Eugene Besse, bearing date the 5th day of March, A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of March, A. D. 1882, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 251, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All of the northeast quarter (¼) of section twenty-four (24) Township one hundred and forty-nine (149) Range forty-seven (47) containing one hundred and sixty acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston in said County and State, on the 9th day of May, A. D. 1884 at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and forty dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 18th, A. D 1884.

EUGENE BESSE, Mortgagee.
JOHN McLEAN, Attorney for Mortgagee. [47-11]

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Ludvig Olson mortgagor, to Svenung Hageson mortgagee, dated the third day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty one and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota on the 12th day of December A. D. 1881, at 9:20 o'clock a. m., in book "E" of mortgages, on pages 571, 572, 573 on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of eighteen hundred and seventy-six and 18-100 dollars ($1876 18-100,) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the west front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the seventeenth day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and the taxes if any on the premises in said mortgage described and forty ($40.00) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, pieces or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The Southwest quarter (sw¼) Section eighteen (18) in Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) of Range forty-eight (48,) containing one hundred and forty-five and 8-100 (145, 8-100) acres according to the government survey thereof. The above mortgage was given to secure the payment of the promissory notes therein described, which were executed and delivered by said mortgagor to said mortgagee as part payment of the purchase price of said above described premises.

SVENUNG HAGESON,
Mortgagee.

LEW S STEENERSON,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 29th, 1884. [49 3]

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial teeth from one to [illegible]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and fourteen and eighty-three one hundredths dollars ($114.83-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Simon Paul and Virginia Paul his wife, both of Polk County, Minnesota, to John Moser and Ernst Moeckel, bearing date the 21st day of March A. D. 1883, and with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 22d day of March A. D. 1883 at 9 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 610 to secure the payment of a certain promissory note for the sum of one hundred and three and seventy one hundredths dollars, payable November 1st A. D. 1883, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, and duly executed and delivered by said Simon Paul, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, or the interest thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the southeast quarter, and the northwest quarter, of the south-east quarter, and the south-east quarter of the south-west quarter, of Section twenty nine (29) Township one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range forty-three (43) west, all situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 31st day of May A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes if any, on said premises and fifty dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 11th, A. D. 1884.

JOHN MOSER & ERNST MOECKEL,
Mortgagees.
[51-5]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Apr. 10th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Albin C. Sneland against Martin Erdmann for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 7,074, dated April 20th, 1882, upon the sw¼ S. 8, T. 153, R. 46, in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 9th day of June 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.
[51 4] P. C. SLATTEN, Receiver.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston Minn., Apr. 11th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on June 12th, 1884, viz: JAMES MILLER, H'd No. 2165, for the sw¼ S. 22, T. 143, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz: J. O. Serrenus, Thos. R. Dennison, G. L. Gray and Fritz Reyer all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[51-4] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., April 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 15th, 1884, viz: JOHN BAUMANN, H'd No. 6535, for the sw¼ S. 4, T. 147, 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: C. K. Gullickson, K. Gullickson, T. Steenerson and B. Hafterson all of Boss, Polk Co., Minn.

[43-9] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., April 2d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 18th, 1884, viz: JEREMIAH GRIFFIN, H'd No. 2877, for the ne¼ S. 26, T. 151, R. 46 w. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Sullivan, Jerry Donohue, Timothy Donohue and Thomas Casey, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[49 2] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 25th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, on May 10th, 1884, viz: OLE H. BJOIN, Pre. D. S., No. 8,145, for the n½ sw¼ sw¼ sw¼ S. 20, and nw¼ nw¼ S. 29, T. 147, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Hans C. Sampson, Thor S. Hastvedt, Ed Labree and George Labree, all of Fosten, Polk Co., Minn.

[48-11] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Register and Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 6th, 1884, viz: STANISLAS VANDRON, Hd. 2,015, for the sw¼ Sec. 19, T. 150, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Oscar Charpenter, of Lake Pleasant, Polk County, Minn., Pierre Lecuyer, Pierre Barrette, of Gentilly, Polk County, Minn., George Beauvais of Carman, Polk County, Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn. March 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN PETTERSON, Pre. D. S. No. 8,131, for the lots 4, 5 and 6, and se¼ sw¼ Sec. 19, and lot 1, Sec. 30, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Burg, John A Taftland, W. Tergerson, Ole Pincape, all of King P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 8th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on April 24th 1884, viz: ELISHA B. SCRIBNER, H'd No. 3476, for the sw¼ S. 24, T. 149, 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Herbert Mason, V. D. Cairuth, George Holk and John E. Chilback, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[46-51] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 6th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on April 19th, 1884, viz: FRANCOIS TRUDEAW, Pre. D. S., 6016; for the ne¼ S. 22, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Timothe Desgroselier, Francois Labonte, Olivier Demers and Cheri Montcalew, all of Gentilly, Polk Co., Minn.

[46-51] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 6th, 1884, viz: PIERRE LECUYER, Hd. No. 2,644, for the n½ ne¼ sw¼ ne¼ and ne¼ nw¼ S. 26, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Stanislas Vandrin, Oscar Charpentier, of Lake Pleasant, Polk County, Minn., Timothe Desgroseiller, of Gentilly, Polk County, Minn., George Beauvais, of Carman, Polk Co., Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Second Street
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors

Choice Meats of every description. Fish and game in their seasons. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see Stanton & Co. Dobson's Block, Second Street

Intelligence Office
AND LAUNDRY

Now open and ready for business. All Laundry work at reduced rates. Lace curtains and Kid gloves cleaned equal to new. Girls desiring good places, or parties desiring good, competent help should leave their name and address at this office. M. McGILLICUDDY,
Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Office on Main Street, one door north of [illegible] [illegible] Professional calls, by day or night attended to with promptness.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, - Minn.

McKINNON BROS.

MANUFACTURERS OF

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES, WAGONS,
CUTTERS, SLEDS, &C., &C., &C.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN

FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Johnson Bros. Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and the Plano Harvester and Binder, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, in fact we have everything in Machinery, from a wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine. Extras for all machines, always on hand.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY

The Dennet or Beloit

HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY,

And the Van Brunt & Davis

SEEDER COMPANY,

Are Represented

BY

STEENERSON BROS.,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW F and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglin Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MI

IVES & HATLESTAD,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW,

Collection and Land Office Business made Specialty.

Money secured for final proofs on short notice

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.

GRADUATE McGILL UNIVERSITY, MONTREAL.

Licensed College Physician and Surgeon, Quebec.

Office Over Medical Hall.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homoeopathic Physician and Sur

Rooms corner Main Street and Fl Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hard Store,

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

FURNITURE STORE.

OAK STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

DATAGLIA & KNACK, PROPRI

Keep constantly on hand a well selec of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, steads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings, ture Frames. Repairing done to order, of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS—$1.50 per Annum.

VOL. VII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA. THURSDAY, APRIL 24, 1884. NO. 52.

Polk County Journal

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprieor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar Fifty Cents, IF PAID IN ADVANCE, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum sent to any address.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 year
½ Inch...	50	1 00	1 25	1 50	$3 00	4 50	6 00
1 Inch...	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	4 50	6 00	10 00
2 Inches..	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 Inches..	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	8 50	12 50	20 00
4 Inches..	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	16 00	25 00
5 Inches..	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ Column	3 50	4 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ Column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 Column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class Matter

MINNESOTA'S FIFTH.

Number of Delegates Under the Cal Each Committee.

Editor Tribune: "What we want," Mr. Holmes continued, "is a recognition of 12,000 Republican voters of our wing; and if we can get that we ask no more. But look at the action of the Gilman committee. They take the vote of two years ago as a basis of representation in the convention, thus practically disfranchising all the voters who have since come into the district. What was their object! Simply to keep representatives of our wing out of the Moorhead convention. We have figured up how the delegation would stand on each basis, and find that under the Gilman call, Nelson counties will have forty-seven more delegates than on the basis recommended by the State Committee."

The above statement made by Mr. E. G. Holmes, the so-called Chairman of the "Kindred" committee in the Fifth Congressional District, appears in your issue of the 10th inst., and in answer thereto I herewith enclose a tabular statement of the votes and representation based thereon. If figures don't lie, then Mr. Holmes' statement is untrue. Under the apportionment made by our committee the "Kindred" counties received representation for all the fraudulent votes cast in the counties of Crow Wing, Cass, Itasca and others, as well as all the votes he received from the Democratic party. What more do they want?

The basis of representation in both calls is one delegate for each organized county, and one delegate for each 300 voters or major fraction thereof, the Nelson call based upon the votes cast for Nelson and Kindred in 1882 and the Kindred call based upon the average vote for Republican State officers in in the fall of 1883.

OUNTIES CARRIED BY NELSON IN THE FALL OF 1882.

	Votes cast for Kindred and Nelson in 1882.	Delegates under the Nelson call.	Average vote for Republican State officers in 1883.	Delegates under the Kindred call.
ikin,	323	2	97	1
ow Wing,	2337	9	1050	5
aritan,	1100	5	634	2
ass,	522	2	229	2
asca,	635	4	213	2
orrison,	1015	4	284	3
ille Lacs,	341	2	248	3
adena,	344	3	433	3
Total,	6808	30	3109	21

UNTIES CARRIED BY NELSON IN THE FALL OF 1882.

	Votes cast for Kindred and Nelson in 1882.	Delegates under the Nelson call.	Average vote for Republican State officers in 1883.	Delegates under the Kindred call.
ker,	1133	5	1110	3
g Stone,	571	3	144	3
nton,	829	2	279	2
lay,	1311	6	630	3
uglass,	1773	7	1161	5
ant,	750	4	697	3
ttson,	610	3	809	3
arshall,	472	3	639	5
orman,	1353	5	783	4
ke,	85	1	61	1
er Tall,	3242	13	2109	9
po	1122	5	779	4
lk,	2283	9	1397	6
earns,	2261	9	1127	5
evens,	852	7	770	3
Louis,	1815	7	567	3
dd,	808	4	536	4
averse,	515	2	478	3
ilkin,	481	3	448	3
Total,	23,936	93	15,284	71

P. C. SLETTEN, mber of the Fifth Congressional District Committee.

Farm Notes.

Fruit in Minnesota.

hwestern Farmer.

BY J. W. SPEELMAN.

The subject of raising fruit is one t should interest every tiller of the l, and it should be made a part of who get their living from the soil row enough of fruit for their own, for there is no soil that is capable roducing any kind of a crop but grow some kind of fruit that is eficial for man. The idea is prevalent to a great extent, especially in thern Minnesota, that fruit cannot grown here—and why? We are are told that it is too cold, that the is not suitable, etc. the prairie portion of the state wise ones tell us that where trees do not grow naturally in quantities, that it is useless to to grow fruit trees. Here in timber portion of the state, they fruit trees will not grow where forest trees will—no use trying. Such arguments we meet and hear on every hand; and why? Simply because they do not know what they are talking about. This may appear to be a broad charge, but let us see what there is in it. They who have grown fruit successfully in portions of the country that are now noted for its crops of fruit, have had to contend "inch by inch" for all they have gained in the matter. Everybody likes fruit, but, strange to say, there are very few who will give a helping hand in trying to grow the same.

What has been the history of fruit growing; has the horticulturist any more to contend with in order to make it a success here in Minnesota than has been overcome in older states that are now noted for their splendid crop of fruits? I think not. Take for example the history of fruit raising in Iowa or Illinois. We find that the early growing of fruit was attended with much difficulty, and it was years before they became noted for their fruit crops.

The writer remembers the time when it was considered a waste of time and a loss of money to attempt to grow fruit in Illinois or Iowa, but who will now say that it has not been a grand success? Large and small fruit of endless varieties have proven a success, and are paying big interest on time and money invested. Not only do you find an orchard in the most favorable localities, but they have proven to do well in almost any locality, and to-day some of the very best orchards of these states are to be found in what was known as high, bleak, desolate prairies, and yearly thousands of bushels of apples are shipped from these states, the result of enterprise and care. The same may be said of Southern Minnesota, only sufficient time has not elapsed in order to make the showing that can be found in older states.

No business in the Western states has been more profitable or pleasant than that of growing fruit where it has been intelligently carried on. To be sure it requires time and patience to see the effect of the labor bestowed on the same, and here is one of the great "stumbling blocks." The average American wants to live so fast that he has not got time or patience to wait and reap the reward that is sure to follow the labor of the horticulturist. He acts as if he expected to plant a tree in the morning, eat the fruit at midday and have a fortune left out of the enterprise in the evening. Talk about it being too cold here in Minnesota when it is the exception for the mercury to go to 30 degrees below zero, while in Russia, five hundred miles north of the boundary line of the United States, where the mercury often tips the beam at 60 degrees below zero, not only are apples grown in immense quantities, but cherries are grown in such quantities that whole trains are loaded at a single shipment and thousands of people are engaged in the fruit growing business. If any one doubts this let him read what Professor Budd, of Iowa, says about the matter and be convinced. He has traveled there extensively and knows what he says.

As far as cold weather is concerned it is all "bosh." The principal reason fruit is not more extensively grown in Northern Minnesota is because there is not the interest taken in the matter that there should be. The day is not far distant when Northern Minnesota and Dakota will have abundance of fruit to sell. The "large farm" system is fast becoming a thing of the past, as it should be, and as it dies out and the "small farm" system comes in, there will be more attention paid to growing fruit, and not until then will we see fruit growing receive the attention it merits.

When any community becomes composed of a class of citizens that intend to make permanent homes and make them pleasant and valuable, then fruits of all hardy kind will be abundant in Northern Minnesota.

If you wish to make your home pleasant and attractive for your family, or make it a beautiful and valuable place, a bright "oasis" in life's journey, plant fruit at once, properly care for it and you most sanguine hopes will be more than satisfied. Don't put it off any longer, it will only be so much time lost. Commence at once, for a year lost can never be regained.

Verndale, Minn., March 21, 1884.

Toledo Blade.

Two hundred mules died within 48 hours in the vicinity of Grenada, Miss., from buffalo gnats.

There were 1,662 sows and 82 bulls exported from the Isle of Jersey during the year 1883.

Sixteen per cent. of the total area of the United States is covered with timber, in all 360,000,000 acres.

It is expected that the lambing season of 1884 will increase the number of sheep in Texas by 3,000,000 head.

A trotter is a good thing in its place, but what would you do with him before your plow, your horse rake or your drill?

To remove warts from an animal, the Cultivator advises the application of butyr of antimony with a feather, two or three times, at intervals of two or three days. It dries up the wart, which drops off.

The Pennsylvania Wool Growers' Association will hold its annual convention at Pittsburg, Pa., on April 17 and 18. There are 72,425 wool-growers in the State, and every one of them is invited to attend.

It is an old plan for causing the ewe to recognize the lamb, to shut the two up together, and sprinkle bran and salt on the lamb. The mother will lick the bran and salt, and soon own her lamb, and will not be made wild by being caught and forced

Mr. George H. Weyman, of Sherman Township, Huron County, O., has a shorthorn, three-fourth blooded cow which furnishes milk enough every day to produce two pounds of butter. Butter is formed in less than five minutes. She is fed mainly on dry feed.

Unless you are able and willing to personally superintend the scalding of your milk pans, says the Tribune and Farmer, it would be better to use earthen ware. Nothing but boiling water and plenty of it will remove the germs of disease that lurk in the half-washed tin vessels.

A young farmer asks, if hog cholera has been among the hogs on a farm, can hogs be successfully raised upon the same farm? Will not the hogs continually become diseased? Not if proper precaution is taken to disinfect the hog house; burn all the straw and litter, and if possible change the feed lot. Swine breeders who have had cholera a few years ago have not quit raising hogs, and there is but little trouble for the past year or two among hogs, since better treatment and more care is given to hogs. Hogs, as well as anybody else, require clean quarters, clean water and a variety of clean feed.

The death of Ira S. Todd, a farmer in Tolland, Conn., from glanders is reported to have occurred last week after terrible suffering. Todd purchased a horse from a traveling horse-trader and essayed treatment of the animal for glanders by blowing smoke into his nostrils and in other ways by which he was brought into close contact with the beast. Two weeks ago Todd had symptoms resembling those of pneumonia, and finally had blotches and gatherings on his body, and an excessive nasal discharge. Physicians pronounced it glanders and their treatment was ineffectual, as the disease was considerably advanced before they were called. A local veterinary surgeon says several such cases have occurred in Connecticut from infection from glandered horses after the disease had reached the malignant stage.

AN ADDRESS TO FARMERS.

Put Forth By the Committee Appointed at the Farmers' Convention, Recently in St. Paul.

Pioneer Press.

The committee appointed by the farmers' convention, held in St. Paul March 18, 19 and 20, have issued an address, which, after relating the evils of an oppressive burdens imposed by corporations and monopolies, says: "Kings of monopoly have secured favorable legislation through bribery of legislatures, a subsized public press and unlawfully usurped powers, until the industries of agriculture, the trades and commerce are made to contribute their legitimate profits to corporate monopolies, beyond reason or justice. Railroads, endowed by charter, with extraordinary privileges, constructed for public good and duly compensated, have been and are being used as a means of outrageous oppression by illegal assessment of unreasonable freight rates charged for the transportation of the products and commodities of agriculture and other legitimate industries of our country. Roads traversing the great cereal districts of Minnesota and Dakota are especially censurable for imposing exorbitant and oppressive freight rates. The officers of one of the said roads, in answer to specific requests made by a committee appointed by a convention of the people of North Dakota, claimed to have made liberal concessions in the interest of the people. Of the three specific concessions claimed to have been granted, two are without foundation in fact, viz: The granting of the privilege to construct elevators of 15,000 bushels capacity; and, secondly claiming that the road had reduced freight rates during last year 10 per cent less than the previous year. In the first place, the roads unlawfully usurped control over elevators by establishing the present system, and therefore had no power to do otherwise than abandon usurped control thereof. In the second place, concerning the claimed reduction of 10 per cent on freights by a reclassification of freight rates, weights and local rates an average increase was made as claimed, instead of a reduction. Of the past and present conduct of these railroads we can only say of them that their exorbitant charges on products, lumber, fuel, machinery and merchandise have resulted in extraordinary and unreasonable profits, which amounts to this, that, for every dollar paid to these corporations, 40 to 52 cents goes into their treasury as profit. Through the usurped, unlawful control of elevator capacity by railroads, rich elevator companies have secured absolute control of the wheat by driving independent purchasers from the agricultural districts. These elevator companies are a part of the Minneapolis Millers' association, and through these usurped powers by railroads and the latter corporations, gigantic monopolies have been created with power to control the wheat market of the whole Northwest. These monopolies have exercised these usurped powers and other dark practices to an extent, which, for the year 1883, has resulted in corporate greed absorbing several millions of dollars on the wheat crop of Minnesota and Dakota, which should have gone to the producers as their legitimate profits. These are the greater evils of which our producers complain, but there are others which are oppressive and unreasonable. In the markets, the farmer finds adulterations and imitation of butter which centralized capital has forced upon it, and he must enter into ruinous competition with these counterfeit products. Actual settlers in the State of Minnesota and in Dakota, are being taxed for the improvement of untaxed railroad lands lavishly granted by state and national governments. Railroad corporations have been and are now conspiring to restrict or absorb river and lake navigation petitioned for by the people of Minnesota and Dakota, for the independent transportation of their products to other than the centralized markets controlled by these and other monopolies. Lumber rings and monopolies have heretofore secured absolute control of the pine lands sold by the government, and are now conspiring to defeat a measure before the national congress intended to give the inhabitants of our prairies cheaper lumber for the construction of more comfortable habitations. In the thorough, systematic organization of farmers, trades and co-industries of the country, rests their only hope for securing equal and just legislation for the production of their several industries against the encroachments, tyranny and unlawful usurpation of monopolies, which threaten them with serfdom and slavery. With the producers of our country thoroughly banded together, standing shoulder to shoulder in their den and for equitable laws and their faithful execution, the result must be a grand victory over tyranny and wrong. No man should receive the support or vote of any person engaged in agriculture, the trades or commerce, who will not first pledge his unqualified support and adherence to the principles of our platform. Neither should any person receive the support of these industries, for any office, who is not thoroughly and unqualifiedly identified with our interests. Any person who accepts and travels on the free pass of any railroad or transportation company while holding public office or position, places himself under obligations to such corporations in such manner as to render independent action for the public good impossible, and should not be trusted as our representatives. Farmers, we call upon you to organize, attend your party caucuses, send true men to you county and state conventions who will see to it that true men, uncorrupted and incorruptible, are nominated; and then see to it that they are elected.

Democratic County Convention.

A Delegate Convention of Democrats and of all citizens of Polk County who believe in the policy of a reduction of rhe present war tariff to a standard of justice alike to the consumers, producers and manufacturers and the corporate powers of the government, is hereby called to meet at the Opera House, in the City of Crookston, Minnesota, on Taturday, the 24th day day of May, 1884, for the purpose of selecting five delegates to represent Polk County in a convention to be held at St. Paul on the 29th day of May, 1884, and to make arrangements for a thorough organization of the Democratic party in the county of Polk. Towns and precincts will be entitled to one delegate each and one additional delegate for each 50 votes or major fraction thereof cast for A. Bierman for Governor at the general election in 1883.

Where there is no local committees it is recommended that the Democratic and others interested, meet in caucus on Saturday, the 17th day of May, at 7 o'clock p. m. and select delegates to attend said convention:

Towns will be entitled to representation as follows:

Angus,	1	Kertsonville,	1
Andover,	1	Keystone,	1
Bygland,	1	Louisville,	2
Brislet,	1	Liberty,	1
Belgeum,	1	Lake Pleasant,	2
Black River,	1	Lambert,	2
Bray,	1	Lowell,	1
City of Crookston—		Nesbit,	1
1st ward,	2	North Star,	1
2d ward,	2	Northland,	1
3d ward,	1	Onstead,	1
4th ward,	2	Polk Center,	1
Town of Crookston,	1	Rose Bud,
Euclid,	1	Reis,	1
Emarnsville,	1	River Falls,	2
Fairfax,	1	Russia,	1
Farley,	1	Rocksbury,	1
Favay,	1	Red Lake Falls,	2
Fisher,	2	village,	3
Gervais,	1	Rome,	1
Garden,	1	Sletten,	1
Garfield,	1	Sandsville,	1
Godfrey,	1	Sanders,	1
Grove Park,	1	Sullivan,	1
Grand Forks,	3	Tabor,	1
Gentilly,	1	Tynsid,	1
Huntsville,	1	Tilden,	1
Hammond,	1	Terrebonne,	2
Hubbard,	1	Vineland,	1
Higdem,	1	Woodside,	1

JOHN N. IVES,
WM. SMITH,
F. DeMERS,
JOHN MIKLUCKY,
O. C. UTZINGER,
Committee.

Seed Wheat.

I have 1500 bushels of pure Scotch Fife wheat for sale. Call on or address
FRANK [illegible]

THE RED STAR
GROCERY
NOW OPEN
In the Building adjoining the Canada House,
Broadway, Cor. Fletcher Ave.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A FRESH STOCK OF GENERAL GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

I will make a specialty of Canned Goods.

I will also introduce a Japan Tea cheaper than ever before offered in Crookston.

Your patronage is kindly solicited and a visit to the Red Star Grocery will convince any one of the LOW PRICES.

Goods will be delivered throughout the city free of charge.

Terms Strictly Cash.

Remember the place, Sign of the Red Star Grocery, Broadway, cor. Fletcher Avenue, Crookston, Minn.

E. LePAGE.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all Principal Points in
RED RIVER VALLEY,
NORTHERN MINNESOTA,
NORTHERN DAKOT
—AND TO—
EVIL'S LAKE AND TURTLE MOUNTAIN DISTRICTS,
—CONTAINING OVER—
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land Department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that Department. Maps and pamphlets describing the country, giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE to any address, by

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner.

C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y, St. Paul, Minn.

NEW
DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD
DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my New Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of fresh

DRUGS, MEDICINES,
PAINTS, OILS,
and YANKEE NOTIONS

'Tis no longer necessary to go 40 or 50 miles for anything in this line as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see!

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls, by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co. Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

Fortier's Place,
Corner Broadway and Robert Street
EVERYTHING NEW,
NEAT AND NOBBY.
Billiard, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at Wholesale Prices.
PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DRAUGHT.

New York Store !
NEW SPRING
DRY GOODS!

We have received an immense assortment of the latest styles of goods in every department, and are now offering special reduced rates in

Hamburg Embroideries,
Cottons,
Tickings,
Toweling,
Towels,
Table Linen,
Table Napkins,
Quilts,
Sheetings, &c., &c., &c.

A Full line of Ladies' Fine Boots and Shoes in different styles and prices.

Two cases of Men's Hats just opened. Inspection Invited.

Proud & McDonald.

A Big Bonanza!
JOSEPH BARRETT
Has decided to Put on the Market his ADDITION
TO THE
City of Crookston,
Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase
CHOICE LOST
NOW IS YOUR TIME!
LOTS
For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.
TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Pure Drugs,
Reliable Medicines,
LOWEST LIVING PRICES,
AT Medical Hall,
CROOKSTON.
Becher & George, Prop's.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 24.

Crookston Markets.

Wheat, No. 1 per bushel		73.
" No. 2 " "		72.
Oats, " "		[illegible]
Barley, " "		[illegible]
Potatoes,		[illegible]
Hay, per ton		[illegible]
Beef sides	per lb	8.
Chuck Beef	"	12½
Roast Beef	"	18.
Roast Veal	"	18.
Roast Pork	"	15.
Beef Steak	"	20.
Pork Steak	"	23.
Mutton Chops	"	20.
Veal Chops	"	20.
Boiling Meat	"	12½.
Salt Pork	"	14.
Pork Sausage	"	20.
Bologna Sausage	"	20.
Sugar Cured Hams	"	18.
Lard	"	16.

Call at Morris Bros. Jewelry store at once and secure your seats for "Scraps."

Frank Hunt of Red Lake Falls registered at the commercial house last Tuesday.

"Scraps" is the funniest place out. Go and see it on Saturday night and dont you forget it.

Eddie Greenhalgh caught a sturgeon last Tuesday on a set line that weighed fifty two pounds.

Game fish have begun to bite and the banks of the river are lined with fisherman every day.

The Jolly Pathfinders on Saturday night in "Scraps" an intensely funny piece. Dontfail to see it.

In our report of the muster last week we inadvertently omitted the name of Wm. H. Stuart which should have appeared on the list.

August Kceppe and Martin Swanson are going to put in a new Brick Yard as soon as they can make the necessary arrangments.

Capt. L. T. Soule has returned from the East. He arrived at hisfarm last Saturday evening and made his first visit to Crookston last Tuesday.

Work on the new opera house goes on briskly. The roof will soon be on and then the finishing process will commence. It will be one of the finest opera houses in the Northwest.

George Crocker and wife left for St. Paul on last Monday evening. They will visit Faribault their old home, and several other southern Minnesota towns before they return. They will be gone about two weeks.

The members of the G. A. R. find that they cannot have Fortier's Hall for their meeting to-night. They also find that they will have to change the name of their Post as there is one allready by that name in the state.

S. C. Constant, business manager for the Jolly Pathfinders, gave us a pleasant call on Monday. The Pathfinders have inproved since they were here last and will give a grand entertainment on Saturday evening next at Ericsson's Hall.

Our new officers seem to be doing things as they should be done, and are giving the people to understand that they mean to follow the directions of the city ordinances. One more of the saloon keepers was brought up and fined $25 and cost last Saturday for keeping open after hours.

A man in this city got drunk last Saturday, and got an idea into his head that his horse was threatened with trotting. He went up and down the street once or twice at full speed and otherwise abusing the horse; he was promptly stopped by the officers and was arrested and lodged in the cooler and the horse put in the livery stable.

The Minneapolis Farmers' Tribune gives one dollar's worth of choice garden seeds—among which is a package of the Imperial Prolific Tree Bean—to every one who sends the name of a new subscriber (it may be his own name) with the yearly subscription price of the paper. $1.15. The seeds are of the purest quality, specially selected, and are what would be paid a full dollar for at any seed store in the country. Sample copies of the paper are sent free.

The complaint now is that window curtains are too short, or policemen too long. This fact was illustrated last Saturday Evening. It is too bad that the people cannot arrange this police business satisfactorily in someway and not have men on the force who will persist in going around looking down in peoples chimneys, and taking in every little private snap there is. We would like to ask right here, is it any policeman's business if the ace buried is worth a nickel? or if 15ct is bet and another man sees it, and still another man raises it 85cts, and still another man calls it, and says, it takes a big American Dollar to look at those five cards, show up. And then he smoles a smile and takes down the ever needful, and another thing; supposing a sleeper in the snape of a 10 cent pice is left on the table and they all make a grab for it, and have a little dispute. Is it any policeman's business? while all this is going on inside a big policeman stands on a chair outside of the window taking it all in, and notices with a smile that there are four ten cent pieces and one quarter on the table all at one time, at last he notices some excitement amoung the parties, when all at once one of them jumps up puts his hand in his pocket and pulls out a big round dollar throws it down on the table at the same time says I raise it ninty cents, this is to much for our worthy policeman, for at the sight of so much money he faints, falls off the chair and gives the thing away. The virdict was $5 each and costs. These fines in the aggregate are only about one third as much as one of our Boys had to pay all alone about a month ago. Boys pull down the blinds!

Chris. Steenerson represented the Chippewa Indians of Beltrami Co., in the city on Tuesday.

The Morrissey Brothers are having lots of work at their foundry, casting busily every day.

The serenade given by the Original O. C. B. was appreciated by all who heard them. They are improving very fast.

The Farmers' Tribune is the cheapest and best paper published. Send for sample, and if you like it subscribe for it. Tribune Company, Minneapolis.

A Turnverein society will be organized here very soon; the young men in this city are all interested and no doubt a large club will be gotten up.

A Strange man was found by Marshal Dowling last Wednesday, who appears to be insane. He told the Marshal that he was looking for a place to hang himself.

A Base Ball meeting was held at John McLean's office Wednesday evening. K. D. Chase was elected President. Full particulars of the organization will be given in our next issue.

The new passenger train from St Paul arrived here last Monday, at ten minutes past 10 o'clock. This extra train will be a great convenience to the traveling public. It runs from Barnesville to Devil's Lake.

As Jack Kivel and Geo. U. Holcomb were coming to the city from Marshall Co., on Monday they found a crazy man wandering about on the prairie. They attempted to bring him along to Euclid, but failing reported the case at Euclid and a party of men went out to search for him. At last accounts he had not been found.

By the change in the trains, Crookston loses two of her valued citizens, Conductor J. B. Copeland and Engineer Jack Bunnell. Conductor Copeland goes through the city occasionally but Jack has gone back on us entirely not even passing through the city. Their families will, however, remain in this city awhile and perhaps permanently.

Found Dead.

On Saturday last, Carl Andersen, a Scandinavian boy, about 12 years of age, son of Andrew Anderson, of this city, was found dead about a half mile beyond Shirley station. He was found by Wm. T. McAltoner, of Euclid, Mr. McAltoner notified some section men who were working near by, and they carried him to the station and then notified coroner Shephard of this city, who, in company with W. L. Sargent, started after the body, they returned between five and six o'clock and the body taken to the city hall. Quite a crowd of people assembled there to see the body, which was finally recognized by a Scandinavian boy as Carl Andersen, son, of Andrew Andersen, which proved to be correct. The body was kept until Tuesday when a postmortem examination was held by doctors Van Dyke and Dampier. They say that there was no indication of any disease and that death was caused by exposure and exhaustion. He was buried Tuesday afternoon. It seems that the father and boy started for their farm, located somewhere between Black River and St. Hilaire, last Friday morning. The father not being very well at the time, his wife tried very hard to persuade him not to go at that time but he said that he would take the boy and would be all right, so they started. On Friday afternoon the boy was seen alone on the road to Euclid, and he asked some section men the way to Crookston. They directed him toward Crookston, and he was found as stated Saturday afternoon. His elder brother started out early Sunday morning in search of his father, but up to this date nothing has been heard of him. The coroner, Henry Shephard while on the way after the corpse, was thrown from the wagon while crossing a ditch and quite badly hurt though not dangerously.

Council Proceedings.

COUNCIL ROOMS, April 22, 1884.

The Council met on Tuesday evening, Mayor Walsh in the chair. There were present Aldermen Houston, Bang, Fortier, Bataglia, Pierce and Chiniquy. The committee on petition for crossing on 3d and Main streets reported favorably, and report adopted. The bond of the City Treasurer was reported being in legal form by the city attorney and the report was accepted and the bond approved. The petition of M. E. Filiatrault, asking for the construction of a ten foot sidewalk around the Opera House was read and referred to Alderman Fontaine. Petition of E. A. Janne asking for water from the city water works to be furnished free, read and referred to Ald. Fontaine, Pierce and Bataglia. Proposition read from A. Clements offering two blocks of land in Clement's 2d addition to the city, provided the city would improve the same and build a sidewalk thereto. It was referred to Ald. Pierce, Chiniquy and Fontaine. Bids for city printing were opened and ballot passed for letting contract. Total vote cast six, of which the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL received three and the Crookston Chronicle three, being a tie it was laid over until the next meeting of the Council. It was moved by alderman Pierce that the city atty be and is hereby instructed to draw up the terms of sale of the city water works, report of same to be made at the next regular meeting of the City Council. Carried. On motion a committee was appointed to investigate the work at the pump house, consisting of Ald. Chiniquy, Houston and [illegible]. Moved by Ald. Pierce that the City Marshall be instructed to widen the crosswalks on the following streets, from two planks on top to 4 planks. West side of Broadway, from North to South side of 3d St. From North to South side of Robert Street, from North to South side of Fletcher Street, from North to South side of Loring Street, also on the South side of Robert Street, from West to East side of Broadway on South side of Fletcher Street, from West to East of Broadway on North side of Second Street, and from West to East side of Broadway, and from North side of Fletchers to the South side of Fletcher on East side of Main Street. Carried. Wm. Cunningham was appointed pound master. Moved that the License for the sale of Liquors be the same as it was last year. Carried. Moved by Ald. Bang that the city atty be instructed to draw up an Ordinance prohibiting the transference of any and all licenses that may be issued by the city. Bills amounting to ($411,06) were allowed. Adjourned until April 29, 1884.

The Jolly Pathfinders Are Jolly Indeed.

It is well that the Jolly Pathfinders have only a two night engagement with us, as it would be impossible for any Fargo audience to survive after more than two evenings' laughter, such are the cute actions and funny sayings of the jolliest of all commedy companies produce. To describe just how they get there, would be doing them injustice, as only those who attend can know just how chuck full of fun and mischief these funny individuals are. If ever the dish of genuine fun was relieved of its cream, the Jolly Pathfinders are certainly the latter, and mighty rich cream they are too. They serve up another dish of this everlasting, tickling, side splitting, funny diet to night, and if you want a meal that will satisfy your appetite for fun, do not fail to attend.—Fargo Post.

Young people's meeting held in the Baptist Chappel every Sunday evening from quarter after six to quarter after seven. Meeting dismissed in time to get to other church services. All the young people cordially invited.

Notice to Contractors.

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to Wednesday noon, April 30th 1884 for the ditching and grading of all the roads in the Town of Tabor, being town 153 range 48, in all seventy-two miles of road; bids to be made at price per yard of grade; the whole to be completed to the satisfaction of the town board in two years from the date of agreement.

SPECIFICATIONS.

Road-bed to be 18 feet wide.
Beormes six feet wide each.
Ditches, eight feet wide on top.
Depth of grade, two feet.
Width of grade twelve feet on top.
Grade to be made level.

Payment for the work to be made in town bonds running from five to six years drawing ten per cent interest. Bonds to be issued for one-half the work as soon as one-half the work is completed and the balance as soon as the whole is satisfactorily finished. Security will be required for the faithful fulfillment of the work in a sum equal to the amount of contract.

The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids. Address all bids, plainly marked "Tenders for grading" to Frank Cernousck, town clerk Angus, Polk Co., Minn.

SAMUEL HUGGARD, Chairman of Board.
JOHN MIKKELECKY.
JAMES KOTEK.

Sale of State Lands.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, LAND OFFICE,
St. Paul, April 9th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that W. W. Braden will offer at public sale at the office of the County Auditor, in Crookston, on Friday, May 23, 1884, at ten o'clock a. m., on the terms prescribed by law, the school lands in Polk County that have been appraised and are unsold, or that have been sold and forfeited by reason of failure to pay interest for two or more years.

Lists of the lands to be offered may be seen at the Auditor's office for ten days prior to the sale.

W. W. BRADEN,
Commissioner of State Land Office.
[51-4]

Wanted to Exchange.

Fifteen acres in city lots, near Chicago, worth $1,000 per acre, for good farming lands in the Red River Valley, or property in Crookston or Grand Forks. The most beautiful place in the west, located on the lake shore; splendid improvements; the best society, schools and churches; has a Ladies Seminary and a University; twenty trains to Chicago every day; low fares. This property is bound to increase in price as Chicago grows. Will sell in parcels of one acre each or more. Inquire of the Editor of this paper [48 1]

For Sale.

Horses, oats, cordwood, fence posts and potatoes for sale at the farm of Jacob Stambaugh on the Sand Hill River 7 miles east of Beltrami station. Parties wishing to purchase any of the aforementioned property will do well to call. [46-tf]

Notice of Annual Election of the Crookston Agricultural Association.

To the Stock holders of the Crookston Agricultural Association.

There will be held an Annual meeting of the stock holders of the Crookston Agricultural Association, on Tuesday the 6th day of May 1884, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, at the City Hall, in Crookston, Minnesota, for the purpose of electing a board of five directors and President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Dated Crookston, Apr. 8, 1884.
[illegible]
President.
JOHN MCLEAN,
Secretary. [illegible]

MONEY! LAND!

$100,000
To Loan.

20,000
Acres of Land for Sale

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY
AND IT WILL BE SOLD.

Law and Insurance, Collections Made,

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,

PALMER & BOND.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY
IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City
FREE OF CHARGE

Subscribe for the Minneapolis Farmers' Tribune and you will get, not only the best news and agricultural paper published in the interest of the Northwestern Farmer, but a package of choice flower and garden seeds worth at any store $1. Send to Tribune Company, Minneapolis, for sample copy.

Teas and Coffees, best Brands in the city for the least money, at the Red Star Grocery. [51-tf]

For Sale.

A fine farm of 480 acres, 270 acres under cultivation. Good house, barn and well, teams and machinery to run it. On account of ill health will be sold at a big sacrifice for cash. For further particulars address JOURNAL office.

Pilgrim.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery Broadway. [51-tf]

CLEAN BODY WOOD.

Stove lengths, full measure, delivered in any part of the city on short notice. $8 a cord.

[52-8t] LEGON & MCMANUS.

McKinnon Bros. are now agents for the J. I. Case threshing machine in this vicinity.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings has just received a large stock of Spring and Summer Millinery Goods and guarantee to sell at prices 25 per cent lower then the same goods can be purchased at any other place in the Northwest. [51-tf]

Eleven pounds refined white sugar for one dollar, at the Red Star Grocery. [51-tf]

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries and purpose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining Trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence one block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most respectfully,
[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

For bread, buns and cakes of all kinds, call at the store of Hack & Gallasch.

Lost.

On or about March 20th, somewhere between Kittson and Beltrami, an account book containing one note made by Hans Olai in favor of Nels Long or bearer, for the sum of fifty dollars, due on or about August 31st, 1884, with interest at 10 per cent. All persons are hereby notified not to negotiate for said note as payment has been stopped.

[51-1] NELS LONG.

To Rent.

For three years, a fine farm with plenty of wood and water handy; good house and stables. No money required as rent, can be paid in improvements on the farm. A rare opportunity for some industrious men Address JOURNAL office.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing,

JOHN MCLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

For Sale On Time.

One Buckeye Seeder. One Buchanan wagon complete, both in good condition.

JOHN KNUPPE,
R. R. Land Office.

New stock of Fancy Groceries, and Provisions at a bargain for cash. Call at the Red Star Grocery and see for yourself. [51-tf]

To Rent.

Ready for grain in the spring 100 acres on Section 12 Township 149 Range 46 and 220 acres on Section 11 Township 148 Range 46. Both track have a good house and barn. Apply

Peter Cornelius. Crookston Minn.
[38-tf]

Sweep, Ho!

If you want your chimney cleaned in a scientific manner call on August Keeppe. He knows how it is done.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Main street, opposite U. S. Land Office.

[14-tf] H. STEENERSON.

For a nobby hat go to H. & G.

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN MCLEAN, Atty at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston Minn.

The Vienna bakery has been enlarged and bread, cakes etc., are more plentiful than ever, at Hack & Gallasch's general store.

So far, Crookston has fortunately escaped the ravages of that dreaded monster the Fire Fiend, but we know not at what hour he may appear in our midst. The only way to meet this terrible foe is by good, reliable Insurance. Look over our Million List of staunch, fire-tested companies and make your selection before you have cause to regret a loss.

Hartford	$3,701,370
German American, N.Y	3,094,030.
German, Freeport, Ill.	1,028,407
Niagara,	1,537,487
Liverpool London, Globe	4,777,589
Fireman's Fund, California,	1,160,017
National, of Hartford.	1,704,803
N. Y. Alliance,	1,027,849
Phoenix, of Hartford	2,624,083
Union, California,	1,20,038
British America,	1,349,909.
North British	1,958,089.

We also represent the Travelers Life and Accident Insurance Co., of Hartford.

I. M. UNDERHILL
Insurance Agency

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office for the week ending April 19th, 1884. Persons calling for any of these letter will please say "advertised."

Anderson, Aron
Amundson, A
Ansall, Joseph
Bentel, Miss Emstine
Bradish, Capt A B
Carlton, David
Christianson, Mather
Couton, Felix
Dalskog, J A
Ellingson, Mrs J O—2
Finn, James
Gauthier, Felix
Hansdater, Maren
Hurlburt, Bngt N.
Larson, Kate L
Labelle, Mrs Reliance
Lien, Ole
Macpah, D F
Menke, Henry,
Mosey, Mis Esther
Nevings, Robert
Nichells, G W
Nyhus, Ole Ellingson
Oberg, A
Olsen, Miss Gunbor
Papa, Joseph
Lackrison, Aaron
Savane, Mrs Minnie Saal, Michael
Sangdon, Asle Olson
Schutts, Michael F.
Wengler, Towald Ole
Wik, Anne Nelson
Wik, Carn O
Walstad, L P.
Wirth, Edward

PACKAGES.

D. M McLillan.

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE,
Office Over Merchants' Bank.

JOHN LEO H. STEENERSON

DR. P. THORN.
Physician and Surgeon.
Office Over Sampson's [illegible] Mr. Christianson.
[illegible]

EIKEN BROS.,
DEALERS IN
Hardware, Tinware, Stoves and Shelfware.

We keep Full and Complete Stock of Goods in our Line, and invite the patronage of all.

COR. MAIN ST. AND FLETCHER AVE., CROOKSTON.

UNIVERSAL

No. 40.

JEROME'S ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,
DEALERS IN GENERAL MERCHANDISE

CARMAN,

Carry a full line of everything usually found in a General Store, and sell at reasonable prices.

GIVE US A TRIAL.

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

CROOKSTON CITY BAKERY!

EARNEST MILLER, Proprietor.

(SUCCESSORS TO THE PLUMB BROTHERS.)

Takes advantage of the occasion to say that he will keep a full line of all goods that are usually found in a

FIRST-CLASS BAKERY,

And that the citizens of Polk County will find none but the best at his place of business. A fine line of

CIGARS AND TOBACCO, NUTS, FRUITS,
CANDIES, PIES, CAKES, BREAD
AND EVERY THING TO FILL OUT A HUNGRY MAN

Personal Gossip.

George L. Perkins, a venerable citizen of Norwich, Conn., has carried in his pocket for seventy-eight years the same silver half dollar—a little feat not often done in this world.

If John Adams had taken Benjamin Franklin by the arm some fine afternoon about the year 1784, and had said, "Ben, within a hundred years they will stretch a wire from New York to Georgetown, and will talk over it," in all probability Benjamin would have said to John, "Go away; you are visionary;" but this is what they have been doing every day for the past week.—Boston Journal.

General Sir R. Buller, second in command to General Graham in Egypt, won the Victoria Cross by rescuing a soldier, whom he laid on his own horse under heavy fire. He has been exposed to innumerable risks, in Ashantee, Zululand and elsewhere, but never hurt. He succeeded some years ago, by the death of his brother, to estates worth $75,000 a year, but would not leave the army. His mother was niece of a former Duke of Norfolk, and he is married to a daughter of the Marquis Townshend.

Uxbridge, Massachusetts, has a woman who makes her own dresses, plays the piano, votes for school committeemen and sits on the board herself; milks the cow and makes and markets butter; she can also chop wood, hoe corn, swing the sythe and expects some day to vote for president. The husband probably remains at home and takes care of the baby, or more probably there is no baby at her house.

A Clinton (Mass.) clergyman announced that he would preach last Sunday from the longest verse in the Bible, and would not announce his text, but would give a silver dollar to every member of the Sunday School who would find out what verse it was. On Sunday he received thirty-eight correct answers and distributed thirty-eight silver dollars to the fortunate children.

Dolores Rodriquez, wife of a Chilian vivandiere, was present at one of the battles with the Peruvians and saw her husband shot down in a charge. She rushed to him as he fell, and when she saw that he was dead, buckled his carriage belt around her own waist, snatched his rifle and rushed into the hottest of the fight to avenge his death. She fought throughout the bloody action and was promoted to the position of sargeant, the same held by her husband.

Thirty members of the present congress were born previous to 1820, and are consequently 65 years of age. Senator Morrill will be 74 April 14, and Henry B. Payne, of Ohio, Senator-elect, who if he lives will take his seat next March, will be 74 in November. The other saptuagenarians are Representative Shaw, of Illinois, 73; Wait of Connecticut, 72; Eldredge, of Michigan, 71; Kelley, of Pennsylvania, 70, and Senator Lapham, 70.

Dr. McCosh, of Princeton college, is a very handsome old gentleman who was born 73 years ago. He was a pet of Sir William Hamilton who was a great opponent of phrenology. As an old time metaphysician Dr. McCosh has hardly an equal in this country. Recently, while the doctor was being complimented in a Pennsylvania railway train for his ability to dissect Kant, the good old gentleman replied, with that little spice of conceit which comes from one's knowledge of one's abilities, "It was perfectly easy to me."

Some of Lincoln's Jokes.

n Perley Poore in Boston Budget.

President Lincoln has been made reonsible for so many jokes that he rends one of a noted Irish wit, who ving been ruined by indorsing the es of his friends, used to curse the when he learned to write his name, he had obtained such a reputation for lingness to oblige that he could not se. Mr. Lincoln might well have etted ever having made a joke, for as expected to say something funny ll occasions, and has been made erable for all manner of jests, es and repartees, as if he had com all the elements of humor, comlace heartlessness and courseness led with a passion for reviving the of Joe Miller and the circus clowns. e did say many excellent things— e occasion when Senator Wade to him and said:

tell you Mr. President, that unless position for emancipation is adoptthe Government we will all go to wil. At this very moment we are er one mile from hell."

rhaps not," said Mr. Lincoln, "as ve that is just about the distance are to the Capitol, where you men are in session.

ne occasion, at a reception, when wd of citizens and soldiers were through the saloons of the House, evidently controlled by newhat brusque Western element, eman said to him:

President, you must diminish the r of your friends, or Congress large this edifice."

ll," promptly replied Mr. Lin- I have no idea of diminishing the of my friends; but the only with me now is whether it will o have the building stretched "

e of these receptions, where a er in full major's uniform was ed, he said:

g here Mr. Lincoln, I thought call and pay my respects."

the complaints made by the " responded the President, "I t is all any of you do pay."

Lamon, when Lincoln had apim Marshall of the district of , accidentally found himself in ght, and in restoring peace, one of the belligerents with weapon with which he was y familiar. The blow was a e than Lamon intended, for was knocked senseless, taken us, and lay for some hours er of life and death. Lamon ed, and the next morning reaffair to the President.

tonished at you, Ward," said ; "you ought to have known ereafter, when you have to use a club and not your fist."

Alfred Stille will next fer his resignation of the Theory and Practice of the university of Pennsylia. He has held for nearly He is nearly 71 years of s graduated from the uni18. His published works d high authority.

How the Maidens of Sicily Get Husbands.

The following is a description of a scene which goes on every Sunday morning in the hospital at Palermo:

The long dormitories were clean and orderly but the curious and peculiar feature of this establishment was the parlatorio, or reception-room. Picture a large, long room the greater portion of which is divided off from the sides and further end by an iron grating which forms a cage, entered only by a well barred street door, through which visitors from the outer world are admitted.

Here they sit on benches to converse with those on the other side of the iron grating. Once a week, however, Sunday mornings, from 10 to 12, this place is the scene of the most novel and ludicrous courtships ever described. One of the objects of this motherly establishment is to find fit and proper husbands for the girls under its charge. The fit and proper here is much like the fit and proper of society—the one requisite being that the young man is bound to show himself in possession of sufficient means to maintain a wife in comfort before he is allowed to aspire to the hand of one of those precious damsels.

Having given in his credentials of fitness to the guardian, he receives a card which admits him next Sunday morning to an inspection of the candidate for matrimony. There, sitting on a bench, if his curiosity and ardor will allow him to remain sitting, he awaits the arrival on the other side of the grating, of the Lady Superior accompanied by a girl. She had been selected by order of seniority and capacity for house-hold work from the hundred or more between 17 and 21 waiting for a youth to deliver them from their prison.

The two young people, both no doubt breathless with agitation at the importance of the ceremony, have to take one long, fixed look at each other. No word is spoken, no sign is made. These good sisters believe so fully in the language of the eye that, in their minds, any addition is futile, and might but serve to mystify the pure and perfect effect of love at first sight.

The look over, the Lady Superior asks the man if he will accept the maiden as his bride. Should he answer in the affirmative, the same question is put to her, and if she bows assent the betrothal has taken place, and they part till the Sunday following. The young lover again makes his appearance before the tribunal of guardians, and there the contract is signed, the day of marriage fixed, and he is granted leave to bring the ring, earrings, and wedding-dress and present them—through the gridiron of course—to his betrothed.

Everything has to pass the scrutiny of the sisters, for fear of a letter or some tender word being slipped in with the gifts. During the few Sundays that intervene between the first love-scene and the marriage an hour's conversation within hearing of the Lady Superior is allowed, but not a touch is exchanged. The empty talk, interspersed with giggling, consists of inquiries as to the wedding-dress, and the occupation and place of abode of the suitor. Should the young man refuse the first damsel presented to him, he is favored with the sight of three or four more; but should he still appear difficile he is dismissed. The girl also has the power of refusal.

The marriage over, the task of the sisters is done. Here falls a veil they never lift—and whether happiness or faithfulness are the result of this rite they never inquire.

Our readers must before now have wondered what inducement there can be to make the youths who have the world to choose from come here in search of a wife. Two hundred and fifty francs are the attraction. That sum is given in dowry with each of these girls, and for that sum, it seems, a Sicilian is willing to sell himself for life.

Benjamin's Report in the Senate.

Correspondence Philadelphia Record.

I heard a fact or two about Judah P. Benjamin's early life the other day, which were new to me. His father was a small, dark-skinned Spanish Jew, who kept a little fruit shop on Market street, Charleston, S. C. Benjamins early life was spent in that shop. He was educated by the Hebrew Orphan society of Charleston, graduating under their care at Charleston College. He was a grass orphan by that time. His mother disagreeing with his father, had left her home and gone to Beaufort, where she opened a general country store. Forty years ago she was conducting it successfully. Both Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin were devoted adherents to the grand old religion of their fathers, and Judah P. Benjamin was educated in it. He has always retained his respect for his race, although he married a Gentile and has never been identified with the Jewish church. You remember his fine reply in the Senate, when he was taunted in a hot debate with being a Jew. "The Senator" he said, rising gracefully and speaking in his usual silvery way, "will please remember that when his half-civilized ancestors were hunting the wild boar in the forests of Silesia, mine were the princes of the earth." The Senate was electrified and the carping Senator was silenced.

Progress of the Cremation Idea.

The friends of cremation are making steady and rapid progress. This mode of disposing of the dead is now legalized in every country of Europe. The English Cremation Society has a furnace in operation at Woking. Physicians point to the condition of London, which contains, in all the stages of corruption, almost as many dead as living inmates; and they urge that the presence of enormous masses of decaying bodies in cities poisons both the air and water, and that general cremation is the only chance for the living. Boston has a society for the promotion of cremation. Philadelphia has a similar society. The old Lemoyne furnace at Washington, Pa., cost but about $1,700, and the charge for cremations is only $45. A large and first-class establishment would not cost over $10,000, and there is very good reason for believing that one or more, convenient to every important city in the United States would in a few years prove a profitable investment. In the Boston society the payment of $12, or the annual payment of $1.50 for not more than twelve years secures cremation of the subscriber, in case of death, at the expense of the society.

Invalid Ladies—This is for You.

There are thousands of females in America who suffer untold miseries from chronic diseases common to their sex, this is due largely to the peculiar habits of life and fashion, and the improper training of girlhood. Then to the physical changes that mark the three eras of womanhood, the maiden, the wife and the mother, have much to do with her sufferings, most of which is endured in silence, unknown by even the family physician and most intimate friends. To all such, whose hallow cheeks, pale faces, sunken eyes and feeble footsteps, indicate nervous and general debility bordering on consumption, we would earnestly recommend that grand system renovating tonic Burdock Blood Bitters. It makes pure healthy blood, and regulates all the organs to a proper action, cures constipation, liver and kidney complaint, female weakness, nervous and general debility and all the distressing miseries from which two-thirds of the women of America are suffering. ALL INVALID LADIES should send for our SPECIAL CIRCULAR addressed to LADIES ONLY, which treats upon a subject of vital importance. ADDRESS FOSTER, MILBURN & CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Frank James in Minnesota.

Gen. Johnson, a counsel for Frank James, says:

If James is acquitted in Alabama on the Mussel Shoals robbery count, he will have to be tried up at Northfield, Minn., but I think he will be acquitted there without a doubt. They could not convict him without the testimony of the Youngers, and no matter what inducements might be offered, the prosecution would not be able to get them to turn recreant to their old comrade. Cole Younger is a wonderful man in many respects. His loyality to his old associates is something remarkable. During his long incarceration in the Stillwater, Minn., penitentiary he has never let slip a single word supplying information concerning the more fortunate survivors of the gang's disastrous raid. He is a man of extraordinary courage and determination. He is the only man who had any influence whatever over Jessie James. Mr. Wallace, the prosecuting attorney of Jackson county, told me a story illustrative of this. One night, he said, the Jameses, Youngers, and other members of the original band were spending a few hours together, when the conversation turned upon a certain party, and the result of a discussion of his recent doings was the announcement by Jesse James that he intended to hunt him up and kill him. None of the party, apparently, had any objections, but five minutes after the clatter of horse's hoofs which were carrying Jesse James on his murderous errand had died away, Cole Younger quietly left the house, mounted his horse, and followed. He caught up with Jesse and after a ride of a few miles, stopped him and said: 'Jesse, I want you to come back home with me.' 'Not till I've killed —, was the answer. "But you must not kill him." Cole insisted, quietly, but with a determination that Jesse understood thoroughly. "I am going to kill that man," Jesse answered, wheeling his horse around and letting his right hand fall upon the holster containing his pistol, as he added the words, "unless you can give some good reason, Cole, why I shouldn't." "I give no reason, Jesse," said Cole, preparing for what looked like an inevitable conflict. "If you are bound to kill that man, you and I must have it out first right here." The two desperate men looked into one another's eyes for a few moments and then Jesse turned his horse's head homeward, remarking as they began to gallop back together, "I guess you mean what you say, Cole, let's go home."

A Lucky Pool.

About the first of March twenty-seven workmen at the West Milwaukee shops of the St. Paul road, nearly all of whom were employed in the paint department, conceived the idea of trying their luck in the forthcoming drawing of the Louisiana state lottery. With the exception of one or two, who took two chances, the men each contributed one dollar, which was invested in tickets and a pool formed. The drawing took place at New Orleans on the 11th inst., and a few days afterwards Henry Rivers, foreman of the railway company paint shops, who had been intrusted with the matter, received advices from Mr. Dauphin, president of the Louisiana lottery, that ticket No. 14,467 had drawn the first capital prize of $75,000, one-fifth of the ticket being held by the Milwaukee pool, entitling the members to $15,000. Last week (Tuesday) the money was paid to Mr. Rivers through the Marine and Fire Insurance company's bank. The windfall has been divided among the fortunate investors, each receiving $555.55. The men were highly elated over their unexpected good fortune, and the promptness with which the money was paid by the lottery management. Nearly every cent of the money has been invested in homesteads. A Wisconsin reporter made a search for the names of the lucky men, but several who were seen refused to talk about their lucky streak.—Milwaukee (Wis.) Wisconsin, March, 31st.

The National Guard Appropriation.

Washington Special: A delegation representing the national guard convention recently held in Cincinnati, appeared before the house committee on militia to day in advocacy of speedy action by the house on Mr. Strait's bill increasing from $200,000 to $600,000 the annual appropriation for state militia. The bill having been reported to the house with a favorable recommendation of the committee on March 19 last, the visit of the delegation at this time is principally for the purpose of urging the importance of final action on the measure during the present session. Among other things it was urged that the present annual appropriation, fixed in 1808 to provide arms for thirty-eight states with a population of 8,000,000, is entirely inadequate to provide arms for thirty-eight states with a population of 50,000,000. Members of the committee assured the delegates of their intention to urge upon the house the importance of the measure, with a view to reaching final action before the close of the present session.

Sad Fate of a Countess.

London Special.—Monaco has a ghastly sensation which promises to make it a rival to Monte Carlo as a theatre for sensational suicides of ruined gamesters. The heroine of this latest tragedy was a lady of great beauty, distinguished manners and aristocratic bearing, who has for the past few months occupied the villa Clementina. The countess, as she was called, was a constant habitue at the casino, where she played for tremendously high stakes, and lately with a steady run of ill luck. She remained at the roulette table until a very late hour, and lost several thousand francs. The next morning the servants at the villa Clementina found "the countess" lying in a pool of blood on the floor of her bed chamber, with a razor clutched in her hand, with which she had cut her throat, causing almost instant death. On the bed, which had not been occupied by the lady, was the dead body of her little child, which had been strangled to death by its mother.

A Fenian Manifesto.

Patrick Joyce, secretary of the Fenian brotherhood, has issued in London a manifesto address to all Irishmen. He says:

The brotherhood has good cause for rejoicing at the discomfiture of John Bull. England has never before felt the vengeance of the expatriated Irish with such crushing force. The honor of inaugurating scientific warfare is due to the brotherhood. We have convincing proof of the efficiency of science when handed by intelligent, brave and determined men. We advise our brothers to persevere in the glorious war, and we will live to witness free and regenerated Ireland. We are resolved to push the work with redoubled energy, and we recommend Prof. Mezeroff to all Irishmen as an exponent of the resources of civilization.

A TRAGIC EVENT.

A Father's Despair and Self-Inflicted Death. His Son's Final Rescue, Too Late to Save His Parent.

The graphic occurrence that is described below is one of the most remarkable episodes in the domestic history of America. It is absolute truth which can readily be verified.

The inhabitants of the pleasant town of Cortland, N. Y. were shocked one morning by the announcement that Mr. Clinton Rindge, one of their most prominent citizens, had committed suicide. The news spread rapidly and aroused the etnire neighborhood where Mr. Rindge was so well and favorably known. At first it seemed impossible that any one so quiet and domestic could do so rash a deed, and the inquiry was heard on every side as to the cause. The facts as developed on investigation proved to be as follows:

Mr. Rindge was domestic in his tastes and took the greatest enjoyment in the society of his children and pride in their development. And indeed he had good reason to be proud for they gave promise of long lives of success and usefulness. But an evil day came. His youngest son, William, began to show signs of an early decay. He felt unusually tired each day, and would sometimes sleep the whole afternoon if permitted to do so. His head pained him, not acutely, but with a dull, heavy feeling. There was a sinking sensation at the pit of his stomach. He lost all relish for food and much of his interest for things about him. He tried manfully to overcome these feelings, but they seemed stronger than his will. He began to lose flesh rapidly. The father became alarmed and consulted physicians as to the cause of his son's illness, but they were unable to explain. Finally severe sores broke out on his arms and he was taken to Buffalo where a painful operation was performed resulting in the loss of much blood but affording little relief. The young man returned home and a council of physicians was called. After an exhaustive examination they declared there was no hope of final recovery and that he must die within a very few days. To describe the agony which this announcement caused the father would be impossible. His mind failed to grasp its full meaning at first; then finally seemed to comprehend it, but the load was too great. In an agony of frenzy he seized a knife and took his own life, preferring death rather than to survive his idolized son. At that time William Rindge was too weak to know what was transpiring. His face had turned black, his breath ceased entirely at times, and his friends waited for his death believing that the fiend Bright's disease of the kidneys, from which he was suffering, could not be removed. In this supreme moment William's sister came forward and declared she would make a final attempt to save her brother. The doctors interposed, assuring her it was useless and that she would only hasten the end by the means she proposed to employ. But she was firm, and putting all back, approached her brother's side and administered a remedy which she fortunately had on hand. Within an hour he seemed more easy, and before the day was over he showed signs of decided improvement. These favorable signs continued, and to-day William B. Rindge is well, having been virtually raised from the dead through the marvelous power of Warner's Safe Cure, as can be readily verified by any citizen of Cortland.

Any one who reflects upon the facts above described must have a feeling of sadness. The father, dead by his own hand, supposing his son's recovery to be impossible; the son restored to health to mourn the loss of his father and the agonized relatives with a memory of sadness to forever darken their lives. Had Clinton Ridge known that his son could recover he would to-day be alive and happy, but the facts which turned his brain and caused him to commit suicide were such as any one would accept as true.

However sad this case may be, the truth remains that thousands of people are at this moment in as great actual peril as William Rindge and in as great danger of causing misery if not death to their friends. Liver and Kidney diseases are become the most common and most dangerous of any or all modern complaints. They are the most deceptive in their beginnings and horrible in their final stages. They are far more deceptive than consumption, and can rarely be detected even by skillful physicians unless a microscopic analysis be resorted to, and few doctors understand how to do this. Their slightest approach, or possibility of approach should strike terror to the one who is threatened as well as to all his or her friends These diseases have no distinct symptoms, but come in the form of lassitude, loss of appetite, aching muscles and joints, dull headaches, pains in the back, stomach and chest, sour stomach, recurring signs of cold, irregular pulsations of the heart, and frequent dizziness. If neglected, these symptoms are certain to run into chronic kidney and liver or Bright's disease, from which there is sure to be a great amount of agony and only one means of escape, which is by the use of Warner's Safe Cure. The importance of taking this great remedy upon the slightest appearance of any of the above symptoms cannot be too strongly impressed upon the minds of all readers who desire to escape death and pain and prolong life with all its pleasures and blessings.

To be Hanged in Montana.

Joseph W. Hanna, who killed George N. Nelson at the latter's residence in Northern Meagher county, Mont., on the 22d of March, was tried at White Sulphur Springs, convicted and sentenced to be hanged Aug. 27. He claimed that Nelson fired in self-defense. Hanna, better known as "Too-string Joe," has been in the territory several years, and is well known throughout Northern and Eastern Montana. He was a preacher, an exhorter, for some time, but was never a very great success in this line. He is said to be a member of a prominent Hanna family in Indiana, where his relatives have attained distinction in law and politics.

Owing to the expressed intention of the German and Austrian governments to open books and papers in mails from Switzerland in order to stop the circulation of anarchist literature, the government of the Swiss confederation has resolved to take vigorous action to suppress such literature.

A Postmaster In Trouble.

Huron, Dak., Special. Charles Hollenbeck, postmaster at Parker, is in serious trouble. He got behind in his accounts $1,100 to the government and owed neighboring postmasters $400 for borrowed stamps. During a recent sickness his deputy reported to the authorities the actual cash on hand. This brought a special agent to Parker at once, who found a deficiency. He suspended Hollenbeck and placed a man named Huntley in charge. When the postmaster's wife heard of it she told the bondsmen to take her house, lot, piano and all her possessions. They took only her house and lot. The mystery is what he did with the money, as he had no bad habits, so far as known.

Too Early for Cœur D'Alene.

Prof. J. M. Tiernan of Spokane Falls, Wash., passed through St. Paul en route east. He says there is a steady rush of people to the Cœur d'Alene mines, but those who are on the ground at Eagle City have not yet been able to do anything in the way of prospecting. They know about as much now as they did when they went in. The snow still covers the ground to a depth of two or three feet, and work cannot be successfully prosecuted until a heavy and long continued thaw prevails. The professor declares emphatically that it is too early to go into the mines, and advises people to wait at least until June 1—June 15 would be better. He has confidence in the value of the mines, and says if the main body holds out as well as the rim rock the Cœur d'Alene country will become celebrated as one of the richest in the world. Rathdrum he reports as almost totally collapsed. A very hard crowd of people—estimated at 1,500—are camped at Belknap, waiting to go in; while a better looking class of people are at Thompson's Falls.

Gen. Dick Oglesly Nominated for Governor.

General Richard J. Oglesly has been nominated for governor by the Republicans of Illinois. Gen. Oglesly is a Kentuckian, sixty years old, a carpenter by trade and a lawyer by profession. He held a lieutenant's commission in the Mexican war. In 1849 he dug gold in California. He ran for congress unsuccessfully in 1858, but was elected state senator in 1860. He was colonel of the Eighth Illinois volunteers, had a brigade at Fort Donelson, and at Shiloh was one of Grant's best subordinates. At Corinth he was wounded. When he resigned in May, 1864, he was a major general. The next fall he was elected governor, succeeding Dick Yates, and he staid until 1869. In 1873 he was again made governor, and the following year was elected United States senator. Since his defeat in 1879 by Logan he has been living in retirement.

No Marks.

Mr. T. M. Casad, editor of the Corydon, Iowa Times, writes that his little girl burned her foot severely on a stove. One application of St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain-reliever cured it completely, leaving no marks. By two applications of St. Jacobs Oil he cured himself of a torturing pain in the side.

Grand Forks, Dak., Special: Deputy Sheriff Ferguson of Ramsey county came in Wednesday, the 16th, with two men named Lignor and Shepherd, whom he had arrested on the train at Lakota, for robbing a man named Lee at the Brooks house, Devil's Lake, of $496, about $120 being gold. Sheriff Ferguson was on the same train, and received a telegram from Barney Shanley, city marshal, describing the thieves. Conductor Quinn pointed out the men, who had only gone out there yesterday, and the sheriff arrested them, finding on their persons the money, false mustaches, keys and burglars' outfit. Some of the money was in Shepherd's boot-leg, and the gold in Lignor's pocket. They have been handed over to Sheriff Jenks until a requisition comes from Devil's Lake. One is about nineteen years old, and the other twenty.

Queen Victoria has forwarded a letter to the papers thanking her subjects for sympathy with the royal family and the duchess of Albany in their bereavement.

I have been entirely cured of a terrible case of Blood Poisoning by the use of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) after trying everything known to the medical people without relief. Jno. S. Taggart, Salamanca, N. Y.

FOR COUGHS AND THROAT DISORDERS use Brown's Bronchial Troches. "Have never changed my mind respecting them, except I think better of that which I began thinking well of."
REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER. Sold only in boxes

Dr. Sanford's Liver Invigorator—Cathartic; Tonic; will cure when other medicines fail.

I have had catarrh for years in its worst form. Before I had used one bottle of Ely's Cream Balm droppings into my throat had ceased, pain and soreness in my head was removed, as well as deafness. It gives me immediate relief for cold in the head.—Mrs. J. D. HAGADORN. Union, N. Y. [Price 50 cents.]

Piso's cure for consumption does not dry up a cough; it removes the cause.

Victor Schuyler drowned himself at Wabash, Ind., because he was jilted.

Well's May Apple (Liver) Pills, 10c.
"ROUGH ON DENTIST" Tooth Powder, 15c.
The "Rough on Tooth" Powder, elegant. 15c.

Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) has cured me entirely of bad Blood Poison. I went 100 miles to get it, and it made me as sound as a new dollar. J. W. Weylels, Madville, Pa.

Charles Shenton, aged forty-five, of Golden Hill, Md., murdered his son aged twenty years.

Consumption.

is a disease we all dread. It often carries its victim to an untimely grave. How important, then, for those who cherish life and health to prevent that disease in its early stages. Every Cold or Cough should be treated with Allen's Lung Balsam. There is no better remedy.

No poisonous drugs enter into the composition of Carboline, the natural hair restorer and dressing. It is the perfection of the chemist's art, and will, beyond a peradventure, restore the hair on bald heads.

C. F. Holler, of Providence, was afraid he would become insane, and so drowned himself.

"Rough on Rats," clears out Rats, Mice. 15c.
Mother Swan's Worm Syrup, tasteless. 25c.
"Rough on Coughs" Troches, 15c; liquid 50c.

Cattle Wanted.

Parties having cattle for sale of any class, please address, giving grade, numbers, age and price. John C. Abbott, Box 2250, Denver, Col.

Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters aid digestion. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

Pure Cod-Liver Oil made from selected livers, on the sea-shore, by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians have decided it superior to any of the other oils in market.

Chapped Hands, Face, Pimples and rough Skin cured by using JUNIPER TAR SOAP, made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York.

Odd Fellows' hall burned April 16 at Kenosha, Wis. Loss, $4,000; insurance, $2,400.

"Buchu-paiba." Great Kidney and Urinary Cure. $1
"Rough on Corns," for Corns, Warts, Bunions. 15c
Wells' Health Renewer cures Dyspepsia, Impotence

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

AGENTS WANTED for the best and fastest selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publishing Co., Chicago, Ill.

THE DINGEE & CONARD CO'S BEAUTIFUL EVER-BLOOMING
ROSES

The only establishment making a SPECIAL BUSINESS of ROSES. 60 LARGE HOUSES for ROSES alone. We GIVE AWAY, in Premiums and Extras, more ROSES than most establishments grow. [illegible]
THE DINGEE & CONARD CO. [illegible]

"See What Cuticura Does for Me!"

INFANTILE and Birth Humors, Milk Crust, Scalled Head, Eczemas, and every form of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous and Inherited Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. Absolutely pure and safe. Cuticura the great Skin Cure, 50 cts.; Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and only Medicinal Baby Soap, 25 cts. and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, $1, are sold by druggists. Potter Drug and Chemical Co., Boston. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

The Most Popular Medicine Extant

Allen's Lung Balsam!

A REMEDY THAT WILL CURE

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, CROUP,

All Diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Pulmonary Organs.

THE LUNG BALSAM Has cured Consumption when other remedies and physicians have failed to effect a cure.

THE LUNG BALSAM Contains no Opium in any form.

THE LUNG BALSAM Is strictly pure and harmless to the most delicate person.

THE LUNG BALSAM Is recommended by Physicians, Ministers and Nurses.

THE LUNG BALSAM For Croup is a safe and sure Remedy. Mothers, try it.

THE LUNG BALSAM Should be used at the first manifestations of a Cold or Cough.

THE LUNG BALSAM As an Expectorant has no equal.

CAUTION.—Be not deceived. Call for ALLEN'S Lung Balsam, and take no other. Directions accompany each bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO. Limited, Cincinnati, O.
PROPRIETORS.

SOLD BY ALL MEDICINE DEALERS.

FAVORITE PICTORIAL DICTIONARY, cloth, 25,000 words, 320 pages, 106 engr's. Agents wanted. Mailed for 25c, by J. Clowes, Reedsville, Pa.

WRITE TO US AND SECURE A PAIR OF FINE SHOES. FREE J. E. BICKNELL & CO., Brockton, Mass.

TELEPHONES.—The best in use for private lines. Address with stamp, UNION TEL. CO. Leydon, N.Y.

WATCH Free! 50 Satin Gloss Chromo Cards 10c. Latest designs. 10 pks. $1, and a Musical Watch free. Sample album 25c. W. F. AUSTIN, New Haven, Ct.

PENSIONS to Soldiers and Heirs. Send stamp for Circulars. COL. L. BINGHAM, Att'y, Washington, D. C.

Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

AGENTS WANTED—For the best selling books published. Ladies or gentlemen of intelligence are qualified; no experience necessary. Full particulars sent free. H. B. Hudson, Box 968, Minneapolis.

$1 sent postpaid a 7 shot nickle plated 22 cal. revolver. 32 cal. 5 shot nickle plated $1.65. Spaulding's League Ball $1.50. Catalogue free of Guns, Fishing Tackle and Sporting Goods. Baker & Skinner, Rockford, Ill.

MONEY made by soliciting pictures to copy. Agents wanted everywhere. Catalog sent free. Mention this paper, and address at once E. P. GEROULD & CO., Concord, N. H.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

The kidneys act as purifiers of the blood, and when their functions are interfered with through weakness, they need toning. They become healthfully active by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, when falling short of relief from other sources. This superb stimulating tonic also prevents and arrests fever and ague, constipation, liver complaint, dyspepsia, rheumatism and other ailments. Use it with regularity. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

PISO'S REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Easy to use. A certain cure. Not expensive. Three months' treatment in one package. Good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Dizziness, Hay Fever, &c. Fifty cents. By all Druggists, or by mail. E. T. HAZELTINE, Warren, Pa.

CATARRH Ely's Cream Balsam

when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from fresh colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. 50 cents at druggists. 60 cents by mail registered.

HAY-FEVER ELY BROTHERS, Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

ELASTIC TRUSS

Has a Pad different from all others, is cup shape, with Self-Adjusting Ball in center, adapts itself to all positions of the body while the ball in the cup presses back the intestines just as a person does with the finger. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circulars free. EGGLESTON TRUSS CO., Chicago, Ill.

Lay the Axe to the Root

If you would destroy the cankering worm. For any external pain, sore, wound or lameness of man or beast, use only MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. It penetrates all muscle and flesh to the very bone, expelling all inflammation, soreness and pain, and healing the diseased part as no other Liniment ever did or can. So saith the experience of two generations of sufferers, and so will you say when you have tried the "Mustang."

Indulgence and Excesses.

Whether over eating or drinking are made harmless by using Hop Bitters freely, giving elegant appetite and enjoyment by using them before and removing all dullness, pains and distress afterwards, leaving the head clear, nerves steady, and all the feelings buoyant, elastic and more happy than before. The pleasing effects of a Christian or sumptuous dinner continuing days afterwards.

Eminent Testimony.

N. Y. Witness Aug. 15, 1880.

"I find that in addition to the pure spirits contained in their composition, they contain the extracts of hops and other well known and highly approved medicinal roots, leaves and tinctures in quantities sufficient to render the article what the makers claim it to be, to wit, a medicinal preparation and not a beverage—unfit and unsafe to be used except as a medicine.

"From a careful analysis of their formula—which was attested under oath—I find that in every wine-glassful of Hop Bitters, the active medicinal properties aside from the distilled spirits are equal to a full dose for an adult, which fact in my opinion, subjects it to an internal revenue tax as a medicinal bitter."

GREEN B. RAUM, U. S. Com. In Rev.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism. Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water. All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave. J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct., 1, '81.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost, I know it."

A WORKINGMAN.

30 DAYS' TRIAL. DR. DYE'S

(BEFORE.) (AFTER.)

ELECTRO-VOLTAIC BELT and other ELECTRIC APPLIANCES are sent on 30 Days' Trial TO MEN ONLY, YOUNG OR OLD, who are suffering from NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, REDUCED VITALITY, DEBILITY, and all diseases of a kindred nature, resulting from whatever causes. Speedy relief and complete restoration to Health, Vigor and Strength guaranteed. Send at once for Illustrated Pamphlet free. Address

Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE! BEST IN THE WORLD. Get the Genuine. Sold Everywhere.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give Express and P. O. address.

DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 181 Pearl St., New York.

SEED CORN NORTHERN GROWN, VERY EARLY. Also Flower Vegetable and Field Seeds. 44 New Varities of Potatoes. Order early. Catalogue Free. FRED. N. LANG, Baraboo, Wis.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year: 216 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—7 cents. Let us hear from you.

Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

SAMARITAN NEVER FAILS. NERVINE THE GREAT NERVE CONQUEROR

A SPECIFIC FOR Epilepsy, Spasms, Convulsions, Falling Sickness, St. Vitus Dance, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Syphilis, Scrofula, Kings Evil, Ugly Blood Diseases, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Sick Headache, Rheumatism, Nervous Weakness, Brain Worry, Blood Sores, Biliousness, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Kidney Troubles and Irregularities. $1.50.

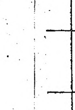
Sample Testimonials.

"Samaritan Nervine is doing wonders."
Dr. J. O. McLemoin, Alexander City, Ala.
"I feel it my duty to recommend it."
Dr. D. F. Laughlin, Clyde, Kansas.
"It cured where physicians failed."
Rev. J. A. Edie, Beaver, Pa.

Correspondence freely answered.
For testimonials and circulars send stamp.
The Dr. S. A. Richmond Med. Co., St. Joseph, Mo.
Sold by all Druggists. (17)
Lord, Stoutenburgh & Co., Agents, Chicago, Ill.



DR. SPINNEY'S TRADE MARK NERVE TONIC

Nerve Tonic. A Positive Remedy for all forms of Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Spinal Affections, Chorea, Sympathetic Nervous Derangement of the Heart, Liver and Kidneys, and all other Nervous Diseases.

Price: $1.00 per bottle or 6 for $5.00. Sent by express on receipt of money.

Send stamp for circular.

Address, DR. SPINNEY & CO., 10½ South Third St., Minneapolis, Minn. Also for sale by Druggists.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD,

Positively cure SICK-HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill.—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla." "In my practice I use no other.—J. Dennison, M.D., DeWitt, Iowa." Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cts. in stamps. Valuable information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

PATENTS. Send stamp for our New Book on Patents. L. BINGHAM, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

THE HOUSEWIFE!

The Ladies favorite $1.00 Domestic Monthly SENT FREE ONE YEAR for names and address of ten married Ladies, and 26 cents for postage. EVERY HOUSEWIFE WANTS IT and cannot afford to be without it. Will send an elegant book, "HOW TO MAKE CANDY," (Price 50 cents) and THE HOUSEWIFE for one year, for names and address of twenty MARRIED ladies and 50 cents (Postal Note or 50 1-cent stamps). We WANT NAMES AT ONCE. Must SEND NOW. Address

THE HOUSEWIFE CO., Rochester, N. Y.

TRADE S.S.S. MARK

CAUTION.

Swift's Specific is entirely a vegetable preparation, and should not be confounded with the various substitutes, imitations, non-secret humbugs, "Succus Alterans," etc., etc., which are now being manufactured by various persons. None of these contain a single article which enters into the composition of S. S. S. There is only one Swift's Specific and there is nothing in the world like it. To prevent disaster and disappointment, be sure to get the genuine.

Swift's Specific is a complete antidote to Blood Taint, Blood Poison, Malarial Poison and Skin Humor. J. DICKSON SMITH, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

I have had remarkable success with Swift's Specific in the treatment of Blood and Skin Diseases, and in Female Diseases. I took it myself for Carbuncles with happy effect.

D. O. C. HEERY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

I used Swift's Specific on my little daughter, who was afflicted with some Blood Poison which had resisted all sorts of treatment. The Specific relieved her permanently, and I shall use it in my practice.

W. E. BROOKS, M. D., Cyprus Ridge, Ark.

Our treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants.

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.
New York Office, 159 West 23d St.

OUT OF PITY.

BY LILLIAS CAMPBELL DAVIDSON.

She was just seventeen; the very youngest little bride that any one remembered ever coming to reign at Hamwood Towers; the sweetest daintiest little Lady Fielding that the county had ever welcomed.

To herself it was all like a dream, it had come so fast; it seemed as if all her life had lived itself in those six months; the leaving her English school and going out to her father's plantation in Ceylon, so proud to be his housekeeper and companion; the strange brief life on the up-country coffee estate. Then the young English stranger who passed through Lindoola, in his rather vague wanderings for adventure's sake, and who was received and entertained at Holme Harcourt with the delightful open-handed hospitality of the colonies.

And then the awful night when the sudden terrible stroke of cholera left her fatherless, and life seemed one great black void; and the chaplain's wife had been good to her, and kept her from dying in despair; and Sir Harry Fielding had been still more good; and then—and then—she was resting her poor little orphaned head on a heart that was kind and true as her own father's and a strong arm was close around her slender waist, and the voice she liked alone to hear of all the voices around her was telling her she should never know another sorrow he could guard her from. He seemed the only real thing in all that dream-time; the sad past, and the present that was so happy, but just as unlike reality. Was it really herself, simple little Nesta Harcourt, that people were fussing over and petting and welcoming home as if she had been a royal princess?

Perhaps it was as well she could not realize it, or her head might have been turned. Why, had not the whole week Harry and she were spending with his sister, Mrs. Mostyn, to present Nesta to the country-side, been one round of festivities, of which she was the queen? This evening they had all driven to a grand concert in the country town, to hear a famous singer; and Nesta, in her wonderful golden satin gown, rich with embroidery and lace, with her eyes outshining the diamonds on her white neck, and her cheek flushed with its pretty shy pink, had been an attraction only second to the queen of song herself. She felt a little weary with the excitement and the happiness, now that they had reached home and were having supper in the great hall, for the concert had forced them to dine rather earlier than usual.

The house was crowded with guests, and they were all vehemently declaring that the night was hardly begun yet, and they meant to finish it with a few games. The furniture in the blue drawing room was being hastily moved, and Nesta's heart sank at the thought of further exertion; her head ached and she was worn out. She would slip away quietly to bed, and leave Harry to make her excuse to Eleanor. Where was Harry, by the way? She had not seen him since they sat down to supper, and he and that beautiful Miss Trafford were talking in the doorway. A hasty search through the nearest rooms had no result, and Nesta stopped by an open door to glance in at the half-cleared drawing room.

Two portly dowagers were deep in conversation, their heads bent together behind their fans; but their voices rose above the music Eleanor was playing, and Nesta could not help hearing what they said.

"Gladys Trafford; yes, indeed!" cried the black velvet gown to the purple brocade. "A very, very old love affair that, my dear. He and she were perfectly inseperable, and a most suitable match it would have been. The two oldest families in the country; his equal in position and fortune. Lord Stourbridge's estates are next his, you know, and Glady's is heiress to a great part."

What made Nesta's heart give such a leap, and her feet feel spell-bound to the spot where she stood? Arnwood Towers was the only place near the Traffords. It was as if her whole being were strained to hear the rest. She never thought of eaves-dropping, poor child; it was life-and-death work to her.

"And why didn't it come about," asked the purple brocade. "Heaven knows! A lovers, tiff, I suppose, or some such rubbish. It's a thousand pities! a lady Fielding has always been at the head of the country society, and Gladys Trafford is just made for the position, with her beauty and cleverness and talents. She has always been immensely popular.

"And who is the girl he has married? She seems a nice little thing enough."

"Oh, a harmless sort of a creature; pink and white prettiness, nothing more. She was a planter's daughter in Ceylon, or somewhere; and he was staying with them when the father died. She was left quite friendless and destitute, and he married her out of pity. He was always a quixotic goose, Harry Fielding."

The spell was off now, and Nesta, white as death, was hurrying up the stairs to her room. There was a little sofa in a sheltered nook in the corridor, and there sat Harry—the missing Harry—and the woman he should have married.

Nesta sped past, but as she fled, she saw Harry bend his head to kiss the beautiful hand he was holding, and she heard his low murmur, "If I had only known years ago, things might have been so different!" On, on, till her own door closed behind her, and she gazed wildly round at the pretty ornaments that strewed her bower, as if she had never seen them before. She flung the diamonds from her throat and wrists as if they hurt her, and sank into a chair beside the quaint old ebony table, leaning her head, with its tangle of crisp brown hair, down on her folded arms. She did not shed a tear, but her brain seemed on fire. Beside her stood the tall vase of rushes that Harry had gathered from the lake only yesterday. Wasn't it a hundred years ago?"

"Never another sorrow he could guard her from?"

Well, it was true; he couldn't help this; it wasn't his fault, he had meant to do right; he had married her "out of pity" when he loved another woman. It must be her own fault, not his; yes, because she was pink-and-white, and nothing more; and she was not tall and stately and talented, and she ought to have known pity wasn't love, only it had seemed like it!

"If he had known years ago, things might have been so different?" Might they not still? What if she were to go away that very night, and never trouble him again? She had not a friend in the world except her old Brighton schoolmistress; she would go to her and beg her to take her in, and let her teach the little children. And perhaps she might die soon; and Harry could be happy with the woman he had always loved. Nesta felt as if death wouldn't be long in coming, she felt so ill now.

She got up to fetch a time-table. Yes, the mail train passed through Middlehampton at 1 o'clock; it was only 12 now, and though she couldn't very well understand the puzzling figures, she thought it must stop at the little station just the other side of the park.

She drew her blotting book to her, and began to write fast. A big tear or two splashed down on the paper, but she wiped them patiently away; it must be clear, that Harry might read it.

"They say you only married me from pity," she wrote; "I might have guessed it, my darling, but you were so good to me that I never, never did. I can't make you free again; but it is better for us never to see each other any more, and perhaps I may die, and you can go back to the woman they say you always loved. I saw you just now, when you kissed her hand, and said things might have been so different if you had only known her years ago. Yes, they would have been different for us all. God bless you, my poor, good boy!—you were not to blame."

She paused and looked up.

"What shall I sign it?" she said; "I am not his wife any more, for only love really makes a marriage."

Her eye fell on her little wedding-ring, its brightness scarcely tarnished yet. She stooped and pressed her lips to it, gently, solemnly.

"Oh, Harry, my Harry!" she whispered, "if it had only been love, not pity!"

She rose, and slipped off the golden satin gown, and put on a dark warm dress instead.

"I must even go away from him in the things he gave me," she said, as she fastened her long fur cloak with its silver clasps. "I haven't a single gown that was mine before I knew him. He has even dressed me out of charity. His pity has been more generous than other people's love."

She opened the French Window in her dressing-room and stepped out on the balcony, whence a flight of steps led down to the terrace below. She glanced back at the pretty room, with its Japanese cabinets, and blue and white china, and the ebony table where the letter to Harry lay, with the light full upon it, so that he could not miss it. Then she shut the casement sharply behind her, and resolutely turned away.

The moon was bright with a fitful brightness—now almost as light as day, now hidden behind hurrying clouds—and it was bitterly cold. Nesta drew her cloak tighter round her, and tried to walk fast, but she was desperately weary, and could only stumble along. Somehow the way to the little gate had never seemed so incomprehensibly long. Surely she could not have missed her way? The moon and the clouds were playing such pranks that one could not be sure, and her heart had been too full to notice all the turns. I twas as black as Erebus now; a darkness that might be felt. Nesta took a few steps forward, then stopped short, by some mysterious instinct, just as the moon shone out clear and bright once more, its golden sparkle reflected as by a thousand broken mirrors in the waters of the lake which slumbered at her feet. A strange sharp pain shot through her heart, as she saw the very rushes Harry and she had been gathering yesterday. Yesterday? A thousand years ago; when she was happy.

A wild thought flashed across her brain: she had wished to die; would it not be better for Harry and for herself, yes, and for that other woman too, if she were lying under those cold, smiling waters in a dreamless sleep? It was only a moment, her soul was too white and too brave for more; she recoiled with a start of horror; but, ah! the bank was worn and smooth; her little feet slipped on the edge; she threw out her hands to stop herself, but the frozen grass slid through her fingers; there was one short, sharp cry, and a pale, sweet face lay still among the rushes in the silent moonlight.

* * * * * * * *

It was dark and warm and deliciously restful when she knew anything again. She heard Harry's low voice before ever she opened her eyes; and felt his clasp of her hand—Harry's hand-clasp, there was no other like it anywhere—and thought it must be heaven, and was glad she had done with earth, since this was so much better. And she slept again.

And when next she woke, she knew that the clouds she seemed to lie on, clouds soft and billowy, were her own bed, nothing more ethereal; and she was aware it must be earth still, but felt it did not matter since it could be so like heaven, for Harry's voice and Harry's hand were there still; and she slept again, smiling gently.

But the next time she woke the hand and voice were missing, and only Harry's back was visible in the room beyond as she raised herself on her pillows. And as she rose, she caught sight of herself in the long Psyche glass opposite, and started at the reflection. For all her tangle of brown hair was cut short, and there was no pink and white prettiness now, only great dark eyes and a small white face. And as she fell back on her pillows, half from surprise and half from weakness, for she was very feeble, the bells burst out clear and mystical, in a perfect carol of exultant joy.

"Christmas bells! Is it Christmas?" she said. "Why, it was November when I died!"

And as Harry turned and hurried to her side, she smiled up at him, and asked again—

"Christmas? Is it really Christmas, Harry?" but he only bent to catch her in his arms.

She yielded to his kisses; then suddenly she tried to push him from her. "Harry, you must not—you must not!" she said.

He saw the troubled look in her eyes, and knew that the memory was coming back.

"Yes, I must," he said, "my little darling, my blessing my life! The doctor says I may tell you all about it, for the worry will hurt you more than the talking; and, oh! how I have waited for this time to come! It has been one long nightmare since the minute I heard your scream and ran up just in time to see you sink [illegible]

"Then it was you who found me? Oh Harry?" [illegible]

"Yes, you must hear it all. I came to your room five minutes after you must have left it, and there was the time table open, and your little note—bless it! [That tear spotted bit of paper will never leave Harry Fielding's heart while he lives.] And so I just set off for the station as hard as I could go. I had almost reached the park gate when that cry came—off to the right—and I turned just in time."

His voice broke, and he bent his head down to hers.

"Nesta, it was a lie, a vile infamous lie, whoever told it. Gladys Trafford and I were always dear old boy and girl friends; nothing more. I knew my cousin Wilfred loved her, and I always thought she had something to do with his going to Australia, years ago. It was only that night she confessed to me that they had been engaged all these years, and Wilfred was trying to make a fortune for her sake. I told her I would soon put all that right; and then I scolded her for never having told me before, when I could have saved them both all these weary years of waiting. Nesta!"—for her face was hidden, and she was sobbing softly—"you will not doubt me again?"

"Never, never, never! not if you told me so yourself! But, Harry," in a whisper which scarcely reached his ear, "did you really marry me out of pity?"

"Yes my sweetheart—the very sincerest pity for myself!"

And Nesta never asked any more questions.

A Cowboy Stopping a Cattle Stampede.

"One of the slickest things I saw in my travels," said a passenger from the West, "was a cowboy stopping a cattle stampede. A herd of about six or eight hundred had got frightened at something and broke away pell-mell with their tails in the air and the bulls at the head of the procession. But Mr. Cowboy didn't get excited at all when he saw the herd was going straight for a high bluff, where they would certainly tumble down into the canyon and be killed. You know that when a herd like that gets going they can't stop, no matter whether they rush to death or not. Those in the rear crowd those ahead, and away they go. I wouldn't have given a dollar a herd for that herd, but the cowboy spurred up his mustange, made a little detour, came in right in front of the herd, and across their path at a right angle, and then galloped leisurely on to the edge of that bluff, halted and looked around at the wild mass of beef coming right toward him. He was as cool as a cucumber, though I expected to see him killed, and was so excited I could not speak. Well, sir, when the leaders had got within about a quarter of a mile of him I saw them try to slack up, though they could not do it quick. But the whole herd seemed to want to stop, and when the cows and steers in the rear got about where the cowboy had cut across their path I was surprised to see them stop and commence to nibble at the grass. Then the whole herd stopped, wheeled, straggled back and went to fighting for a chance to eat where the rear guard was. You see, that cowboy had opened a big bag of salt he had brought out from the ranch to give the cattle, galloped across the herd's course and emptied the bag. Every critter sniffed that line of salt, and, of course, that broke up the stampede. But I tell you it was a queer sight to see that cuss out there on the edge of that bluff quietly rolling a cigarette, when it seemed as if he'd be lying under 200 tons of beef in about a minute and a half.

Blondes Out of Fashion.

From a New York Letter.

Blondes are no longer popular. They had things their own way for several years, but they are driven to the wall at last, and it is mainly to their own numerousness. There was too much blonde. A few years ago, we had all sorts of intermediate tints—women with brown hair, and yellow hair, and red hair; with dark blue eyes, sandy hair, carroty hair, and many other shades. Then blondes became popular, and in two years all the intermediate shades disappeared. Every woman's hair was either black or yellow. Women who one week were distinguished by carroty or sandy hair came out a week later after diligent application of carbonate of soda, as pronounced blondes. The street blossomed with blondes. They were everywhere. As few of the subjects were expert bleachers, the artificial was easily distinguished from the real. There is no mistake the handmade, sawdust-colored, half-finished and amature blonde for the real article. The hair of the artificial blonde is alway bleached two shades lighter in front than in the coil. Her eyebrows never match her hair, and her eyelashes are usually 'way off. She has none of the bright color or the perfect balance between the shades of her complexion and her hair which the real blonde possesses. The winter is particularly hard upon the artificial blonds. It makes them look peaked, unhealthy and pinched. Their faces have not a healthy color. It is in winter that the brunettes come out strong, and the past winter has turned the scale in favor of the dark girls. Mrs. Langtry is no longer the idol that she was, and the artificial blonds are in the dumps.

Isaac Reed, of Waldoboro, Me., has been Moderator of the spring meeting in Waldoboro thirty-one times, Chairman of Selectmen nineteen times, member of the house of representatives six times, member of the senate four times, he served one year as state treasurer, and one term in congress. He is seventy-four years of age.

Mrs. Moncrieff, an English lady whose husband was killed at the outbreak of the Soudan affair, is a widow whose case has excited great sympathy, more on account of her talent and beauty than because she has lost her husband. The queen has given her apartments in Hampton Court palace, she has been allotted a pension of £100 a year, as much as £1,200 has been collected for her, and now a concert is being organized for her benefit.

Francis Magnard, editor of the Paris Figaro is about forty-four years of age, stout and well built, about the size and build of General Grant. He wears a full beard, cut close and trimmed down to a point. He is highly educated [illegible]

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

The Cultivation of Flowers.

Temperance and flower-gardening easily go hand in hand. The experience of those who build cottages to let, has proved that the addition of a garden-plat effects a most beneficial influence on the social, moral and religious life of those who occupy them.

If an increase of the hydrangea stock is wanted, propagation may take place within the next few weeks. Slips may be made of young healthy shoots, having half-a-dozen leaves, by removing the two lower ones wholly, and one-half of each of the next two.

Trickery in getting up exhibition flowers, is obviously rare, but we have just heard of an English florist who succeeded in so pinning two chrysanthemum flowers together, one into the center of another, as to produce many apparently large specimens, that deceived both judges and spectators.

A beautiful Jerusalem cherry-tree (Solanum capsicastrum of the seed-catalogues), loaded with red fruit, can be grown by any child, for decorating the window next winter. Procure a package of seeds and start them in a pot of light earth in March or April. They germinate quickly, and in a few weeks from the time of sowing, the seedlings will be fit to prick out into individual pots, as many as you care to have plants of. About June first set these out in the garden. Let them grow there until September, by which time they will be full of green fruit, and then lift and pot them in six-inch pots, bringing them into the house as soon after as frosts threaten.

House-plants thrive better in the kitchen than in any other rooms of the house, because of the moister atmosphere that prevails here, as a result of the steam escaping from the stove or range utensils. In green-houses similar improved conditions exist also, which accounts for the comparative ease found in growing plants in these structures. These facts point to the importance of supplying some moisture to the atmosphere wherever there are plants, if we would have fine specimens. Watering as freely as is admissible for their health, sponging the leaves all over occasionally, and setting some vessels of water among them, are some of the easy ways of accomplishing this. A sufficiency of moisture to suit the plants will not be in the least injurious to the health of persons.

The old and generally successful way of rooting oleander and other slips of hard wooded plants, by placing their lower ends in a bottle of water, suspended in a light place, finds an improvement of much wider usefulness in the saucer-plan of propogation. In this system, any low vessel is filled nearly full of sand, into which slips of every kind of plants may be set closely together for rooting. Enough water is then kept constantly in the saucer to give the sand the consistency of mud, and it is then given a light and warm place. By this simple means any one can root cuttings of all kinds quickly, and almost without any loss.

For growing plants a weekly application of diluted manure water will work wonders, but those in a state of rest are better without it, and in fact they need little water of any kind until growth begins. A strong heat is not essential for most species, and is positively injurious to many, as the camellia, azalia, orange, most succulent plants, etc. Air on mild days is beneficial, but a draft over the young and tender shoots of roses is apt to cause mildew, and nothing will so quickly stunt their growth as this uncanny pest.

Evergreen cuttings of all kinds, but especially arbor-vitæ, juniper and retinispora, root readily now, bearing in mind they prefer shade, heat and abundant moisture in the air. Be very careful not to water cuttings unless the sand should be dry, but sprinkle the floor freely to induce a damp atmosphere.

For the Cook.

Carrot Pie.—They taste very much like squash. Scrape, slice, boil tender, and run through a seive or colander. Take one tablespoonful of carrot, one egg, and one cup of milk to each pie, and sugar, salt and spices to taste. Don't omit a pinch of salt to each pie.

To re-Cook Liver.—We have frequently cooked liver left from a meal, and the following is one way I fix it for supper. Chop it fine, salt, and pepper it to suit the taste, and sprinkle some curry powder over it; put it in a sauce pan with all the gravy; if not moist enough add hot water. Toast some bread, wet it, and put the hash on top. Serve hot.

To Prepare Spinach.—Strip the leaves from the stem, wash them thoroughly, and boil twenty minutes in water to which salt has been added. Drain through a colander. Mix together a tablespoonful of floor, a half cup or a cup of sour cream, and a little black pepper. Put the spinach back into the pot, stir the gravy into it thoroughly, and serve. The spinach in the bowl may be covered with fried eggs.

Whipped Potatoes.—Peel thin, cut in halves or quarters, lay in cold water one hour or two; put over the fire in boiling water, salt and cook until tender. Drain off all the water strew salt on the potatoes and set them in the uncovered pot at the back of the range to dry. Turn out into a hot bowl and whip until light and mealy. Beat in them a tablespoonful of warm butter, and for every dozen large potatoes nearly a cup of hot (not boiled) milk, and salt to taste. The product should be as smooth as cream, but thicker. Heap in a deep dish.

Farming Miscellany.

The example set by the farmers of two countries in Northern New-Hampshire, for the purpose of reforming the management of the annual fairs, is an encouraging one to the many everywhere who lament the dangerous corruptions that in many places are even invited to these annual gatherings of farmers. Let all these righteous complainers cease mere complaining, and manage their festival and fair for themselves.

"Full feeding from the start," says the New York Times, "should be the maxim of the stock-feeder, whether his object is beef, mutton, pork or poultry. Yet there is a way of high feeding by which an enormous carcass of fat is prematurely produced by rich feeding in a short time. And it is a question whether this high feeding is as profitable as a longer period of more moderate feeding, since it is the moderately-fed and not overfatted beast which meets the consumer's views, rather than the animal which takes the prize at fat-stock shows.

Peter Henderson, one of the best authorities upon market gardening, highly recommends the white plume celery, the stalks, inner leaves and heart of which are naturally white, which fact makes unnecessary the costly work of banking the celery to bleach it. In appearance the white plume is very ornamental, as the inner leaves are disposed something like an ostrich feather or plume, which suggested its name. It is said to be crisp, solid, and of fine flavor, but not as long keeping as the old green sorts, its tenderness and crispness causing it to rot sooner.

Here is a practical idea, in a few words, from a correspondent of the Poultry Yard:—I make saw benches for roosts—that is, I take 2x4 scantling and nail legs to them of the length to suit space and breed. These, as you will at once see, can be moved at pleasure when cleaning droppings, or for any other reason that may present itself; but the best part of it is as regards lice. Every week I take my kerosene can and go to the hen house, carefully pick up and carry out of doors my saw benches, pour the kerosene on them, and touch it off; the flame will quickly run over every part of it, and go without burning the wood, but every mite or nit that would have made one, you are rid of forever. I have followed this plan for some time, and have no trouble with lice.

Animals kept up should be stined rather than allowed all they will eat. Eating and digesting are two different things—a fact I learned long ago, with reference to myself, and which I apply with advantage to my live stock. There have just been new illustrations of it on the farm. A crippled Jersy cow, which is always kept in a box-stall and waited on, had a continuous diarrhœa, and was running down. After wondering why this was so a careful inspection of her excrement revealed the fact that she was over fed. The diarrhœa was the natural result of the inhability of the stomach to digest the meal. Reducing this food one-half arrested the trouble.

H. Stewart, in the New York Times, speaking in regard to cattle getting choked with roots or apples, says: "Sometimes a tablespoonful of sweet oil, melted lard or linseed oil poured down the throat will make it easy to work the obstacle up or down. If not the safest thing is at once to take a sharp, small knife and to cut down—not across—the gullet, directly over the obstruction, first through the skin and muscle and then through the gullet, and make a slit large enough to remove the piece of root. This is safer than to force anything down the throat to push the root down into the stomach. The cut is drawn together by two or three separate stitches in the gullet and as many as may be needed in the skin, leaving the ends hanging out of the wound, so they may be drawn out when the edges of the wound have united. This is a perfectly safe operation, and is, of course, effective, without injury being done."

Some recently complied dairy statistics may prove interesting: About $2,000,000,000 is invested in the dairy business of the United States; 15,000,000 cows supply the milk, and it takes 60,000,000 acres of land to feed them, and 700,000 men and 1,000,000 horses to attend to them and the milk they produce. These cows and horses consume annually 30,000,000 tons of hay, 90,000,000 bushels of cornmeal and oatmeal, 275,000,000 bushels of oats and various other grains, the total cost of which is about $400,000,000 per year, while the hired help costs $168,000,000. The yearly return for this investment is 6,750,000,000 gallons of milk, which at an average of twelve cents per gallon, would bring $810,000,000.

Corn, Peas and Beans.

To have no break in the succession of vegetables is all important. Of sweet corn we have found nothing genuinely good earlier than Russel's Prolific. Following this, and treading closely upon it, is Squantum, a comparatively new variety. After considerable discussion upon the merits of corn by a party of amateur gardeners who tried it, we came to the conclusion that Squantum was the best we had ever eaten. Stowell's Evergreen serves us well for a late variety. We found last year that the Black-eyed Marrowfat peas fitted in very nicely between the American Wonder and the Champion of England. These three varieties, and the several kinds of corn mentioned, furnish excellent food for a long period, the peas lasting till the roasting ears come, and the latter continuing for the rest of the season. The much-landed wax beans, of which there are many kinds, I always leave for such as prefer them, continuing to raise the old horticultural or Speckled Cranberry as the richest and the best.—J. E. J. Vernon, N. Y.

A Plea for Our Young Folks.

For a few years past our agricultural newspapers have discussed to the fullest extent the reasons why our boys should "stick to the farm." The arguments are not objectionable, but the prevailing idea that has grown out of these articles has a tendency to force rural people to be rural citizens always. There is no more occasion that a farmer's son shall be a farmer than there is that a doctor's son shall be a doctor, or a lawyer's son a lawyer. It is one of the most important items in the foundation of a child's life work that its parents early ascertain to what labor or profession it is naturally inclined. With many children no taste for special work is developed until near manhood; and nothing could be more beneficial in helping them to decide the great question than a college education. But you say: "I want Henry to have the old farm, and Mary must settle near us to cheer our wintry years."

Yes; this would be a fond mother's ideal, yet it has enough selfishness in it often to wreck a child's highest success and happiness. Give them the college education—both boys and girls—and let them feel that not even a parent's love will cheat them of their birthright. Just as many boys perhaps, will return to the farm as would stay there under the strict command: "Stick to the farm." Then they would be happier for having decided their avocation for themselves. A college education is worth just as much to rural youths as to city fops and belles. Farmer's daughters might easily hold the highest rank in intelligence and refinement if only the custom of college lore for rustics were more prevalent. Debate the question by the winter fire, and see if some offering from vine, tree or field cannot be exchanged for sources of fruitful knowledge for those who are now the light of home, who are bearing the buds of springtime which, under favoring circumstances, will mature beautiful flowers, and rich, rare fruit. You can bestow no worthier gift upon their queenly womanhood and noble manhood than a good education—one which will fit them for life's greatest joy and usefulness.—A Lady in Rural New Yorker.

FIRST LOVE OF A WARRIOR.

The Beautiful Girl Who Captured Gen. Hancock's Heart.

The name of the gallant soldier, Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock, is familiar to millions of Americans. But few know of the many great hardships which he labored under before attaining his present honorable position. He was born in Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, Feb. 14, 1824. His father was the owner of a well-paying farm there. Unlike most farmers, Mr. Hancock made up his mind to give his son all the benefits of a good education. At the age of 6 years he was sent to an academy for young gentlemen in the neighborhood.

He remained there until he was 16 years of age, when he was graduated with high honors. His parents then wished to place him at work in a large wholesale dry-goods house in Philadelphia. He had different views for himself, however, and asked that he might be permitted to go to West Point to study for the army.

Mr. Hancock placed no obstacles in the way of his son. He was admitted to West Point in 1840. He devoted himself entirely to his books and was thus enabled to graduate after four years with a lieutenant's commission. He returned to his father's home, but he was of too active temperament to remain long inactive. With a party of army men he started out to explore the great west. Their first stopping-place was St. Louis, where they remained. Gen. Hancock at the time made it a practice to take a ride on horseback every morning.

While taking his daily constitutional through the streets of St. Louis, early one morning, his attention was attracted by the sight of a handsome young lady standing in the window of one of the most fashionable houses in the city. Up to this time he had remained heart-whole, notwithstanding that numerous society young ladies were only too eager to become Mrs. Hancock. But the lovely countenance at the window gave him his first heart-flutter. Almost involuntarily he stooped his charger and doffed his hat. The young lady blushed divinely, waved one fair hand toward him in token of farewell, and then let the window-curtains fall. He rode toward his hotel blushing like a school-boy, thrilled with a new and sweet sensation. After returning to his hotel he became so abstracted as to excite the attention of his comrades. The vision of a fair young girl standing at the window kept continually in his mind. He could not resist the temptation to go again and take a look at the house where his divinity lived As he reached the place she was just leaving the house on the arm of a tall, handsome gray-whiskered gentlemen. The young lady apparently recognized him, for rosy blushes chased one another in rapid succession over her fair countenance. With her companion she entered a handsome carriage standing in front of the house, and was readily driven away. The brilliant young officer determined at all hazards not to let this opportunity of finding out who she was pass. He hailed a cab, and giving the driver a handsome "tip" directed him to keep the carriage in sight. Who can describe his feelings when, after an hour's riding, he saw the carriage containing his charmer draw up at the door of one of his old army comrades? In a moment his mind was made up. He dismissed his cab and walked slowly in the direction of the house. He knocked for admission, and was at once ushered in by his friend in person.

With many blushes and hesitancy he made known the whole affair to him, and begged to be introduced to the young lady. His friend laughingly complied with the request and led him into the parlor, where the lady and gentleman were already seated. He was introduced to Miss Mary Russell and the gentleman with her as her father, one of the merchant princes of St. Louis. Before leaving the house that afternoon he had received a cordial invitation from Mr. Russell to visit his house. He availed himself of the invitation, and thereafter became a constant caller.

The sweet-faced young lady appeared to be as deeply in love with the young soldier as he was with her, and six months after their romantic acquaintance was formed they were happily married. The lady has proved herself a devoted wife. They have had two children a boy and a girl. The boy, now a man 33 years old, is a wealthy planter in Mississippi, but the fondly-loved daughter died in 1875, in this city, at the age of 20 years.—New York Journal.

Swedenborg and Divorce.

From the New Jerusalem Messenger.

In the Observer of the 21st ult. is an editorial on "Swedenborg and Divorce." Why "Swedenborg and Divorce" does not appear, for the editorial does not touch upon what Swedenborg says about divorce. Swedenborg does not sanction divorce except for the one spiritual cause. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Among no class of people is marriage more exalted, and the marriage relation more honored than among those who receive the doctrines taught in Swedenborg's writings. Among no class of people is divorce less frequent or more condemned. And among no class of Christians are the practices which both the Observer and we condemn more abhored. Dr. Crosby alluded to the doctrines of the New Church as being in harmony with the lustful tendency of the age, yet that the New Church remains among a very few, and does not attract the class of persons Dr. Crosby refers to, is an answerable proof to the falsity of his conclusions. How to treat the deep-seated social evils which grow out of the abuse of the sexual relation is one of the social problems which must sooner or later be taken and discussed by Christian writers. When this is done, it may be discovered that Swedenborg's practical wisdom on the subject will answer the problem. It requires no wisdom to denounce evil in a wholesale way. And it is the same kind of wisdom which is so quick to denounce all attempts to discriminate between grades of evil, and to encourage those in deeper evils to advance step by step to what is right and true.

THE THIN MAN TALKS.

He Discourses on the Charms of Widows, But not as Wives.

From the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

"Widows are queer," said the thin man with the cold tea scheme, as he scratched his nose with the point of a barlow knife. "There is something about them that is not to be found in any other portion of the human race."

"Overflow of electricity, p'raps," sententiously suggested the thin man without a shirt collar.

"P'raps."

"While the husband is alive he acts as a sort of ground wire that they can discharge their excess of the element through," continued the thin man in the style of one who has long studied and philosophized upon a subject of deep personal importance. "A woman possesses much more electricity than a man, It is a necessity for the serious mission of life she fulfills. This frequently accumulates, like an excess of steam, and then she has to blow off."

"You have found it so?" sympathetically asked the man with the cold tea scheme.

"It has struck me that way," replied the thin man with a sigh.

"You are a ground wire, perhaps?"

"I am a ground wire," answered the thin man in a low, subdued tone of voice.

"I have occasionally noticed that you looked as though you had been struck by lightning, but what I referred to was a woman without her ground wire, a widow. There is something wonderfully fascinating about them. They seem to belong to the fraternity; to have taken all the degrees, as I may say, and can give a man the sign and grip and claim full fellow-ship. If I may be allowed the expression, they know right where to tickle them under the chin, right where his chin is the most ticklish. And they have the nerve to do it. There is where they hold such an advantage over the unmarried girls that come in competition with them. While your miss is blushing and putting a fellow to all sorts of desperate attempts to make himself agreeable, your widow is quietly making him think he is the handsomest and smartest man in the world. You see she puts him in a good humor with hinself and then he is sure to be in a good humor with her. She knows to an ounce just how much flattery the man will take from a woman, and she also knows that this earth does not contain the full amount. She is the terror of her sex. The maried women are afraid of her for she knows too much, and the girls detest her, for they feel that she is a rival in the field, with tactics of which they are in sublime ignorance. Naturally, this unhappy position excites sympathy, and the men view her as a sacred trust bequeathed to them by some departed ground wire, that they are bound to respect. Then, they are so cosy and comfortable and confidential like. They tell you all their little woes and troubles, and hopes and annoyances, and the first thing you know they make you feel like a father to them.

"In fact, they are so warm and comforting as widows that a man—"

"That's enough," broke in the thin man. "Don't go any further. Your picture is a pretty one. Don't spoil it with a bad frame. As widows they are angels, but—"

"As wives, what are they?"

Well, I'm married to one, and not a liberty to say."

A RIDE OF TERROR.

Harvey McHenry's Short Experience with Jumping Nitro-Glycerine.

Monday morning Harvey McHenry started from Olean, N. Y., with a loa of nitro glycerine for the Bradford, Pa. oil district, there being 50 quarts, al told, in tin cans. The road throug Berger Hollow is one of the worst the district, being narrow, rough, hil and slippery. McHenry was drivir carefully along, and while descending very long and steep hill, on which t wagon kept sliding from one side of t road to the other, the pole sudder snapped in two and the wagon r against the heels of the horses. Tl immediately started on a run down hill. McHenry says that he could feel blood turn cold in his veins, know as he did that a much less disturba to cans of nitro-glycerine than the to which the jolting of his wagon subjecting those in his charge was i great majority of cases sufficient to plode them; but when he saw th collision between the wagon and a that stood by the roadside was ine able, he closed his eyes and waited the explosion from which there seemed to be no possible escape.

The wagon struck the tree, but t surprise and joy of the teamster no plosion followed. Believing that unexpected and unprecedented fortune as that could not possibly tinue, McHenry resolved to jump the nitro-glycerine magazine as it carried flying down the hill. jumped, and, striking against a dislocated one knee and injured spine. The wagon had gone but feet, when, to the horror of the less teamster, it was over turned. for some unaccountable reason, th tro-glycerine did not explode. horses fell to the ground, and, in efforts to regain and keep on thei they dragged the wagon it was overturned four This occupied but few ments, but to McHenry, lying ho at a spot where, if an explosion oc there would not be a tree left sta nor the fragment o a rock, and h self would be torn to atoms, t seemed an age o agony. The finally broke loose from the wag ran away. That was the last Mc remembered until he was pick and carried to a house near by. men working at a well in a lot 3 away had seen the runaway, an ing the wagon to be a nitro-gl wagon, they had lost no time in still greater distance betwee themselves, as the possibility o plosion being averted was not fo stant expected by them. W horses broke loose, they went Henry's aid. No instance is o in the oil region where nitro-g was ever subjected to so sever without an explosion following none occurred in this case is counted for by the fact that terial had been stored in t with unusual care and regard f

In 1742 the Philadelphia was on Market street, near F at that time William Dunlap master, and this gentleman pelled at one time to ask the ple to call at the office for t because his "penny-post"— delivered the letters—had ru

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA.

Attractions to the Tourist—A Fort of Great Antiquity and Strength—Famous Dungeons, etc.

A late letter from a Northern Tourist says: It is impossible to convey in words the charming impressions which a stay here occasions. The antiquity of the city, its quaint, narrow streets, with overhanging balconies; the halo of romance given it by memories of Ponce de Leon and the exploits of Pedro Menendiz and Awedondo, and its beautiful gardens, where roses are always blossoming among the date palms and orange and fig trees, give it an atmosphere different to that of any other city in the state. The sea-wall skirts the entire front of the city from the parade ground at the south to the fort at the north. This forms a delightful promenade. Guard mount is held every afternoon at the parade ground, and two concerts are given each week by the fine military band stationed here. The barracks was formerly an old Spanish convent, but it has been considerably altered by the government to adapt it to its present use. Passing along the sea-wall we come to the old fort. It was built with a moat and draw-bridge, which latter has been replaced by a stationary one. An enterprising photographer "lays" for you just outside, ready to take your picture, with any part of the fort as a background. It covers four acres, is built of coquina rock, and is one of the finest examples of engineering skill in the county. It has never been taken, but has stood sieges, indications of which are to be seen on the side fronting the bay. It mounts 100 guns, and has accommodated a garrison of upward of 1,000 men. Its interior is a court (now a lawn-tennis field), around which casements, one of which is the chapel. Under the northern bastions and almost adjoining the chapel are the famous dungeons.

There are a series of four in the northeast bastion, opening into one another in such a way that by the time you reach the third you are in total darkness, and rely on the guide and his torch to for further exploration. The openings in the last two are very narrow and low, and have been walled up. These two further dungeons were discovered accidentally in 1836 by the roof of the bastion falling in. The story in connection with this is that two iron cages were discovered suspended from the wall of the furthest dungeon, each containing a skeleton, one of them that of a woman. In spite of the circumstantiality of this statement as to the sex of the skeleton, the story is a very doubtful one, and lacks confirmation from the Smithsonian institution, at which place the cages are said to be kept.

In the center of the city is the Plaza de la Constitution, a large open square, where can be found growing the date palm, Spanish bayonet, the banana, orange and many other of the choicest semi-tropical trees and flowering shrubs. In addition to the confederate monument erected in 1812, during the Spanish occupation, commemorating the Spanish liberal constitution. It was placed there by the city council "for eternal remembrance," as the Spanish inscription on the marble tablet states. At the end of the plaza, fronting the sea-wall, is the old Spanish slave market. It is built of coquina rock of large proportions, and consists of a raised terrace with a colonade all around supporting the roof, and is, of course, open all around. It has a fountain in the center, and is well provided with seats. The plaza is the spot that will linger longest in the memory of the visitor. To sit here on pleasant moonlight evenings, with the glancing waters of the bay for a background and the lights of the hotel dimly visible through the thick semi-tropical foliage, listening to the patter of the fountains, while every breath of the warm air comes laden with the perfume of orange blossoms and cape jessamine, mingled with the sound of distant music that is "lending enchantment to flying feet" in some hotel ball-room, is a phase of enjoyment that carries one back to the Arabian Nights in imagination.

Further on is the old Spanish cathedral. It has a Moorish belfry, with four bells set in niches, which, with the clock, form the cross. One of these bells is evidently much older than the building. It has a cross and bears this legend:

Sancta Joseph
Ora pro Nobis
D. 1682.

In the interior is a large painting which commemorates the first mass said in St. Augustine, September 8, 1565, at the landing of the Spaniards under Pedro Menendiz. In addition to this statement it bears this inscription: "With religion came to our shores civilization, arts, sciences and industry." But the arts and sciences and civilization took a long while in coming, and the industry doesn't seem to have arrived yet. At least there is very little indication of it. This is probably owing to the fact that life is carried on under much easier conditions here. The items of fuel and clothing are very slight matters in the expenses of the poorer classes. Provisions are about the same price as at the North, while fish and oysters are n great abundance all along the coast, nd berries and vegetables can be raised ny time of the year.

A Relative of Warren Hastings.

rom The Whitehall Review.

Sir George Cornewall Lewis used to ave a theory that there never was an uthentically established case of any ne living for a hundred years. He sed to maintain that when the cases of lleged centenarians were carefully inuired into it was usually found either t the age was greatly exaggerated, that there was no proof whatever of e date of birth. It seems, however, hat an undoubted centenarian is now ving and looking on the earth in the erson of Miss Hastings, of Malvern, ho celebrated her hundred-and-third irthday last week. Miss Hastings is a lative of Warren Hastings. She must ave been seven years old on that his- ric day when her famous kinsman was rought to trial in the great hall of illiam Rufus. Even in the days when acaulay wrote his glowing essay it emed strange to think that the House Lords had in its rank a man who ayed a part in the impeachment, and uld, in listening to the lofty and aniated eloquence of Charles, Earl Grey, [illegible] a race of men among whom was not the foremost. Lord Grey [illegible] Macaulay himself has been dead for well-nigh a quarter of a century, and yet it is curious to reflect that we have still living among us a kinswoman of the great pro-consul, who was seven years old when the impeachment began, who was a girl of fourteen when it ended in acquittal.

William Astor's New Steel Yacht

The Nourmahal, William Astor's new $350,000 yacht, is to be launched in a few weeks. The hull and the frame are of steel, the deck beams are of steel, and even the deck itself is to be made of the same material. Steel will be used for the deck houses as high as the windows.

The Nourmahal promises a beautiful model. The deck length is 227 feet and a few inches. The breadth of beam is 30 feet, and the depth of hold 18.7½. Speed is to be less of an object than safety and comfort. The two engines can be worked to the extent of 1,400 horse-power, but only twelve knots an hour is expected from ordinary pressure, which can be increased to fourteen if necessary. The yacht is to be barque-rigged, and will spread something like 7,000 square feet of canvas to the breeze.

Mr. Astor intends to furnish his floating palace in a manner befitting its cost. As in Mr. Bennett's Namouna and Mr. Gould's Atlanta, the cabins will be forward, and the old-time quarter deck will be given up to the seamen. The engines are to be placed about midships. Below deck and just forward of the engines, the main saloon will begin, running the full width of the vessel, and is to be lighted by an immense skylight to be finished in solid hard wood, and to be furnished with richest material, including sofas, chairs, and a long extension table for dining purposes. Leading from the saloon is to be a hallway. Opening from it, on the starboard side is to be the owner's stateroom, a large room luxuriously furnished. Just forward is another stateroom, and opposite, on the port side, three staterooms for guests. At the end of the hallway is to be a cabin for ladies, extending, like the main saloon across the vessel. Forward of the cabin will be two rooms for the maids. The furnishing of these rooms is to be in hard wood.

There will be more room in the Nourmahal than in the Atalanta. It is expected that the yacht will do well under canvas. The standing rigging is to be of charcoal-galvanized wire and the running of manila bolt rope. The tall foremast, raking aft, will float a pennant 109 feet above the deck. Electric bells from all the forward cabins and staterooms will summon attendants, and the electric light will be used in every portion of the yacht. About three months will be required to complete everything after the launch.

Cerro Gordo Williams.

Washington Letter to the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

Senator Williams, of Kentucky, is evidently much affected by his defeat. He has no longer the smiles that made him something of an incarnate joy to the beholder. He broods at his desk and is a listless attendant upon the debates. He no longer amuses the senate with his fervid anecdotes of Europe, and no longer proclaims himself resonantly the "farmer's friend." I suspect that with the loss of position and influence many sunshine friends have departed, and that he is daily made to feel the capacity of human nature for ingratitude and hypocrisy. In another city there is a grand old gentleman who suffers the pangs of political misfortune still more keenly. He had almost every reason to expect an election that belonged to him by what is called poetic justice, as well as the reward of talent and patriotism. By a panic and an accident, quite unprovided for, he was made bankrupt of all hope when most assured of the prize. It has disturbed his whole life, sleeping and waking, and it may make the palace of his mind a haunted one indeed. Alas for those who put their trust in Princes or make ambition the ruling principle! That way misery or madness lies. Old John Hopkins used to say that there could be no happiness when the devil of ambition entered the mind and heart of man, for fruition was not heaven and obstruction was hell.

Antonic Dyspepsia.

Antonic means without, or diminished tone or vigor. As applied to dyspepsia, it denotes a form of it resulting from an enfeebled condition of the system. The tendency to it is quite often inherited.

It is frequently one of the characteristics of old age, the entire digestive tract sharing in the general decrease of physical power. It may also have its origin in whatever lets down the normal vitality—sedentary occupations; bad hygienic surroundings; protracted loss of sleep, especially if the hours due to it are spent in study or pleasure; over-brain-work; habitual lack of mental employments.

The following are some of the prominent symptoms; a feeling of uneasiness in the stomach after eating, and generally lasting four hours: the "gulping" up of rancid and offensive acids, and flatulence in the stomach and bowls; little or no appetite, and often a positive disrelish for food; an almost entire absence of thirst; an inflamed condition of the throat and back of the mouth (from the extension upward of the irritated membrane of the stomach rendering the throat dry and the voice kusky; constipation, from the enfeebled action of the intestines, the fluid portion of their contents being unduly absorbed; in some cases palpitation of the heart and difficulty of breathing, causing the patient to fear that he has some dangerous heart trouble; languor, and sometimes uncontrollable drowsiness after meals.

When the dyspepsia has continued long, the digestive tubules are liable to undergo fatty degeneration and wasting, with loss of power to secrete the gastric juice.

Prior to this change of structure the ailment is curable. It is due to specific causes, these causes must be removed. If it is part of an enfeebled physical state, this must be remedied.

The family physician alone can treat the case with any success. The medicines which the patient, of himself, or from the advice of unwise friends, might be likely to take would, in many cases, only aggravate the disease. Indeed, the physician himself will depend very little on medicine, and mainly on a careful regulation of the diet, personal habits domestic influences. Especially will [illegible] frequent changes from one's ordinary cares and surroundings.—Youth's Companion.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Miscellaneous Recipes.

POP CORN.—Pop five quarts of corn, put a little over a cup of molasses in a porcelain kettle, let it boil 15 minutes; then put the corn in and stir until each grain is covered with molasses, then pour out on greased pans. It is just splendid. Will you tell Charity Sweetheart that if I were in that house the walls would not be bare of pictures long. I would have them one way or another.

CRACKED CEILING.—"Take plaster of Paris and mix with water; make it as stiff as plastering and apply with a towel or anything that will make it smooth. Mix but a small quantity at a time as it hardens quickly and then cannot be used. I spent several days mounted on a table mending my walls, but it proved effectual, and now after twelve years they are as nice as new. If the cracks are very large a portion of white sand may be used with the plaster of Paris." This mixture is much better than mortar for filling cracks, as it does not shrink. It is much better, says another correspondent, than putty for filling nail holes in plastering.

INFLAMED EYELIDS.—M. A. C. writes: "My eyes were so bad I could scarcely read, but after using the following remedies persistently I can read several hours every day besides teaching five and a half hours daily. Ointment: Two ounces fresh unsalted butter, two drams white wax; melt together in a saucer but do not make very hot. When nearly cold stir in one half dram of red precipitate and the same quantity of finely pulverized sulphate of zinc, the two mixed well together. Apply to the lids morning and night before retiring. Eye wash: Sugar of lead and sulphate of zinc, half a dram each; common salt and loaf sugar one dram; rain water, one half pint. Let the mixture stand two or three days, shaking occasionally, strain through white flannel and use several times a day."

A SMOOTH SKIN.—A. B. C. waants good wash that will prevent a breaking out on the skin. The best we know is water, applied both internally and externally. Externally every morning with soap and sponge, internally several times a day unadulterated with tea or coffee. The food should be simple, nutritious, taken at regular intervals and at not less than three hours before going to bed at night. The sleep should be in a well ventilated room and in a well-aired bed. Exercise in the open air should be abundant and regular. If these simple directions do not make the skin smooth then A. B. C. should consult a physician.

In Dublin lately the following illustration was given of the Importance of ventilation:

"The lecturer explained that the most deleterious products of non-ventilation are the myriads of disease germs which exists in vitiated air, and by experiment showed the excess of deadly carbonic-acid which breathing or combustion leaves behind. Three small candles placed at different heights in a large glass jar open at the top were lit, and gradually as the layer of carbonic acid gas reached them, they somouldered out. The jar being thus filled with the carbonic gas, this in turn was poured into a smaller jar wherein a candle was light. The latter was at once extinguished."

PRESERVING BOUQUETS.—A very simple and effective method of preserving a bouquet is as follows: Sprinkle it with fresh water, and then immerse the stalks in a vessel containing soapsuds, removing the bouquet every morning, and placing it in fresh water for a few minutes. After sprinkling the flowers lightly with fresh water return them to the soapsuds. This process, repeated day by day, will cause the bouquet to preserve its bloom. The soapsuds should be changed every third day.

Resetting Plants.

Farm and Garden says: Plants that have been kept in the cellar, and are intended to bloom in pots, may be shaken out and replanted in fresh soil. If they are too large or do not require repotting, some of the top soil may be taken off and be replaced by well-rotted manure. Trim out all the weak branches, and all superfluous ones. It is almost impossible to say how much to trim, as it depends much on the plant as a rule it is better not to cut back enough, than too much. After repotting the plants water them well and let them remain in the cellar until the weather is warm enough to set them out."

Rhubarb Pie and Old Time Pancakes.

"Rhubarb?" said the artist as he laid aside his apron; "you are a little early for that. But if you want my recipe here it is: Peel and cut into inch-lenghs two small bunches of rhubarb; put on the fire in a porcelain stew-pan with half a cup of water; cook until tender and then stir in a large tablespoonful of butter, a dessert spoonful of cornstarch; wet with a little cold water and a scant cupful of sugar. Remove from the fire after it has boiled up once and add very slowly, beating the while, two well-whipped eggs. Line a deep dish with good paste, fill with this mixture, cover with paste and bake. There should be two cups of the rhubarb after it is stewed. The above quantity is sufficient for one large or two small pies."

"You have probably tasted pancakes 'that grandmother made?'"

"Yes."

"Well, what was her way?"

Whipping out a book of memoranda, the artist read slowly:

"Melt butter the size of an egg in a pint of hot sweet milk; add a pint of cold milk, the yolks of four eggs thoroughly beaten, a teaspoonful of salt, half a cake of compressed yeast dissolved in a little warm water, and flour sufficient to make a stiff batter; set this to rise in a warm place for three hours if they are wanted for dinner, over night in a cool place if they are wanted for breakfast, and then add the beaten whites which have been kept cool meantime. No flour must be added again before baking. Try these with honey or maple syrup."

Notes on Home Flower-Growing.

Pot primroses do well in shady windows.

In sowing seeds cover to twice their diameters. Pot plants bestow grace on the plainest apartments.

Plants of the German [illegible]

The orchid epidendum cilare smells precisely like roasted apples.

Camellias should have their foliage sprinkled or moistened daily.

Every flower looks the best when graced by a setting of its own foliage.

In repotting plants, take care that they stand no deeper in the new pot than before.

Sow mignonette where the plants are wanted, for transplanting them seldom succeeds well.

The begonia welteminsis is one of the easiest grown and rarest flowering varieties of these excellent pot-plants for summer decorum.

Sweet peas and morning-glories may be sown very early in the garden; the flowers are the finer for having the roots form in cool weather.

Water heated to one hundred and thirty degrees is one of the best remedies for plant-insects of all kinds. Submerge the plants completely several times, a few seconds at a time.

A beautiful custom prevails in some places of giving each child belonging to a Sunday school a flowering plant in the spring.

The sooner dahlias, richardia, caladium and cannaroots, that have been kept over winter, are started into growth, the longer will be the summer show of these flowers.

Cinerarias, although they will not bear the slightest degree of frost without harm, are impatient of heat. About fifty degrees is the best for them.

Good taste is against the mixture of many different flowers in the arrangement of bouquets. A few kinds, and then different colors of these, produces the most pleasing results.

Wild violets of the different colors, blue, yellow and white, and the trilliums or wake-robins, taken from open woods, thrive in cultivation if planted in partly shaded places.

Paragraphs About the Farm.

Boiled barley is quite generally fed horses in England. It is said to have one-third more nutrition than oats.

The Virginia creeper, on account of its quick growth, is a favorite vine for planting around outhouses and trellises.

Farmers should test their seed corn. Hiram Sibley & Co., the great seedsmen, say that of the tests they have made this year nine out of ten have proved failures.

In answer to a question as to what is the best grain food for milch cows, Prof. Arnold recommends four parts of bran, two parts of cornmeal and one part of linseed meal, as having given him the best results in proportion to cost of any dry food that he had ever used.

Watercress belongs to the same natural order as cabbage, radish, mustard, etc. It cannot be called hardy, though it does live, from year to year, in spring water, which protects its roots from frost. That first sent to market in spring is largely these recumbent stems, with roots from every joint, grown partially under water and so close to its surface as to have been protected from freezing by its warmth.—Gardener's Monthly.

To make pork of the best quality, especially for smoking, no strong-tasting food should be given during the last few weeks of the pig's existence. Even Indian meal is considered much too strongly flavored by English farmers who make choice hams and bacon a specialty. To the refuse milk of the diary they add barley or oatmeal and well-boiled potatoes.

The advantage of thoroughbreds over natives may be shown by the statement of a Michigan farmer, whose grade shorthorn weighed 125 pounds when only one day old. At the time he was weighed he had not sucked his dam, but had a light feed four hours previously. Another breeder reports his shorthorn calf, aged 9 months, as weighing 740 pounds, which is more than many calves from native stock weigh of two-years' growth.

As a winter feeding sheep on our farms, the merino, says the Michigan Farmer, has no equal, especially if straw is to be converted into manure If it be of the model form, with its abundant fleece, and of proper age, it can be easily fattened to weigh 125 pounds, and will command the highest price per pound, live weight, in eastern markets. It should not be converted into mutton until 4 years old. It is no riper at this age than the mutton breeds are at 2 years.

The importance of organization among farmers for the purpose of assisting each other and exchanging their experiences for the benefit of one and all cannot be too strongly urged. As soils differ so do the methods of cultivation, and each year's experience convinces the farmer that, no matter how observing he may have been in the past, there is always something new presented and fresh ideas gained. It is only when farmers regularly meet, however, and present their different views, that mistakes are corrected and better methods employed.

A good crop of beets will be found an excellent adjunct to the grain and hay feed for stock. Beets should be put in early, although crops may be seeded in at a later period. They give a dietary effect, as well as being valuable for their feeding qualities. As a table vegetable the beet is appreciated by all. They are always in prime condition, are easily prepared and may be stored away for winter use directly from the field, or pickled in vinegar for immediate service when required. The Fgyptian and Blood Red are preferable early varieties for the table, and the Mangel Wurtzel and Sugar beets are more desirable for stock. Sow the seed lightly on rich, light, well prepared soil, in rows eighteen inches apart, thinning them to single plants six inches from each other.

Preparing Asparagus Beds.

The soil should be a deep, mellow, sandy loam. Thoroughly plow and harrow it both ways, and apply plenty of well-rotted manure, which should be plowed under; the more manure the better. Open furrows 10 or 12 inches deep, and two-and-one-half or three feet apart, if for garden culture, or four feet for field culture. Have the plants 15 inches apart in the row, in garden culture; or two feet in field culture. [illegible] the plants over three inches, and [illegible] the young shoots show above the surface from the cultivator alongside the rows, throwing a little soil against the plants. Cultivate thoroughly.

Merits of Wheats.

The Government of British India has lately instituted some interesting experiments to ascertain the comparative merits of wheats raised in that country and elsewhere. Equal quantities of Indian, American, Australian, Russian, and Egyptian wheats were ground into flour, which was made into bread, and accurate accounts were kept of the results. The Indian wheats were the heaviest, weighing from 60 to 64 pounds per bushel against 61 to 61½ pounds for American. The Indian wheats also produced the most flour, yielding from 73.2 to 80.52 per cent. of the grain, against 69.5 to 73.8 per cent. form American wheats. The percentage of gluten, however, the principle nutritive element of bread, was considerably les in Indian than in American wheats ranging from 6.4 to 13.4 in the former, and from 8.7 to 15.3 in the latter. The flour from the Indian wheat made the most bread, a given quantity of it having produced from 365 to 376.6 pounds of bread according to the variety used, against 346 to 364 pounds from the same quantity of American flour; but the color, taste, texture and other characteristics of the bread from our wheats were more satisfactory, especially in case of our winter wheats. Indian wheats have a beany flour; the flours are ricey; the texture of the bread is too close, while the crust is hard and brittle; hence it is recommended that these wheats should be mixed in proportion of 25 to 50 per cent. with "wheats, such as the Americans, possessing a fine, sweet, milky or nutty flavor."—Rural New Yorker.

Origin of Camille.

The younger Dumas is sixty years of age, but he does not look over forty-five. When he was twenty-five, it is said, he found himself face to face with a mass of debts and without a son wherewith to pay them. Though his father made and coined money with his writings he flung it out of the window as fast as he earned it, and was unable to help the young man out of his difficulties. The son contemplated his liabilities, perceived the hopelessness of his position, and made up his mind, with the cool resoluteness which forms the background of his character, to commit suicide. He wrote some letters, set his papers in order, and locked himself up in room mith a case of loaded pistols. But at the very momant of taking up his weapon an idea crossed his brain: "Suppose I try my hand at literature once more!—suppose I write a novel?" The "Deme Aux Camellias" was the fruit of this idea. The novel and its still more famous adaptation for the stage brought Dumas both fame and fortune, and there was no more idea of committing suicide. Years after he showed a friend the still loaded pistol which he kept as a relic in a locked drawer. "I keep that as an evidence that no man need ever despair," was his remark. The heroine of the "Dame aux Caucllias," known to the French stage as Marguerite Gautier, and to the American boards at Camille, was a real personage named Madeleine Duplessis. One touching trait in her career deserves recording. When she died, she bequeathed all her possessions to her niece, a young peasant girl, on condition that she should never come to Paris. The victim of Paris desired te save her innocent young relative. Madeleine Duplessis was originally a washerwoman. "What would you have thought," said one of her admirers to her one day, "If, while you were wringing out clothes, some one had prophesied to you all the splendor and gayety of your present life?" "I should have died of horror, and shame and disgust!" was the passionate reply. Her portrait now in crayon adorns the private apartments of the younger Dumas. He was one of the two mourners who were present at her funeral, and he has immortalized her sorrow and her suffering."

How Great Players Travel.

Mr. Joseph Jefferson (Rip Van Winkle) will travel only 20 weeks next season. He is conducting his affairs at present upon a basis which is avoided by all other theatrical stars. It is his intention to play from September until the last of December, which is generally considered the worst part of the dramatic season, particularly in an election year. Seventeen weeks out of the 20 which are laid out for his tour are said to be arranged exclusively among one-night stands. It is Mr. Jefferson's impression that he is strongest in the smaller towns along that somewhat vague and far-reaching region known as "the road." He will travel in a private car arranged upon the hotel principle, thus avoiding the necessity of routing his company out at all hours of the night to take unseemly trains. The hotel car, so far as its employment in theatrical affairs is concerned, has worked a great change in the system of travel. The comfort of the actors is greatly enhanced, both in the matter of eating and sleeping. The ordinary hotel which is met with in one night towns is of extremely poor quality, both in regard to its fare and its rooms. It is also expensive. Under the car system actors can go directly from the theatre to the station and take to their beds, not to be awakened again until such an hour as breakfast may be served. Breakfasts on private cars are gotten up for the convenience of the passengers and not to suit the railway officials. If the train by which the car is drawn should be delayed, there is no sitting up to shiver and wait in cold railway stations; and in fact nearly all the nuisances of ordinary road travel are obviated. The hotel car costs from $50 to $75 a day, in addition to a guarantee to the railway companies of a certain number of fares at theatrical rates. The system is cheaper than the old one of living at hotels, and makes a theatrical organization over into a family party in very short and pleasant order.

* * *

Four million three hundred and forty thousand boxes of "sardines" were packed in Lubec, Me., last year.

* * *

As the top snow passes off the mountains west of Marshfield, Oregon, thousands of dead robins are brought to light. They were caught in the blizzard and frozen to death.

Bierstadt at the White House.

From a Washington Letter.

President Arthur has a cultivated taste in all little art matters. Rich screens and portieres continue the fine combinations of color in this corridor apartment, and the broad fan window at the end receives the afternoon sun through one of Tiffany's large designs of jeweled glass. Deep chairs and sofas, low tables and shaded lamps add to the air of repose and comfort that the place wears. A few ebony cabinets are filled with rare china and bric-a-brac, and fine paintings by Bierstadt ornament the walls. Mr. Bierstadt is a personal friend of the president's, and on one of his visits here he was forced to notice the bare walls of the upper part of the house, nothing more cheering or beautiful than the portraits of his predecessors being furnished for this residence of the Chief Magistrate. In consequence, Mr. Bierstadt sent these pictures down from his studio, lending them to the president for as long a time as he chooses to keep them. They were hung in their present places just two years ago, and after a twelvemonth's contemplation of the painted semblance of the "Yellowstone Falls," the "Yellowstone Canyon," and the "Giant Geyser" President Arthur made up his mind to go out and see the originals. The three Yellowstone paintings are fine samples of Bierstadt's work, and said to be most faithful reproductions of the great features of that wonderland now open to the world. The other two Bierstadts are scenes on Canadian lakes, where the angler is throwing his fly and watching the reflections in the still, clear waters.

The Work of a Single Hair.

Washington Correspondent.

In the base of the capitol at Washington is the enginery by which the house, the senate and the committee rooms are warmed and ventilated, and the gas lighted by electricity. It is altogether a big apperatus, consisting of three immense fans, four engines and eight boilers, with the necessary appliances for regulating the temperature and moisture of the air supplied to the nation's legislators. The instrument which tells whether the air is too moist or too dry is operated by a single hair. A Perfectly dry air is put at 0; satuated air, that is air carrying all the air it will hold, is put at 100. A dial with a hand like that of a clock represents the different degrees from 0 to 100. The human hair absorbs moisture like a rope, and, like a rope, it becomes shorter when wet. The difference in length between a hair six inches long when wet and the same hair when dry is made to represent the hundred degrees of moisture on the dial; and the hand or pointer moves backward or forward as the moisture in the air varies. If it becomes too dry, more steam is thrown in; if too moist, less steam is allowed to escape, and thus the atmosphere for the nation's statesmen is regulated and kept at a healthful point, which is about 50 degrees.

Wales And His Hansom.

Olive Logan writes from London: I saw the heir apparent in a hansom this morning—not a common hansom, you understand—his own hansom, a magnificently appointed little affair, with such a beauty of a bit of gray horseflesh between the shafts. Dear me, how that exquisite, shapely brute did dance about! The driver was a light weight, a good looking young fellow, in the usual gray livery of the Wales. We always know the princess is coming when we see the gray livery without the red ribbons. So, forewarned, forearmed, we have time to stop and have a good stare. The prince is getting uglier and more dissipated looking every day, and the princess seems more and more charming every time we see her. Whatever the real home life of this so famous couple may be we know not, but their demeanor to each other in public is so really affectionate that one wonders at their cleverness in keeping up appearances—that is, if they do not care for each other. We think it surprising that a man who has such a pretty and good wife as Alexandra is should care to associate with the creatures we hear his name coupled with.

A Generous Revenge.

From a Washington Letter.

While talking with Senator Wade Hampton last evening a daughter of the late Reverdy Johnson came up with an autograph album in her hand. This book was for the names only of United States Senators. The purpose of this lady is to raise a little contribution towards the founding of a hospital for helpless Southern soldiers at Richmond, a work so laudable that it would be like an offense to argue the duty and glory of it. This book is to be sold when filled to any one who will pay the most for it. Each senator has subscribed $5. But the one thing which the beautiful lady with radiant face came in haste to tell Hampton was this: One United States Senator—was he from the North? was he from the South? the East or the West? it was a secret, and a precious one and sacred—this Senator modestly set down the little $5, not willing to be known as giving more than some of his fellow-Senators who are not rich, and then slyly handed her a check large enough to set two decimals to the right. Ah! there's a heart in this world after all, and don't you despair for humanity.

The Death Penalty.

The Swiss cantons of Glarus and Zurich have just voted for the re-establishment of the death penalty. These are the first two of the Protestant cantons to take this step, in which all of the Catholic cantons have preceded them. The abolition of the death penalty in Switzerland was tried under as hopeful conditions as exist anywhere and it proved a failure. It was found that murders grew more frequent and nearly all of the cantons have now voted to return to the older law. This experience is worthy the uttention of sentimentalists everywhere, though in fact we do not need to go abroad for instruction on this subject. The practical abolition of the death penalty in many of the United States, through technical complications and the loose administration of justice, has had an evident effect in the increased frequency of murder. A few prompt trials, convictions and executions, without any avoidable delay, would do much to [illegible] in making life more secure.

HOMELESS MEN AND WOMEN.

Humorist Burdette on Their Unselfish and Devoted Lives.

In this land, there is very little excuse for a homeless man. He is a social tramp. As a rule, he can offer but poor excuses for his condition. But the unmated and homeless woman, whose brows may never be crowned with the lays of household authority, claims not our pity, but our esteem, our admiration. Because it is not always her fault that she has no home. Sometimes she hasn't had a chance. And we love these unselfish and devoted wives, which work in single harness, and carry so cheerfully life's burdens and cares, with none of those beautiful incentives to duty which animate the married sister. For she, the patient, cheery gleaner, has never caught the speaker's eye, and to her Boaz can never be more than a brother-in-law. Alone she sings and "gleans and gathers after the reapers among the sheaves," and findeth no special grace in the eyes of Boaz, which is boss. No man reaches her the parched corn, and passes her the vinegar for her morsel, and no indulgent reaper streweth her way with handsfull of barley. While she gleaneth, she carrieth home and hath it for her own, unless, peradventure, she hath her sisters husband and family to support. She may never have any cigar stumps to pick off the piano; no pipe ashes to dust off the window sill, no muddy foot tracks to brush from the hall carpet; no one to whom she can gladly give up the rocking chair and the new magazine; no one to drag up stairs and put to bed election nights; no one to hide himself behind the morning paper at the breakfast table; no one to get up in the cold winter mornings and build the morning fires; she seems to have none of these joys that make her sister's life a song. Sometimes when I look at one of these lone women, and think that she may never know what it is to see the man who has given her his name for the crown of her love, splitting his eager face over a half pie at a railway dining station, and holding his disengaged hand over the remaining half to keep some other hungry man from getting it, I pity her, for she is starving. Not for the pie; oh, no. She can get plenty of pie. But for the love of some true-hearted man. Woman's sympathetic, dependent, trusting nature feeds on love, and her life, her heart, her voice, is never roused to the broadest, fullest capacity for expression and action, until she has blessed and filled some man's life with the measureless riches of her maiden love, and then found some other woman's photograph in his overcoat pocket.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Susan Anthony Wields the Gavel.

Report of the Woman Suffrage Caucus.

Susan B. Anthony, every inch a soldier, sat well in front of the twenty-nine ladies on the platform, and directed things with a percision and quiet certainly that compelled respect from even the thoughtless, and their number were many, who had come only to see and to laugh at her. Never did Hank Monk hold the reins of his six horses tighter and command more absolute obedience than this woman on that platform. The result was the whole business went on like clock work. The order was perfect—perfect as a village Sunday school. I should like to see any body of men conduct a convention with one-tenth part the decorum, patience and good feeling. But when she confessed to having been about thirty-five years at this business, I reflected that it was quite time that she knew how to do it. When she arose and came forward to the little stand with double spectacles on her nose, a fan in her hand, there was much applause. Fred Douglass seemed greatly pleased. She was the best looking of the twenty-nine.

Shelter for Stock in the West.

It is a sad commentary on the farming of Illinois which B. F. J. makes, in the Country Gentleman, when he says that 85 to 90 per cent. of the entire live stock is without adequate shelter; probably none of the Western States could make a better showing than Illinois. During the past winter the thermometer has often been down from 20 to 40 degrees below zero, and the poor animals have been compelled to endure the marrow-piercing cold when, last fall and every fall, the evening skies have for weeks been lighted by the burning of abundance of straw to have provided good shelter for all. A little foresight and energy would enable the farmers to place a few posts and poles in such a position that the straw could be stacked on and over them in such a manner as to save much suffering to the stock and much feed to their owners.

Chicago's High Houses

The city is drunken with prosperity. Previous to this date the lavish expenditure in architectural display in buildings has astonished the world. For gaudiness and extravagance in business houses, Chicago has exceeded New York. But this season they propose to eclipse any city in the world in fine business houses. The Pullman Car company is going to put up a building which will not only exceed anything in America, but eclipse any building in the old world. It is intended to be a model building for the world. It is to be on Adams street, and 127 by 170 on the ground, and ten stories high. The description of this building as given in the Chicago Journal of Commerce is perfectly marvelous. But this is not to be all of Chicago's folly this summer. Other new buildings, the Calumet, the Montauk, the Counselman, and the Marshall Field buildings are to be nine stories, and each to cover nearly a square. Armour & Kent are also to put up the largest and highest building in America. It is to be 175 feet on Van Buren and 142 on Sherman streets, and to be twelve stories high, beside the basement, and to be of the most elaborate and artistic style of architecture. And these are only a part of the extravagance to be exhibited in building in that aspiring city, which seems to control and rule the trade and commerce of the west.—Des Moines Register.

* * *

An Augusta, Ga., editor says that five men in the Southern States now read the newspapers where one man read them ten years ago.

* * *

A freight train went through a bridge in Georgia. Engineer McDonald and his fireman were fatally killed.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

The Blair educational bill, as passed by the senate, appropriates [illegible]7,000,000 to be distributed through the various states according to their illiteracy, the ability of persons above the age of 10 years to write being made the standard of distribution, and the last census the means of arriving at the estimate. According to this authority there were 6,239,958 persons above the age of 10 years in the country in the year 1880 unable to write. This would distribute the $7[illegible] in the northwest as follows: Dakota $50,000; Iowa $560,000; Minnesota $400,000; Wisconsin $660, [illegible] Georgia would have the largest [illegible] $6,240,000, while Alabama, Kentucky, Louisian, a Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Mississippi and Texas, are not far behind.

President Arthur has entertained as no other president ever entertained before, and yet he is blamed by what is called "society", or unofficial people, for not recognizing their claims to his hospitality. Every member of Congress save two, who declined invitations has placed his feet under the presidential mahogany, and the wives of Congressmen also, together with a host of other officials, have sat at his table and attended his receptions. But the butterflies of "society" feel neglected. It would be difficult to determine what claims such people can have upon the magistrate of the nation. Most people will agree that they have none at all, and that their complaints are not worthy of notice.

The cultivation of forests has long been systematically pursued in France, Spain and Switzerland. The governments of these countries have expended immense sums of money in the Alps, Pyrenees and Ardennes, where only the hardiest and cheapest trees can be grown. The planting of the low-lying lands near the Garonne has added £40,000,000 sterling to the wealth of France and a tract of country once unhealthy and almost barren has in 30 years become populous, prosperous and active. The English government is seriously considering the cultivation of forests in Ireland. Mr. Howitz, of Copenhagen, one of the highest authorities on this subject, has visited Ireland and studied its adaptability to forest cultivation, and pronounces it one of the most favorable countries in the world for the growth of timber.

Much of the alleged demoralization in the administration of justice in this country must be attributed to the influence of modern reformers, philosophers and so-called humanitarians, in so far as their efforts are directed to crime and criminals. Though hopelessly bewildered and dazed by the problem, yet their atterams have a good deal of weight with those who do not think for themselves. A fair illustration of the tendencey of their helpless notions is afforded in an account of a discussion before the Boston associated charities on the subject of drunkenness. Mr. Richard David took the position that drunkenness is a habit. He was opposed to our system of fines, as those who can pay are never criminally punished, while the poor victims were locked up, thus making poverty punished in stead of drunkenness. As the discussion progressed the speakers grew more and more liberal in their views until the Rev. James Freeman Clarke capped the climax by saying that he considered our entire penal system wrong. He believed that we had no real right to punish anyone. We had the right to restrain a criminal and keep him out of the way, but that was all. Another fallacy that is sedulously inculcated, is that education makes people good, while the fact is entirely established that crime has its hot-beds in the centres of population where education is most diffused. Indeed, education is the necessary preliminary to many forms of wickedness.

The theory that consumption is an infectious disease receeives strong support from a recent investigation by the British Medical Association. A circular inviting opinions and experiences was sent to physicians throughout the United Kingdom. Of the 1,078 received, 673 were simple blanks, signifying that the recipients had no data on which to base a conclusion. Of the remaining 405 thirty-nine were doubtful and 105 were in the negative, while 261, or a decided majority of those who expressed any opinion, recorded themselves as believers in the possibility of contagion. No less than 192 physicians reported cases where the disease was communicated from husband to wife, or vice versa, and the important fact is distinctly stated that in 130 of these 192 cases there existed no family predisposition to consumption in the partner who caught the infection. Still stronger support is given to the theory of communicability by cases where the persons were entirely unrelated. A young man who dies of consumption was nursed by his sister, and her death was followed by that of a friend who attended her. A dressmaker who lived in a lonely cottage had three girl apprentices, who in turn remained a week with their employer over night and slept with her. The mistress died of consumption, and within two years all three of the girls had gone the same way. Such facts as these sustain Dr. Koch's theory that consumption is caused by living germs of disease, which may be communicated from one person to another, and will make mankind more anxious than ever that science may realize its hope of finding a method for destroying these germs or nullifying their force by inoculation.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Washington News.

Wednesday afternoon, as President Arthur, his son and Secretary Lincoln were out riding in Washington, the latter was thrown from his horse, but sustained no injury.

Postoffices established: Minnesota—Benwade, Pope county. Postmasters commissioned: B. J. Slimman, Milford, Wis.; A. J. Richenger, Stevenson Pierre, Wis.

There are, so far, no appointments for the German and Russian missions. Sargent has left the legation at Berlin, but will spend several months in travel before returning to this country.

John Jay Knox, controller of the currency having become satisfied that the house committee on banking and currency will vindicate his action in the Boston Bank matter, has accepted the presidency of the National Bank of the Republic, of New York, and will resign his office, to take effect May 1.

Gen. Terry dined with Gen. Sheridan Tuesday the 15th, and Wednesday Justice Gray, of the supreme court, gives a dinner in Terry's honor. There will Probably be some important orders, relative to changes of regiments in the Northwest, issued about the time of Terry's departure. They will affect the Montana posts.

Washington Special: Arizona people here complain very bitterly of Gen. Crook. They say that he is constantly sacrificing the interests of the white people of the territory upon an alleged plea of avoiding an Indian outbreak. One of the most serious charges made here is that the murderers of the McComas family are at present upon the San Carlos reservation under the protection of the military, who will not surrender the murderers to the civil authorities.

The bill introduced by Jay Hart Brewer to regulate commerce between the states, pertaining to commercial travelers, has been favorably reported by the committee on manufactures, and is now on the house calendar. The bill recites in a preamble the fact that several states have imposed taxes or licences upon commercial travelers from other states, and continue to arrest and annoy these individuals, and then provides that any person interfering with any commercial traveler conducting his business shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, if convicted, shall be fined or imprisoned, or both.

Gen. Swaim seems disposed to save the army, if possible, from the disgrace of another public scandal. As soon as he heard that charges had been preferred against him Wednesday by Broker Bateman he sent a friend to his accuser and quietly settled the little account that caused the trouble. As this was all that Mr. Bateman wanted, he at once withdrew his charges, and Gen. Swaim felt himself vindicated. There are some, however, who think that this is scarcely the sort of vindication to boast of, and say that his only course is to ask for a court of inquiry. But the general is apparently not inclined to do this, doubtless feeling that it will be for the good of the service to avoid the agitation of such matters.

Rail and River News.

Judge Green of Washington Territory decides that the Northern Pacific is a common carrier, and must carry for Wells, Fargo & Co.

A number of Ashton, Dak., capitalists, in company with others at Flandreau, are agitating the question of organizing a railroad company to construct a road from Flandreau, Moody county, via Brookings, Frankfort and Ashton to Bismarck.

The Manitoba has purchased 160 acres of land in Duluth adjoining what is known as the diagram lots in South Duluth, and fronting on St. Louis bay. The price paid was $50,000. It is said the Manitoba will make this its terminal point, and build docks and yards on the bay.

Casualties of the Week.

Peoria Plow Works burned Wednesday the 16th.

A fire at Evansville, Wis., destroyed Lehmans Bros. furniture factory—loss, $13,000; insurance, $6,000—and the Baker Windmill and Pump works; loss, $12,000; insurance, $2,900.

At Utica, N. Y. two fires took place almost simultaneously about one-half a mile apart. By one Lowery Bros. cotton warehouse was destroyed with 1,500 bales of cotton. Loss, $90,000; insured. By the other Watson block was damaged $20,000; insured.

Hot Springs, Ark. Fire destroyed eight buildings on lower Central avenue. Total loss, $30,000; insured for $16,000. The Principal losers are the Kansas City Meat company, George W. Belding, S. M. Mulcahy, R. K. Flowers and B. F. Barker. A young man John Crenshaw, died from excitement.

A boiler in one of Dolsen, Chapin & Co.'s, drill houses at Bay City, Mich., exploded instantly killing Navior Souvey and William McCalry; fatally injuring John Lafourtain, John Kelly and John Connelly; badly injuring John Finlan, Thomas Mahoney and Anton Keifer and slightly hurting Elijah Kiefer.

Personal News Notes.

Thomas G. Appleton, the noted art critic and connoisseur, of Boston, is dead.

The widow of Alfred Wigan, the well-known actor and theater manager, is dead in London.

Dr. John Tobin, a prominent physician of Cleveland, committed suicide with morphine.

The wife of ex-Congressman Chittenden died in Brooklyn recently. She was a lineal descendant of Benjamin Franklin.

Rev. Father Sanchez, the last pioneer of Franciscan missionaries, who arrived at Santa Barbara, Cal., in 1841, died there, aged seventy-one.

Rev. Dr. Young, secretary of the Wesleyan conference, England, has sailed for the United States to attend the general conference of the M. E. Church.

A brilliant reception was given in St. Louis recently, by Mr. and Mrs. Sherman to their daughter Mrs. Thackara and husband. Between 200 and 300 were present by special invitation, including a number from Washington.

Edward H. Wiermann, aged forty-five, formerly President Andrew Johnson's private secretary, died at the Coleman house, New York. He was a native of Kentucky, and until recently in the employ of the Texas & Pacific Railway company. Among his letters was one to John H. Mason expressing intention to commit suicide. He was subject to heart disease, and dropped dead at the clerk's desk.

Truman B. Handy, who was whipped by Frank E. Blakeleo, his brother-in-law, is the millionaire who cornered corn and brought the Chicago dealers to terms. He has sunk very low, spending his time and money with gamblers and disolute women, even bringing his mistress to his home, where he had two charming daughters. For this their uncle whipped their father.

Crimes and Criminals.

The office of the Austin (Tex.) Evening Dispatch, a Republican paper, was visited by a crowd of disgruntled prominent citizens, and thoroughly pied.

Joseph Casey was hanged at Tucson, Ariz., for the murder of Jailer Holbrook last April in attempting to break jail. He refused to reveal his right name or history.

George Coates, colored, who set fire to Jere Green's house at Gadsden, Ala., while Green and wife were at church, and four children were burned to death, has been captured.

Charles Michaud was lynched at Palestine, Tex., for an attempt Sunday, 20th, to outrage Gertie Wilcox, a white child thirteen years old. The sheriff wounded two men in defending his prisoner.

At Buffalo, Lorenzo Dimmick, of the insurance firm of Crosby & Dimmick, already under heavy bonds, was rearrested on three charges of larceny and again gave bail. The insurance companies claim to have been defrauded of over $100,000.

L. D. Pierce, living near Austin City, Wash. Ter., had a quarrel with a man named James Curtis, during the course of which he threw up his rifle and shot Curtis dead. Pierce was arrested and held under heavy guard, but the guard was overpowered by masked men and Pierce was lynched.

The controller of the currency has authorized the First National bank of Petaluma, Cala., to begin with a capital of $200,000. This bank was formerly the First National Gold Bank of San Francisco, the last gold bank in existence, all others having been changed to currency banks or gone out of existence.

J. C. Seeley and Emma A. Perkins, were arrested in Cleveland for complicity with Stringer and Clay, captured in Columbus, and charged with fraudulently obtaining large quantities of goods from eastern firms. Seeley and Miss Perkins ostensibly kept a store in Cleveland, secreted in which were found forty boxes of goods, estimated in value at $15,000, which the authorities seized. Miss Perkins is a half sister of the prisoner. The prisoners were taken to Pittsburg.

General News Items.

Fifteen hundred mules have been killed in Gallatin county, Miss., by Buffalo gnats.

The Texas state land board has rejected bids for the lease of some 800 sections at four and five cents per acre, and resolved that bids not conforming to the rules of the board fixing the minimum of eight cents for dry, and twenty cents for watered land rejected.

Col. Hodges, head of the United States quartermaster's department in New York city, says: "Gen. Sheridan's policy of massing the United States troops—now scattered all over the West—at St. Paul and San Antonio, is a move in the interests of economy and expedition. Under the new system the saving in the expenses of forwarding supplies and men to outlying posts will be larger than any one could imagine. No one will be likely to object to it but the traders who depend upon the patronage of soldiers at the posts for a living."

New York, Special: "I closed all my woolen mills, about a dozen in number," Judge Hilton said last night, "because I can buy the goods cheaper than I can manufacture them. We can make woolen goods in this country as well as they can make them anywhere else, but there is no profit in it. The tariff on wool is too high. As to common manufactures the factories are all shutting down. They are making no money. I don't think we have begun yet to see the stoppage of mills and manufactories which is coming. The iron mills are shutting down. There is no demand for railroad iron."

Foreign Flashes.

Moody and Sankey have begun their mission work near Hampstead, Eng.

There are twenty-eight direct heirs to the succession to the British throne.

The earl of Aylesford left Big Springs, Tex., for England, and will be absent two months. On his return he will bring his two children, now in England with the earl's mother.

The North German Gazette, Bismarck's organ, considers that Russia's new loan of £15,000,000 for the construction of railways is a step toward the consolidation of internal affairs of the empire.

The free thinkers and social democrats of Paris are preparing an elaborate celebration of the 100th anniversary of the death of Dennis Diderot, the French atheistical philosopher, which occurred July 30, 1784.

Not only has Mlle. Colombier been committed for trial on the charge of outraging public morals in giving "Sarah Barnum" to the press, but also the publisher of the book entitled "Marie Rigicoumer," which was written as a reply to "Sarah Barnum."

Late advices from Vera Cruz, Mexico, say yellow fever prevails there and that thirteen deaths occured one day last week. Among the deaths an American named C. E. Powers, formerly connected with the Mexican Central railroad. The American consul, who had the fever, has recovered.

The London times says that Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, who was announced a few days ago to be coming to Europe on a long leave of absence, has resolved, before leaving Africa, to break up entirely new ground and solve a problem which will excite the gratitude of geographers. He intends to reach from the Congo country one of the Egyptian stations in the Mombutter country on the Willemakna river. This is the task that Gen. Gordon was intending to attempt before he was delivered to Khartoum.

Several English detectives have arrived in Paris for the purpose of tracing dyna miters In spite of Col. Majendie's report, it is declared that the dynamite used at Victoria station was made at a factory between Amiens and Boulogne. The rumor is afloat that an attempt will shortly be made to blow up one of the public buildings in London. The activity of the dynamiters continues unabated. They meet twice every week for the purpose of making plans and preparations for future outrages. It is believed the English and French police are fully acquainted with their movements, and every effort will be made to counteract their plots. It is also believed that one of the most trusted dynamiters keeps the police informed of their plans.

Minnesota.

THE DELEGATES.

THOSE THUS FAR CHOSEN.

Up to date twenty states, one territory and the District of Columbia have chosen delegates, wholly or in part, to the Republican national convention. The subjoined table shows, as accurately as can be ascertained, the presidential preferences of these delegates. Those classified as "unknown" comprise uninstructed delegates and those who have expressed no preference. The others have either been formally instructed for various candidates or have declared their choice. The table likewise gives the whole number of delegates to which the states and territories included therein are entitled.

States.	Blaine....	Arthur....	Edmunds....	Logan....	Sherman....	Unknown....	Whole No....
Alabama..........	....	19	....	....	....	1	26
Arkansas..........	....	14	....	....	....	....	14
Delaware..........	5	1	....	....	....	....	6
Dist. of Columbia	....	1	....	1	....	....	2
Georgia..........	....	4	....	....	....	....	24
Idaho..........	....	....	....	....	....	2	2
Illinois..........	....	....	....	40	....	4	44
Indiana..........	....	....	....	....	....	30	30
Kentucky..........	1	1	....	....	....	2	26
Louisiana..........	....	16	....	....	....	....	16
Maine..........	2	....	....	....	....	....	12
Michigan..........	1	....	....	....	....	1	26
Mississippi	1	1	....	....	....	....	18
Missouri..........	11	9	5	7	....	....	32
Nebraska..........	....	2	....	....	....	....	10
New Jersey..........	16	....	2	....	....	....	18
New York..........	16	4	5	....	....	15	72
Ohio..........	4	....	....	....	2	....	46
Pennsylvania..........	56	....	....	....	....	4	60
South Carolina..........	....	....	....	....	....	28	18
Tennessee..........	3	17	1	1	....	2	24
Wisconsin	1	....	....	....	....	*1	22
Totals..........	117	89	13	49	2	90	541

Ku Klux Trials Abandoned.

In the United States circuit court at Charleston, South Carolina, District Attorney Melton moved the discontinuance of all cases on the docket involving charges of violation of the election laws of the United States. The motion was granted by Judge Bond, without comment, and all the cases were stricken from the docket. In making the motion Melton said:

When he came into office he found about 200 cases on the docket. Realizing that all could not be tried, he obtained permission from the department of justice to select the most serious and discontinue the others. The result of the trials was one conviction and one plea of guilty, the other cases resulting in mistrials. Second trials again resulted in mistrials. Being thoroughly convinced that in the present state of public sentiment convictions were impossible in these cases, he had so informed the attorney general, and had received from him a letter directing him to exercise his discression in the matter; hence the motion that the cases be discontinued.

Ex-Judge Magrath, counsel for the accused, denied very emphatically that conviction failed because of the influence of public sentiment. He asserted that the failure was because in no case proposed by the district attorney for trial had there been sufficient evidence upon which to base conviction, even had the judge been sitting without a jury.

Eastern Floods.

Reports of heavy rains and floods continue to come in from Maine and New Hampshire. High water has caused a suspension of work in many mills and is threatening the bridges and dams. At Milltown, Me., the water has risen a foot since yesterday, and it is feared the logs will break loose. In that case great damage will be done to property. At Laconia, N. H., Lake Winnepesaukee is rising an inch an hour, and a dam has commenced to move. If it breaks many houses will be carried away. At Ellsworth, Me., water in the Union river is the highest known for years, and is still rising. Fears are entertained for the safety of booms and dams. Serious wash-outs on the Shore line prevent the running of trains.

Druggist Convicted of Abortion.

Decorah, Iowa, Special: In the district court of Howard county, H. D. Solberg, a druggist of Decorah, Iowa, was found guilty, after a three day's trial, of abortion. The female in the case was a young Norwegian girl, who had been too familiar with a clerk of Solberg's. The crime was revealed by chance while the girl was testifying before the grand jury against this clerk for seduction. The abortion feature came out during the testimony, and was followed up by the grand jury. The seduction case was settled for a small sum. Sentence has not yet been passed. The case went to Howard county on a change of venue.

Political News of the Week.

Senator Miller of New York has come out for Blain.

Nearly all, if not all the Pennsylvania republican delegates to Chicago are committed to Blaine.

At the city election in St. Cloud, Minn., C. F. MacDonald was re-elected mayor without opposition.

"Either Grant or Blaine will be the Republican nominee for president," said Congressman Belford.

Reuben Ellwood was renominated for congress by the Republicans of the fifth district of Illinois.

Bob Ingersoll's own preference would be Justice Harlan, and next, he said, Postmaster General Gresham.

The date of the Third district delegate and congressional convention at Faribault is April 29, and not April 25.

A Mississippi state convention, to elect delegates to Chicago and presidential electors, is called for June 11 at Jackson.

Powers and Remsen, delegates from the First district of Mississippi, are unpledged but one is for Blaine and the other for Arthur.

Joseph Medill of the Chicago Tribune is still in Washington and has come to the conclusion that the presidential ticket will be Blaine and Lincoln.

The Twenty-ninth Republican congressional convention, New York, elects a Blaine delegation to Chicago. One of the alternates favors Edmunds.

The Eleventh district republican convention at Bushnell, Ill., elected C. V. Chandler and C. A. Ballard delegates to Chicago. Instructed for Logan.

Gov. Curtin of Pennsylvania, asked his preference for the nominee of the Democratic party for president, said: "Samuel J. Randall, first last, and all the time."

In the republican congressional convention, Fifth Illinois district, S. M. Kelly and Charles Fuller were elected delegates to the national convention. Instructed for Logan.

The Thirtieth congressional Republican convention, New York, elected H. H. Warner and Leonard Barritt delegates to the national convention. They are unpledged and uninstructed.

The Missouri delegation to the Republican national convention stand: Blain, 11; Arthur, 9; Logan, 7; Edmunds, 5. None of the delegates are strongly pronounced in their preferences.

The colored voters of Des Moines, Iowa, have organized into a club. The speeches made at the preliminary meeting indicate a dissatisfaction with their allotment of the loaves and fishes.

The Republican congressional convention of the Thirteenth New York district, elected Hamilton Fish, Jr. and B. Platt Carpenter delegates to Chicago, and voted down a resolution endorsing Blaine.

The Seventeenth congressional district of New York elected M. I. Townsend and H. G. Burleigh delegates, and R. C. Betts and William Kisselburg alternates to the Republican convention for Arthur.

The following Republican congressional nominations were made Friday, the 11th: Ninth Illinois, Lewis E. Payson, renominated; Fourteenth, J. H. Rowell, renominated; Seventeenth, A. J. Hamlin.

The time of holding the national prohibition convention has been changed from May 21 to July 21. This secures representation from twenty-two states in the Union to the convention, which will be held at Pittsburg.

At the Missouri republican state convention the following were chosen delegates at large: R. T. Van Horn, John B. Henderson, Gen. Prentiss, and H. E. Havens. The Missouri delegates, at large and district are unpledged.

The Thirty-second congressional republican convention, at Buffalo, N. Y., elected J. D. Warren, of the Commercial Advertiser, and Josiah Jewett, delegates to the national convention. Resolutions were adopted strongly endorsing Arthur's adminstration, and commending him for renomination.

The republicans of the Fifteenth congressional district of Illinois renominated Hon. Joseph G. Gannon for congress. The delegates to the national convention are: Dr. L. S. Wilcox and Charles G. Eckhart; alternates, C. B. Hicks and Thomas A. Lewis; district elector, Asa Abr. The instructions are for Logan for president.

In the Georgia Republican Convention, D. R. Locke, marshal of the Southern Georgia district, was celected permanent chairman. A. E. Buck, W. A. Pledger, L. M. Pleasants and C. D. Forsyth were elected a delegation to Chicago from the state at large. The delegates go uninstructed, but are considered for Arthur as long as he has a hope of successs.

Gen. Davis was nominated by acclamation for congressman at large and Richard Vane of Philadelphia, B. J. McGrann of Lancaster, and H. B. Plummer were chosen electors at large and also by acclamation. The delegates at large are: W. J. Harrity of Philadelphia, Wm. A. Wallace of Clearfield, Jas. P. Barr of Allegheny, Eckley B. Coxe of Luzerne, B. F. Meyers of Dauphin, and Wm. H. Snowden of Lehigh.

The tariff resolutions adopted by the Pennsylvania State Democratic convention is as follows: We favor a tariff or revenue, limited to the necessities of government economically administered and so adjusted in its application as to prevent unequal burdens, encourage productive industries at home and afford just compensation to labor, but not to create or foster monopolies; and to this end we favor the abolition of the internal revenue system of taxes and such adjustment of existing tariff duties as will be consistent with these principles.

The following delegates to the republican national convention were chosen at various district conventions on the 11th: Seventeenth Illinois, J. J. Rinecker and J. M. Truitt, uninstructed. Fourteenth Pennsylvania, J. H. Wagner and Horace Brock; required to sign a pledge to support Blaine. Twenty-fourth New York, Titus Sheard and Herbert Krul; anti-Arthur and favoring Blaine and Lincoln. Ninth Illinois, S. T. Rogers and V. Ernum; both Logan. Fourteenth Illinois, Charles W. J. Tifer and George Kingham; instructed for Logan. Twentieth and Twenty-sixth Pennsylvania, Blaine and Lincoln delegates. Sixteenth Illinois, Harrison Black and Charles Churchhill.

None of these delegates are specially instructed, and their personal presidential preferences have not been announced. The electors named were as follows: At large, P. A. Thompson; Rev. Mr. Gaines, (colored); First district, S. C. Brock; Second, George Hall; Third, W. H. Homsley; Fourth, Lyman Parker; Fifth, Roderick B. Johnson; Sixth, J. W. Moore; Seventh, L. A. Thompson; Eighth, Gus Sessinghans; Ninth, Nathan Cole; Tenth, C. A. Newcomb; Eleventh, E. G. Evans; Twelfth, R. C. Macbeth; Thirteenth, Solon Spencer; Fourteenth, W. W. Kramer.

The following is the Democratic electoral ticket of Pennsylvania: At large—Richard Vaux, B. J. McGrann, H. B. Plummer. District Delegates—John Slevin; John P. J. Sensenderfer; John W. Lee; Herbert J. Horn; Richard L. Wright; John H. Brenton; William Stohler; Charles F. Reutschler; M. M. North; Harry J. Stiles; A. G. Broadhead, Jr.; F. V. Rockafellow; no choice. Tie between Michael Beard and Richard Kahn; George H. Irwin; George S. Purdy; P. W. Ackley; John P. Levan; Ezra D. Parker; E. W. Mumma; A. H. Dill; Franklin P. James; P. K. P. Duff, John Swan; A. B. Winternitz; John H. Hill; William A. Farquer; A. J. Greenfield.

The complete list of Republican district delegates from Missouri to the Chicago convention is as follows:

First, J. T. Baker, R. D. Cramer; Second, J. H. Turner, A. W. Muller; Third, J. H. Thomas, Ira R. Hyde; Fourth, A. C. Dawes, O. C. Hill; Fifth, John B. Jones, William Warner; Sixth, W. S. Shirk, Oden Guitar; Seventh, Theodore Bremer, M. G. Reynolds; Eight, Henry G. Myer, John O. Buesick; Ninth, Chauncey I. Filley, J. H. McLean; Tenth, Fred W. Mott, K. W. Weber; Eleventh, Edward Menehan, E. D. Sankey; Twelfth, Charles H. Burton, W. D. Tyler; Thirteenth, J. B. A. Upton, Norman Gibbs; Fourteenth, A. B. Carroll, Boyd Duncan.

The republican delegates of Indiana to the Chicago Convention are: First district, Gen. James C. Veach, F. B. Posey; Second, George G. Rielly, W. R. Gardiner; Third, D. M. Alspaugh, A. P. Charles; Fourth, J. O. Cravens, E. G. Hay; Fifth, Joseph I. Irwin, W. A. Montgomery; Sixth, J. H. Mellette, C. H. Burchard; Seventh, H. C. Adams, L. T. Michener; Eighth, W. C. Smith, W. R. McKeen; Ninth, George B. Williams, Americus C. Daily; Tenth, Simon P. Thompson, G. W. Holman; Eleventh, J. B. Kenner, Jonas Vols; Twelfth, C. A. Simons, C. Carver; Thirteenth, J. B. Oliver, George Moon. The delegates, almost without exception, favor an Indiana man with strong preference for Senator Harrison. For second choice Blaine leads, and his name always goes with Lincoln for vice president. Stanton J. Peelle was renominated for congress in the Seventh district and Gen. Thomas M. Browne in the Sixth. The state convention to select four delegates at large, will be held in Indianapolis on the 17th inst.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

Mr. McMillan presented to the senate the memorial of the St. Paul chamber of commerce, praying for an appropriation of $25,000 for the improvement of the Mississippi river at that city. Mr. Strait presented to the house the petition of E. F. Kennedy, asking for a pension. Mr. Strait introduced a bill for the relief of Mary Monti, widow of a late wagonmaster in the United States army in the war with Mexico.

In the senate, Mr. Bayard moved and the senate adopted the following amendment to the naval appropriation bill: Requiring the secretaries of war and the navy, with the assistance of the gun foundry board, which the amendment revives, to report on the begining of the next session of congress for a plan and estimate for the preparation and purchase of a plat for a gun factory to complete guns from six inches calibre to sixteen inches calibre, including buildings and shrinking pit, and to report a full and detailed estimate for the cost aforesaid, and whether the same can be better and more economically performed in establishments owned by the government or by private contract, or by a combined system wherby said work can be accomplished partly by the government and partly by private contract, and in what annual installments said appropriation can most economically be made.

In the House Mr. Reed of Maine offered a preamble and resolution reciting that the foot and mouth disease had been introduced in Maine through the fault or oversight of United States officials charged with the duty of inspecting and quarantining importations of cattle and directing the committee on agriculture to make an investigation of the matter, with authority to report for consideration at any time they deem proper a bill to reimburse the authorities of citizens of that state for expenses which had been properly and judicionsly incurred and may be incurred in the suppression of the disease. Adopted.

In the house on the 15th Mr. Morrison moved to take up the tariff bill, and by a vote of 140 yeas and 138 nays it was decided to consider the measure. There are 323 members of the house, two districts, the Second Mississippi and the Seventh Virginia, not being represented. Politically, congress is divided into 197 democrats and 124 republicans. The total vote was 273. There were 140 votes in favor of taking up the bill. Of these 135 were democrats, and five were republican. The negative vote consisted of forty democrats and ninety-eight republicans. The absentees were twenty-two democrats and twenty-three republicans. Three Minnesota members Strait, Nelson and Wakefield—in favor of considering the Monrison bill. There were two other republicans who voted with them—namely, Anderson of Kansas and James of Brooklyn, N. Y. The Minnesota members, who virtually decided the question of taking up the bill do not promise to vote for it, but say the people demand a lower tariff, and therefore they favored a discussion of its merits. After the vote was taken Mr. Morrison made a lengthy speech, to which Mr. Kelly replied. The arguments on both sides are familiar to all.

Mr. Seymour, from the committee on commerce, reported the bill authorizing the St Cloud Water Power company to construct a dam across the Mississippi river at St. Cloud, Minn. Mr. Matson, invalid pensions, reported a bill to pension soldiers and sailors for disabilities incurred beyond the loss of a leg or an arm. Committee of the whole. Also, adversely, granting service pension.

The senate Tuesday began the consideration of Mr. Dawes' bill to divide a portion of the reservation of the Sioux Indians in Dakota into separate reservations, and to secure the relinquishment of the Indian title to the remainder. Mr. Dawes made a speech in explanation of the bill.

The house committee on coinage, weights and measures unanimously instructed representative Lacey to report favorably his bill to prohibit the issue of treasury notes of less than $5, and provide for the issue of $1, $2 and $5 silver certificates.

Senator Sabin has introduced a bill to revive the rank of general of the army, which expired with Sherman's retirement. The house committee on military affairs has reported aversely on such a bill, and there is little prospect of its becoming a law.

The bill introduced by Mr. Ouray to provide for additional members of the legislatures of the several territories and an increase of pay to the members and officers thereof was reported by the committee on territories. It provides that the legislatures of the territories shall consist of thirteen members of the council and twenty-five members of the house of representatives, the members to receive $8 per day and mileage during the session; that the additional members shall be elected by the territory until otherwise provided by the said several legislatures; that the president of the council and the speaker of the house of representatives shall receive $10 a day for the same time and that the officers of the legislatures shall receive $6 per day.

Mr. Slater of Oregon requested and obtained the unanimous consent of the senate Friday to make a few remarks relative to the Northern Pacific land grant forfeiture. His remarks related to the division in Washington Territory and Oregon. He was in favor of the forfeiture of the lands, but thought the people, who had settled upon these lands, should be allowed to retain their titles, paying $1.25 or not more than $2.50 per acre for them. His colleague, Mr. Dolph, asked that the bill be laid on the table for a few days, as he wished to speak on the subject.

Representative Beach was instructed by the house committee on public health to report the resolution authorizing the committee to inquire into the extent and character of adulterated food and drugs imported into the United States or exported therefrom. The resolution provides that the committee sit during the summer recess.

The bill to relieve certain soldiers from the charge of desertion, which is now being considered by the house, removes the charge of desertion from the record of soldiers who served in the volunteer service in all cases where it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the secretary of war that such soldiers served faithfully until the expiration of their terms of enlistment or until May 1, 1865, but by reason of absence from their command at the time the same was mustered out, failed to receive an honorable discharge. It also applies to cases in which it appears a soldier charged with desertion subsequently enlisted in another regiment and was honorably discharged.

The house committee on territories, by a vote of 7 to 5, adopted a substitute offered by Alexander to Cassidy's bill providing for the appointment by the president of a commission to govern Utah. The provision relating to marriages requires that they be solemnized by a minister, judge or justice of the peace, and the person so officiating shall file a certificate of marriage before the county recorder of lands within thirty days after the ceremony. Failure to file or record is punishable by a fine of $500. The substitute makes the solemnization of marriages, when either party to be married has a husband or wife living, a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment in jail not less than six months nor more than twelve.

The house committee on public lands instructed Representative Payson to favorably report his bill to prevent the unlawful occupancy of public lands. The measure provides that—

All inclosures of public land in any state or territory by parties who have no title to the lands shall be unlawful. It shall be lawful for any person to demolish any such enclosure when it includes more than 640 acres of land or any agricultural land.

At a meeting of the house committee on public lands, a subcommittee was appointed to draft a bill repealing the timber culture act and revising the homestead laws. The bill, it is said, will be tacked on to an appropriation bill and pass readily.

The speaker laid before the house the following message from the president, which was appropriately referred:

Transmitting a report of the secretary of state in regard to the final awards made by the French and American claims commission against the United States for $625,526 for the payment of claims of French citizens against the United States. The president recommends the appropriation of the sum to enable the government to fulfil its obligation and of the treaty of Jan. 15, 1880.

Transmitting a communication from the secretary of state relative to the approaching visit of the special embassy of Siam. The president recommends an appropriation of $25,000 to defray the expenses of the embassy while in this country.

Transmitting a communication from the secretary of state respecting the approaching international conference at Washington for the purpose of fixing the meridian proper to be employed as a common zero of longitude and standard of reckoning throughout the globe. The president recommends an appropriation of $10,000 to defray the expenses of the same.

The house after several hours' discussion on Saturday, the 19th, passed a bill to establish and maintain a bureau of labor statistics, whose provisions are:

The bureau is to be under the charge of a commissioner of labor statistics to be appointed by the president by and with the advice and consent of the senate. He shall be appointed for four years and receive $3,000 a year. His duties shall be to acquire all useful information on the subject of labor, its relation to capital and the means of promoting the material, social, intellectual and religious prosperity of the laboring men and women.

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES

THE TARIFF BILL.

Representatives Wakefield, Strait and Nelson Explain their Votes.

MR. STRAIT

was asked to explain his vote in favor of considering the bill, and replied:

"I believe that a reduction of the tariff must come sooner or later. I believe that the tariff is much too high. The reduction made last congress is a step in the right direction, but the tariff will stand a further reduction without doing harm, in my opinion, to the manufacturing interests of the east. While I do not desire in any manner to cripple the manufacturing industries, I do believe they can transact their business under a reduction and still be able to complete with foreign markets, and further think that the people of the west will insist upon a fair and proper reduction. This bill, in respect to many items, is probably not what I or many others would like to have it; I would be glad to vote to place many items on the free list and possibly there are other items in the bill that ought not to receive 20 per cent reduction."

"Don't you think the discussion is unavailing, will amount to nothing, and an unnecessary waste of time?"

"I do not think so, because I believe in a reduction, and any discussion on that subject I do not consider a waste of time."

"Do you think the bill as it now is should pass? In other words, would you vote for it?"

"I am not sure whether the bill in its present shape should pass or not, and shall have to reserve my judgment on that point until after a fair discussion of it."

MR. NELSON EXPLAINS.

On being asked for an explanation of his vote, Mr. Nelson replied:

"In the first place I am not a free trader in full sense of the term. I believe in reduction of the tariff, and I believe a majority of people in my district are in favor of a reasonable reduction. The resolution and addresses of the farmers' convention which lately met in St. Paul indicated that the sentiment of the farmers is for a reduction of the tariff, and the platform upon which I was nominated and elected was also in favor of the tariff reform. I voted to take up the Morrison bill because that was the only way of getting the question of tariff reform before the house. I am not prepared to say that it is a perfect bill in all respects, nor am I prepared to say at present that I shall vote for it; but I do feel that the people of the west are entitled to a reasonable and equitable reduction of the tariff, and that it is a great outrage to have a system of tariff which leaves a surplus of $150,000,000 in the treasury every year."

"But it will be said that a tariff reform bill cannot pass the senate, and what is the use to vote to do something that will amount to nothing?" was suggested.

"I have every reason to believe that our senators will support a proper tariff reform bill. The bill that was passed last spring came from the senate and not from the house, and I feel that the senate will be equal to the occasion. Our present high tariff was an incident to our great war debt and our extensive pension list, and now that our national debt and expenses are reduced, and we have a surplus in the treasury, there is every reason in the world why taxation should be reduced. I would not vote to strike out the enacting clause of the bill, for the reason that it might cut off all opportunity to vote for any tariff reduction. I think the vote on the passage of the bill will be stronger than it was. I know of at least a dozen Republicans who voted as they did under protest, because they were persuaded it was in the interest of the party to so vote."

"If the Morrison bill as it is should be submitted to the house for a vote now what would you do?"

"I am not prepared to say. As the court says, I do not want to decide the case until it is brought before me to decide. I was very sorry the Republican side did not decide upon some kind of a tariff bill, and have it introduced, for I should have preferred to vote for a measure introduced by the Republicans; but, as no opportunity of the kind was offered, I had but one alternative, and that was to vote to take up this bill. I feel that the farmers and producers of the west are entitled to some consideration, as well as the manufacturers of the east."

MR. WAKEFIELD'S VIEWS.

Mr. Wakefield said:

I voted to take up the bill because I thought it was my duty to my constituency to do so. I voted for the consideration of the bill, but it does not follow that I am in favor of its passage as it is. I was nominated on a platform which commits me to a reduction of the tariff. My impression was that unless the bill was taken up and considered there would be no opportunity of putting my views upon the record. The bill may not go through, but I believe that it should be discussed. I should not vote for the bill in its present form.

Mr. White of Minnesota was absent and paired.

It is estimated that over $60,000 has been expended by the farmers of Olmstead county the past year in the importation of blooded cattle, horses and hogs.

A public shearing of sheep will be held at Eyota May 30, under the auspices of the Southern Minnesota Sheep Breeders' association. Expert shearers will perform. There are 15,000 sheep in Southern Minnesota, which yielded 1,500,000 pounds of wool in 1883.

Mrs. Billy the Kid unexpectedly got a divorce from M. Billy at the hands of a Minneapolis jury.

The Jackson creamery will be carried on by a solid stock company on an enlarged scale.

A Chicago party intends to build a tow mill in Jackson.

Four thousand acres of land were sold during the present week in the southern part of Jackson county, mostly to farmers from Illinois.

Frank Clark, an ex-convict of the state prison, committed a bold robbery at the Winona jail Sunday night, the 13th. He was sentenced at the October term, in 1882, to eighteen months in the state prison, for stealing two cows from Mr. S. Bates of the town of Hillsdale, and selling them to parties at Minnesota City. After his release he went to Winona, and sheriff Bogart afforded him a temporary home. Sunday night he stole from Deputy Sheriff Henzel a gold watch, revolver and $7 in cash and made his escape. A reward of $25 is offered for his arrest.

The trial of Rhoems for the murder of Chase at Glyndon last spring, was concluded at Moordead by a disagreement of the jury. The murder took place at Glyndon, Clay county, last fall, and is said to have begun over a dispute in regard to a threshing bill. High words passed and a knife was drawn. Rhoems afterward got a revolver and fired the first shot as Chase was walking away with him. Chase turned, and the fatal bullet, being the second discharge passed through his body.

Petitions to Congress are being circulated along the Southern Minnesota road praying that the present tax on imported flax products be not removed or decreased.

Dr. Jay Stewart, son of the Hon. J. H. Stewart, has been very successful and popular in the varied practice of the hospital service on Blackwell's island, New York. He leaves the first of May for a European tour to visit and inspect European hospitals.

The mayor of Duluth says: "By the eternal, the saloons shall close," and the Duluth deacons say: "Closing the saloons on Sunday will give the bartenders a chance to attend the meetings of the Y. M. C. A." The gambling houses will also be closed.

The Southern Minnesota Fair Association have fixed the time for holding their next annual fair at Rochester, which will be from September 1st to 6th inclusive.

A HARTFORD SPECTRE.

The Ghost in Black that Has Crossed the Continent Twice.

There is living in Hartford a butcher, who, although possessed of a horrible hullucination, does a thiving business. He is a young man, has been twice married, and yet declares life is a burden to him. Several years ago he told his immediate friends that a tall man, dressed in black, followed him everywhere; on the street, to the theater, to church, in fact every movement of the butcher was accompanied by a similar one on the part of the ghostly visitant.

Finally when life was almost a torture to him he decided to start for California, hoping that he would thus elude the phantom shape. The trip west was made without incident of any kind, and as mile by mile was passed over and as the days waned into nights he began to breathe freer, and when San Francisco was reached he believed that he was ridden of his ghost. He went to the mines and for weeks felt happy, gained in flesh and decided to start in business. One day while walking on the highway he chanced to glance over his shoulder and was horrified to discover the dreaded being. The latter was clothed in the same suit of black, his face wore a demoniac smile, and his whole appearance seemed to say "You cannot elude me." The butcher started on a run and now and then turned around only to discover the shadow lapping his footsteps. At the entrance of the town he again glanced behind and found himself alone. The visits after that recurred only at intervals, but sufficient in number to assure him that he was not free. His stay in California lasted several years. He went from town to town, from mine to mine, always accompanied by the man in black.

He married a worthy young woman with the belief that by taking a partner to his joys he might also have some one to share his sorrows. The result was in no way satisfactory as regards either of his beliefs, for his joys were few and his sorrows many. Again the thought came to him that it would be well to start for the east. This was done with the same results on the journey home that accompanied his western trip. Arriving in Hartford he took up his residence near his relatives, and in a few weeks opened a butcher shop. Two months had barely elapsed when he was again visited by the phantom and thereafter it never left his side. A year after his return his wife died and several months later he remarried. He has moved from house to house with the hope of gaining rest but all to no purpose. In conversation he said, "It follows me everywhere. At night I wake up to find him standing over me, slowly moving his index finger up and down and his lips moving as though he was talking. Some nights the sewing machine will run for hours unceasingly, operated by the ghost. At breakfast, behind me, and wherever I go he is by my side. Life is a fearful burden and I don't know what to do about it. He is now standing alongside of me. He is about six feet tall, very slender, of a pale yellow appearance. He is dressed in black throughout. I can't place him among any of my friends or relatives who have died, and don't know of a soul I have ever injured.

The most curious phase of the whole tale is that recently the butcher's wife, mother and brother have seen the phantom, but only when the victim was present.

Gossip of People.

Hinman B. Hurlbut, who died at Cleveland, Ohio, a few days ago, bequeathed his beautiful residence and grounds, with his magnificent collection of paintings, after his wife's death, to the city as a public art gallery. He also leaves the City Hospital a $200,000 cash endowment.

Recent letters from Athens speak of the popularity which the United States minister, Mr. Eugene Schuyler, and his wife enjoy at the Greek capital. Their weekly receptions during the winter have been frequented by the best of Greek society. The king and queen were present at one of these. Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler recently gave a dinner in honor of the Grand Duke Paul of Tussia, who has been the guest of the king for some time, and the evening ended with a ball, which was attended by the Russian admiral and his staff, who have been stationed at Piræus on the flagship Svetlana, which was seen at New York harbor a few years ago.

Captain Dinah L. Johnson, of the Salvation Army in New Haven, has sued Chief of Police Webster for malicious arrest in causing her imprisonment. The prosecution undertook to show that the Salvationists were not making a disturbing noise on the night of the arrest. The foreman of the jury sent word to the Salvation corps to come to the jury room and give some samples of their music, but their attorney put a veto on it. The suit Captain Dinah says is not for revenge, but was brought "that the will of God may be accomplished, and that all things may run together for His glory."

It is a mistake to suppose that the Princess of Wales is the leader of fashion in London. Were she so, crinolettes, high shoulders and inordinately high heels would never have been seen, nor loud combinations of color or elaborate headgear. The princess is celebrated for being always dressed in quiet and perfect taste. She goes in for rather severe style of tailor-made garments just now. Of course she is imitated. If she appears in a gray or pink hat, many are the gray and pink heads to be seen, but for one who will follow the princess' quiet, lady-like style, twenty will follow the lead of some eccentric, original or celebrated actress.

Emperor William is the oldest monarch in Europe. Queen Victoria will be 65 on the 24th of May. King Christian of Denmark is 66 and his wife the Queen, is a year older. The emperor of Austria is 54 and his wife is 46, while King Leopold of Belgium, 49 years old, has a wife aged 50. One of the youngest monarchs reigning is King Alfonso of Spain, who has seen 27 years, and next to him come King George of Greece and Alexander of Russia, each of whom is in the neighborhood of 39. The Sultan of Turkey is 42, King Oscar of Sweeden 55, Louis of Portugal 46, Humbert of Italy 40, President Grevy of France 71. The wife of the Russian ruler is three years younger than her husband, the wife of the German five, and the Queen of Italy seven.

THE JOURNAL.

In the spring of 1877, on the 1st day of May, THE CROOKSTON JOURNAL first saw the light of day. At that time the city of Crookston was a small hamlet, containing, perhaps, 150 souls all told. One of its business men, Mr. John McLean, conceived the idea that a newspaper would be a very valuable adjunct in the upbuilding of a great city, so he consulted with the present proprietor of the JOURNAL, who was then publishing a paper at Audubon, in Becker Co., and together they attempted the publication of the CROOKSTON JOURNAL. So encouraging was the experiment for the first year, that in the spring of 1878, the paper was brought to Crookston, and the name changed to THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

At this time the county was in its infancy, but settlers were flocking in by the hundreds, and to-day, at the close of the seventh year of its existence, THE JOURNAL sees Crookston a city of over 5,000 inhabitants, with fine churches, school houses, public buildings, hotels, banks, stores, mills, fine graded streets and side-walks far superior to many towns in the east that are ten times the age of our young city. We have two mammoth flouring-mills run by water power, with a manufacturing capacity of 250 barrels each. We have a large saw-mill, that in the future is destined to play an important part in the supplying of cheap lumber to the settlers of Polk County,—a thing which is now one of the greatest needs of this county. We have, in Polk County, a vast area of the most fertile farming lands in the United States, land that is capable of growing the best spring wheat ever produced and this fact is attracting to our borders hundreds of hard working farmers who in a few years will be accounted among the millionaire agriculturists of the country. Thus at the beginning of its eighth year THE JOURNAL sees a more hopeful future than ever before. We believe that the country is now entering upon the dawn of an era of prosperity, brighter than even the wildest enthusiast has ever pictured, and that all of those who have endured the labor and the heat of the day, and stood the trial nobly and manfully will now reap the reward of their labors and be henceforth independent. That the trials have been hard and bitter is all too true but the reward will be all the more keenly appreciated for that very fact, when it comes as come it must at an early day. With prophecies of a brilliant future for Polk County, THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL closes its Vol. VII.

St. Hilaire Racket.

From the Spectator.

C. C. Utzinger, of Crookston, made us a short visit on Saturday last.

A. Guthrie our division superintendent came up on Thursday's train.

M. O. Hendrickson our popular butcher is fitting up John Alderman's building on Broadway for a butcher shop.

Mr. Ed Wheeldon of the firm of Neer & Wheeldon, returned from below on Thursday last.

Major Mix spent Sunday with his family, on his homestead, northeast of here.

M. J. Darling departed for Winona, on Tuesday's train to buy machinery for the saw mill.

The many friends of D. E. Hallestad will be sorry to learn that he contemplates leaving Crookston.

Authur Yvernault, one of our townsite proprietors, made us a visit, on Tuesday. Mr. Yvernault has been spending the winter in sunny France, the land of his fathers.

Mr. Lou Harman, the engineer who pulled the first train into St. Hilaire, was up on Tuesday, for the first time since the completion of the road.

City Caucuses.

The Republican city caucuses were held at the usual places in each ward Friday evening to elect delegates to the county convention on Tuesday. In the First Ward the caucus was called to order at 7:45. I U. Jennings was elected chairman and H. E. Cooke, secretary. On motion I. U. Jennings and H. E. Cooke were elected delegates to the county convention. On motion the chairman appointed Hon. H. Steenerson H. E. Cooke and Ole Bang ward committee. In the Second Ward P. J. McGuire and Ole Hamery were elected delegates, and N. P. Johnson and O. L. Hamery Ward committee. In the Third Ward O. H. Lueken was elected a delegate, and [illegible] McLean and Arthur Stuart ward committee. In the Fourth Ward John Cromb and E. M. Walsh were elected delegates and W. F. Zwickey, [illegible] M. Pierce and Tom Bjoin ward committee.

Crookston & Southwestern R. R.

Last week a new company, composed of prominent business men of this city was formed for the purpose of building a railroad to Tower City to connect with the Dakota and Great Western railroad. President, T. B. [illegible]; Vice President, John Cromb; Treasurer, Davis Brower; Secretary, [illegible] Ross; the board of directors are [illegible] Walker, K. D. Chase, Judge D. [illegible]er, E. D. Childs, E. S. Corser, Geo. [illegible]ne, Ansel Bates, M. R. Brown, [illegible] McLean, John Cromb and [illegible] Ross. The capital is $2,000,000. [illegible] road when built will prove of [illegible] benefit to this country, affording [illegible] outlet, and also furnishing a [illegible] for an immense quantity of [illegible]. The company are confident [illegible] ability to build and equip [illegible] all ready to operate by the fall.

Republican County Convention.

Convention called to order by P. J. McGuire, chairman of the County Central Committee who read the call. On motion John Cromb was elected temporary chairman who thanked the convention in a few well chosen words. On motion P. C. Schmidt was elected temporary secretary. On motion the chair appointed as a committee on credentials H. Steenerson of Crookston, Frank E. Hunt, of Red Lake Falls and A. D. Stephens of Fisher. The committee reported the following delegates entitled to seats in the convention viz:

City of Crookston.

1st ward, I. U. Jennings, H. E. Cooke.

2d ward, P. J. McGuire, O. L. Hamery.

3d ward, O. H. Lueken.

4th ward, John Cromb, E. M. Walsh.

Crookston, town, Peter Cornelius.

Euclid, H. C. Misner 2 votes.

Fairfax, John Amundson.

Fisher, Elias Steenerson.

Godfrey, John Hunter, T. G. Lee.

Woodside, Geo. Goodrich, Andrew N. Wamor.

Roxbury, Chas. A. Johnson, E. W. Daniels.

Sandsville, Martin Sands, Prox. O. H. Bang.

Higlem, A. J. Hilden, A. J. Seislad.

Garfield, K. Nelson, A. Gilmour.

Russia, Oren Simmons.

Tynsid, P. Kegseng.

River Falls, K. O. Gigstad, A. Sorenson.

Reis, H. Massey I. W. Webb.

Rosebud, Louis Foss, A. Marshall.

Garden, M. G. Peterson, J. Hanson.

Bygland, Tom Benson.

Red Lake Falls Village, F. E. Hunt, P. C. Schmidt, Jr.

Vineland, L. S. Myers, Sam Peterson.

Rock River, Andrew Sture.

Lowell, J. K. Quamme, E. E. Lommen.

Northland, F. Engstrom.

Hubbard, N. O. Paulsrud, L. S. Colden.

Grove Park, A. D. Tice.

Onstad, N. P. Lindstrom.

Sullivan, A. Nelson, O. A. Thoreson.

Sletten, J. E. Bien.

Rooine, Andrew Korstad.

Wanger, H. E. Wold.

St. Hilaire Village, W. E. McKensie.

Sanders, Arne Bergen, W. F. Arnold.

Lake Pleasent Edward Columbus.

On motion the following gentlemen were elected to attend the State Convention at St. Paul, viz:

Paul C. Sletten, Hon. H. Steenerson, E. M. Walsh and O. H. Lueken.

On motion the following gentleman were elected to attend the Congressional Convention at Fergus Falls, viz: H. E. Cooke, P. C. Schmidt, Louis Fess, Nils O. Paulsrud, A. Gilmour, Hon. H. Steenerson, Paul C. Sletten, Hon. B. Sampson and A. D. Stephens. On motion the delegates elected to the Fergus Falls convention were instructed to attend the convention at Moorhead also. Mr. I. U. Jennings moved that an expression of preference for President of the United States be taken by ballot resulting in the following vote:

Jas. G. Blaine,	23	McMillen	2
Edmunds,	2	Hamilton Fish	1
C. A. Arthur,	6	I. U. Jennings,	11
Logan,	1.

On motion adjourned.

Barnesville Items.

EDITOR JOURNAL: If you can make room in the columns of your paper for a few items from our vicinity, we would be pleased to have a representation once in a while.

Farming has commenced here in good shape, and all the farmers are contemplating a good crop, as the land in our vicinity is in good condition. The machine men are on hand and making ready for their summer's work in the machine line, and Mr. Cyibe is the man who will give the business a fair deal every time.

Our restaurant, which was moved from the old townsite to the new town, was last week burned. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Mr. Knol's is contemplating building a hotel in the new town, near the new depot, and if he does, it will be done in style, as Mr. Knol's is not a man who does his work by halves.

The school here closed last week for a short vacation. We are pleased to say that the teachers have given general satisfaction.

A. P. Bond was in town last week shaking hands with his many friends. He was up looking after the interests of his farm. A. P. has a good farm here, and has made arrangements with Mr. Lee Baker to put in what is cultivated to crop and to break some more this summer.

Mr. G. W. Lemley has moved out on his farm and will probably stay there until after seeding. He is getting quite a drove of stock. Would it not be a good thing for more of the farmers to do likewise.

Fruit and Health.

Northwestern Farmer.

Medical men teach that vegetables and fruits are conducive to health. As everybody, especially children, are fond of garden fruits, it is not only policy for every land-owner, but a bounded duty to provide a full supply for home consumption. Here I claim to have struck the root of the fearful increase of obliquity now coming to the surface in society far west. In the hot season our nature requires a liberal infusion of the vegetable in our diet. If fruits are not furnished in their season in the household, children are inclined to help themselves, even to the crossing of a fence that bounds the garden of a provided neighbor. This desire, instead of being mischievous, is but the healthy dictate of a physical necessity, and it is useless to attempt to restrain it by moral precepts taught from the shorter or the longer catechisms as it is to dam up the Missouri River. From the petty plundering of fruits to supply a physical demand the path is but an easy grade to crimes of any magnitude. The parents are the guilty instruments of imposing children upon a community without taking the first step toward supplying the absolute unerring and uncontrollable demand of their nature. A nation might build its religion, theoretically, upon the purest ethics, fresh from the fount of divine wisdom, erect churches as numerous as the stars, educate and appoint every seventh man a minister, establish a code of laws, and build prisons on a scale as terrible, and that nation would only succeed in producing generations of thieves and murderers so long as they neglected to provide for physical wants. Some farmers have told me that it don't pay to plant fruit or berries, because the children pick them off and eat them, and flowers and shrubbery don't pay to plant. Heartily do I pity the man who can see no good in life but in pecuniary gain or the mere animal indulgences of eating and drinking.

The Imperial Prolific Flax.

Premises to revolutionize this branch of the vegetable kingdom. The Minneapolis Tribune Company gives a package of these seeds, together with a choice selection of other varieties ($1. worth in all), for one new yearly subscription to the Farmers' Tribune. Send for sample copy.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., April 22d, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Peder L. Saude against Jean Maheux, for abandoning his Homestead Entry No 7,243, dated May 13th, 1882, upon the no¼ S. 26, T. 154, R. 45, in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 18th day of June 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

[52-4]
JOHN CROMB, Register.
P. C. SLETTEN, Receiver.

Second Street
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors
Choice Meats of every description. Fish and game in their seasons. Everything of the very best quality and lowest price. Call and see us. Stanton & Co., Nelson's Block, Second Street.

Intelligence Office
AND
LAUNDRY
Now open and ready for business. All Laundry work at reduced rates. Lace curtains and kid gloves cleaned equal to new. Girls desiring good places, or parties desiring good, competent help should leave their name and address at this office. M. McGILLICUDDY,
Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Quebec. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec. Late of Michigan University, U. S.
Office over the "Atomic" Clothing Store Crookston, Minn.

THE NEW
Livery, Feed
AND SALE
STABLES
Cor. Main and Fourth streets,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.
Good turnouts at all times at reasonable prices.
Good Hearse and a Careful Driver when needed.

E. D. SCHRABER
LIVERY.
Feed and Sale Stable.
Best Turnouts in the city. Single or Double Rigs, with or without drivers or Saddle horses always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a
NOBBY TURNOUT
—CALL AT THE—
RED BARN
E. D. SCHRADER,
Cor. Main and Third Streets, Crookston

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN
Is ready for the Spring Trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc., etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

REMOVAL!
Having purchased the store formerly owned and occupied by W. T. Dickey,
HAVE MOVED MY Entire Stock
INTO IT.
And am now prepared to welcome my friends at the new stand. I have a full and complete stock of
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE
To which I invite the attention of all
CALL AND SEE ME
At my New Store on Main Street,
A. YVERNAULT
[illegible]

D[illegible]
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
[illegible]

Bigham & Olafson
Successors to Juve & Bergland
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS OF
Main Street, Crookston,
Have on hand, and are constantly receiving full lines of
DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS,
GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS
In fact everything usually found in First-Class General Store.
Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at
LOW PRICES.
GIVE US A CALL.

GRAND
GIFT ENTERPRISE
—AT THE STORE OF—
HACK & GALLASCH
Secure one or more Tickets and you will be happy.
—ALL—
DRY GOODS, WINTER GOODS,
BOOTS, SHOES, CAPS, GLOVES,
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
—AT BOTTOM PRICES.—
Call in and we will try to please you and tell you all about the
GIFT ENTERPRISE.
CROOKSTON

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
REPRESENTS THE CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

NEW BROADWAY
Meat Market.
JEROME BROS., Proprietors.
Fresh and Salt Meats
OF ALL KINDS,
VEGETABLES
in their season. All goods delivered if requested.

CITY ICE HOUSE!
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, we shall at once put up from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice and be prepared to supply the trade for 1884. Wishing you all
—A HAPPY NEW YEAR!—
we are, yours respectfully,
E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

COMMERCIAL HOUSE
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET CROOKSTON, MINN
Having leased this new and commodious hotel we are now prepared to supply the needs of the traveling public in first-class style. Our house is entirely new and newly furnished; we have had long experience in the hotel business, and hope to be able to meet the wants of any patrons. [illegible]

M. M. VanDyke,
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON,
COR. MAIN AND SECOND STREETS.
Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

THE KIMBALL ORGANS
Have attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior. They contain every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce. These excellent
ORGANS
are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty of finish, perfect construction, making them the
MOST ATTRACTIVE,
ORNAMENTAL AND DESIRABLE
ORGANS
For Homes, Schools, Churches,
Lodges, Societies, Etc.
ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
Unequalled Facilities, Skilled Workmen, Best Material, and aim to Excel combined, make this THE POPULAR ORGAN. Every Organ Warranted for Five Years.
INSTRUCTION BOOKS AND PIANO STOOLS.
Catalogue and Price Lists, on application, FREE. Address
C. J. KOPS, Crookston, Minn.
GENERAL AGENT W. W. KIMBALL CO.

This space is reserved for I. M. Underhill, General Insurance and Real Estate Agent.

FARMERS!
When you want the best Machine Oil go to D. BUCHANAN'S.
If you want Salt by the barrel, go to D. BUCHANAN'S
If you want Flour and Bran, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.
If you want Pork, Lard or Salt Fish go to D. BUCHANAN'S.
If you want Teas, Coffees, Syrups, or anything in the Grocery line, go to D. BUCHANAN'S.
Or if you want to Sell your Butter and Eggs, go to
D. BUCHANAN'S
on Broadway, between 2d and Robert Streets.

STEWART & LAWRENCE,
Dealers in
Pine Lumber.--Pine Lumber.
Windows, Doors, Mouldings, Building Paper, &c
YARD ON OAK STREET, [illegible]

THE
RED LAKE FALLS
FLOURING
MILL
Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do Custom Work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & OLBENTSON,
PROPRIETORS,
RED LAKE FALLS, POLK CO., MINN.
—JOHN N. IVES.— —E. E. HASTENED.—

LIVERY FEED
—AND—
SALE STABLES
Two doors north of U. S. Land Office
Main St., Crookston, Minn.
T. H. BJOIN, Proprietor
Work horses, buggy horses, saddle horses, mules and oxen bought and sold, and traded
For a stylish rig, by day or night, call at Bjoin's Livery Stable.

P. A. DUFOUR,
ATTORNEY & COUNSELOR AT LAW
—MAIN STREET,—
CROOKSTON - MINN

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL
WATCHMAKERS
—AND DEALERS IN—WATCHES,
CLOCKS
AND JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET,
Crookston - - Minn.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.
H. B. MONTGOMERY, President, St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN, Vice President, Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO, Second Vice President, Bellevue, Iowa.
W. M. ROSS, Cashier, Crookston, Minn.
CASH CAPITAL, $32,000.
SURPLUS, $16,523.82.
Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
W. M. ROSS, Cashier

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.
PAID IN CAPITAL, $100,000
SURPLUS, 1,400
MONEY TO LOAN on Long or Short Time on Approved Security.
INTEREST ON TIME DEPOSITS. Faithful Attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier

MERCHANTS HOTEL
J. E. MTTON, Prop.,
WAHPETON, - - - D. T.
[47-m6]

CROOKSTON TONSORIAL PARLORS
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
Shaving, Hair Dressing, and all work in my line promptly attended to in the latest styles of the art. Give me a trial. PROF. THOMPSON.

NURSERIES!
Tree Claim Stock.
I DESIRE to inform my customers and others that I shall make a GREAT REDUCTION from former prices on Forest Trees and Seeds
FOR TREE CLAIMS
I have good thrifty two-year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of
SMALL FRUITS,
such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty, Transcendent and Hislop Crab apple trees.
The firm of Haseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the Old Nursery Grounds
in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.
Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.
All Communications Promptly Answered.
F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minnesota.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL!
Fred. Anderson, Proprietor,
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN
The Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars on hand.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.
CROOKSTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 24.

'ROUND HOME.

Carpet felt paper at Stuart & Lawrence cheap [12-tf]

Hugh Thompson of Fisher was in the city last Friday.

John Kivat was in the city last Thursday and Friday.

Mr Hunt while fixing a hose on an Engine in the yard this morning preparing to go north had his face very badly scalded.

Morris Bros. have moved their big clock from the corner of Main and Second Street in front of their Palace jewelry store on Second street.

Fishing with seines is now stopped, the authorities have put up notices to this effect, and woe to the man who is caught using one hereafter.

There was a runaway on Main Street last Friday afternoon but there was so much mud that the team was soon stopped. The wagon was broken up pretty badly but no other damage done.

Mr Van Tuyl of the Maple Lake region was in the city last Saturday. He says that the roads in that direction were never better at this season of the year and that the seeding in that country as well advanced.

A school meeting was held at the school house last Thursday evening. There were quite a number present and every thing relative to school government and the training of children thoroughly and satisfactorily discussed.

Bob Netzer has returned to this city after his long absence; his many friends will be glad to hear this. We understand that Bob is figuring on some big R. R. scheme in connection with several other promiment men in this county.

The boys have got a new trap and last Friday afternoon went out and had a glass ball shoot. This trap throws the balls in different directions and the marksman does not know which direction it is going to take until it is in the air.

Col. Glenn of Minneapolis is in the city. He is here to put in the boilers in T. B. Walkers new saw mill. The Col. is a man highly appreciated in political circle in Minneapolis and is alderman in the First ward.

We understand that Isaac Webb of Edna is one of the fortunate ones he having fallen heir to $30,000. It seems that years ago Mr. Webb's brother deceased invested in copper mines in New Mexico and left it to — Isaac Webb. The mines have laid dormant for years but Mr. Webb was surprised the other day by an offer of $30,000 for his interest. His many friends will rejoice at his good fortune.

We have on hand carpet felt paper sutable for laying under carpets.

[53-1] STUART & LAWRENCE

A LITTLE GAME OF DRAW POKER.

In Which four of the boys, two Policemen a Lawyer and a Justice Take a Hand.

On Saturday night four of the boys were practicing the celebrated drama, Uncle Tom's Cabin—at least it looked like that as they had a great deal to say about their "aunty" showing that that character figured largely in the play. Things went as merry as a marriage bell until the policeman, whose part it seemed to be to stand on a chair and look over the "drop curtain" the better to observe the approach of spies, becoming frightened at the size of the "aunty" sneezed and fell down, breaking his neck. This being the agreed signal the boys stopped short never to go again and set up the deck for the next innings. The next innings came on Monday morning when Ben "called" the boys before Justice Lilly, who "raised" the game to $8, the boys "antied" and the Justice took the "Jackpot" with a grin that was childlike and bland. Ben shed no "Tiers" on this occasion as he blandly remarked "check!"

DITCHING

AND ROAD GRADING

MADE EASY.

The Pennock Ditcher and Grader can be bought for one-fifth the cost of the New Era Grader, and it will do the work better than any machine heretofore brought into the market. Will sell the machine on its merits. No work, no pay. Apply to

MOSER & MOECKEL,

[43-3m] Gen'l Northwestern Agents.

The Imperial Tree Bean is attracting very much attention among agriculturists. It is a remarkable producer, and in quality excels the far-famed white navy. The Minneapolis Farmer's Tribune, among the many other excellent things it is doing to promote good husbandry in the Northwest, is giving away to its readers packages of the seed of the Tree Bean. Our readers will be interested in seeing the Tribune's liberal offer. Send for sample copy.

H. & G. have just received a complete line of boots and shoes and slippers, be sure and look at their stock before buying elsewhere, prices very [illegible]

First publication April 19th, 1884.

Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 23-100 dollars which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Samuel C. Cooke and Ida M. K. Cooke his wife, to the New England Mortgage Security Company, bearing date the sixteenth day of January A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 19th day of January A. D. 1882, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book "O" of mortgages, on pages 85, 86 and 87, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one note for six hundred dollars, bearing even date with said mortgage, and due January 16th 1887, with interest thereon from date until paid at the rate of seven per cent per annum, payable annually on the first day of January in each year according to the terms of said promissory note of the said Samuel C. Cooke and Ida M. K. Cooke, with coupons attached, it being further stipulated in said note that if the makers thereof should fail to pay any of said interest when due, such interest should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum from the time it becomes due, and said mortgage should stand security therefor. Default having been made in the payment of the interest due January 1st 1884, and the interest now due on said interest, the said mortgagee therefore elected, that all of said sums described in said note, should be immediately due and payable according to the provisions of said note, and of the mortgage securing the same, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter, of Section twelve (12,) Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 3d day of June A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 15th A. D. 1884.

THE NEW ENGLAND MORTGAGE SECURITY COMPANY, Mortgagee.

J. P. DASH & FISK & PHELPS, Attorneys for Mortgagee. [51-5]

First publication April 17th, 1884.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-six and 15-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Theophile Malette and Elizabeth L. Malette his wife, to The New England Mortgage Security Company, bearing date the 2nd day of December A. D. 1881, and duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 23d day of December A. D. 1881, at 3:30 o'clock p. m., in book "B" of mortgages, on pages 623, 624, 625 and 626, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one note for five hundred and one dollars ($501,) bearing even date with said mortgage and due the 2nd of December 1886, with interest thereon from date until paid, at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable annually on the first day of January in each year, according to the terms of said promissory note of the said Theophile Malette and Elizabeth L. Malette, with coupons attached, it being further stipulated in said note that if the maker thereof should fail to pay any of said interest when due, such interest should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent. from the time it becomes due, and said mortgage should stand security therefor. Default having been made in the payment of the interest due January 1st 1884, and the interest now due on said interest, the said mortgagee therefore elected, that all of said sums described in said note, should be immediately due and payable according to the provision of said note, and of the mortgage securing the same, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter of the northwest quarter and the north half of the northeast quarter, of Section twenty (20,) and the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter, of Section twenty-one (21,) all in Township one hundred and fifty (150,) Range forty-two (42) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 3d day of June A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 15th A. D. 1884.

THE NEW ENGLAND MORTGAGE SECURITY COMPANY, Mortgagee.

J. P. DASH & FISK & PHELPS, Attorneys for Mortgagee. [51-5]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. In Probate Court
County of Polk. }

In the matter of the estate of Peter Anderson, deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of Martha Anderson, of Polk County, Minnesota, representing, among other things, that Peter Anderson late of Polk County, Minnesota, on the fourth day of April A. D. 1884, at the Township of Fisher, in said county, died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Edwin E Loommen granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before the Judge of this Court, on Saturday the tenth day of May A. D. 1884, at 3 o'clock p. m., at the Probate Court office, in the City of Crookston, in said County.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at the City of Crookston, in said County.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., the 16th day of April A. D. 1884.

By the Court,
ROBERT J. MONTAGUE,
Judge of Probate.
[51-1]

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Timothy O. Sullivan, a single man, mortgagor, to T. L. Smedes, mortgagee, dated the twenty-seventh day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage, together with the power of sale therein contained, in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the twenty-seventh day of March A. D. 1882, at 4:15 o'clock p. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 276, 277 and 278, which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof, in case of said default, to declare due and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the amount of seven hundred and twenty-eight and 23-100 dollars, being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and still unpaid, and twenty-seven and 10-100 dollars taxes paid by mortgagee, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and whereas, by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in and recorded with said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy of the County, on Tuesday the 10th day of June A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four, at 10 A. M., to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs, taxes and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section number thirty-four (34) in Township number one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range number [illegible] (49) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the government survey thereof.

Dated April 11th 1884.
T. L. SMEDES, Mortgagee.
[illegible]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Christopher C. Dillon and Ella Dillon his wife, mortgagors, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the twenty-seventh day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 539 and 540, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $51 45-100, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 7th day of June A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-two (22) in Township one hundred and forty-eight (148) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY, Mortgagee.

F. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Zebedee Lasis, mortgagor, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 13th day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the seventeenth day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 499 to 501 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $[illegible], and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 7th day of June A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the east half (e½) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of section two (2) in Township one hundred and fifty-three (153) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY, Mortgagee.

F. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th, 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Moses Blair, mortgagor to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 3d day of November A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the fourth day of November A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 437 and 438 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $32 70-100, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 7th day of June A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and lots one (1) two (2) of Section seven (7) in Township one hundred and fifty one (151) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and fifty-two 97 (152 97) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY, Mortgagee.

F. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Francis Feeney, mortgagor, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the 5th day of July A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the sixth day of July A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 548, 549, 550, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $18 90 and there is yet to become due $48, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 7th day of June A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section [illegible] (4) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

F. T. DAY, Mortgagee.

F. J. HODGSON, Attorney for Mortgagee.
Dated March 28th 1884. [49-3]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Joseph Valle and Zoe Valle, his wife, mortgagors, to F. T. Day, mortgagee, dated the seventh day of July, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 560 to 562 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of $40 90, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county, on Saturday the 7th day of June A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, is the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-three (23) in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the government survey thereof.

[illegible]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-five and 85-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Clarence C. Dodge (an unmarried man,) to the American Freehold Land Mortgage Company of London, (Limited,) bearing date the 23d day of September A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of October A. D. 1882, at 1:15 o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 246, 247, 248 and 249, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one note of five hundred and one dollars, bearing even date with said mortgage, and due September 23d 1887, with interest thereon from date, until paid, at the rate of seven per cent per annum, payable annually, on the 1st day of January in each year according to the terms of said promissory note of the said Clarence C. Dodge, with coupons attached, it being further stipulated in said note that if the maker thereof should fail to pay any of said interest when due, such interest should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum from the time it becomes due, and said mortgage should stand security therefor. Default having been made in the payment of the interest due January 1st 1884, and the interest now due on said interest the said mortgagee thereupon elected that all of said sums described in said note should be immediately due and payable according to the provisions of said note and of the mortgage securing the same and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of section thirty-two (32) Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the nineteenth day of May A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 2d A. D. 1884.

THE AMERICAN FREEHOLD LAND MORTGAGE COMPANY OF LONDON (LIMITED), Mortgagee.

J. P. DASH, FISK & PHELPS, Attorneys for Mortgagee. [50-3]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of forty-three and 67-100 which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henry L. Gaylord and Laura M. Gaylord, his wife, to the American Freehold Land Mortgage Co., (limited) bearing date the 3d day of October A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of October A. D. 1882, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 269, 270, 271 and 272, which said mortgage was given to secure the payment of one note of six hundred dollars bearing even date with said mortgage and due October 2d 1887 with interest thereon from date, until paid at the rate of seven per cent. per annum payable annually on the first day of January in each year according to the terms of said promissory note of the said Henry L. Gaylord and Laura M. Gaylord, with coupons attached, it being further stipulated in said note that if the maker thereof should fail to pay any of said interest when due, such interest should bear interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum from the time it became due and said mortgage should stand security therefor. Default having been made in the payment of the interest due January 1st 1884, and the interest now due on said interest the said mortgagee thereupon elected that all of said sums described in said note should be immediately due and payable according to the provisions of said note and of the mortgage securing the same, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-four (34) Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, in Polk County, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law: which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the nineteenth day of May A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 2d A. D. 1884.

THE AMERICAN FREEHOLD LAND MORTGAGE COMPANY OF LONDON (LIMITED,) Mortgagee.

J. P. DASH, FISK & PHELPS, Attorneys for Mortgagee. [50-3]

Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of five hundred and seventy-six and 23-100 dollars ($576 23) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John Ralston and Hannah Ralston, his wife, to Eugene Besse, bearing date the 5th day of March, A. D. 1880, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1880, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 651, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All of the northeast quarter (¼) of section twenty-four (24) Township one hundred and forty nine (149) Range forty-seven (47) containing one hundred and sixty acres of land according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston in said County and State, on the 9th day of May, A. D. 1884 at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and forty dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated March 18th, A. D. 1884.

EUGENE BESSE, Mortgagee.

JOHN MCLEAN, Attorney for Mortgagee. [47-1]

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Ludvig Olsen mortgagor, to Svenung Hageson mortgagee, dated the third day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota on the 19th day of December A. D. 1881, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., in book "E" of mortgages, on pages 571, 572, 573 on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of eighteen hundred and seventy-six and 18-100 dollars ($1876 18-100,) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the west front door of the court house, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota on Saturday the seventeenth day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and the taxes if any on the premises in said mortgage described and forty ($40.00) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, pieces or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The Southwest quarter (sw¼) Section eighteen (18) in Township one hundred and forty-seven (147) of Range forty-eight (48,) containing one hundred and forty-five and 8-100 (145 8-100) acres according to the government survey thereof. The above mortgage was given to secure the payment of the promissory notes therein described, which were executed and delivered by said mortgagor to said mortgagee as part payment of the purchase price of said above described premises.

SVENUNG HAGESON, Mortgagee.

LEO & STEENERSON, Attorneys of Mortgagee.
Dated March 25th, 1884. [48-8]

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial teeth from one to an entire set [illegible]

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and fourteen and eighty-three one hundredths dollars ($114.83-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Simon Paul and Virginia Paul his wife, both of Polk County, Minnesota, to John Moser and Ernst Moeckel, bearing date the 21st day of March A. D. 1883, and with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 22d day of March A. D. 1883 at 9 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 610 to secure the payment of a certain promissory note for the sum of one hundred and three and seventy one hundredths dollars, payable November 1st A. D. 1883, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum until paid, and duly executed and delivered by said Simon Paul, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, or the interest thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The south half of the southeast quarter, and the northwest quarter, of the south-east quarter, and the south-east quarter of the south-west quarter, of Section twenty nine (29.) Township one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range forty-three (43) west, all situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 21st day of May A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes if any, on said premises and fifty dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 19th, A. D. 1884.

JOHN MOSER & ERNST MOECKEL, Mortgagees.
[51-5]

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William J. Hurst and Elizabeth Hurst, his wife, mortgagors, to John W. Klepper, mortgagee, bearing date the 25th day of September A. D. 1882, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of September A. D. 1882, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 293, and whereas the said mortgage, and the debt thereby secured was by the said John W. Klepper duly assigned to J. D. Marshall by his deed of assignment in writing, dated March 29th 1884, which assignment was duly recorded in said registry aforesaid on the 3d day of April 1884, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "R" of mortgages on page 64, and whereas, there is claimed to be due and there is due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of two hundred and eleven and 10-100 dollars, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lot No. nine (9,) of Block No. six (6,) in the Townsite of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof and filed in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, in the State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 31st day of May A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock a. m., of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 15th, A. D. 1884.

J. D. MARSHALL,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

SAMUEL PORTER,
Attorney for Assignee, Atwater, Minn
[51-5]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Apr. 10th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Albin C. Sneland against Martin Erdmann for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 7,074, dated April 26th, 1882, upon the sw¼ S. 8, T. 153, R. 46, in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 9th day of June 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.
[51-4] P. C. SLATTEN, Receiver.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston Minn., Apr. 11th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on June 12th, 1884, viz: JAMES MILLER, H'd No. 2195, for the se¼ S. 22, T. 156, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz: J. O. Servent, Thos. R. Dennison, G. L. Gray and Fritz Reyer all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[51-4] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., April 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 15th, 1884, viz: JOHN BAUMANN, H'd No. 6625, for the sw¼ S. 4, T. 147, 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: O. K. Gullickson, K. Gullickson, T. Steenerson and B. Hafterson all of Edna, Polk Co., Minn.

[49-2] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., April 2d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 15th, 1884, viz: JEREMIAH GRIFFIN, H'd No. 2627, for the ne¼ S. 26, T. 151, n, R. 44 w. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Sullivan, Jerry Donohue, Timothy Donohue and Thomas Casey, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[49-2] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 25th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, on May 10th, 1884, viz: OLE K. BJORN, Pre. D. S., No. 8,145, for the n½ sw¼ sw¼ sw¼ S. 20, and nw¼ nw¼ S. 29, T. 147, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Hans C. Sampson, Thor S. Hastvedt, Ed Labree and George Labree, all of Foston, Polk Co., Minn.

[48-1] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before Register and Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 6th, 1884, viz: STANISLAS VANDRON, Hd. 2,015, for the sw¼ Sec. 19, T. 150, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Oscar Charpentier, of Lake Pleasant, Polk County, Minn., Pierre Lesuyer, Pierre Barette, of Gentilly, Polk County, Minn., George Beauvais of Carman, Polk County, Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn. March 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN PETTERSON, Pre. D. S. No. 8,131, for the lots 4, 5 and 6, and se¼ sw¼ Sec. 19, and lot 1, Sec. 30, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Burg, John A Taflaud, W. Torgersen, Ole Flacopo, all of King P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., March 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on May 6th, 1884, viz: PIERRE LECUYER, Hd. No. 2,044, for the n½ ne¼ sw¼ ne¼ and ne¼ nw¼ S. 26, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Stanislas Vandrin, Oscar Charpentier, of Lake Pleasant, Polk County, Minn., Timothe Desgroselliers, of Gentilly, Polk County, Minn., George Beauvais, of Carman, Polk Co., Minn.

[47-52] JOHN CROMB, Register.

LEO & STEENERSON.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 8, U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON - MINN

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.

McKINNON BROS.
MANUFACTURERS OF
CARRIAGES, BUGGIES, WAGONS,
CUTTERS, SLEDS, &C., &C., &C.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,
DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Johnson Bros. Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and the Plano Harvester and Binder, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, in fact we have everything in Machinery, from a wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine. Extras for all machines, always on hand.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY,
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Old Brick Block
IS THE PLACE
To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.
Fontaine & Anglim
IS THE FIRM
Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FA[illegible] and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.
Great Bargains
Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim Emporium, in the Old Brick Block, MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MI[illegible]

IVES & HATLESTAD,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW,
Collection and Land Office Business made Specialty.
Money secured for final proofs on short notice
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Sur[illegible]
Rooms corner Main Street and Fle[illegible] Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hard[illegible] Store,
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
GRADUATE McGILL UNIVERSITY, MONTREAL.
Licensed College Physician and [illegible], Quebec.
Office Over Medical Hall.

FURNITURE STORE.
OAK STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
BATAGLIA & KNACK, PROPRIE[illegible]
Keeps constantly on hand a well selected [illegible] of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Stands, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings and Frames. Repairing done to order. [illegible] of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

FINISH

CROOKSTON
POLK COUNTY
JOURNAL

JAN 4 THRU APR 24
1883 1884

Title:
(Crookston)
POLK COUNTY JOURNAL

6:36 - 7:52

Inclusive Dates: Jan 4 1883 — Apr 24 1884

177-3 -1978
178-3 -1978

Originals held by: MHS X Other ___

Prepared by: J.J.Wandrick
Date: 3/21/1978
Format: 1A X 2B ___

Filmed by: J.W.
Date: March 27, 78
Camera No. yellow

Reduction Ratio: 17
Voltmeter .74/90
No. Expos. 572

Prelim. Inspection by:
Date:
Density:

Target Resolution: ___/mm
O.K. ___
Reject ___
Length: